Windsor, May 22 — (CP) — Windsor constable Ernie Cumnings was knocked unconscious early today while investigating an apparent attempted break-in of a downtown building. He was struck as he approached some men at the rear of the building. The men escaped.

Two Fugitives Captured in Swamp Near Soo

Munising, Mich., May 22 (CP) —Two fugitives from an Ohio prison farm were captured Saturday in a swamp near this Lake Superior port 120 miles west of Sault Ste. Marie.

Alger County Sheriff Arthur Moote said the fugitives had "an awful pile" of money with them when captured, earlier on Saturday the brothers, driving a stolen car, broke through a police road block. One policeman was wounded by shots from the car.

Following his capture, Lloyd Russell told police he and his brother had not crossed into Canada. He said they were hiding in woods near Sabit Ste. Cars Run Gauntlet Of Milling Members At Plant Gates

Non-Striking Employees Harassed by Picket Line

London, Ont., May 23. (CP)—Rocks and giant firecrackers flew outside the pickaded Empire Brass plant here at 5 p.m. Monday as the company took non-striking employees from the plant in taxis.

Eight cars ran a gauntlet of about 200 to 300 milling members of Local 2599, United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), on strike at the plant for higher wages, pension plan and closed shop.

The cars were struck with rocks, kicked and rocked on their springs as they moved through the picket line with doors locked.

Staff Sgt. Robert Fraleigh, heading a seven-man detachment of city police who cleared the way for the cabs, said charges would be laid against at least one man as soon as identification is established.

Most of the 450 strikers were expected to be on picket lines again today.

Charles Pinson of Guelph, staff representative of the Union, said negotiating would continue 24 hours a day.

C. H. Ives, president, Empire Brass, said Monday after a conference with company officials that "we are now in a position to continue production on a reduced basis."

"We are within our rights to continue in production with available staff," Mr. Ives said, "and we are within our rights to do everything we are doing."

He said the company would ask for continued police protection for non-striking workers.

Monday afternoon large carpet tacks and roofing nails littered the driveway into the plant grounds. Swept from the driveway they were still to be found in the early evening in the gutter near the driveway.

COMMONS STAGES SIX-HOUR DEBATE ON EDUCATION

C.C.F. Motion Refused By Govt. Supporters

Ottawa, May 23—(CP)—A one-time school teacher propelled the Commons Monday into a weighty six-hour debate on whether the federal government should grant money to the provinces to expand and equalize educational opportunities across the country.

The debate was initiated by R. R. Knight (CCF — Saskatoon), former school teacher, who sponsored a private resolution urging the government to consider that proposition.

The motion, which drew objections from government benches and support from opposition parties, was still under discussion when the House rose. It now goes off the order paper.

Two cabinet ministers — Agriculture Minister Gardiner and Health Minister Martin—said they were against the motion.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, endorsed it. He suggested the federal government could help the provinces by extending the number of scholarships available for research and that what could be done.

Mr. Gardiner, also a former school teacher, said at one time minister of education in Saskatchewan, said the federal government was not opposed to additional grants to the provinces, but felt it should not attempt to make grants and then order that they be spent on education. The proper place for the discussion would be before the approaching Dominion-provincial conference.

LIE IN LONDON FOR TALK WITH ATTLEE AND BEVIN

London, May 23. (Reuters)—Trygve Lie, United Nations secretary-general, arrived in London today for talks with Prime Minister Attlee and Foreign Secretary Bevin.

Lie said he had no new statement to make on his talks in Moscow, where he met Prime Minister Stalin and other Soviet leaders.

Lie came by boat train from Paris, where he had talks with French Premier Georges Bidault and Foreign Minister Robert Schuman.

Paris, (Reuters)—The Independent left-wing Paris newspaper Combat said today that Prime Minister Stalin told United Nations Secretary-general Trygve Lie Russia would resume normal activities within the U.N. if Communist China replaced the Nationalist delegation.

Russia also would ask for an early meeting of the Security Council, the newspaper said.

"Stalin promised Lie that if the powers he represents would admitted to the United Nations his objections to the Atlantic 'clientele' (such as Italy) would be liquided," it added.

Scientists Study After-Effects of Munitions Blast

South Amboy, N. J., May 23 — (AP) — This city's explosion disaster has given the army a chance to study what might happen if the United States were bombed.

The Department of the Army has sent two scientists here to study after-effects of the huge explosions blast which shook South Amboy, killing 31, injuring more than 300, and ruining the waterfront.

The continent escaped bombing in both World Wars, and army men have only the experiences of foreign countries to go on when guessing at how bombs might affect U. S. cities. But now South Amboy has become a laboratory that may throw some light on how America might behave in a surprise bombing raid.

Dr. Leonard Logan, a sociologist, and Dr. J. R. Green, a physicist, made their report for the army. It discuss the physical, economic, and social impacts of the disaster.

'Russian Roulette' Death is Suicide Police Report

Westminster, Md., May 23 — (AP) — George William Martin, 17, found dead in a field near here by Carol Miller's home Monday night with a bullet wound in his head, was "Russian roulette" was played.

"He was standing his gun and stop "shooting" at himself.

"I thought he would stop that foolishness if I walked out of the room," the 15-year-old girl told police later.

She went out the door, she heard a report.

Police listed it as suicide.

"Russian roulette" is played by inserting one cartridge into an empty revolver, spinning the chamber, and pulling the trigger with the gun pointed at your head taking a chance that the hammer will strike and empty chamber.

OPP Motorcycles Out in Force On Ontario Roads

Toronto, May 23 — (CP) — Motorcycle patrols were out in full force on Ontario highways today for the first time in 10 years.

Thirty-two machines went into operation in one of the opening moves of a campaign to rid highways of accidents and, at the same time, speed traffic by eliminating rubber-necking.

Inspector Albert Witts of the Ontario Provincial Police force here, has been placed in charge of the motorcycle detail. He has more than 20 years' experience in traffic work and recently completed a course in traffic handling at Northwestern University in Chicago.

Last year, 12 motorcycles were used by police, mostly on highways in the Toronto area. Beginning this year, the entire area of southern Ontario will be patrolled with motorcycle.

Who's Making Clouds Weep? Hudson Valley Folk Grill N.Y. Rainmaker

New York, May 22— (AP)— the long wet spring.

They tried to thrash that question out Monday night for the umpteenth time and got the same old answer—nobody knows.

But it has been raining a lot lately, giving the big city's long-parched reservoirs and making the city fathers dance in joy.

But if the city fathers are dancing, a lot of other folk are plain bumping mad.

Some of them are worried farmers in the watershed area, whose beling to civic groups worrying about possible floods. Others are resort owners whose crowds have turned sour during

One New Jersey amusement park on the Hudson River pallsaders have even gone as far as to hire two "anti-rainmakers" at a reported salary of $100 a day to keep Howell's flood away from their door.

Mr. Howell himself was put on the griddle Monday night at a meeting of the Hudson Valley division of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Reporters asked the same question.

"I wish I knew the answer," the modest professor told them.

All along, Howell has held to a strict "maybe" on the success of his efforts in seeding the clouds with dry ice from airplanes or silver iodide smoke from the ground.

But he did deny altering the weather as far away as New Jersey and Pennsylvania—which also have had streaks of rain.

He also denied causing any flood risk.

PRIME MINISTER SEES FLOOD DAMAGE

Standing on a submerged Winnipeg street Prime Minister St. Laurent registers his dismay as he sees the extent of the damage done by the flood. He pledged financial aid to the province from the federal treasury on the same basis as that provided to British Columbia after the floods of 1948. At that time, the Dominion government paid 75 per cent of specified relief measures, the province 25 per cent, — Central Press Canadian.

US Demands Russ Dissolve Police In East Germany

Washington, May 23 (AP) — The United States demanded today that Russia dissolve the east-German police force immediately, saying it has "the character of an army."

In a note to Moscow, the State Department said the creation of this 50,000-man force directly violates five agreements signed by the Soviet Union.

Paris, (AP)—Russia today accused Russia of breaking the four-power agreement on demilitarization of Germany by permitting formation of a 50,000-man militarized police force in the Soviet occupation zone.

A formal protest note delivered in Moscow this afternoon suggested to Russia that dissolving the militarized police would be a welcome move toward easing international tension.

The note charged that the equipment supplied to the east-German police force "goes beyond that of a normal force."

"Its training and its equipment have in effect a definitely military character," the note declared. "Its equipment includes notably: Machine-guns, mortars, antitank guns and even several light armored vehicles."

Red Youth Vanguard Arrives

Berlin, (AP) — A vanguard of militant communist youth arrived here today to join in preparations for Whitsuntide demonstrations the reds are organizing for the coming weekend.

As they assembled, West Berlin's Ernst Reuter, in a broadcast to the Russian occupation zone, warned that his sector would "defend itself as well as against any "putsch attempt — — to conquer and suddenly overrun free Berlin."

Meanwhile the Soviet sector was festooned with flags and numerous reviewing stands were under construction. The communists have advertised that 500,000 members of their free German youth would assemble in the city for a weekend of demonstrations.

The reds fired the first gun, marchers would storm all Berlin including the allied-occupied zones, but extensive western preparations to meet any such attack were followed by a soft-pedalling of communist threats.

Some 20,000 east-German children, all under 14, streamed into Berlin this morning and camped in a tent settlement on the outskirts of the Soviet sector.

CAR CATAPULTS INTO TREE

Port Erie, May 23 — (CP) — Stella Silverman, 32, of Buffalo, N.Y., was taken to hospital Monday night with injuries suffered when a car driven by James Curtiss, 37, also of Buffalo, left the highway and catapulted into a tree.

Jeering Crowd Greets Red Dean At Calgary

Calgary, May 23 — (CP) — Dean Ely Reid Woodsworth, Dean of Canterbury, was greeted Monday night by a jeering crowd outside the Ukrainian auditorium, where he appeared at a public meeting sponsored by the Calgary Peace Council.

While the "Red Dean" was making his address, eggs, tomatoes and stones were hurled at the building. One window was smashed by a stone. Firecrackers were thrown.

Police arrested one of the teenagers. Then a pitched battle ensued between youths and police as officers attempted to place the youth in the Black Maria. Finally, after he was placed in the wagon, the gang let the air out of the tires of the police vehicle.

At this point, more stones were thrown and more windows smashed. One woman was injured by flying glass. Police said most of the trouble was due to teenagers' activities.

Inside, when the Dean started his remarks, he was heckled by at least two persons. Both later got up and walked out of the auditorium.

Canterbury Sends Profound Sympathy To 'Peg Sufferers

Winnipeg, May 23 (CP)—The Archbishop of Canterbury has sent his "profound sympathy" to the people of flood-stricken Winnipeg.

In a letter to Most Rev. R. L. Sherman, Anglican Archbishop of Rupert's Land, Most Rev. Geoffrey Fisher said:

"I am writing to express my profound sympathy for you and your people and the whole city of Winnipeg in this terrible and disastrous flood. Indeed our thoughts have been constantly with you."

Archbishop Sherman said Dr. Fisher is well-acquainted with Winnipeg and it suburbs. In 1946 he attended the General Synod of the Anglican diocese in Winnipeg.

DISASTER RISK TO TWIN CITIES SEEMS ENDED

River Drops Slowly, Steadily From Crest

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 23 — (CP) — The Red River dropped slowly but steadily from its flood crest today. Brig. R. E. A. Morton, the Army's flood-control commander, said the situation looks encouraging.

"The weather holds the key," he said at his morning press conference. "The situation will be critical until the water drops several feet."

But barring heavy, prolonged rainfall, the disaster risk to the twin cities of Winnipeg and St. Boniface, Man., seems ended.

All along the 500-mile winding course from North Dakota, the water level has been falling.

Dave Mason, Associated Press reporter who flew Monday from Winnipeg to Minneapolis over the flood area reported that three river-formed lakes south of Winnipeg are shrinking.

Greatest at Morris

"The water here defies description now as under enlargements of the river, with the greatest width in the Red River valley and extending unevenly southward. They gradually taper off until the river is virtually within its banks about 15 or 20 miles north of Grand Forks, N.D.

"The most hopeful thing is that much surface water appears to be evaporating and will never reach the main stream of the river."

The Red's level was still dangerous, despite a drop of slightly more than one inch overnight. At 9.85 feet, it was at its lowest point since May 12 when it first threatened to force mass evacuation of the cities' normal 350,000 population.

The gravest flood problem was simply this: to maintain the metropolitan area dikes while three river-formed lakes—hundreds of square miles of muddy water—are funnelled between them to Lake Winnipeg.

At 4 a.m. C.D.T. today the Red's gauge at Emerson, A dyke one-fifth of a foot in 24 hours had dropped 1.4 feet in the same period since May 12 when the surging stream threatened to inundate the cities' normal 350,000 population.

The river was about five inches below its highest 1950 crest; but it was still almost 12 feet above flood stage.

The run-off, now almost 10,000,000 tons of water hourly, would continue for several weeks. It was the nine or 10 days at best before all possibility of dike seepage or water failure was removed. All dikes have been built.

Today all major dikes were reported holding well. Some seemed so strong there were suggestions they will become a permanent part of Winnipeg's flood defences.

The river was dropping 1 1-5 to 2 inches a day and D. M. Stephens, top expert of the Reds behavior, said the rate of fall would increase gradually.

By DON GILBERT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 23 (CP)—Ninety-six giant sperm whales were ashore on a Scottish beach and died slowly on the sands. Their fate fascinated Britons, particularly as "the tragedy of the dying whales."

To Orkney Islanders it was a simple but troublesome problem of removing 450 tons of whale. The mammals were beached close to a bay at Sanday in the Orkneys and it was obvious it could not long live up to its name unless the bodies were disposed of.

Scientists explained why whales die when stranded on beaches — they are crushed to death by their own weight.

The massive bull whale which led the school ashore was the first to die. Naturalists ruled out "mass suicide" as a romantic theory. But the baby whales did create a determination to share the fate of their elders.

Children reflloated four of the six-foot babies and they died slowly on the sands. Their mothers, frantically attempting to refloat them, finally they charged the beach like speedboats, throwing themselves among their dying offspring.

The Orkney authorities were elated to receive an offer by a Norwegian firm to remove the whales free of charge. But the offer was withdrawn when the Norwegian government heard about it.

Finally the Scottish burgomees had to pay out £223 ($627) to have a company lobster diver blow the whales out to sea.

Many whales were cut up the whales on the spot for food? Indeed, the Orkney islanders did carve themselves a few steaks. But, on a larger scale, the authorities weren't interested.

Revived Case Stirs Interest In U.S. Congress

Full and Complete Story Will be Told by Senator

Washington, May 23—(AP)—The newly-revived Amerasia case of wartime theft of United States government secrets has stirred fresh interest in Congress, along with Republican charges of "cover-up."

Promises of "the full and complete story" were made today by Senator Millard Tydings (Dem. Md.), who said "a lot of people are drawing conclusions about things of which they know nothing."

In 1945 Amerasia magazine case cropped up recently in connection with the Senate investigation of charges by Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep. Wis.) that communists have infiltrated the state department. Tydings is chairman of the Senate sub-committee investigating McCarthy's charges.

Secrecy Thrown Aside

It came before the whole House of Representatives late yesterday when representative Sam Hobbs (Dem., Ala.) threw aside the official secrecy which has shrouded Congressional hearings on the case since 1945.

Hobbs was chairman of the 1945 investigating committee.

The record showed, among other things, that some of the material Tydings is chairman of the Senate sub-committee investigating McCarthy's charges.

Lieut. Andrew Roth of being a "fellow-traveler." Roth was one of six persons arrested in the case. He was later cleared.

Also disclosed was testimony by one "Brooks"—who Hobbs revealed to the House as the wartime cover name of Frank Bielaski, chief investigator of the office of strategic services.

Brooks-Bielaski testified in 1946 that a raid on the Amerasia magazine office in New York revealed hundreds of secret and confidential government documents.

The Amerasia case featured the arrest of six persons in 1945 on charges of illegal possession of government documents. One was Philip Jaffe, editor of the magazine Amerasia. Another was Roth. Two were state department employees, Emmanuel Larsen and John S. Service.

Jaffe and Larsen got off with fines. Service and two others were not indicted. The sixth case was dropped.

Hobbs said he thought there might have been some connection between the new defunct magazine and Russia.

There was "something terribly phony" about the publication, he said. It had "magnificent equipment" for duplicating materials, he said, although it was losing $5,000 a month.

U.S. GOVERNMENT SEEKS TO AVERT STRIKE JUNE 1ST

Washington, May 23. (AP)—The federal government began union management conferences today seeking to avert a strike due June 1 on 10 Western United States railroads.

The Switchmen's Union of North America has threatened a walkout of 6,000 members in vital yard service on the lines, operating west of Chicago.

The Union is demanding a 40 hour week with the same pay now received for a 48-hour week.

Similar demands were won last September by 1,000,000 members of 17 non-operating rail unions who besides getting 48-hour pay for 40 hours work, also obtained a cost-of-living wage boost based on top of that.

Chairman Francis A. O'Neil Jr., of the National Mediation Board called representatives of western railroads and the Switchmen's Union together at 11 a.m. today.

Daniel P. Loomis, chairman of the Western Carriers Conference Committee, headed the management negotiators and Arthur M. Glover, president of the Switchmen's Union, the Labor side.

Internment Camp For 'Troublemakers' In East Berlin

Berlin, May 23 (Reuters)—An internment camp is being prepared for young communist troublemakers" arrested in west Berlin during the Soviet sector peace rally this weekend of 500,000 east free German youth, a west Berlin police spokesman disclosed today.

"Though we do not believe the young communists will provoke serious disorders in the western sectors we shall take no chances," he added.

"If there are troublemakers to be put inside, the camp will hold them for the duration of their young east Germans who might be arrested in west Berlin rally to flee it west Berlin."

FIRES CAUSE LUMBER PRICE INCREASE

Montreal, May 23 (CP)—Loss of an estimated 40,000,000 board feet of lumber in the Rimouski and Chibaro, Que., fires two weeks ago will result in a five-cent increase in the cost of lumber for Quebec province, Frederic Hoade, president of the Quebec Lumber Producers' Association, said tonight.

The lumber official said the Rimouski and Cabano fires took a big cut out of the Quebec lumber market. However, he forecast that Quebec lumbermen's losses will take up the slack and meet export and national trade requirements.

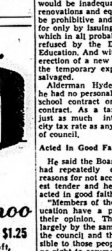
Fire Destroys Farm Home In Rawdon Twp.



Fire of undetermined origin Tuesday morning completely destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd White, 9th concession of Rawdon township. Nothing was saved from the home but a studio couch and a few chairs.

Mr. and Mrs. White were away from home at the time of the fire, having left early in the morning. About ten o'clock a neighbor, Bill Carter noticed smoke coming from one of the windows but by the time help was secured only a few articles of furniture could be saved.

Mr. White is an employee of the Canadian Highway Department. There is one teen-aged girl, Marion.

The farm home was known as the former Sam Townsend home. A garage adjoining the house was burned, but the barn, situated across the road from the house was saved.

Members of the Belleville Fire Department answered the alarm and assisted in saving the barn from the flames.

Motion to Provide Education Board Money For New School Turned Down by Council

Accusation that red herrings were being dragged in to delay matters before council, lessons in the finer point of council procedure, and a motion to refer the Education's act in "pairing" his vote with an absentee member, was heard in council Monday evening at what turned out to be a most spirited session.

Possibly most important was the fact that council turned down a motion by Alderman Chas. L. Hyde to issue debentures to an amount of $295,000 to allow the Board of Education to proceed with the construction of the new school in East Belleville.

Defeat of the motion was six for and six against with result that the recommendation was declared lost.

The controversy between councillors and the Board of Education regarding the issuing of debentures for the new school arose more than two months standing. The board accepted the second lowest tender of $295,000 for the construction of the school and council refused to issue debentures the majority of members feeling the lowest tender of $310,000 should have been accepted.

'Fired' Vote

Last night in a move possibly unparalleled in local council circles in recent years, Alderman D. Tice refused to vote on the motion regarding the school debentures refused by him after he had promised to "pair" his vote with Alderman A. M. Haig, who was absent from the meeting. Alderman Haig has opposed granting debentures for the construction of the school by the second lowest tender, while Alderman Tice has supported the board of Education.

In presenting the motion before council Alderman Hyde said he felt it was his responsibility as "citizen and ratepayer" to put forth his best effort to bring about a satisfactory settlement between council and the Board of Education.

Says School Essential

He pointed out that the new school was very essential and said it was his duty as an elected representative to do everything possible to expedite construction of the building so that children in the east end of the city would not be subjected to unnecessary hardships as in other sections of the city.

He declared that temporary accommodation in rented rooms would be inadequate, the cost of renovations and equipment would be prohibitive and could be paid for only by taxing of ratepayers which in all probability would be refused by the Department of Education. And with the eventual erection of a new school little of the temporary expense could be salvaged.

Alderman Hyde stressed that he had no personal interest in the school contract, as he had no subcontract. As a taxpayer he was just as much interested in the city tax rate as any other member of council.

Acted In Good Faith

He said the Board of Education had repeatedly explained their reasons for not accepting the lowest tender and he felt they had acted in good faith:

"Members of the Board of Education have a perfect right to their opinion. They are elected by the same people as sit on the council and they are responsible to those people. Council has no right to assume that it possesses a superior degree of intelligence which the majority of the council are doing by their actions."

Mr. Hyde stressed it was the duty of council to make available the necessary funds to build the school. He said this had been promised many months ago. If the Board's final amount requested had been more than the original estimated cost then the council might have had reason to hesitate. However, this was not the case.

Board Responsible

"It is the responsibility of the Board to use the money provided as wisely as possible. If any error in judgment they are wholly responsible and will answer to the electors".

Mr. Hyde was alarmed at the delay in the start in construction of the school, noting that this would mean increased construction with resultant increase in the cost of construction.

In the opinion of Alderman Hyde annexation of property east of the former city boundaries was mainly responsible for the 13 mill increase in taxation. He said he alone had opposed annexation of the property noting that the Township of Thurlow had agreed to develop the property if city water was supplied.

However, when annexation was accomplished in 1948 he, as chairman of public works, had done his duty to serve the area as well as any other part of the city.

Prepared to do Part

"And even now," he declared, "I am prepared to do my part to relieve the parents that these children will have the same adequate educational facilities as in other parts of the city. I feel council is seriously re-consider this matter so that work on the new school may begin as quickly was possible."

Alderman Angus Duffy also spoke in favor of the motion declaring there was no point of having a school board if they were not to be allowed to do the job for which they were elected.

"We are not accomplishing anything by holding up the school," he urged. "The thing most important is the injury being caused pupils through their being denied the opportunity of a good school."

He declared that the action of Mayor H. J. Allin in electing the former county old people's home as school accommodation was merely a "stall".

Mayor Disagrees

Mayor Allin disagreed. "The sum and substance of the matter is that we would be spending $40,000 more of the people's money," he said.

Alderman Armstrong said that council had done its duty in asking the Board of Education to reconsider the matter of the school contract. He asked who was going to be saddled with the responsibility of providing education. The Board is elected for that job.

"The fact is that the council is left holding the bag," he said. "It is time we got down to rock bottom and quit drawing red herrings across the line. We are not going to stand on our dignity and say the Board is wrong. We should get down to business and provide the money to build the school."

Alderman Lattimer agreed that Alderman Hyde had stated what he felt the Board should be prepared to accept the lowest tender. Alderman Lattimer noted that it had been the responsibility of council to point out to the Board the wisdom of reconsidering the school contract. This the council had done.

Appealed on Economy

"It was news to him," he said, "that the Board had stated it would refuse to accept the school by the lowest tender. Council had appealed to the Board purely on a platform of economy there fore it was not a question of the right of the Board but the council was carrying out its obligation to the ratepayers.

Mr. Deacon noted that Alderman Armstrong had changed his attitude on the question and asserted that there had been "considerable bungling."

"The Board apparently have decided to wait until council changes its mind about accepting $32,000 more than necessary." he said. "But the board are responsible to build the school and I 'believe it can be built at $219,000."

Opinion Not Changed

Alderman Liddle declared his opinion had not changed. He pointed out the Board of Education were not completely uninformed in the matter, noting that one member was prepared to recommend that the lowest tender had been accepted.

Alderman Armstrong denied there had been any "lobbying" as far as he was concerned. He pointed out that he had been ordering for three months with no action. He assured he was just as concerned as any other council member of council but pointed out that the children would suffer by delay.

"It's quite okay for you to say the children will not suffer," returned Alderman Duffy. "But I say they will suffer. If council continues to stall around winter conditions will be experienced with an additional cost in money. Still Supports Board

Here Alderman Tice noted that his opinion on the matter had not changed. He still supported the Board of Education but stated he would not vote on the motion before council because of his promise to Alderman Haig that he would "pair" his vote in that alderman's absence from council.

Alderman Tice said he was not questioning the contractor but stated he felt the lowest tenderer had made a mistake in approaching a member of the Board with the view of altering his sub contract price. He also took the position that the Board of Education was responsible to the taxpayers.

Alderman Duffy took the previous speaker to task for agreeing to "pair" his vote with Alderman Haig. "I think you are neglecting your duty as a councillor," he told Alderman Tice, "and I am surprised that Alderman Haig would ask such a thing. There is no such as "pairing" votes in council. It's just more red herrings again."

Denied Allegation

Alderman Deacon denied that he had made any attempt to draw red herrings into the issue. He stated that he had answered only to the argument that council should not have an opinion with regard to the debenture issue because the Board would not change its mind. Also, there could still be agreement between the two bodies.

When the question was placed Aldermen Allen, Argue, Armstrong, Deacon, Hyde and Potter favored the motion, while Mayor Allin, Aldermen Bonter, Butler Clarke, Deacon, Lattimer and Liddle opposed, Alderman Tice did not vote. Alderman Haig and Thomas were not present.

Council approved of a recommendation table by Alderman Potter to the effect that parking across the East Belleville playground, Victoria Crescent side the recreation commission were attempting to clean up the playground in order to park both by adults and children.

Approved Additional Work

Members also approved of additional work in connection with police station alterations, the work to cost approximately $175. Under questioning Alderman Potter wanted to know what was to be done with the police lockup cr. the market square. Alderman Butler noted that the building was in line with works commission, all of which said they could refuse to do the work. Much money was spent on the building the condition would be recurrent. It was decided that the building may eventually have to be demolished, he said.

Alderman Lattimer asked if it was correct that the city solicitor was attending a water works convention, at Philadelphia. Mayor Allin said that the statement was correct, that the solicitor had accompanied Utilities Commission member Frank A. Fellwell.

Also Commission Solicitor

"I presume the services of the city solicitor are required more in Philadelphia than they are in Belleville," commented Alderman Lattimer.

The Mayor noted that the city solicitor was also solicitor for the public utilities commission.

Council turned down a motion by Alderman Argue that council concur in a recommendation from Police Chief Walter Probert that pool rooms in the city be closed on Statutory holidays. Alderman Tice introduced an amendment calling for pool rooms be required to be closed on Good Friday and Christmas day with withdrew the amendment when asked if this would apply also to theatres and bowling alleys.

Among the motion were Aldermen Argue, Butler, Deacon, Lattimer and Potter, while Mayor Allin, and Aldermen Allen, Armstrong, Clarke, Duffy, Hyde, Liddle and Tice opposed.

Under general business Alderman Potter noted the failure of council to have a park established at the corner of MacDonald and Victoria streets at any other time. He assumed full responsibility for mishandling the matter but at the same time charged interference particularly on the part of Mayor Allin.

Alderman Makes Charge

He charged that Mayor Allin had given the wrong boundaries of the suggested park property to the parks board, who had then disapproved of the property.

"That is a lie," interrupted Mayor Allin.

"I would remind you that I have the floor and when I am through, you can talk," Alderman Duffy replied.

IN MEMORIAM

MARTIN — In loving memory of my dear wife, Lilly Martin, who passed away May 23, 1949.

You have left many friends to mourn patient, kind and true

No other friends all the world will be as true to you.

For all her trials, kindness, she asks nothing in return

If all the world could witness you to your mother's credit turn

So all I can do, dear mother, is go and kneel and say "Thank you"

And leave behind a token of love to you in the Kingdom of God ever made.

I'd like to think when life is done

Whatever heaven may be

So you've gone dear mother

Cherish her with care

For you never know the heartaches

Until you see her vacant chair.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her daughter Bessie and family. M23

MARTIN — In loving memory of my dear wife, Lilly Martin, who passed away May 23rd, 1949.

A beautiful memory of a loved one that is dear.

I am not lonely, I am not blue,

And that is why I think of you.

I miss her love, her cheery ways,

But still her memory always stays.

To love, to hold and then to part,

Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by her husband, Alfred. M23

SULLIVAN — In memory of a dear wife and mother, Myrtle Sullivan, who passed away May 23rd, 1948.

Peacefully sleeping, resting at last

Beyond the reach of mortal trials or pain

In silent love she suffered, in patience she bore

Till God called her home to suffer no more

Ever remembered by husband and family. M23

CASEY — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Henry Casey, who passed away May 23rd, 1945

His last parting wish

We would like to have heard

And breathed in his ear

But his lips moved not.

Only those who have lost are able to tell

The pain so hard

In not saying farewell.

Sadly missed by wife, daughter Irene and family. M23

VIRGLE — In loving memory of a dear brother, Virgle Ashley, who passed away May 23rd, 1948.

Dear is the heart that left us

We never shall forget

How quickly he was taken

But his memory is left yet.

A friend to everybody

Wanted by not by everyone

The Lord has called him in the night

He knew best.

Sadly missed by sister Irene, brother-in-law Bert and family. M23

CARD OF THANKS

Level Crossing Toll up to Eight, Two Children Die

Sturgeon Falls, May 23 (CP)—The death toll in a level-crossing collision rose to eight today when two children who suffered injuries died in hospital.

The children were Gerald Guay and Hector Caron, both four.

Five other persons who suffered injuries early Monday when a truck was struck by a Trans-continental passenger train at Verner, 11 miles west of here, today were reported improved.

The Guay boy's stepfather, Julien Gervais, and the Caron child's mother, Mrs. Edward Dayen, 36, and brother, Hervey, 10, were killed instantly in the midnight crash.

The train was carrying 13 residents of River Valley, 15 miles north of here, home from a Sunday fishing outing when it hit the Canadian Pacific Railway train.

Triple Bereavement

In the crunch of the crossing smash, Mrs. Jeannine Cormier lost her husband Jeannot, 31, who she was married Easter Monday; her son by her first marriage, Gerald, 7, and her daughter Jacqueline, 25.

Mrs. Cormier herself suffered a broken ankle and bruises but is expected to get well. She is 19.

She was 14 when wed to Laurier Guay in Long Lake Township, losing afterward, in 1946, her husband who was drowned in the nearby Sturgeon River.

One of the injured in the smash-up, Mrs. Dayen, 36, who also had been seated between Hervey and Hector, is in the hospital cab. Donat's brother, Arthur, was scheduled to have been married today to Reta Bryant at nearby Field and it was decided that the wedding should go on.

The same priest who conducts the wedding ceremony, Rev. Walter Bradley, will officiate in mercury at funeral masses for the entire family.

An inquest will be held when the injured witnesses are sufficiently recovered to testify.

Surgery Forced a Delay in Peyton To Large Crowd at Arena

"The first great gift a man can give his family is the protection of almighty God. The gift given to him through Mary, when he gathers his family daily to say the family rosary", said Reverend Father Peyton, Catholic Priest, founder of the Family Rosary Crusade in a heartfelt petition to more than 3,500 Belleville and district people to return to family prayer. The Belleville arena made his plea last evening in the Memorial Arena.

"The rosary is the best family prayer known", said Father Peyton. "The family who says the rosary, and has the thoughts of the rosary receive the peace, and love and joy, which God alone can give."

"This large crowd is an encouragement to me", the priest continued. "It has been reported that I am the most popular of Canada as thousands of people turned out to see me over the cause of God and Mary. One quarter of the United States is ready to say what you are doing tonight, and the Crusade is being prepared for Australia as well. I will not rest until every father in the world will stand before God and pray for his family, ask His protection."

Leadership Lost is Claim

"Home life has lost its leadership", Father Peyton went on to say, "and homes are disintegrating because of it. Juvenile delinquency today know only the beauty of material things. They have lost the spiritual beauty that is in the home. However, more than 100,-000 families in the world and 25 million women and children, have already pledged themselves to say the family rosary, and as this great movement goes forward, the prayer of every family prayer will be recorded as the greatest boast of the last 50 years of the century."

Father Peyton then went on to tell the crowd that he was devoting his life to this Crusade:

"Eleven years ago I was a man broken in health and spirit and in the priesthood. Mary came to my rescue. I needed a powerful friend. She gave me my health, and my life, and brought me back to the priesthood. I love Her for what She has done for me, and I will tell the world of Mary and to 10 million homes I will bring the peace, and joy, and love that can be theirs through their dedication to Mary."

What Rosary Does

"What does the rosary hold for a child?" Reverend Father Peyton then went on to tell how he had been asked to a home where the rosary was said daily, "every day of every week, every month of every year."

"I was reminded every 24 hours of God's love for me, of God by a father and mother who lived their love for God and for each other by they took from God. When I left home at the age of 18, I could tell them that their love no longer was responsible for me—that their love for God was responsible for my regard."

Father Peyton continued by explaining what the rosary does for married people. Taking his example from his own family life, he said, "Married people are bound together by love, but that marriage there is a third party, Christ, who is brought there by His Mother. Christ is the love that binds Christ the gifts He sends them are their children and when we included nine children. The girl did not take her dress from the world when she children are so many, and five children are under school age. We assembled to listen to the world which said he was a man broken in health, broken in health to support nine children. He took the advice of God Who told him to pray. He did as the field's — "Their Heavenly Father cares for them." He was given more precious are you than they?" He took the sixth child. The family rosary gave me my life. The world did not want me. The world did not want me. I had a gift to bestow upon the weapon that gave me my life," Possible To Take Time

"It is possible for every man, his wife to say the family rosary," the speaker continued, "and unite your day. See what time it takes for this prayer, and what action. Then at the end of the day can you stand unashamed before God, and say that you have not ten minutes to bring the greatest protection to your family from the Giver of life and all good things?"

Father Peyton told the gathering of the great opposutnities he had been given since 1942 to pray for the world to Mary and to God. Radio networks, television networks, newspapers and movies have all been made available to him for the Crusade, and through the Family Rosary Crusade and the slogan, "The family that prays together, stays together."

Just Takes Ten Minutes

"By gathering his family each day for the family rosary, a man is taking his place in God's steward in the kingdom of his home and that he is fulfilling the duties of a good steward. He is thanking God for His gifts of health, sight, hearing and ability to communicate, and for the spiritual powers of thinking, imagining and loving. He is telling God and Mary that he and his family love them and want them. And with the rosary this takes just ten minutes a day."

In conclusion Father Peyton said. "In 1950, I can stand here and say that I will have 10,000,-000 family rosary homes, if God wills it."

The great rally was opened by a half hour of music by the Belleville Municipal Band. The Belleville Girls' Choir, conducted by His Worship Mayor H. J. Allin, followed briefly from their regular council meeting to appear at the rally.

Welcomed by Mayor

Mayor Allin, on behalf of the council and citizens of Belleville, welcomed His Grace Archbishop J. A. O'Sullivan and other visiting dignitaries to the city.

"I know you have come for a worthy cause to the return to family prayer," Mayor Allin stated. "I can remember my own boyhood in the country when each day we read a few verses from the Bible."

Then on behalf of the city the Mayor presented His Grace with a key to the city.

In reply Archbishop O'Sullivan thanked the Mayor for "his generous and unexpected courtesy. We know how the parish priests of the kind and generous co-operation of the city officials and citizens. Thank you again for this courtesy and as you return to your homes tonight, in control of administration of this busy city we shall join you in your prayers of zens of this city and country.

In discussing the Crusade His Grace said, "this appeal is not restricted to any one diocese, it is an appeal which has gone out through all of Canada.

Still Dark Clouds

"Our appeal is to beg God to intervene. Since the dawn since the end of the war and despite the best efforts of governments, there are still dark clouds in international relations and the people of the world are fearful. We believe it is due to the fact that God has been forgotten God. And we also believe that the world crisis can be helped by family prayer. We appeal to God to ask Him to ask Christians to heed the Divine command to pray for peace.

"The home is the foundation of society and family prayer makes the home and society pleasing to God", Grace continued. "God has told us that we must pray. We ask the Father anything in My name and He will give it to you." But we have neglected to ask Him."

"The Holy Father, and the Bishops of the world support all these lines. Indeed, all Christian churchmen and all Christians are interested in the United States, Great Britain and throughout the world. I have said we must remember God if we are to have peace and the brotherhood of man.

Still Highest Ideal

"Winston Churchill, in an address last summer in Boston to a gathering of 10,000 people, spoke say as a great leader as well as a Christian gentleman said "The blame of civilization must be laid at our highest ideal. The fulfillment of Christianity is the only life if vital to our survival".

His Grace continued, "It is vital to our survival that we pray to the world but in the next world as well.

"And in this secularistic world what can we do to make Christian society possible, Christian, Tennyson has said, 'More things are wrought by prayer than this world dreams of.' We are asking you for daily family prayer. And by the rosary I Became a saint a great form of Catholic prayer. It brings peace and happiness to you. Then we say Our Lord's own prayer six times. And then, in the words of a well known Catholic poet "Our Mother Mary". The Wordsworth has called Mary "Our tainted nature's solitary boast".

"Early in this country's history our nations were founded on prayer we must organize our lives in this daily worship of God in such a way that the rosary takes a place in our hearts and minds and actions.

Crusade Success

Director of the Crusade for the Kingston archdiocese, Reverend Father O'Sullivan of Kingston delivered the third and final address of the evening.

"The Family Crusade is a sacred word," he said," and in olden days it was the custom to reclaim a sacred thing, which had fallen into the hands of the infidel. It still means a war—a war of prayer to save the family which has fallen into the hands of the infidels, those of Christ's enemies who gladvocate' free love, birth control, and immorality in thought and deed. The Church is warring to reclaim the family as quickly and as completely as possible.

Father Peyton has given you the battlecry and it is up to you to follow him. We must organize now to have success. God gives the victory but we must work for it."

Raise Altar of Triumph

In speaking of the archdiocesan rally that is to be held June 4th in the capacity Maple Leaf Gardens, Father O'Sullivan said, "On June 4th at 8 p.m. 10,000 will be raised in Queen's stadium. All you who have taken part in this rally must be there to be entered in to count the spoils of victory and Kingston's share of Father Peyton's 10 million family rosary homes. There will be a living rosary of the families of doctors, engineers, laborers, merchants, and soldiers. We urge you to show you what will take place in the homes of Kingston.

25th Anniversary Of United Church On June 11th

Toronto, May 23 — (CP) — The United Church of Canada will celebrate its 25th birthday June 11 with a special evening rally at Maple Leaf Gardens, it was announced today.

The silver jubilee celebration will also include a concert in the Gardens on June 7. Proceeds will go to the Winnipeg relief fund.

The United Church was established in Toronto June 10, 1925, by representatives of the Presbyterian, Congregational, and Methodist churches. The late Dr. Samuel D. Pidgeon, named first moderator of the United Church at that meeting, will be among the special guests at the commemoration.

A portion of the Sunday evening service will be broadcast by arrangement with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. It will be carried to other United Church of Canada churches, where regional rallies will be held.

Probe Report Of Wearing Of OPP Uniform

Toronto, May 23, — (CP) — Arthur Maloney, Q.C., commissioner of the Ontario Provincial Police, said Monday night that police at Belleville will be investigated a report that a former member of the force was wearing a policeman. The former member, J. Ernest Keays, was reported to have been seen in uniform pursuant Sunday night in the uniform of the provincial police.

It was Keays who charged management of justice in the Belleville area into administration of legalities against nine fellow officers of the provincial police including Constable Gordon Stringer. A Royal Commission is now investigating the charges. Kay found the charges "completely without justification" and recommended that Keays' service be terminated.

Last December Keays appealed to Justice Minister Garson to reopen his case and make a further investigation. Garson refused.

Deputy Commissioner Moss said Keays had turned in his uniform shortly after the Royal Commission report. "He might, of course, have had two or four uniforms still in his possession," he said. He expected a report in a day or two.

Flood Plays Strange Tricks In Water-Sodden Districts, Toys, Garages in Ruin Parade

The flood waters in and around Winnipeg play strange tricks. Along sides engulfing whole streets and subdivisions and forcing thousands to flee for their lives, they carve hundreds of strangely-assorted objects out of their bursting soil to Lake Winnipeg—dropping some, picking up some, piling up some, adding and adding to the pathetic picture of the worst flood disaster to strike Canada.

Out in the main current of the Red River the waters sweep timbers, buildings, crates, furniture and other large objects swiftly northward. In the back waters of the flood are the small things that were once part of someone's house. You come across a child's sodden doll, a woman's purse, the leather rocker of a once pastoral soaked and useless. You see a dead cat or dog floating side by side with a door or cedar chest or a water-logged mattress slowly disintegrating in water.

Salvage Impossible

It's surprising how many things float—even for a little while. It would be impossible to salvage them even if there were time again.

Behind a submerged house that current might collect three or four garages, each who owned them and when they owned them cannot be known.

After being subjected to many days of flooded streets, water-filled houses and dead communities, you become somewhat immune to the broad picture of the catastrophe. It's when the little things like a child's toy or a family picture floating on the water to bring a lightness to your heart that is only for a few minutes.

The Manitoba Flood Fund has been established in Belleville to help all flood victims replace their personal losses once the flood waters subside.

Projects Started

Boxes have been placed in stores and schools for the pennies coppers or silver coins in when you receive your change.

The Belleville Penny Club has been started in the public schools of the city, with the co-operation of the Board of Education. Parents can help by allowing their children to join the organizations therein.

Every little helps. Donations large or small are being gratefully received at chartered bank branches in the city. Organizations can help by arranging flood-relief benefit functions.

Mr. J. M. Wood, of the J. M. Wood Grain Company, Belleville, John Street, is the chairman of the fund here. Mr. J. G. Herkey, Royal Bank manager, is the treasurer; Geo. H. Carver, Ontario Industrial Loan and Investment, Presidents of service clubs, Mrs. Georgia Smith, Mrs. Douglas Ward and Mrs. W. J. Wills, vice-president of the Ministerial Association, with Rev. J. Hamilton Morley Duff, president of the Red Cross are others, are on the working committee.

The press and radio here are doing their part in publicizing and rallying to the appeal. Many large individual donations have been made. And many small ones.

Now is the time for everybody to help fellow Canadians, many of whom have lost all.

The total at the general fund is $10,000,000. Belleville it is hoped, will be the committee here, will contribute its share.

Previously acknowledged	$1,078.81
Monday donations	516.60
Total to date	$1,595.41

H.&P.E. Regt. To Have Branch Of Association

Belleville, in conjunction with other home cities of ex-members of the Hastings and Prince Ed ward Regiment (overseas) will have a branch of the regimental association of its own.

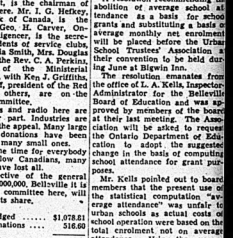
The name of the Belleville branch will be "Moro" to commemorate a famous battle of World War I. Over 100 have sent in their names.

Lieut.-Colonel Rashotte, veteran of the first battalion and now connected with the reserve unit, has been elected president of the branch with Captain Bob Scott appointed secretary-treasurer.

Other branches of the association are "Duffy", (Peterborough); "Alexander", (Napanee); "Langford", (Kingston) and "Monte Cassino" (Brockville).

Plans for the regimental reunion scheduled for Thanksgiving this year will be discussed and may be made through the newly-formed Moro Branch. Lieut. Angus Duffy is president of the association.



Requests Average Monthly Net Enrolment Basis

A resolution recommending the abolition of the average daily attendance as a basis for school grants and substituting a basis of per pupil enrolment for attendance will be placed before the Urban Section of school boards at their convention to be held during June at Bigwin Inn.

The resolution emanates from the office of L. A. Kells, Inspectorate Consultant to the Ontario Board of Education and was approved by members of the board at their meeting in Toronto. The motion will be asked to request the Ontario Department of Education to set up school grants on the basis of a change in the basis of computing school attendance for grant purposes.

Mr. Kells pointed out to board members that the present use of the statistical computation "average daily attendance" in urban schools as actual costs of school operation were based on the average number in attendance. Using the average monthly net enrolment would provide a more equitable principle for grant purpose.

Two other resolutions from Mr. Kells' office will also be presented at the Association meeting. One of these has to do with the determination of the average cost per pupil of maintaining schools, and the other is a suggested method of consolidation of rural or school boards regarding teachers' salaries with the view of reducing the amount of office work.

Rotarian Adsett Wins Best Prize At Luncheon

It was "Bring Home the Bacon" Day at the Rotary Club on Monday and some 20 Rotarians received value for the one dollar eligibility fee.

The monthly feature of the club is a revenue-producing idea that sees the Crippled Children Fund augmented by the proceeds. Prizes are drawn for with usually a 100-pound bag of sugar heading the list.

Rotarian Fred Adsett may have been superstitious, but not any longer. For his ticket "No. 13" added the bag of sugar to the family larder yesterday.

Past President Oswald Scott gave the objects and aims and objects of the Rotary International Foundation Fund. He pointed out that it was originally designed for relief in other countries.

Since 1944 its chief purpose has been the fourth object of Rotary "to promote the understanding, goodwill and peace among all nations throughout the world." It is intended for a large number of foreign students to study in the United States.

President Fred Deacon was in the chair and urged the support of the Rotarians present and through the media of ten dollar contributions by members of Rotary. He also reminded the clubmen of the urgency of the Manitoba Relief Fund and urged its support.

GREAT FLOOD RECEDING

People who have experienced small floods can have no adequate comprehension of the havoc of a major catastrophe such as that which has for weeks held power over the people of a great area of Manitoba. Now that the fall in the water is increasing in rate the victims of the Red River's riotous career for many days must feel a profound sense of gratitude that the catastrophic condition is disappearing. Day after day and night after night the people have had to watch while the river water was isolating large areas and sending many thousands outside of the area and district for safety and residence.

They realize too the task facing them, the rehabilitation and restoration of their homes to which the waters have done beyond doubt damage which can scarcely be estimated. To set their homes in order will be a gigantic task in which they have the sympathy of the people of the Dominion and assistance to make their homes and their city what it was before the historic flood of 1950 descended upon the great city.

GIFT OF SPEAKER'S CHAIR

A Speaker's chair for the Newfoundland Legislature is to be a symbol of the fraternal spirit of the ten Provinces of Canada.

Ontario has had the honor of building with the aid of skilled Ontario craftsmen the chair which will be presented to the new Province which a year ago entered Confederation; Premier Frost has explained why in the last session. It was used in the Ontario Legislature — that it might carry with it the spirit and the traditions of Ontario to Newfoundland.

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland has been touring the Provinces inviting them to send provincial representatives to St. John's for Newfoundland Day celebrations on June 24th.

Newfoundland has been a year in Confederation and the other provinces have welcomed Newfoundlanders.

The entry of Newfoundland into the federation of Provinces in the Dominion will work well for the greater nation which Canada now is already with their fellow-Canadians from the Atlantic coast.

AERIAL PATROL GUARDS FISHERIES

Steadily the airplane is infiltrating every form of activity in which it can be used.

Now it is reported that aerial patrols along the banks and waters of the St. Lawrence River are to do their part in putting a stop to fish and game poaching, the Department of Lands and Forests using an aircraft with special landing and take-off abilities which can land on the surface of small bays and inlets. The airplane extends the range which officers can cover, covering hundreds of miles in a day as compared with the limited range covered by motor launch.

The facility which the plane provides greatly extends the range of the patrol.

SALT TAKES ON COLOR

Salt can be had shortly in three colors and in time it may be wondered that the consumers of salt were satisfied so long to use the ordinary white salt.

The option of color will of course lend a touch of variety to the appearance of a dish and it may be expected to please the eye.

Use of colors might easily spread to other articles of fare.

Color is coming into its own in modern days. Here is proof — color has been making itself more and more prominent in the attire of men.

In the great outdoors of nature man has felt the influence of color. Nature has given a certain color to the buds and the leaves and bark and these have settled themselves permanently in the impression and effect they have on the human eye associated with what he sees in the world around about.

Foods have of course their own rich coloring with which man has been impressed for ages. When tears the words "Strawberries and cream" has a profound mental impression of what the roasted chicken looks like. In fact color does play a profound part in all life and it would be a drab world without it.

Salt will not now seen the addition of color to salt as something to enhance the attractiveness of food was probably applying such a law as mother human nature has applied down the ages. This can be seen outdoors and in fact man has long since applied colors in the decoration of his home.

Why salt would wait so long to receive its accolade with color would seem difficult to understand for certain sugars have taken on color for a long time — for decorative purposes.

"MORE"

He is learning to speak and his words are but few,
But it seems every day that he gains one or two,
"Book," he says, and I read till my throat's getting sore.
I put down the book, and he says to me: "More"

If his mother says: "Come!
Up to bed you must go,"
With emphasis proper he answers her: "No!"
If cookies are served to the ladies with tea,
They know what he wants
when he says to them:
"Me!"

No grammar as yet and no
sentence complete,
But with howling and wailing
the doctor he'll beat,
"No! No!" he will cry at the first sight of him.
The needles he has are painful though slim.

What a nice choice of words at the starting of speech.
No tongue-twisting syllables school teachers teach.
Just words with clear meaning
I've mentioned before,
And that over and over insistance on "More!"

Mackenzie's Column: Big 3 Decides Against Acting Now in China Crisis

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER
(For Dewitt MacKenzie)
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Washington, D.C., May 23 — (AP)—The decision of the Big Three foreign ministers in London against acting now in the China crisis in the United Nations is said by a U.N. diplomat to mean these two things.

1. The west in effect is telling Nationalist China to take it easy and not press in the U.N. little assembly its charge that the Soviet Union is a threat to the peace of the Far East. The west is opposed to antagonizing Russia further at this time.

2. In effect by letting the Nationalist China charges against the Soviet Union rest quietly in the U.N. pigeonhole, the west will not support at present any move by any source to oust Nationalist China from the U.N.

This interpretation was voiced as the Soviet Union ran to 28 the number of U.N. bodies hit by the Russian walkout strike against Nationalist China.

The China case in the U.N. involves the question of which regime shall represent the Chinese people. Nationalist generalissimo of Chiang Kai-Shek, whose delegate, F. T. Yiang sits here, claims he is the only elected government of China.

The Chinese communist regime of Peiping has demanded the expulsion of Tsiang and a seat in the U.N. for its delegate.

The United States has announced it will not vote to seat a Red delegation but it will accept the decision of the majority.

Britain has abstained in voting on ousting the Chinese here, contending the time has not come for a decision in the U.N. The Soviet walkout call on the "paralyzed" because the Reds recognized the Moscow puppet Ho Chi Minh's regime in Indo China, thus making it impossible for the French to give diplomatic recognition to the Chinese Reds.

Secretary-General Trygve Lie's return from his tour of London, Paris and Moscow is awaited now as the best hope for a break, but inside sources here predict he will be no change for some time.

Newspaper Mistakes

Kitchener-Waterloo Record)

Every once in a while one hears the remark that newspapermen make too many mistakes. Well, don't we all?

Can you imagine that, a newspaper making errors? Yes, they certainly do make errors and heaps of them, and so do people who criticize the mistakes made by newspapermen.

Consider for a moment, if you will . . . did you ever hear of the woman who failed to put salt in the teapot of hot water; the woman who forgot to salt the potatoes or meat; the lawyer who never lost a case because he won some and lost some; the doctor who never made an error putting his name on those death certificates; the carpenter who never sawed a valuable board off at the wrong place; or the druggist who never ...Oh. well, why bother? What's the idea! Why bother to print the entire list? But it would be enlightening if some of the critics who make the most of petty mistakes in newspapers had opportunity to know about the hundreds of mistakes newspaper people correct for other persons every year.

SMOKING IS BAD FOR THE HEART

Although most physicians forbid smoking when the patient shows any symptoms or signs of thrombo - angiitis obliterans (Buerger's disease), some physicians argue that if smoking were the cause, or even the chief cause of this degeneration of the arteries the condition would be widely prevalent here but, in fact it is comparatively rare. So many young and middle aged Americans make hogs of themselves (my apologies to the swine) with their smoking.

Nowadays there is even a distinct position on part of some good physicians to allow certain patients with coronary thrombosis and certain patients with angina pectoris to smoke an after-dinner cigar or an after-breakfast pipe or an after-lunch cigaret. Only certain patients, that is—patients the physician believes may derive sufficient benefit in the psychic (mental or nervous) effect from their toward effects in the physical field. Or, as Stanley expresses it (Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics):

"Both through a psychic satisfaction to the habitue and through a pharmacological narcotic effect, a smoke will frequently ease nervous tension. The war taught us that the calming effect on the wounded soldier of the lighted cigaret handed to him, and at examinations I have now and then found a student in a nervous state till allowed a cigaret. Smoking in moderation may be a factor in that relaxation in mind and body that we physicians stress so much for those with worries, anxiety neuroses and other psychic disturbances."

In college students Drs. Maddock and Collier observed: Pulse of from 8 to 20 beats a minute in th, heart action from smoking a cigaret. That doesn't jibe with the idea that smoking in moderation eases nervous tension or favors relaxation in mind and body.

Dr. Bastedo cites an interesting observation made by Stachelin upon himself. He smoked 6 to 8 cigars a day—quite a shame, even if they were only 10-cent ones. He says he enjoyed this selfish indulgence when by only moderate restraint he might save enough to feed or clothe some unhappy soul!)—for six months — (at 50 cents a day that would come to 190, but maybe the man thought the enjoyment justified the expense) — then abstained for six months. During the ninety-dollar period his pulse rate averaged 82. During the period of abstention his pulse rate averaged 75. During the ninety-dollar period a standard exercise produced a rise to 157.in the pulse rate. During the period of abstention the same exercise produced a rise to 124 in the pulse rate. The heart took considerably longer to return to normal after exercise during the ninety-dollar period.

Any man who aspires to succeed in athletics knows he cannot smoke. Nearly all observers find that breathlessness or windedness comes on earlier in smokers than in non-smokers. The heart pumps less blood after smoking.

The National War Council of the Y.M.C.A. found that smoking a cigar lowered accuracy in rifle shooting, and Fisher and Berry found the same effect on baseball throwing—with a recovery of normal accuracy after a thirty-minute rest without smoking.

There are merely the actual, practical, demonstrable, undebatable effects of smoking.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DOG LOYALTY

I was interested in a small item that appeared recently over an Associated Press dispatch from Dekalb, Illinois, and was duly noted by Dr. and Mrs. Edward G. Glenn of that town, who spent a few days in Nova Scotia last June, and they had their dog "Vinty" with them, but little did they realize how much the dog would appreciate the visit.

Ten months after this dog's disappearance, however, it showed up at his home, very much hungry but happy. This collie had travelled 1,900 miles from Nova Scotia to its home in Dekalb! Immediately it recognized its old pal, "Vinty," a bull terrier, and they romped together in royal celebration style.

How could a dog make such a journey? I read of another instance of such a journey, a dog that went back from the Northwest to the state of Maine, to its former home in Minneapolis. Such a sense of loyalty is amazing. A dog must have a great secret hoard of love within it to perform such a miraculous feat.

The PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

One of the oddities of our language lies in the two words landlord and landlady.

Landlord still has a noble ring about it. Even when it refers to the owner of a run-down, six-room, semi-detached house which he rents to a mere hundred a month, the word has a quality of dignity. And the word is still used in a genuine sense in the world of politics, to mean those wealthy and influential gentlemen of many countries as Italy or Virginia, and connoting something rather grand and impressive.

But landlady has an entirely different suggestion. It at once calls up the picture of a gaunt woman, her hair in a bun, and an unsmiling face on those who prowls around boarding houses.

One of my women friends made a pot of money in the stock market recently and immediately got out of it by buying a fine apartment house.

"Ah, you're a landlady now!" I congratulated her.

She was mortally offended.

English is very complicated and ungovernable language. For centuries, other nations have been so, suspicious of it that they have insisted that all treaties and contracts be written in French as well as English. For French is only one of the ingredients that have gone into the making of language. English, along with Latin, Greek, Scandinavian, German, borrows and shares words with most of the languages spoken by the various tribes of Britain that were conquered by these other popeles. It is a language not only full of words, but also of words that are constantly germinating and springing up with different meanings. And many of its words, like landlord and landlady, have wandered apart and hardly are on speaking terms.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A WORD ABOUT DOCTORS

The average layman has not the faintest idea how much time the doctor gives away gratis. These are many cases where the doctor's decision is quite well paid for his services, and some of them of course have very satisfactory incomes. In fact the income of the average doctor has risen amazingly in recent years.

But still almost every doctor gives away more in services than he is ever paid for. To become a physician one has to go four years in a medical school, take his internship, probably being a resident physician in a hospital, and then if he plans to specialize, the residency must be extended several years longer. Heart disease is more prevalent among doctors than among any other group of people. They put on an iron collar the day they enter medical college and wear it until they die, living over and over dead with coronary thrombosis at a too-early age.

Communities should faithfully honor their physicians. They are humanity's servants. We should not allow them to be beaten to death by politicians. Furthermore, we should lose no opportunity to let them know that we appreciate that most of the service is given not in return for a fee but out of love for their fellow men, and we should help family which suffers so many and such continuous afflictions. _

Jackie Yarrow, 14, Presented With Dow Award at Opening Ceremony of Recreation Week

Trenton—(Special)— There is one young fellow in Trenton who will probably remember Recreation Week and the opening dedication ceremony at Bayshore Softball Park on Monday afternoon, for a long time.

He may be a little tired by the end of the week and his memory of some events may be a bit confused but it's a safe bet that 14-year-old Jackie Yarrow will remember the sound of cheering and applause ringing in his ears long after Recreation Week is over and forgotten.

"Jackie" is the "toast of Trenton" this week and guest of honor at the various activities planned for Recreation Week.

Dow Award Presented

The main feature of the opening ceremony on Monday afternoon was the presentation of the Dow Award to Jackie by Mayor Couch of Trenton.

In making the award, Mayor Couch described how Jackie "showed great presence of mind" in pulling a man whom clothing was afire through the rear window of a flaming automobile.

One night last February, Jackie was riding home on his bicycle when he saw smoke pouring out of a parked car on Victoria Ave. When he stopped to investigate Jackie saw a man lying in the back seat of the car apparently overcome by smoke and fumes. Failing in his efforts to pull the man over the front seat, young Yarrow went to a nearby home, told the lady who answered the door to phone for help.

Pulled Through Window

Returning to the car, Jackie climbed on the back bumper and kicked in the side window. By now the man was a flaming torch. Without hesitation, the young hero tried to smother the flames with his suit coat and then pulled the heavy man through the small window.

By this time, a crowd was gathering and Jackie hopped on his bicycle and rode home. It was not until the next day the police learned the youngster's identity, through his school principal.

Fire Chief Frank Sexton, Auburn Robertson later died as the result of the burns caused by fire but Jackie's effort received public recognition yesterday when he was presented with the Dow Award, which is given "in recognition of heroic deeds performed by Canadians in the course of their everyday lives."

Framed Citation

The award consists of a framed citation and $100.00 Canada Savings Bond. This award started in 1946 has been awarded to over 200 Canadians all across Canada, the winners being selected by a group of well known Canadian newspaper editors.

"By performing an outstanding act of selfless heroism," Jack Yarrow "has won the commendation represented by this award," reads the citation. "Such exceptional valor is deserving of sincere tribute and is a source of pride to every Canadian."

Mayor Ken Couch Opens Recreation Week Program

Following the official opening, the busy round of activities lined up for every day from Monday until next Sunday night, started off with a boxing show at Trenton Air Station sports hangar. Details of this event are on today's sport pages.

Excellent weather favored both events and large crowds attended. A combined pipe band from 6 R. D. and South Station under the direction of F/L G. B. Randall, led a parade of Trenton school children to the park where Jackie Yarrow was given the Dow Award for bravery.

The award consisting of a framed citation and $100 Canada Savings Bond was presented to Jackie in recognition of his heroism in pulling a man from a burning car last February. A month's free pass was also presented to Jackie by the manager of the local Odeon Theatre.

The loyal 136th Squadron Air Cadet Band was also in attendance, led by drum majorette Majorie Zufelt.

Mayor Couch

In the past, Trenton may have failed to realize the "proper place of recreation in a well-balanced life," declared Mayor Ken Couch in what officially opened the activities. "We are now more recreation minded and are becoming increasingly aware of the part recreation plays in our daily life."

"It is a recognized fact that in all branches of the air force, men must be physically fit to do the best job," said Mayor Couch, and the present interest in recreation is largely due to the presence of Trenton Air Station.

In offering the prayer of dedication, Rev. S. S. McConnell, M.B.E. rector of St. George's Anglican Church, expressed the hope that "Trenton may be an example for others to follow in sportsmanship."

Will be Standout

"This week will be a standout in the history of Trenton," said Vic Auger, chairmak of the Recreation Commission, in introducing Mayor Couch who wore his gold chain of office for the occasion. This chain is an exact duplicate of the Lord Mayor of London's chain. Whole-hearted support for Trenton's campaign to provide "better community recreation facilities was pledged by representatives of Trenton RCAF Station present on the platform.

Many Possibilities for Use Of Atomic Fission Products In Industry Says Speaker

Trenton, (Special)— Industrial application of atomic energy will likely simplify many industrial processes, predicted H. Freestone, Field Enquiry of the Ontario Research Foundation, in an address to the monthly meeting of the Trenton Rotary Club in the banquet room of the Hotel Gilbert Monday night.

Speaking on Industrial Research Services in Ontario, Mr. Freestone said "We think there are many possibilities for the use of atomic fission products in industry."

The Industrial Research Foundation was set up by the Ontario government in 1947 as a part of the Trade and Industry Branch of the Department of Planning and Development. The foundation's research laboratories and engineers are available to small industries, who are unable to conduct their own research investigations. About 200 field visits were made each month, said Mr. Freestone. "The foundation's facilities and trained staff belong to industry and exist to serve industry," he said.

Will Help Industry

Co-operating with the industrial application of atomic energy, the society said that the Research Foundation was closely following the National Research Council and its work in this "phase of" Canada's growth. Before long, there will be an expert at the foundation to help industry in this regard," said Mr. Freestone.

As an example of the work done by the foundation, Mr. Freestone cited a coating which has been developed to prevent "fizzing" when a soft drink is poured into a paper cup. "In the old days, spectators used pop bottles as ammunition to vent their disapproval of players and referees at sporting event." Now thanks to the discovery of the coating which makes it possible to pour a carbonated drink into a paper cup without losing most of the drink in foam, this hazard to athletes

Heavy Program Arranged For Victoria Day

Trenton (Special)—There was plenty of color at the boxing show staged at South Station RCAF sports hangar Monday night. The event was held in connection with Recreation Week.

Today's program consists of a band concert at RCAF sports hangar at 8.30 p.m. The RCAF training command band from Ottawa will supply the music and Trenton Station glee club will be an added attraction.

At 8.00 p.m. tonight, Trenton Drama Club will present "Ton of Fun" at Canterbury hall.

The biggest schedule of events is planned for Wednesday, Victoria Day. At 10 a.m. a mile long parade will start the day rolling. During Wednesday afternoon there will be free rides, games and sports for the children at Senator Fraser Park.

At 3 p.m. the world champion Tip Top softballers from Toronto will play against a local all-star team at Bayshore Park. Another softball game between the Police and Fire departments will be played at 7.30 p.m.

Wednesday's activities wind up with a fireworks display at 9.30 on the shore of the Bay of Quinte. The day's events will be rounded off with a carnival and street dance on Albert Street featuring round and square dancing.

76 Per Cent Wasted

Another field where investigations are being carried out is in the processing of wood products. "At present, 76 per cent of forest products are wasted and never reach the consumer," declared Mr. Freestone.

While some loss is due to fire and insects, a great deal is caused by faulty practices during manufacture, he continued. Fifty per cent of the wood going into pulp mills never reaches the pulp stage, said Mr. Freestone and research is being conducted to find a method of extracting organic chemicals from pulp mill waste.

Mr. Freestone was introduced by A. S. Oliver and thanked by President W. B. McClung and Mayor Ken Couch.

By the author of "THE FACE IN THE ASBIC"

Bakers have always revered John Milton, the English poet. The connection between cake decorators and rhyme slingers may not be apparent at first; but Milton, according to his biographers, was a great lover of cake, and spoke of it frequently. And he was born on Bread Street, London.

Unfortunately Milton lived in the era before baking powder, and the best cakes and muffins of his time couldn't compare in quality with modern products.

So-called loaf quickbreads are a combination cake and bread. They require baking powder as a leavening agent and they should be baked in the kind of oven where temperature can be accurately controlled.

Most quick loaf breads are moist and somewhat sticky. To be sliced evenly and neatly they should be 3 to 4 hours old. If they are too fresh, they crumble or break.

Be sure to sift flour before measuring. And whether the loaf is done, press the top lightly with the fingers. It should leave no imprint. Also the sides of the loaf shrink from the sides of the pan when the loaf is finished baking.

Mince Meat Loaf

Set oven at 350 degrees. Grease and flour a 9-inch loaf pan.

Cream 1-2 cup shortening until soft and smooth. If vegetable shortening at room temperature is used, no creaming will be necessary.

Gradually add 2-3 cup granulated sugar, blending well.

Measure 1 3-4 cups sifted all-purpose flour. Combine with 2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-4 teaspoon baking soda and 1-2 teaspoon salt. Sift all dry ingredients together.

Mix 1 cup moist mincemeat with 1-3 cup milk.

To the sugar mixture add the dry ingredients and the mincemeat mixture alternately. Stir after each addition until well blended.

Turn batter into prepared loaf pan. Bake approximately 1 hour or until done.

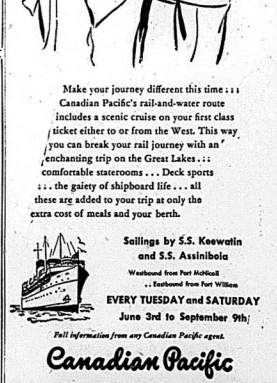
Mrs. Grant Lewis and Mrs. Roy DeMille favored the members with two delightful vocal duets. Mrs. C. Whytock and Mrs. George Hill were appointed delegates to the district annual convention to be held at Springbrook, June 2nd, along with district director, Mrs. Moon, and the president, Mrs. K. Nicol.

Complete and interesting reports of the Conveners Conference at Guelph were ably given by Mrs. N. Bronson and Mrs. Allan Johnston.



Mrs. George Hill and Mrs. S. R. Beatty presented a humorous dialogue entitled "The Farmer". Mrs. Moray Nickle gave a splendid report on "Current Events" touching on the highlights of the past month.

Mrs. Ken Caskey expressed appreciation to the hostess and all who took part in the program. Refreshments were served and a pleasant social hour followed. Plans were made for the June meeting to be held at the home of Mrs. Hulin.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Give engagement present is never an obligation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When one receives an engraved announcement of an engagement of a girl one doesn't know very well is it an obligation to send her an engagement present? As a matter of fact, I am always at a loss to know when I am supposed to send an engagement present or not. Will you explain, please? Does this depend on how one is informed about the engagement; that is, whether by engraved announcement, or by a note from the engaged girl, or just by reading the announcement in the newspaper? Also, if I do send an engagement present, what type of present should I send?

Dorothy K.

It is never an obligation to send an engagement present. . . no matter how the engagement is announced, whether by a note written by the engaged girl (the charming and personal way to announce an engagement) or by an engagement-announcement party, or by a formal announcement printed in the newspaper, or by engraved engagement announcement (which, incidentally, is never correct).

Nor, as a matter of fact, is it customary to give engagement presents, except perhaps by those relatives of the bride, sometimes by the groom's family, sometimes by a particular friend of the bride-to-be. When engagement presents are given, they are personal presents (unlike wedding presents, which are presents for the new home), perahps something for the bride's personal trousseau.

Don't "congratulate" her, engaged girl or bride

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

"A" says that it is not correct to use either the word "congratulate" or "congratulations" for an engaged girl or a bride . . . that these words should be used only when one is speaking to an engaged man or a bride-groom. "A" says that it is correct to use these words either for the girl or the man. Who is right about this?

R.H.

"A" is right . . . you "congratulate" the fiance or the bride-groom. You do not "congratulate" the bride or "offer your" "congratulations" to her. You offer your "best wishes" to the engaged girl or to the bride. And it's important to remember this distinction in these days of so many Spring weddings, and particularly the proverbial June weddings!

When wife or speaker is introduced to audience

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is to be the principal speaker at a large banquet to be given next month. I have been invited to sit at the head table, and of course not next to my husband. I have been told that the custom is that everyone seated at the head table is introduced to the guests assembled at the dinner. If this is done, should I rise to acknowledge the introduction?

Mary C.

Since it is to be a large dinner it would probably be more courteous for you to rise when you are introduced so that everyone can see who is being introduced. Or, very often, a woman guest so introduced half-rises as she says her "thank you" to acknowledge the introduction.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He always seems to say the wrong things

Dear Miss Fairfax:

He is a girl very much and ten a lot of her at school and everywhere else possible. What bothers me is that when we are together I always seem to say the wrong things. I want to let her know I like her but I can't tell her. Please tell me what to do when I am with her, and what I should say, so that I won't make a fool of myself. Should I talk a lot? I am cheerful, but sometimes I don't have anything to say and she thinks I am gloomy when I'm not.

"Rue"

Dear Rue:

It seems to me that if you and this girl are in school together you ought to have plenty to talk about. Don't you go to ball games and take part in all sorts of school activities together? Or is it that you spend so much time exclusively with each other that you run out of conversation?

My advise would be that you go around in a group with other boys and girls rather than just be a twosome all the time. When there are more people to talk with there is usually plenty to talk about.

What makes you think you are always doing and saying the wrong things? Your trouble probably is that you are very self-conscious, like so many boys of your age, and that makes you worry about what you do and say more than you need to. The best way to get over shyness and self-consciousness is to see a lot of a lot of friends, and not confine yourself to one person.

No one should live with an abusive Husband

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 18 years old and have been married for two years. My husband is 21 and has only worked about six months of our married life. Shortly after we were married, he began drinking and mistreating me physically.

I don't love him any more, and have tried to leave him several times, but he has threatened me repeatedly. I know if I leave him, there will be a terrible scene, and I am afraid of what he'll do, so I have stayed on, hoping something will happen to help matters.

We have been living with my parents most of the two years we have been married. If I have to go on this way, I feel there is nothing worthwhile left for me. I am terribly afraid of him.

B. C.

Dear B.C.:

The best thing for you to do is to go to a social welfare organization and discuss your problem there. You certainly should not have to go on living with a man who continually threatens and abuses you and who, in addition, fails to support you.

There is definitely a solution to your problem, and someone on the staff of a social welfare agency will help you find it. If you will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope so that I can send you a personal reply, I will be glad to give you the name and address of such an agency near you.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Be an eye catcher

The walls of the wall flowers are loud in the land. Life is bitter to the girl who hasn't a certain amount of popularity. Her telephone isn't kept busy by some grand boy who wants to take her places. She is like the little lame boy watching the baseball game in the back lot. You can't help feeling sorry for her. Youth should be gay, have fun.

Your reporter interviewed a college sophomore, asked him if he knew why some girls have all the boys chasing after them and others are passed by. We wanted to know just what type of girl appealed to him. Being an honor student, we expected him to say that he sought intellectual companionship. His opinions were a surprise.

"I want a girl to look cute," he said. "If she doesn't look cute, the other fellows will think I am dating a dud. She has to wear the righ kind of clothes, have a pretty face anr figure, and hair beautifully arranged. She has to conform to what I suppose is the standardized type, though I know that sounds silly.

"If she is bright and responsive, so much the better. A fellow doesn't want to search for topics of conversation unless he is a show off. I like a girl who is a good egg, has nice manners and can dance well. I want her cute, but not cuddly. She mustn't makes eyes at me, because that makes her conspicuous and makes me look foolish. I guess I mean a regular girl with no affectations."

It would seem that the popular girl puts herself over without appearing to do that little thing. Shy Susie evidently is too scared to make the effort, or else she doesn't know how.

An instructor in a charm school says that the first thing a timid girl should learn is to put authority in her carriage, to walk proudly, to keep her backbone extended when sitting and to learn to stand gracefully. She says that good posture gives a girl confidence and self-respect.

She also says that deep breathing helps; drawing the breath down into the cellars of the lungs gives one a high-and-mighty feeling. Bet Susie never thought of that.

To overcome self-consciousness, one must take the floor at a party; by that our expert means that she must lead the other person on to talk about himself. There are few individuals who can resist the bait and who—having nibbled on it—won't go away thinking you are a clever conversationalist.

MARSH HILL

Bride-to-be Honored by Cup And Saucer Shower

Marsh Hill — On Thursday night last, a cup and saucer shower was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Coulter in honor of the bride-to-be, Miss Aileen Vanderkemp.

Each guest had brought her favorite recipe and a cook book was made and presented to the bride-to-be.

During the evening, games, contests and readings were enjoyed and the making of hats for the bride provided a great deal of merriment for all.

Mrs. John Brown read an address and then she escorted Aileen to the bride's table which was decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers. After Aileen unwrapped the beautiful cups and saucers, she thanked everyone for their gift and invited all to visit her.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Fred Campbell and Miss Alice Rodgers. All joined in wishing Aileen much happiness.

St. Andrew's Circle Three W.A. Presents Birthday Gift

Marmora— Members of Circle Three of St. Andrew's Women's Association met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Sanderson on Friday evening to honor the latter's mother, Mrs. Robert Bonter, on her forthcoming birthday.

The evening was spent with a singsong and a number of readings. At the appointed time, Mrs. Christina Connor, on behalf of the Circle, presented Mrs. Bonter with a nice gift. A social hour, in which refreshments were served, was then enjoyed.

GOVERNMENT LIBRARY

Fashion Flashes

NOT MANY good Summer handbags in leather, but those shown are very fine. White calf lined with red leather makes a handsome pouch bag with a twisted leather rope to emphasize a scalloped top. A special lacquer treatment is said to guarantee the washable qualities of the leather.

GROWING SLOWLY into an important evening trend is the matching coat and dress ensemble. Smoky pearl gray silk satin is used for a full-length, easy, collarless coat worn over a matching dress — street-length skirt with strapless bodice composed of criss-crossed drapery.

REALISTIC fruit trims many of the new hats. A cloche bonnet of white straw with a deep, turned-down cuff brim is trimmed with a tall spray of purple plums and deep golden oranges; both of velvet. Finished with a bound veil in purple.

QUITE LIGHT and right for summer wear is a fitted "duster" coat of linen, cut 36 inches long. It has a half belt in back, notched collar and easy sleeves with deep turn-back cuffs. Beautiful in yellow or pink and useful in navy or black.

NOT ALL is navy or gray, for there is plenty of beige around. A handsome suit is made up of a pale beige wool crepe cardigan jacket piped with the solid coffee brown color of the slim skirt. Jacket is lined in brown and beige silk polka dot and has a large ascot of the dotted fabric.

Lovely Princess Is Going to Wed Her Sweetheart

San Francisco, May 22 (AP) — Any time now — maybe today, maybe tomorrow — the lovely Princess is going to wed her commoner, sweetheart before a Moslem priest — and the furious King of Egypt can make the most of it.

Wednesday night 19-year-old Fathia, beautiful brunette sister of King Farouk at long last received official decrees from Cairo, confirming what she had read in the papers; her title is lifted; her fortune is impounded; in all the fortune of Queen Mother Nazli; both must return to Egypt within 60 days.

That did it. She promptly told her mother the Moslem wedding to 31-year-old Riad Ghali, secretary to Queen Nazli, is on — the quicker the better.

While all Egypt jalked about the romance of their Moslem "former princess" with a coptic Christian, the princess and her mother left Cairo by plane for the wedding dress and the honeymoon.

At the end are plans to plead further with the King to retract his opposition because Ghali is a Christian and a commoner. The King phrased an additional objection, "an adventurer."

Plans Fast Forming

The plans for the Moslem ceremony, to seal a marriage contracted in civil rites last April 25, are fast forming.

While waiting for the Egyptian approval of the civil ceremony which made them legal, princess Fathia has lived in her mother's hotel suite apart from the suite of Nazli. They had their first and only kiss at the civil ceremony, April 25 they have voiced their undying affection — over the telephone between suites.

But in the background there were dark clouds.

Ghali's diplomatic status was lifted by the Iraie Egyptian officials. He had been approached by the U. S. immigration commissioner here on when he will have matters arranged to leave the United States. He set May 25 as the tentative date.

The Queen's attitude toward her son-in-law has stiffened sharply Wednesday night after the receipt of the official decrees.

"I will not return to Egypt, she said firmly, "unless my son, the King, accepts and approves of this marriage."

Awards Appreciated

Awards for the Poster and Essay contest in public schools, were much appreciated.

At the Yale School of alcohol studies, one of the most distinguished scientists said: "I believe in time we shall get rid of this problem."

A little boy looking at a picture book of huge and ugly reptiles and beasts of early ages of the earth, asked who killed them. He was told by his father, "No one killed them. The climate changed and they died."

There is a climate in which the alcohol evil flourishes. That climate has increased the numbers (Yale figures) of drinkers in the United States from 40,000,000 in 1940 to 62,000,000 in 1945. That climate has increased the number (figures from the official surveys of 1945 and 1947) of acute alcoholics in Massachusetts from 20,000 to 30,000 in four years. That climate is the social acceptance of drinking.

Moderation Cause of Drink Problem

Social acceptance blindly accepts moderation as its solution for the drinking problem.

Dr. Jay Nash Kaplan, editor of the journal of the National Educational Association, states: "Drinking in moderation is not the solution of our liquor problem. It is the main cause of that problem."

A change will be forced in the social attitude toward drinking because the claims of "Moderate drinking is so out-moded in our mechanized civilization. These problems are now primarily to moderate drinking and not to alcoholism.

Industry is becoming alarmed at the billion loss it is suffering each year through accidents. Alcoholic beverages have no place in a high-energy, air-borne, atomic age.

CANNIFTON W.A.

The May meeting was held in the Sunday School rooms and was in charge of Mrs. Jack Williams and Mrs. Allen Boyd. Spring flower adorned the long white table and a delicious menu was served. In the absence of the president, Mrs. H. Farnham, Mrs. D. Brenton, vice-president, opened the meeting. The treasurer's report and other items of business it was decided to send a delegate to the W.A. convention at Stirling.

Mrs. Williams, president of the W.M.S. gave the ladies present an invitation to attend a meeting of the W.M.S. to be held in the church, in connection with the 25th anniversary of church union.

A short devotional service was then held. Mrs. Brenton gave a lovely reading entitled "The Fine Art of Mothering."

Quilting was the order of the day. Dorcas Society also out to the family of one of the oldest members, Mrs. Phillips, who has just passed on and who had reached the wonderful age of ninety-four.

POINT ANNE ANGLICAN GUILD

Shannonville — The Point Anne Anglican Guild met recently at the Shannonville rectory for their regular meeting. At the conclusion of their meeting they were joined by the members of the local Guild in an enjoyable social hour.

Miss Jean Aylesworth, of Point Anne favored the gathering with a lovely piano solo; Mrs. Kilburn gave an enjoyable Scottish selection; Miss Elsa Bell gave a humorous reading on the subject of "five husbands" and community singing was enjoyed by all present.

Mrs. Caldwell and her assistants served dainty refreshments at the conclusion of the evening.

REHABILITATION.

The chance of heavy rain—the chief worry to Brig. R. E. A. Morton, the army flood commander—seemed remote. A light shower early today marked the end of one western weather disturbance. The weather man said cooler temperatures brought by another weather front would be accompanied by only slight precipitation.

Centre on Two Problems

With the river in strong check, public and official attention centred on two problems:

1. What to do with 80,000 persons whose homes have been damaged or destroyed.

2. What preventive measures to take so there can be no recurrence.

About 100,000 persons have left the flood zone at the urging of Brig. Morton. They are scattered among friendly homes from here to both coasts.

The army still is calling for voluntary evacuation but the outward flow has almost stopped.

There would be grave risk of epidemic disease if flooded homes are occupied before decontamination after a month under muddy Red river water.

No Concrete Schedule

So far there is no concerted, valley-wide plan to make the return of population orderly. Province and municipalities, it is understood, do not see eye to eye on how the population flow should be controlled. Efforts have been made to put an over-all "returnee" program without success.

The "Operation Rainbow" plan worked out by a civilian-military committee is merely a setting down of some suggestions, not a concrete schedule to be followed in returning the evacuees.

Ensuring that the Red River never again goes on a destructive rampage would be a longer and more-expensive job. Engineering schemes to curb the stream are being studied by the international joint commission, a body which deals with use and control of water along the international boundary.

The Red has its headwaters in the United States four-fifths of the water now passing through Winnipeg came into Canada at Emerson, External Affairs Minister, has instructed the commission to speed preparation of a control plan "by all possible means". ister, has instructed the commission said they agree this should be done.

ORIENTAL COAL

China is one of the world's richest coal countries, with estimated reserves of 243,669,000 tons.

COMMONS STAGES

Mr. Martin suggested adoption of the motion would do a great disservice to national unity because it asked that, without any references to the provinces, the government provide equality of education. The government should wait until it could discuss the matter with the provinces this fall.

Standards Vary

The Senate, in a brief sitting gave second reading to amendments to the customs tariff act and heard Senator Thomas Vien (L—Quebec) report that there had been "complaints" about an increase in the tariff rate on British textile imports.

In the Commons, Mr. Knight introduced his motion with the statement that, while every child had a right to equal opportunity in education, that equality did not exist. Teaching standards varied amazingly across the country.

Rodney Adamson (PC—York West) warned that real estate values would be destroyed if municipal taxes, of which education costs constitute a major factor, continued to rise. If taxes continued to climb, home and properly ownership would become less desirable.

Favs Dividends is Claim

Douglas Harness (PC—Calgary East) suggested the Dominion could help the provinces by training nurses and by opening federally-operated schools along the lines of the Royal Military College at Kingston, Ont. This type of school could be extended to other fields.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) noted that expenditure in education paid dividends in "good citizenship" and suggested adoption of the motion would in no way constitute federal interference with provincial responsibility for education.

Donald Fleming (PC—Toronto Eglinton) charged Mr. Gardiner with placing a "reactionary" and "totalitarian" view before the Chamber. Much could be done to further educational opportunities for young Canadians. The problem had gone far beyond the means of local governments.

R. Cauchon (L—Beauharnois) thought the motion was premature and, as worded, threatened a right which belonged to the provinces.

Loomis' groups has accused Glover of making "a reckless drive for prestige" in seeking to get the 40-hour week for switchmen more quickly than two other unions.

The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and Order of Railway Conductors also have the same demands, but they are presenting their case to a fact-finding board named by President Truman. The Trainmen's Brotherhood represents most of the 900,000 switchmen in the rail industry.

Glover refused to have the fact board decide his case along with those of the B.R.T. and O.R.C. Glover said those two unions had many other demands not affecting the switchmen.

President Freeman Jenkins nounced the firing of C. B. ks, for five years director of search and education, as "part of a showdown . . . for the removal of communist influence in the Union."

2. Mr. Jenkins also announced that Bob Stewart, his only opponent in elections scheduled for next month, is ineligible to run. This means that Mr. Jenkins is returned by acclamation as nominations have closed.

The scrappy, district union leader made only terse announcements on both matters and declined to elaborate.

Mr. Stewart made no immediate comment.

Mr. Wade, in a prepared statement, told how he was fired and said he would ask a hearing before a union tribunal which, he said, is provided for in the constitution.

He said Mr. Jenkins had asked him to resign Saturday. When he refused, Mr. Wade said, he was told by Mr. Jenkins: "You are fired."

Two Russ Soldiers Arrested, Let Go At Frankfurt

Frankfurt, Germany, May 23 — (AP) — Two Russian soldiers, members of the Soviet Military Mission here, were arrested by United States military police yesterday for violating American restrictions on their movements. They were released three months later.

The Soviet mission has been restricted to its office - living quarters in retaliation for the Soviet crack - down on movements of American officers attached to Soviet headquarters in East Germany.

The Army said a Russian lieutenant and a sergeant left the Mission this morning in a light truck. They were quickly picked up by military police and held for questioning. An army spokesman said three hours later an order had been issued for their release.

Immediately after the incident, military police sent a seventman patrol in two jeeps to the Russian mission. It had been guarded by two German police since last Friday when the movements ban was lasted by the army. Later three more M. P. motorcycle patrolmen arrived on the scene.

Two other Russians tried to leave after the M. P. patrol arrived. The two were ordered back despite the compound. They returned to the Mission building.

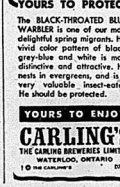
Windsor, Ont., May 23 (CP) — Evidence of a tip-off of a police morality squad raid was given in city magistrate's court today.



A crown witness, Jacob Polak, identified that Mrs. Patricia Potvin, 23, received a telephone call a few minutes before police raided her house on April 26.

Polak said the woman returned from the phone and told him: "get out or here quick, the cops are coming." He said he was arrested shortly after he left the house.

Magistrate Angus W. McMillan found Mrs. Potvin guilty of keeping a disorderly house and remanded her one week for sentencing.

Polak pleaded guilty to a charge of being found in the house, and paid a $10 fine.

It was Germany's worst coal mine disaster since 1946, when 439 men died at Grimberg.

Fathyia and Riad were married in a civil ceremony at San Francisco on April 25. So far Farouk has refused to permit a Moslem ceremony. Queen Nazli has tried to move him by telephone calls to Cairo at five dollars a minute. She now hopes that Farouk will come to America. THE PEOPLE'S DECISION

The verdict of the people again favors the London Life. Canadians last year, in purchasing the largest amount of life insurance on record, bought more from the London Life than from any other company —one-seventh of the total.

The London Life maintains a strong financial position, furnishes low cost insurance, and has developed a staff of capable representatives to serve the needs of its policyholders and the public.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, MAY 23, 1950.

ALL CANADA ASKED TO ASSIST STRICKEN MANITOBA

A slight decrease in the height of waters in the Winnipeg area has cheered the dyke builders. Some dykes are still threatened and rainy weather would result in serious breaks, but authorities hope that the long job of rehabilitation and reconstruction can start soon. Newspapers all over Canada have been asked to join the campaign for funds to rebuild the crippled areas.—Central Press Canadian.

Flood Easing But Water Pumps Still Working

Winnipeg, May 23. (CP)—The Great Flood of 1950 is on the ebb. But the pumps still throb in downtown Winnipeg.

Far from the dikes ringing the winding course of the Red River, almost every building basement has long hose lines crawling across sidewalks to spew their dirty, smelly contents into sewers scarcely able to carry them away. The throb of pump motors never ceases.

Hardly a cellar is unaffected along the length of main street —which parallels the northward flowing Red at a distance of from a block to a half-mile —from Norwood Bridge, at its southern end, to the extreme north end of the city. Water comes largely from seepage or the backing of sewers.

The pumps throb, too, at Portage and Donald, almost a mile due west of the Red—and at Portage and Sherbrooke, still farther west but within range of seepage from the Assiniboine river, almost a mile away on the south. They pump at Sargent and Beverley—two miles due north of the Assiniboine and three miles west of the Red.

Typical of Winnipeg's business-building basements in the Spring of 1950 is one at Portage and Donald. Hose lines wind down rear-door stairs into the furnace room pit, into which dirty water pours from other sections.

The depth is only an inch on the floor's highest level but the stream never stops flowing. The pumps fight to keep it under control.

Not all of the basement flooding was nature's work. One of the tricks home owners learned early in the flood was that seepage under a cellar floor exerts such pressure that it heaves the concrete—sometimes exploding it.

To counteract this pressure, many owners turned on the faucets, letting clear drinking water flow over basement floors to a depth of two feet or more. Turning on the tap often was the last act of a flood refugee as he left his home.

IS IT A SMILE OR A SCOWL?

"An enigmatic smile on his face, Secretary General of the U.N. Trygve Lie, is shown deplaning at Le Bourget airport, near Paris, after flying to the French capital from Moscow. Lie conferred secretly with French officials on the outcome of his peace mission to Moscow and his conference with Premier Stalin. — Central Press Canadian.

H.P. Duchemin, Former President Of C.P., Dies

Sydney, N. S., May 23 (CP) — The body of H. P. Duchemin, journalist, lawyer and education-ist arrived here Monday from Halifax where he died Sunday morning after a lengthy illness. He was 81

The United Church funeral will be held today from his home at 70 George St., at 1:30 p.m.

Before his death the man who campaigned an unwavering and peppery pen in editorial columns had watched his Sydney Post-Record flourish and expand in the Cape Breton industrial area.

He was president of the Post-Record and had served as president, first vice-president and second vice-president of The Canadian Press, the co-operative news-gathering and distributing association of Canadian daily newspapers.

He was elected CP president in 1937 and after completing his term was made honorary president. During his term of office he went before the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London with the late Hon. J. L. Ralston, counsel for CP, to fight successfully an Alberta press restriction bill.

His active entry into the newspaper field came in 1914 when he was appointed editor of the Sydney Post, owned by Senator J. S. McLennan, with whom he had been associated as solicitor.

When the Senator died 10 years ago Mr. Duchemin succeeded him as president of the Post Publishing Company, having previously been vice-president and managing director of the Post and the merged Post-record since 1921.

IN PETERBOROUGH IT WAS SUNNY AND DRY

A few hours before the Prime Minister was viewing the Winnipeg flood destruction, he was in Peterborough, Ont., cutting the tape in the opening ceremony of the city's $3,500,000 hospital. It was his first visit to the city. — Central Press Canadian.

King Requests as Many Men As Possible Wear Morning Clothes for Derby Saturday

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 26—(CP)—Grey toppers and cutaways, picture hats and square parsons are the style indispensable for Saturday's Epsom Derby—first major society-cum-sport affair on Britain's summer calendar.

The King has asked that as many men as possible attending the racing classic wear morning clothes. It is not a Royal command, but it means that anybody who pretends to be anybody will don full Epsom regimentals for the event—even if he has to rent a suit at five guineas (about $3.00) a day.

Women will add color to the scene with gay summer dresses, bigger-than-ever cartwheel hats and the latest fashion frippery—square sunshades, no less.

Some of the finery probably won't see much of the race, but will get their satisfaction from themselves being seen among the most fashionable in the land.

The Derby is summer big-time sport schedule really got under way Monday at Hamilton, Scotland, when 311 golfers began the British Open. But Scots links fans eschew fashion for utility and follow the play clad in comfortable — if occasionally ineliegant—clothes.

Spice was added to this year's ogden by the entry of crooner Bing Crosby and his British counterpart, Donald Peers. However, they was eliminated in the first round.

Soccer week over, sporting society will turn to the all-England lawn-tennis championships at Wimbledon—some to watch lobs and smashes, some to study the late costumes of Gertrude (Gorgeous Gussie) Moran.

After that, it's off to Henley, up the Thames from London, where rowing's the sport. "Old Blues"—men who once rowed for Oxford or Cambridge—will talk knowingly of this year's crews, bask in the sun or flock to the gaily-striped refreshment tents while along the river shoot the straining eights.

Meantime, there is cricket to watch every day—with the touring West Indies squad the big attraction—and the Eton-Harrow match at Sately Lord's cricket ground to draw another crowd or all the best people.

It's a long, hard summer for the under-trust spectators, and those of them who can still afford to maintain shooting boxes likely will be glad of the respite when Autumn rolls around and they can climb back into their country togs and relax.

Toronto, May 23—(CP)—Right after an announcement that cost of coal would be increased, came word Monday that the price of coke would probably rise before next winter.

Toronto coal dealers Monday reported prices were up 25 cents a ton and predicted the increase would be 30 or 90 cents a ton by next winter.

The Canadian Retail Coal Association then heard from E. A. Taylor of the Steel Company of Canada that coke production costs are at an all-time high. He said there is 100,000 tons less coke in sight for the Canadian market now than there was a year ago."

Type Setters In Five Plants Are Eliminated

Chicago, May 23 — (AP) — Details of a plan to use teletypewriter typesetting circuits in Southeastern Kansas were told to the Inland Daily Press Association Monday.

Richard M. Seaton, publisher of the Coffeyville (Kas.) Journal, said the circuit will start operation June 1 and will eliminate type setters in five newspaper plants.

Seaton said Associated Press dispatches and regional news will be edited at a central office to the five independently - owned dailies, the Coffeyville Journal, Pittsburgh Sun and Headlight; Parsons Sun; Fort Scott Tribune-Monitor and Independence Reporter.

Under the system, a typlst in the central office does the work on a type-setting machine operator.

Seaton said the new system would reduce composition, wire and editorial costs and would make possible increased coverage of news of importance in Southeastern Kansas.

OFFERED NEW POST

Victoria, B.C., May 23 — (CP) — Cecil Clifford Wyatt, 32, city clerk-treasurer-comptroller of Kingston, Ont., has been offered the post of municipal manager of Victoria at $10,000 a year.

This announcement was made by Ald. Harold M. Diggon, chairman of the special screening committee who expects a reply from Mr. Wyatt by the end of the week.

Investigation Held Behind Closed Doors

Nassau, Bahamas, May 23—(CP)—Behind locked doors in magistrate's court, an investigation began Monday of charges against a man accused of trying to extort £40,000 ($124,000) from Lady Eunice Oakes.

Nicholas Musgrove, native of Turks Island now living in Nassau, is charged with attempted blackmail and extortion with threats of violence. Magistrate Leonard Knowles ordered the court room cleared, taking advantage of a new practice of investigating all indictable cases in camera.

A phonograph recording purporting to be Musgrove's telephone conversation with Capt. Basil Sparrow, Lady Oakes' secretary, concerning the payment of money, was played in court. Capt. Sparrow was on the stand, and will be cross-examined today. Police trapped Musgrove after the telephone conversation had been recorded.

Lady Oakes is the widow of Sir Harry Oakes, wealthy Canadian mining magnate who was fatally beaten and burned in his home here six years ago. She left here for Niagara Falls, N.Y., a week ago, unaware of the extortion effort.

Capt. Sparrow plans to fly to Miami, Fla., today en route to Africa with Harry Oakes, son of the mangnate. He confirmed Monday that the amount asked by the would-be extortionist was £40,000. Musgrove's bail has been set at £1,000.

The recorded telephone conversation was a sequel to receipt of threatening letters by Capt. Sparrow. He turned the money to police, who inserted a personal advertisement in a daily paper asking the would-be extortionist to contact Lady Oakes' secretary by telephone.

Holding the investigation in camera will mean that evidence will be made public only if the case reaches the supreme court.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, suggested federal educational assistance could be provided by extending scholarships.

Opposition members requested greater federal aid to education.

Senator Thomas Vien (L—Quebec) said there had been complaints about enforcement June 1 of a 25-per-cent tariff on British textiles.

Today

The Commons will consider government business. The Senate will sit.

Faith in Human Nature Pays off For Magistrate

Cobourg, May 23 — (CP) — Magistrate H. S. Bastin's faith in human nature paid off Monday when Raymond Morgan, Okinawa war veteran, appeared in court Monday after being released on bail out of custody last Friday. The accused, charged in connection with worthless cheques, asked the Magistrate last Friday if he could return home in order to be with his wife at Belleville hospital for x -rays. The Magistrate decided to take a chance on him and he was remanded out of custody.

Arrangements are being made for restitution and the matter was laid over until next Monday.

May Change Name Anglican Church

Toronto, May 23 — (CP) — A recommendation that the name of the Church of England in Canada be changed to the Anglican Church of Canada was made to the Toronto Anglican Synod next week.

The recommendation is contained in a report of a special subcommittee of the diocese.

Proposal for changing the name was made at a meeting of the general synod last September. It was decided to ascertain opinion in every diocese before taking action.

Listing the reasons for recommending a change, the committee said the present name is not sufficiently distinctive for a Canadian church. To many new Canadians it is a church for the English and not for Canadians.

Rescuers Beat Death by Minutes

Belding, Mich., May 23 (CP)—Rescuers beat death by minutes Monday in a race to find David Wright, 6, lost for eight hours in a swamp.

Two men, who had tracked the lost child through most of the night, found him with only his head above water. His legs were caught in quicksand and his fingers were losing their grip on the branch of a dead tree.

More than 200 persons were called Sunday night to search for the boy who had gone into the swamp with his parents before nightfall to gather mushrooms. David became separated from the others and wandered for miles through the pitch black swamps.

The two who found David said his head was caught their attention, his legs were caught in the mire and water came up to his chin.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A preponderance in the trick count does not necessarily assure a slam. Duplication of values may exist. And usually does. The timing may be out of gear because of an unfavorable lead.

Your need not go around worrying over this during a bridge game. Correct bidding will get you into trouble. Acting as a set of brakes is an ace and king showing convention.

NORTH
♠ None
♥ J 9 8 6 5
♦ K Q 9
♣ K Q J 7 2

WEST
♠ J 9 7 5 4
♥ None
♦ J 10 5 3
♣ A 8 6 5

EAST
♠ 10 8 6 3 2
♥ 10
♣ 10 9 4 3

SOUTH
♥ A K Q 7 4 3 2

Bids should go like this:

South	North
1 H	2 C
3 H	4 H
4 NT	5 C
6 H

An opening bid of two in a suit is forcing to at least a game. In answer thereto, a positive response and support by notrumps is very encouraging. It indicates slam possibilities.

Anything other than two no-jump in response is encouraging and known as a positive response. It promises a sure trick. So, south hopes it is an ace or more. So, he bids four no-trumps.

Four no-trump is the ace-king asker. Five clubs in response is a denial of having an ace. Therefore, the sure trick in north must be a combine of K Q. Here north has two such combinations.

Most pairs stopped at five hearts when they learned that north had no ace. But in several cases north would not let it rest there. South showed nine tricks. North counted seven. Wow.

The count of 16 tricks in the pair decided north to push into a slam in a few cases. The opponents took their two aces fast and gloom reigned supreme.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood May 23 — (AP)— Four months ago, Frank Fontaine was in the depths of despair after being dropped from a studio contract.

Today he is the most sought-after comic in Hollywood.

Fontaine is a pump blonde-haired man who has a round face that can make all kinds of contortions. He has a deep voice with which he can portray anyone from Winston Churchill to a dim-witted sweepstakes winner. He also has seven children, the youngest 3½ weeks.

He was born 30 years ago in Cambridge, Mass. His father, a native of St. Hyacinthe, Que., was a night club entertainer who was often called "the Bing Crosby of Canada," and his mother was once a chorus girl.

Frank was playing a Boston date when a television talent scout viewed him and that started the trial to the big time.

Off To Hollywood

Frank journeyed to New York and guested five times on the toast of the town show. He was lumped by an MGM talent executive and brought west to the studio.

Flush with success, the comic shipped his family and furniture to California and bought a house. "I had to buy," he recalls. "I had six kids in an apartment in Beverly Hills and people were calling every day bellowing, "get out! Get out!"

After being filled with big promises by the studio, Fontaine was slipped into a bit part and then dropped when his first six-month option came up. That was last January.

"I had to ship all the family and the furniture back to her house in Boston, which I fortunately hadn't sold.

Then Fontaine's luck changed. He received a call from director Claude Binyon, who had seen him test. "Anbody who can make as many faces as you can should be right for a role in my picture, 'Stella,' " said Binyon.

Then It Started

That started the ball rolling. Then Jack Benny saw him at a benefit and put him on the Benny air show. Republic signed him for "Hit Parade of 1951," Twentieth-Fox has him lined up for "Call Me Mister" and perhaps a term contract. And he is just about set to portray Andy and the Kingfish on the air show "Amos 'N' Andy." The originators of the blackface comics plan to retire after next year and Fontaine can have their job for the next 25 years.

The traveling Fontaine kids may be tired of packing, but they had better get ready for another trip. All time they're coming back to Hollywood—and likely to stay.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE LID'S OFF!

Yonder are the sports beach-heads, men! "Up and at 'Em"!

Tomorrow, with the odd dross - rehearsal to-night, seems opens wide on all sports fronts. For 'tis the Glorious 24th, and if Ole Sol and his not-so-reliable team-mate the weather-bloke are in amicable mood, Canada will converge on a dozen and one athletic fronts.

Baseball, softball, motor-boat racing, golf, tennis, and soccer will furnish fare for the sports hungry as various leagues start seasonal action.

Fire, pickerel and trout fishermen will seek sunlit pools, rivers and lakes, and clean Spring air will sweep the cobwebs from musty winter-locked cabins and cottage.

It should be a grand holiday — weather permitting. So far this year (Keep those fingers crossed, Murgatroyd) detoured via Florida and gave its first indication of arrival on Sunday and Monday. Let us hope it has a one-way ticket.

There is plenty on the sports menu. Baseball officially opens in Belleville and Kingston tonight with Speedy St. Louis' Belleville "Orphans" entertaining the Cataract Anne nines at the Exhibition Grounds starting at 6:45. The Central Ontario Baseball League gets under way at Kingston with the Frontenac Athletics minding the opening of the local Limestone laddybucks. Incidentally, that "Sunday" game played in Napanee was purely and simply an exhibition affair, and did not as was reported from Napanee constitute the official opening of the COBL. Nor has the COBL schedule any "Sunday" games included.

MORE BASEBALL

Over in the "Little Spanish town" of Picton, the hometown baseball entry in the COBL opens the season tomorrow afternoon against the Kingston team. Many sports from over there side their baseball commodities will start the proceedings and a bumper Prince Edward County crowd is expected to attend. Other baseball fixtures tick in Smith's Falls while Napanee gathers in Brockville for the opening game.

In the South Hastings Baseball League the boys swing into action with games at Canniffon and Read with, Leila, meeting the former and Shannonville the latter the guests of the Read crowd.

The Sizzling nine will test the Napanee crew in a Bay-of-Quinte District League opening in Gilbardville tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

SOFTBALL

Cy Barriage's Howe and Hagerman team will formally start off the Belleville Commercial Mens' Softball League tomorrow evening with a twilight game against Stewart Warner at the Alemite Field. There will likely be opening ceremonies and a large crowd is expected to view the proceedings which get under way at 6.45 p. m. Silver collection (no slugs, please) will be taken during the game.

GOLF

Charlie Piduttl, popular pro at the Bay of Quinte Country Club informs us the course and greens are in excellent shape despite the bad weather, and every day is set for a bumper crowd of golfers tomorrow afternoon. A mixed two-ball foursome has been arranged, with a social get-together in the evening.

Local soccer teams will take a rest inasfar as the holiday is concerned. A lot of the lads are going to Toronto to see the touring International All-Stars in combat with the cream of Ontario players. Les Digby, president of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League, by the way has been selected to act as linesman for the game. He informs us that a bus will be leaving the city at 10 a. m. Wednesday and any one desirous of making the trip should contact him. In any event the bus will take off from the corner of Bridge and Coleman Streets at that time.

SUPPORT THE HOME TEAM!

As was mentioned before the Belleville "Orphans" (no failure, we mother) open the baseball season here tonight against Point Anne at the Exhibition Grounds. Coach Speedy St. Louis has been working hard not only on the whippier his team has what but to convert the playing field into something worth while.

Bobby Bunton will likely get Coach St. Louis' nod for initial mound duty, and the way the tall rangy right-hander has looked over the weekend he should be in good shape for the game. He told us his arm never felt better and he was all ready to start. The team of youngsters plus a sprinkling of veterans have been working hard to give their best, and the least fandom can do is give them support through the box office. Alderman Claude Tice representing the Civic Parks Board Commissioner Jack Devine, and President Bill Lockyer of the Belleville team will officiate at the opening ceremonies. The Kilty Band will be on hand with their pipes and sporrans.

HEY, KIDS, THE WHIP'S BACK!

The Ole Whipper, Mrs. Watson's proud hubby and the idol of thousands of wrestling fans in Toronto and other points will make his 1950 Belleville debut in Memorial Arena Friday night. The Whip will meet his arch-enemy, none other than Strangler Bob Wagner in the main bout of an attractive card. Watson and Wagner have been feuding for several years and there is nothing the Strangler would like better than to smack the Whipper for a loss before a Belleville audience. Popular Ray Villmer is back again in a melee with Micky Gold, who won almost instant acclaim in his first appearance here last Friday. It should be a thrilling bout. Al. Korman will match grips with Red Simms in the opener.

Don Wallace, courageous fighter from the Diamond Athletic Club, Toronto, discovered that a ducking, side-open style does not pay off especially when he is pitted against a master of the uppercut such as Ronny Lacelle, starry scrapper from HMCS Carleton, Ottawa.

For the game Toronto mittman who gave awey poundage to the crafty Bylown boy, battled his way through five rounds in a fast furious main bout of the Trenton RCAF boxing card last night-but lost the decision before an onslaught of uppercuts that would have sent many sonsher fighter to wherever boxers go when they are knocked out.

Lacelle uppercutted the Toronto lad mercilessly throughout the last three rounds, and had him hanging on at the end of the fourth and fifth, as Wallace fought back savagely and landed some stiff blows to Lacelle's jaw and body time after time he came in ducking and weaving, showing plenty of target for the Lacelle chief weapon.

Lots of Action

It was a fast-action bout that had over 2,000 of the faithful cheering. Wallace appeared to be on the verge of a knockout on two occasions but he hung on grimly and took the heavy up-driving smashes of Lacelle till the last gong.

It was the highlight of a card that brought plenty of excitations, and a couple of decisions that were roundly booed by the crowd.

Mac Plouffe, Rockliffe RCAF won a split decision over the clever Joey Peters, Diamond AC, Toronto in a bout that improved after cautious batlling in the opening rounds. Plouffe scored an automatic "kill" knockdown when Peters went to the canvas after a solid body blow. Peters fought back steadily but Plouffe met him blow for blow.

Second Knockdown

The only other knockdown came in the bout between Jimmy Adams, Camp Borden RCAF and Pinky Mitchell, Rockcliffe RCAF. Mitchell dropped Adams in the first round on what looked like a fall, but the referee thought otherwise and counted the automatic "eight." The bout was fast with the hard-hitting Mitchell having the better of the exchanges with solid punching although he was not the stylish Adams was.

The crowd booed the decision when Jerry Gurney, Rockcliffe RCAF was given the nod over Junior McComb, Trenton RCAF in the second bout of the card. McComb, an aggressive fighter, appeared to have the better of the exchanges and appeared headed for victory until the judges handed down their decision.

The other bouts were fair exhibitions with Air Cadets Doug Hinton and Lorne McMillen Trenton, opening the card with a fast bout that saw victory go to Hinton.

Results

Joey Peters 140, Diamond AC, Toronto, lost to Mac Plouffe, 142, RCAF, Rockcliffe on a split decision (5).

Main Bout

The officials were: judges, Jack Dean, Trenton; Sgt. Gadsden and Sergeant "Nicky" Sargent Referees, Sergt. Hub Smith and Sergt. Hoare; timekeeper, WO. 2 Bullis; counting for knockdowns, Sergt. Parry. Master of ceremonies was WO. John Silver, with sports director F/L. Harry Hinton and Staff Sergt. Rod Perkins, and Corp. Jo Kelly in charge of "production."

Colorful Show

The show was a typical RCAF affair with all its traditional color and a dash of pomp and services brass. The smart band of the Trenton Lions Club dispensed sparkling melodies prior to the show and during intermission. A feature was the draw for two bicycles and a fishing rod and reel.

The draw was made by Mrs. Leach, wife of the commanding officer of Vimy Barracks, Kingston. The winners were: boys' bicycle, P. R. Mowry, Cobourg; girls' bicycle, Sergt C. Dark, Trenton RCAF; rod and reel, William Healey, Belleville.

Prior to the main bout trophies were presented to the winners and losers of the various bouts by Group Captain G. P. Dunlop AFC, commanding officer of the station.

In a brief address, Group Captain Dunlop expressed his appreciation of the efforts of all who helped make the show a success and remarked that it was one part of the station's effort towards the Trenton Recreation Week's program. The RCAF is behind this program 100 per cent," he said.

Mayor Ken Couch, Trenton, said he was grateful for efforts of the RCAF and "wondered if they do not exceed some of those of our own townspeople. We are fortunate in having such good friends and neighbors as the RCAF, and hope this good feeling continues down through the years."

Mr. Vic Auger, chairman of the Recreation Commission said he appreciated the fine spirit of sportsmanship shown by the contestants, especially when told to "break." "After all, that is what the commission needs, a break," he said. He thanked the officers and personnel of the station for their interest and efforts.

Later he presented Jack Yarrow, Trenton's boy hero, who was presented with the Dew Award at a ceremony held yesterday afternoon. "Hello, everybody, and thanks a lot," the pink-faced youngster said over the public address system. He was given a fine ovation by the crowd.

High-ranking army personnel were present with their ladies from Picton and Kingston. Later they were entertained with other members of the buffet supper held in the administration building.

Tigers' Newhouser, Dodgers' Newcombe Look Like Anything But Invalids in Scoring Wins

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If Hal Newhouser and Don Newcombe have sore shoulders, there was a flock of strong-armed, healthy looking hurlers who would like to have some of the same.

Nothing appeared to be wrong with either of the pitching aces Monday as each turned in a fine winning effort.

Newhouser, the veteran Detroit southpaw, stopped the surprisingly potent Washington Senators with eight hits in pitching the Tigers to a 5-1 triumph. Newcombe gave a similar eight - hit exhibition against Cincinnati Reds as Brooklyn Dodgers won by the identical score.

Both hurlers were plagued by ailing arms in spring. Each forced his misfortune to an aching shoulder muscle. Newhouser lasted only three innings against St. Louis Browns in his only other appearance of the season.

Newcombe was knocked out of the box in his first time starts before Manager Burt Shotton decided to give his Negro right-hander a 10-day rest. He came back to pitch a strong game against St. Louis Cardinals last week, but the jury was still out. The critics wanted to see how he fared in his next outing.

Anniversary for Don

In a way it was an anniversary celebration for Newcombe. It was exactly a year ago Monday that Don gained his first major league victory, a 3-0 shutout in Cincinnati.

The victory increased the Dodgers' first-place lead over Philadelphia in the National League pennant race to a full game. The Phils were one of the six clubs in the circuit to enjoy an off day.

Newhouser had a six-hit shutout going into the ninth.

Kryhoski got the Tiger scoring under way with a three - run homer in the second inning.

Scarborough, the loser, pitched even though he was notified a couple of hours before game time that his father had died at Mt. Gilead, N.C. The right-hander left immediately after the game.

Vic Raschi of New York Yankees, pitched a strong game in subduing Cleveland Indians, 7-2. Raschi allowed the Indians only five hits in registering his fourth triumph against two losses.

The Yankees snapped a 1-1 tie in the eighth with two runs off starter Mike Garcia, and added four more in the ninth at the expense of Steve Gromek and Al Benton to register their seventh triumph in nine starts in the west.

Yankees Retain Lead

The victory enabled the Yankees to retain their 2½ - game lead over Detroit in the American League race.

Yam Stephens rapped two home runs for Boston but it was not enough to stop Chicago White Sox from defeating the Red Sox, 10-9 in 10 innings.

Stephens' second homer and his eighth of the season, came in the top of the 10th with a man on and put Boston in front, 9-7. The White Sox, however, came back with two in their half of the 10th. A pinch single by Eddie Malone scored Jim Busby with the winning run.

Short Pants May Be Field Uniform Of The Dodgers

(By The Canadian Press)

Can you imagine the Brooklyn Dodgers in short pants?

Will the Daffiness Boys startle the world by exposing big-league knees to the curious and unsympathetic gaze of bleacherites on the gownsout?

Branch Rickey, far-sighted dollar-minded one-man brain trust of the Brooklyn organization, is keeping a close and observing eye on the experiment at Mobile, Ala., where the Bears have gone Hollywood.

The Dodgers' Southern League farm club has joined Brooklyn's Hollywood stars in discarding the full-length uniforms handed down to them by tradition for short pants and knitted "T" shirts.

It started when the Bears obtained outfielder Cliff Aberson from the Hollywood club. Ezzy Allen, owner of the Mobile franchise, had been curious about the experiment at Hollywood. Aberson was so enthusiastic over the cooler, lightweight rig that the Bear owner was tempted to experiment.

Before making a final decision, Edgar got Rickey on the phone, explained what he wanted to do.

And with Branch Rickey watching results so closely from his desk in Brooklyn, don't be surprised if the Dodgers themselves follow the lead of their country cousins and break out in briefies.

The Professional Golfers' Association of Canada at an executive Montreal meeting Monday decided to return to the old system of holding its annual tournament within "two or three days" of the Canadian open championships.

This action was taken as an answer to continued demands from western Canadian golf organizations which have threatened to pull out of the P.G.A.C. if both tournaments are not held at about the same time each year.

The meeting also decided that its most henceforth will be a 54-hole event instead of 72 holes.

P.G.A.C. spokesman said western golfers had complained that both annual tournaments were held too far apart and thus required two long trips east to attend.

The Canadian open, sponsored by the Royal Canadian Golf Association, is scheduled for the Royal Montreal golf course Aug. 24-27 this year.

The National Boxing Association's National Committee will vote on whether Jake LaMotta should continue as middleweight champion of the world.

In announcing this at Washington Monday, President Fred J. Saddy of the N.B.A. said two questions will be asked:

1. Should recognition of LaMotta be withdrawn, with the winner of the fight between Ray Robinson and Robert Villemain declared the new champ?

They fight in Philadelphia June 5, and the Pennsylvania Athletic Commision already has announced it will recognize the winner as the middleweight king.

2. Should LaMotta be allowed to continue as champ, provided he wins his bout with Rocky Graziano in New York?

If the answer to the second question is yes, the N.B.A. said LaMotta would have to fight the Robinson-Villemain winner within 90 days. The result will not be known for a week.

Prince Simon, the American-bred colt from the stable of New York banker William Woodward, remained Monday night a firm favorite to go to the Aga Khan's Epsom derby, as six horses were withdrawn from the field.

Twenty-eight steeds still are entered for the mile-and-a-half classic following the scratching of Lord Derby's Exodus and Perigueux, and Route Napaleon, Eclat, Indian Empire and Indigo Two.

The odds on two contenders, the French L'Amiral and Aga Khan's Khorassan, shortened in the bookmakers' latest callover. L'Amiral went from 7 to 1 to 13 to 2. Khorassan, receiving good support narrowed from 20 to 1 to 100 to 7.

Tom Casey, starry Negro halfback last year with Hamilton Wildcats, has signed to play the 1950 season, with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Ralph Misener, club president, announced at Winnipeg Monday. He played one year of professional football with New York Yankees.

He will continue his medical studies at the University of Manitoba this fall.

Way is Cleared For Opening of Lacrosse Season

Brampton, May 23 — (CP) — Approval of 59 playing certificates by the Ontario Lacrosse Association cleared the way for tomorrow's opening of the Senior Lacrosse season between Weston Lions and Brampton Excelsiors.

Little objection to player movements was raised at the meeting Monday night although Jim McLeod of Owen Sound, president of the O.L.A., had to rule on three cases. McLeod upheld Weston's objection to Brampton using Gus Chard. He will remain Weston's property until he secures his release or takes his case before the league executive.

A Brampton objection to Owen Sound signing Jack Mason was withdrawn when it was pointed out that Mason, although a native of Fergus, played for Owen Sound last year. Barney Welch, in Hamilton uniform the past two years, was given to St. Catharines, where he is currently residing.

King is Given Decision Over Massimo Sanna

Toronto, May 23 (CP)—Toronto-born Lt. Arthur King gained the unanimous 10-round decision over Massimo Sanna, Italian lightweight boxing champion, in the main bout of a professional boxing show at Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night before a crowd of 3,000.

King, weighing 138, took every round from the Italian weighing 137. The Toronto Negro now fighting out of Philadelphia, employed sharp straight lefts and short rights to the head. He forced the fight throughout and jarred the Italian but could not put him down.

Sanna, on the retreat, came up with his best round in the seventh when he let loose with two looping rights that caught King on the temple. But the Canadian fought his way out of it with stinging lefts to the cheek and nose.

The semi-final was won by Billy Fifield, 164 1-2, Toronto, on a technical knockout over Don Scarcia, 164, Syracuse, N.Y. The field made it short with three knockdowns in less than a minute. The fight was called after 59 seconds.

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle

They took me to see Charley Chaplin in one of his silent pictures, and as soon as I got home I put on a pair of my father's shoes. Naturally I fell all over my own feet and tumbled down whole flite of stairs with everybody roaring their head off laughing. As soon as my broken collar bone healed up they took me to a movie studio for a screen test.

Me and pop were sitting on our ant steps waiting for ma to call in to supper, and I said, G, po, here comes Admiral Tricker ith little Boskell, shall we duck the house?

Mo, we'll take our medecine e men, pop said.

And we stayed ther and Admiral Tricker stopped going ward, saying to pop, This little ndson of mine is a card, I'm lling you.

So was I, at his age, and so re my little brothers, pop said. fact the naybors used to call our se a house of cards, he said, and Admiral Tricker said, The thing about Boswell is, he's a natural comedian. He was 3 years old the other day, and on his birthday his mother took him to his first movie, to see the Marx Brothers in their new picture. Well sir, the same of it is Everything But the Kitchin Sink, and Nurse Diesel puts up a bluff that he's a famous doctor, and there's a grate scene where he takes the entire contents of the ice box and scrabbles it all together to ecs big stew. Well sir, the next thing we saw of Boswell, he was puring ketchup rite out of the kitchen floor. What a mess, what a boy, Admiral Tricker said.

Yes, see a grate future ahead of him, but dont force him the way they forced me when I was a comical little shaver, pop said.

CATASTROPHE AVOIDED, ONE DEAD

One member of the Grey Nuns of the Cross was burned to death, two others are missing and 85 teen-age girl students and 64 nuns were almost trapped when a sudden fire gutted the Normal School at Hull, Que. Two-thirds of the block-long building were destroyed, the rest saved by a fire wall. — Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was in the house to ask me if I could have money for chocolit frostybar when the Happy Days man came past, and she was up in her room sewing with a unsatisfied expression, and I watched her a while, and then I said, Hay sis?

Whatever you want, the answer is no, and maybe that, will teetch you to stop addressing me as hay sis, ma said. You know how intensely I dislike that vulgar expression, so if you expect any favors from me you'd better learn to address me with more respect, he said, and I said, Aw heck, ma dimminy poozalem, I meen gosh, if a guy claimed you wasn't perfect, I'd send him home with 2 bludgy noses, that's how mutch respect I've got for you. Anyways ma, if I start over again with more respect, can I keep on asking you what I was going to? I said.

I have no intention of bribing you, ma said. If you do better the next time, you may be more successful, that's all I'll say, she said.

Not saying how mutch longer it would take to be next time, so I went out and sat on the front steps a little while and then came back and ma said, Are you here again?

Yes mam, and if you give me a dime for a frostybar Jill we have great respect for you, but no greater than what I have alreddy, because that's impossible, so it it's just a question of respect you better keep your money, because I'd have just as mutch respect for you if you didn't have anything in your bag but a marketing list that wasn't any use because you didn't have any money to buy the things on it, I said.

Oh, sutch a boy, I think there's some change on my dressing table, ma said.

Which there was, including a dime.

Willie Turnesa In Third Round Of Golf Tourney

St. Andrew's Scotland, May 23 —Willie Turnesa, 1947 winner and last year's runner-up, big Bill Campbell, and "Dynamite" Bill Goodlow, all got through their first-round matches Monday to maintain the hot United States challenge in the British Amateur Golf Championship.

But it became clear by the end o' the day that home resistance is going to be tough.

Played on the ability of Irish-ma, Sam McCready, the holder-Sam McKinley and Gerald Mick-ism, both Walker Cup players, and J. D. A. Langley, present English champion, are still there, b'dding to keep the trophy in the British Isles.

Eddie Macintosh, twice a Scott-ish champion, showed the tenacity of the Britons as he took a fanc'ied Campbell to the 19th in a great fight in the rain.

Crooner Bing Crosby quickly fell. Bobby-soxer fans followed Bing around in thousands, but he was well and truly beaten 3 and 2 by opponent, Jimmie Wilson of St. Andrews.

Sensation of the day was the carve-up of Sir John Craddock Hartopp, a local player of some renown, by Goodloe, who lived up to the title of "Dynamite."

The Valdesta, Ga., player, pro-duced a "sailing gun" despite the rain. He swept Sir John out in majestic style 7 and 5.

Turnesa's first-round victory put him into the third round, since scratching created a bye in the second. He put out compatriot James Knott of New York 5 and 3.

"Chick" Evans, 60-year-old player from Chicago, and a former United States open champion, was beaten by Denis Newton, a Briton, 2 up.

McCready's 3-and-2 victory over J. J. B. Henderson, a Scot, was convincing in the end, but the holder was none too accurate off the tee. His iron shots and green play were right up to standard, however.

Langley, English champion of a few weeks, had to go all the way to bat an English unknown, F. F. Johnson, 1 hole.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 23 —(AP)— Jimmy Dykes, the Athletics coach who can shoot golf in the low 70s, says he can speak from experience in predicting that the golf pros won't have an easy time in the forthcoming United States open at Meriion, Pa. It's trapped to death, says Jimmy, and "I was in all of them the other day." - - - Charley Norku, the Bayonne, N.J., heavy-weight, wants to operate a model agency someday "because of his love of beauty." - - - Ever hear of Wallace (Wound) Haight, the Washington turf writer, telling his great yarn about a horse-play-er praying his choice home? - - - Well, E. B. Lee of White Post, Va., decided to name a colt for Haight - - - So he's calling it "Walter's Prayer."

No Daylight Ahead

Taking heed of Chicago White Sox plight, Frank Metzinger of The Lasalle, Ill., News-Tribune figures the clocks are to blame - - - Says Frank: "The Sox are so far behind now it makes fact they are on low time."

Straight Answer

Herman Hickman, the rotund Yale coach, was discussing various problems recently with a prominent alumnus - - - The alumnus, who has his own problems, asked: "You don't have much influence with the board of admin-istrators, do you?" - - - Replied Her-man, seriously: "If I did, I would be a much better coach."

Erskine Makes Shift in Stride By Scoring Win

By The Associated Press

Branch Rickey, president of Brooklyn Dodgers, may think Carl Erskine has a little on the ball, but he can't question Erskine's determination.

Rickey pulled a surprise last week when he sent Erskine to Brooklyn's Montreal farm club in the International League. The move was frowned upon by Dodger fans, since Brooklyn at the time needed all the pitching help it could get and Erskine had won eight games while losing only one for the Dodgers last season.

But the stocky righthander from Anderson, Ind., took the switch in stride. He made his first start for Montreal Monday night and blanked Buffalo Bisons, 3-0, on five hits. In addition, he stopped Montreal's three-game losing streak.

Erskine struck out nine and walked only two. Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene, Ont., the former Philadelphia Athletics' ace, suffered the loss, yielding seven hits in less than four innings.

Jerry White's pinch-hit homer with two men on in the eighth inning gave Rochester a 10-7 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs. Hal Rice of Rochester and Eddie Stefiuki, Bill Glynn and Johnny Mayo of Toronto also found the range on runs.

Baltimore scored three runs in the seventh and eight innings to turn back Springfield, 9-5, for the third straight time. Eddie Pellegrini and Al Unser homered for Baltimore, while Forrest Burgess had one for Springfield.

A six-run seventh-inning blast gave Syracuse an 8-6 edge on Jersey City. Art Hartley went the distance for Syracuse to receive his fourth victory. Frank Shoats cracked a home run for Syracuse, Fred Milne hit one for the little Giants.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Pitcher: Hal Newhouser, Tigers. Scattered eight hits in his second start of the season and pitched the Tigers to a 5-1 victory over Washington Senators.

Batting: Eddie Malone, White Sox. His pinch hit single in the 10th inning scored Jim Busby with the run that gave the White Sox a 10-9 victory over Boston Red Sox.

By Alice Ross Colver

"He hasn't it yet. He just hopes will come through."

Jeff eyes turned to Alicia who, Stella, realized she should not have spoken. She waited, tensed for the inevitable question. It was from Elizabeth.

"And how do you know that, my dear?"

"I just saw him."

"You saw him! Where?" Elizabeth's smooth tone did not quite hide her relief. If she could find a way to knife Alicia, she might gladly seize it. And if, at the same time with the same blade she could carve up Gerry, she would be only too happy. Quickly Stella realized this, and as quickly Alicia's way out of it. To save herself she must tell the truth. It couldn't hurt Gerry at all. Her words fell quietly into the silence.

"I went there to the Inn to see Mr. That was the errand that brought me down tonight. Susan had tried to get him on the telephone but the wires were out of order so she called me. She had an important message for him."

"What was that message?" Alicia waited, just long enough to indicate her uncertainty as to whether or not it was her business, then, or Elizabeth's to inquire. It was a nice little touch, however. Then she shrugged with well-simulated indifference.

"Gerry had written her that he was about at the end of the leads he had and Susan thinks that, though her Headmaster, she can tell him others. That, I believe, is the substance of the matter."

"He's going up there then?"

Alicia shrugged again, her eyes turning from Elizabeth's flashing face to those of the Judge, quiet and penetrating beneath his bushy brows.

"And what is the position he hopes will come through?" he asked.

"Something with I. M. B. Timothy made the introduction for him." Timothy Grant. How do you like that? "But speaking of prejudice," she went on, "doesn't it seem to you, Judge, that the narrowest is the one that is based on money consideration alone?"

"It isn't just money!" Elizabeth snapped before her husband could answer. "It's his whole background. What he was before he came here — a bobo, a tramp. That's all."

"More power to him then."

"Yes." The Reverend took his turn, his ruddy applesace serious. "It seems to me Alicia is pointing out what we, as Christians, should know. Do know, as a matter of fact, but don't practice. This young man has lifted himself by his own efforts. Are we to give him a helping hand to a secure place on high dry ground? Or are we to push him back into the gutter again?"

"But we don't know how he lifted himself. What methods he used. He doesn't tell us."

The Reverend met this outburst calmly. "We might, I should think give him the benefit of the doubt. He certainly seems to be unafraid. If his conscience troubled him, he wouldn't be that, would he?"

"I agree with you, Joe," the Judge said reflectively. "But as a matter of credit on my own sheet, I would like to tell you that I offered to help him. I offered — and he turned me down."

There was a silence. Then Alicia spoke, he voice shaking with her contempt. These good Kings! These good Kings!

"You offered to send him to Texas. That's what you offered. You can't blame him for refusing to be got rid of a second time."

Elizabeth pounced. "You are very much in his confidence."

And Alicia replied evenly, "I am very much in the confidence of both Susan and Gerald."

"Dear, Dear." Ella, deeply upset by this display of pyrotechnics in her dinner table, and aware that she was responsible for the first spark, tried to smooth things over. "Well, if Susan can help him, or her Headmaster. I think that's fine. But perhaps the position where Timothy is working will come through first. Now shall we go into the other room for coffee?"

There was a stir, checked by Frank who asked a question out of a long silence.

"I wonder why he was stalled by I.M.B. Do you think it was an honest one? Or a brushoff?"

Alicia's look flashed to Frank's hearty features. She was suddenly dreadfully tired. From her long walk. From her pain. From the scene in Gerry's room. And why was she fighting so for him, anyway? When he didn't know or care? She was a fool!

"I think," she said, "that that wasn't very nice of you, Frank. And now, if someone will call a taxi for me, I'll start on my way."

Frank rose at once. "I said I'd drive."

"Hadn't you better let the taxi come, Frank? Suppose you get stuck?" Elizabeth's Mother doesn't want to stay late."

Audrey looked from Frank to Alicia as she said this, unsure, at this point, whether or not her interference was necessary. Certainly Alicia's pale face held nothing but physical suffering and Frank had returned to his usual doorsman. A moment later she knew it was.

"I'm taking her," he repeated. "I'll be back before you have finished your coffee."

It was. And Frank returned from the hall with his coat on and Alicia's sable in his hands.

"I think I can walk," she said, standing up. "See! I can." She limped a few steps.

"I'd better carry you," he answered, and when she was ready a wool sock of the Reverend's drawn over her injured foot, her boot in her hand, he picked her up in his arms and went with her out into the cold night, the door holding open.

In the car he spoke with unexpected anger. "I don't know why I made that call about Gerry. I don't give a damn about him! At first I thought I did, but I don't. He's been in his work out their own salvation. In case you are interested," he added.

"I am."

He started the car and they rolled down the hill through the blowing snow. "I've got other things to think about," he threw at her.

"What you're going to do yourself, you mean?"

He hesitated. "Yes," he said. "She meant a lot to his future work but he meant something different. He meant a lot to her. The light pressure of her shoulder against his was sending fire leaping all through his body. She must know what he meant, he thought suddenly. She couldn't possibly have started such a conflagration a few weeks ago without knowing. She must know, too, that it wasn't his fault he hadn't seen her since then. This weather, and nobody going anywhere, and he not daring to telephone.

He did not speak again. It was all he could do to keep the car on the road, to keep it climbing. He could feel the wheels slipping and sliding under him. It was like, really, even with a single lane plowed out. What if he did get stuck? Well, her weight was nothing. The memory of her in his arms made them ache to feel her close again.

Out of the silence as they drove Alicia spoke.

"You're nice, Frank, to do this."

"It's all right. Glad to, I mean."

He peered ahead, hating his inadequate tongue. There were the gateposts to her driveway Already he was here—and nothing said, nothing planned. Perhaps her driveway wasn't plowed and he'd have a good excuse to stop. But the plow had been here, too. Doubtless Lester had commandeered the service as the Judge always did. Lester! Every night that pinch-mouthed, purse-proud, apology-for-a-man could take this woman—

He ground to a halt under the porte-cochere. No one had heard them come apparently, so the outside lights had not been turned on. Brusquely, without warning, he swung his body toward her, his arm going around her slim shoulders, and pulled her close to him. In the exhilarating excitement of that moment he was unaware of her gasp of surprise, of her body stiffening against him. He only heard a curious sound— half throaty laugh, half sob—as after her first resistance she collapsed softly against him.

"It would have to be you," she murmured.

He kissed her roughly at first, then in shy, awkward gentleness.

"I've been dying for this," he whispered.

"Have you?"

"Ever since that day. I've walked up here I don't know how many times. But I never saw you and I never dared come in." He stopped.

"What day, Frank?" she asked.

"Why you know. That day you had the flat. When you told me to tell you if I ever found the answer. Well, I've found it." His voice was husky now and shook with excitement. "Will you have dinner with me in New York some night?"

"Dinner?" she pushed away from him and sat up. "Dinner," she repeated. "That opens up a vista, doesn't it?"

"Yes." He tried to see her clearly but the dim light and his own pitch of emotion made it impossible. "We might at least look down it," he urged, and felt his whole body trembling.

"There's no harm in looking," she agreed slowly. She turned her head and met his eyes, but not seeing him, seeing only her own path which was taking a such strange and unexpected turnings. "Yes, I'll have dinner with you, Frank," she said. "I don't know why I will, it doesn't make sense, but I will."

PENSION SCHEMES DISCUSSED BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Ottawa, May 25 — (CP) — A "pay-as-you-go" system of financing old-age pension payments may result in higher living costs.

This was the opinion of M. W. Sharp of the Finance Department who Wednesday presented a brief before the Joint Parliamentary Committee on old age security.

He suggested that an alternative fundamental approach to the provision of old-age security may be "some form of reserve equity" or insurance approach by which the pensioner earns his pension through the payment of "appropriate premiums" during his working life.

The "pay-as-you-go" approach would mean that "those who are working pay the cost of providing pensions for those who have retired."

Mr. Sharp said the financing would mean distributing the current cost of pensions over the whole population "in what is considered to be a proper way."

Poison to Kill 10,000 Stolen By Children

Tipton, Staffordshire, England, May 25 (Reuters) — Police cars equipped with loudspeakers patrolled streets today warning citizens that poison, in the form of 500 white balls, was stolen from a factory, presumably by children.

Police held antidotes in readiness and hospitals stood by for emergency cases if necessary. Authorities said there was enough poison in the balls—about the size of pigeon's eggs—to kill 10,000 persons.

The poison is sodium cyanide, a form of prussic acid. A chemist said "one lick would be fatal".

Cooler air now covers most of Northern Ontario. In these northern regions skies are mainly cloudy and a few light showers are reported but clearing is expected later today.

Over the remainder of the province the weather continues sunny and warm. Scattered thunderstorms are expected to develop in southern regions tonight as the cooler air advances into Southern Ontario.

ALL TRIBUTARIES OF RED STANDING STILL OR FALLING

By May 30th Danger Of Disaster Will End

By NORMAN MICHIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 25. (CP)—Two holiday statements from the army had an abrupt drop in the level of the Red river proved beyond doubt today that serious flood risk to greater Winnipeg is nearly ended.

There were the strongest indications that by May 30 at the latest all danger of flood disaster will have disappeared for 1950.

The threat of mass, compulsory evacuation of the metropolitan area—constantly present for the last fortnight—already is as good as lifted.

By May 30—next Tuesday—the risk of interrupted services by any public utility also should be removed.

Down to 29 Feet

The river's Winnipeg reading at 8:00 a.m. C.D.T. was 29.0 feet, more than a foot below the flood-crest peak of 30.3 reached last Friday. A Canadian Press graph of the public future behavior—based on the best scientific information—indicated that by early next Tuesday it should be down to 25.0 feet.

That is the level set last week by D. M. Stephens, top authority on the Red's water level, as the point where a disaster risk would end.

Only heavy, prolonged rainfall or a frantically speeded run-off of a tributary could change .to-day's bright picture of the flood's future course. Neither was in prospect this morning.

The weather office said the long-range outlook is most favorable. All Red tributaries were standing still or falling.

U.K. MERCHANTMAN SUNK

Hong Kong, May 25—(Reuters)—Captain Ian Gordon of the Lifton British merchantman Ehonnol, Glasgow, arrived Navy from Swatow today that his ship had been sunk off Sugar Loaf Island near there by either by a mine or a land bomb."

Use of Rubber Snakes to Frighten Pigeons May Solve Toronto's Problem

Toronto, May 25 — (CP) — Snakes may be the answer to Toronto's pigeon problem, Property Commissioner Graham D. Bland said today.

He disclosed that the city is "thinking about" setting rubber or wooden snakes on window-sills — in "menacing attitudes."

"Apparently the pigeons can't stand them," said Mr. Bland. He's referring to reports that the results of an experiment in Palmerston, Ont., where county council voted $5.76 for 16 rubber snakes.

Alderman Harold Fishleigh, No. 1 enemy of Toronto pigeons, argued — and Mr. Bland agreed — that merely frightening the birds is not a permanent solution.

"I," said Ald. Fishleigh, "am not in favor of just causing them emotional distress."

He was wary of the effect the snakes might have on citizens.

$13,000,000 Freight-Rate Increase Approved by Bd.

Ottawa, May 25 — (CP) — A freight-rate increase of 3.4 per cent amounting to about $13,000,000 a year, was awarded to the railroads today by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The Board, disposing of a rate case started in 1948, awarded to 20 per cent a March 1 award of 16 per cent to the railways.

The net result was an increase of 3.4 per cent on the rates that were put into effect through the March 1 judgment, and which now are effective.

The new award was granted following an application from the railways on the ground that a mistake had been made by the board in its March 1 decision. The railways contended the Board found a "deficiency" in rail operating revenue and failed to cover it adequately in that award.

The increase is effective on 15 days' notice.

Seven provinces all except Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland, had appealed the 16-per-cent judgment to the cabinet, which by asking that it be wiped out. Action has been deferred by the cabinet on the appeal until now, because the case was still in the hands of the board.

A spokesman for the provincial group said that the appeal to cabinet would be amended to cover today's decision.

In terms of its effect on the Canadian level of freight rates, the 3.4-per-cent boost will mean an increase of only perhaps 1½ per - cent in the general level because rate increases are applied unevenly to the types of traffic.

It will mean that the level of the rates to which the general increases are applicable — which has gone up 45 per cent as the result of the post - war increases, now will be about 45 per cent above the pre - war scale.

The three commissioners who sat on the case were unanimous in finding that the railways were entitled to the full 20 per cent which they asked in 1948.

Windsor, Ont., May 25 (CP)—Police are holding an unidentified man for questioning in the strangulation killing of Mrs. Margaret Cody, 53, of Windsor, whose battered body was found in a downtown hotel room Tuesday.

An autopsy Wednesday showed that the woman met her death early Tuesday from "outward violence." There were marks of blows about her face and body but police said the small grey-haired woman had been strangled.

GARSON RALLIES TO DEFENCE OF MANITOBA GOVT.

Winnipeg Disaster Debated in House

Ottawa, May 25 — (CP)—The part the Manitoba government played in meeting the Red River flood disaster was both criticized and defended in the Commons Wednesday.

Rallying to its defence, Justice Minister Garson, former Manitoba Premier, told the Chamber that the provincial government had been derelict in only one important aspect—failure to tell the people of the job it was doing.

Answering criticism from opposition members, he reviewed steps that had been taken to prepare for the emergency. Touching briefly on the question of federal financial aid, he said he does not know yet what the federal government will contribute.

He could not, he said, say whether it would be more or less than 75 per cent of damages.

He spoke after Arthur Ross (PC — Souris) charged that the provincial government had "failed, and failed miserably," in the emergency, and had accused the federal government and Premier Campbell Sinclair.

Alistair Stewart (CCF — Winnipeg North) said the government was to be used as early warnings of danger of flooding.

Prime Minister St. Laurent gave notice that the session's pre-prorogative drive will start June 1, with morning, afternoon and evening sittings five days a week beginning on that date.

Prime Minister Praises Value of Classical School

Sherbrooke, Que., May 25 (CP) Prime Minister St. Laurent said in an address here Wednesday that a man who did not understand that spiritual values should come before material values was in danger of risk of killing himself off in each generation.

Speaking at an old boys' gathering of Sherbrooke's St. Charles Borromee College, which he attended from 1896 to 1902, Mr. St. Laurent said the training given in classical colleges and said that countries where totalitarian regimes are in power, far too much importance is given the technique and manipulation of natural forces.

'Tried be Funny' Says Educationist On Cross-Breeding

Charlottesville, Va., May 25 — (AP) — Artificial cross-breeding of apes with humans would raise a batch of moral and social problems, the head of the University of Virginia's Dr. Sydney Cloyd declared.

But, he declares, he would like to conduct such an experiment "from the standpoint of cold scientific curiosity."

The psychologist made his statement in answer to criticism over a recent suggestion he made at a Washington meeting that such cross-breeding be used to give apes the ability to learn elementary ladder.

"I tried to be funny," said Britton on his comment at the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, at which he spoke mainly on the probable effect that mutations will have in the development of man's brain.

"All I did was quote other physiologists in the audience on remark that creation of a new race of apes might be used lead to traffic in slavery," he said. He maintained that the breeding possible scientific difficulties but will be tried eventually — if it is worthwhile.

"After all," he observed, "it's time to stop looking for apes with fruit flies and start on the apes."

Gunman Attempts To Hold up Bank Branch in Montreal

Screams of Girl Clerk Cause Bandit to Flee

Montreal, May 25 (CP) — An A-V bank manager and a police officer were shot and wounded today in the unsuccessful attempt of a lone bandit to hold up the Bank of Toronto branch on downtown Beaver Hall Hill.

Bank Manager Stanley Bickley and Sgt. Ian Gammon of the RCMP were wounded in the exchange of gunfire with the bandit.

The bandit is believed to have escaped and so far as known was not hit by shots fired at him. In Serious Condition

Bickley is said to have suffered only a flesh wound but Gammon was said to be in serious condition. Both were taken to hospital.

Gammon is stationed at the Bank of Canada, a short distance from the Bank of Toronto branch. The bandit entered the bank during the noon hour, walked up to a window and said something to a girl teller. The girl screamed and fell to the floor.

Bandit Flees

The bandit apparently became alarmed and tried to run from the bank as Manager Bickley rushed from his office. Bickley was shot and fell to the floor.

About the same time Gammon, who is believed to have heard the shooting while passing by, ran inside and was also shot.

The same bandit or lone bandit up several months ago when $3,300 was taken.

J. L. Cohen, Labor Lawyer, 52, Dies

Toronto, May 25. (CP) —J. L. Cohen, K.C., 52, prominent Labor Party lawyer, suddenly died at his home Wednesday after a heart attack. He was a former member of the National War Labor Board, losing that position after he went into a split-down strike and labor government policy.

A native of Manchester, England, his family moved to this country when he was a boy. His father died when he was 13 and he became the family breadwinner.

Cohen first became prominent as the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) strike at Oshawa in 1937. He engaged in many other labor cases on behalf of the C.I.O.

Chinese Fireworks Store Gutted by Fire

Winnipeg, May 25 — (CP) — An unauthorized Victoria Day display of exploding fireworks and flaring rockets gutted a Chinese fireworks store here early Wednesday morning, police said. Damage, $5,000. Future shipments will include cutlery, carpets, chinaware and wearing apparel.

"It is quite obvious the Canadian market will be over-run by immediate needs," Gordon-Walker said. "But there may be greater strain during the period of restoration. What we are sending we hope will help Canadians over this period."

DISASTER RELIEF WILL BE GIVEN BY GREAT BRITAIN

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 25. (AP)—Britain today estimated £100,000 ($316,000) for disaster relief in Manitoba and Quebec, and said emergency supplies will start flowing across the Atlantic tomorrow.

As a first instalment a British stratocruiser will fly to Winnipeg bearing eight tons of sheets, pillows, blankets, towels, and medical dressings.

Further supplies will be sent by ship early in June. Some of these will be allotted to the fire-devastated Quebec communities of Hawkesbury and Cabano.

These decisions were announced in the House of Commons today by Patrick Gordon-Walker, Commonwealth Relations Secretary. He told a press conference earlier that the British Government had consulted with Canadian representatives here in an effort to make sure the relief shipments included just the things Canadians want."

He told correspondents that Canada has suffered "very grave" disasters. But British aid was not intended to suggest that Canada Ion was "reeling" nor was it a first-class gesture in response to Canadian assistance in similar circumstances.

"In the prime Minister's phrase, we're just doing our best to fill in gaps", Gordon-Walker said.

Sending Sheets, Blankets

Included in the first consignment will be 15,000 pairs of sheets, 1,500 pillows, 500 blankets, 1,000 towels, children's toys and a large quantity of elastic adhesive bandages, which Gordon-Walker said were particularly useful and specifically requested.

In addition to government assistance, the Commonwealth Relations Office will handle any public funds raised spontaneously by British communities. Since the money cannot be sent to Canada without breaking currency controls, the government will authorize the transfer of funds into goods.

One value of tomorrow's shipborne aid to flood-stricken Manitoba is evaluated at about £3,000. Future shipments will include cutlery, carpets, chinaware and wearing apparel.

"It is quite obvious the Canadian market will be over-run by immediate needs," Gordon-Walker said. "But there may be greater strain during the period of restoration. What we are sending we hope will help Canadians over this period."

Reds Guard Russ Sector Limit To Prevent 10,000 Youths Straying

Berlin, May 25. (AP) — Red police posted guards along the Russian sector boundary today to keep some 100,000 "free German Youth" (F.D.J.) marchers, now in East Berlin, from straying to the West.

Soviet-controlled newspapers blared a warning that "Anglo-American incendiaries are throwing young German peace fighters in jail just for wearing the blue shirt."

West German police confirmed that they have arrested 15 F.D.J. marchers who were found hiding in trucks decorated with communist propaganda. Red officials charged that the arrest total was far higher.

Meanwhile, F.D.J. cohorts continued to pour into East Berlin by train and trucks every hour. With 100,000 already here, communist officials predicted that the figure would double by tomorrow.

The communist police force, bolstered by more than 15,000 reinforcements for the Whitsuntide youth demonstrations, suffered two desertions last night.

Two young patrolmen in uniform appealed to western authorities for asylum.

British, American, and French officials immediately launched militant jeep patrols on the whole 90-mile route through the Soviet zone from West Germany to Berlin.

Perfect Weather Greeted Holiday-Making Citizenry

The "Glorious Twenty-Fourth" ushered in the week-end in perfect fashion with the weather greeting the city and district with a holiday-making citizenry.

Brilliant sunshine quickly dispersed early-morning clouds and pleasure-seeking people revelled in ideal atmospheric conditions.

Sport was king for the day as athletic leagues of all kinds ushered in official season. Augmenting these were exhibitions of various phases of recreation.

Softball, baseball and tennis ushered in the 1950 season in the city.

Baseball and sea-flea races attracted a large crowd to Picton in the afternoon.

Madoc was the mecca for large crowds of motor-boat racing enthusiasts.

Trenton, celebrating its third day of festivities, went all-out to host to thousands with a varied program of sport.

The Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club links, with those of other clubs of the district drew lovers of the ancient and honorable game in large numbers.

Heavy Vehicle Traffic

Jalopy and near-limousine carried family parties to the country, and neighboring communities. A steady parade of vehicular traffic passed through the city all day and highways had heavy quotas of traffic especially in the evening.

Cabin and cottage on river, bay and lake provided a restful holiday for those who wanted it that way.

Fishermen revelled in the balmy weather and scattered reports state that the catches were good.

The fireworks "tradition" of the holiday lived up to its past. The sky was dotted with fiery color as grown-ups and youngsters brought the holiday to a close with explosive celebration. Lawns were dotted with multi-colored jets of fire. The air "rocked" to the staccatos of exploding crackers. Rockets blazed high in the air. Pinwheels whirled. Sparklers left every form of fireworks added to the general enjoyment. No casualties were reported.

And so ended, according to older people, one of the most enjoyable "Twenty-Fourths" experienced in years.

Two Transports Owned by Same Company in Ditch

Not one, but two, Smith highway transports ended up in the ditch east of Marysville this morning—one going into the ditch through swerving to miss an auto and the second as result of a Good Samaritan act on the part of the driver who stopped to lend assistance.

Wilmer Fournier, Cornwall was driving his transport west shortly after daylight this morn he was forced to swerve his vehicle to avoid missing a car driven by Edgar Hearnes of Picton which had swung across the road to enter a driveway. The truck eased into the ditch and the driver was uninjured.

Later a second transport stopped to lend assistance. He stopped his truck on an incline and set the airbrakes. Then, while talking with the the driver of the ditched vehicle he turned around to see his own transport moving down the hill and into the ditch.

An air leak in the braking system had caused the air brakes to release.

O.P.P. Officer Struck in Eye With Fire Cracker

Over-enthusiasm on the part of a group of youths celebrating the Victoria Day with indiscriminate use of fire-crackers may have had serious consequences yesterday when a local officer of the Ontario Provincial Police was struck in the eye with a cracker tossed by a Frankford district youth.

The fire cracker struck the officer directly in the eye and exploded a fraction of a second later as it ricocheted off his head.

Constable John Thompson of the O.P.P. and his wife and mother, was walking on Front Street near Victoria Avenue, when they observed a group of youths playing with fire crackers. As they passed the boys one fire cracker was thrown, striking the officer in the eye, while another exploded at his feet ruining the women's stockings.

Identifying himself as an officer Constable Thompson apprehended the youth who tossed the cracker, and when he failed to identify himself to police station the youth refused to go further and city police were called. At the station the youths were requested to report to Police Chief Walter Probert.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 25 (CP)—Low-priced gold stocks lost more of their steam as their prices progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today. Activity showed considerable from the rapid pace of Monday and Tuesday.

Volume for the first three hours was 2,404,000 shares.

Seniors were higher on the gold board and several leading junior producers chalked up penny advances. A few active spots remained among the more speculative issues. Bonville Mines attracted considerable attention following news of financing plans. Stock jumped from eight to 18 cents in heavy turnover. Norlartic and Dulama were also heavy traders.

Industrials sagged steadily over a broad front. Losses in most cases were held to fractions.

Base metals were active and mixed. Opening trends pointed higher but easiness developed in mid-session.

Western oils pushed ahead with National Petroleum leading on an advance of 27 cents at a new high at $2.26.

News of Trenton

Chutist's Chute Catches on Plane, He's Eucky and Gets Loose Again

Trenton—(Special)— Spectators watching a parachute jumping exhibition at Bayshore Park yesterday afternoon were given an unexpected thrill, when one of the jumpers pulled the rip cord before he was clear and his chute caught in the door of the plane.

The jumper, 27-year-old Charlie Rodgers, l., likely to remember the Third Man Theme long after he's passed from the current Hit Parade.

It was Rodgers third parachute jump and he was also the third of five members of the Canadian Parachute Club Toronto, to parachute into the Bay of Quinte where they were picked up by a cruising speed boat. The show was staged as part of the Victoria Day celebrations.

Trailing the snagged chutist like a button on a string, the plane circled the town at an altitude of 2,000 feet, as the crowd looked on anxiously.

By the time the plane was atwater.

the point where Rodgers jumped from the plane, one of the crew members inside, managed to cut him loose. Cocking his emergency chute, Charlie floated down without further mishap to land in the bay and be picked up by the waiting boat.

Off Without Hitch

The other four jumps went off without a hitch. Keith Douglas will 180 jumps to his credit baled out at 500 feet, Keith Dougherty Forbes who hit the silk at 1500. Aubrey has been jumping for 10 years.

Ray Chesnay, president of the Club, who holds the Canadian high altitude jumping record at 18,000 feet parachuted from 3,000.

Jim Alexander provided another thrill with his delayed action jump. Alexander dropped 2,000 feet free and then at 5,000 feet tore pulling the string and spilled the silk chute beautifully as he hit the water.

Recalls Changes of Last 50 Years As Golden Anniversary Celebrated

Trenton (Special)—Residents of Trenton ever since they were married on Thursday, June 1900, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Coutts, 27 Cedar Street, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Wednesday May 24.

"If there is much change during the next 50 years as there has been the last 50 years it will certainly be some change," said Mrs. Coutts as a jet plane whistled overhead. To realize the truth of Mrs. Coutts' statement regarding the next 50 years, one need only reflect on the last half century which has bridged the gap between the horse and buggy era and the atomic age.

"Trenton was a very small place when we came here in 1900", continued Mrs. Coutts as her mind travelled back to the time when a covered wooden bridge spanned the Trent River.

There were no buses running between Trenton and Belleville then. Everyone either travelled by the "stage", or on one of the two steamers, the North King or Varuna that were regularly at Trenton dock. It took the Varuna all day to make the trip to Picton and back," said Mrs. Coutts.

Both 72 Years Young

Both Mr. and Mrs. Coutts are 72 years young and Mrs. Coutts explained the absence of her husband when this reporter called, by the fact that he was out somewhere looking after friends in one of the park beds.

Mr. Coutts has been tending the flowers in the parks around Trenton for a number of years. Away back in 1903, Mr. Coutts was making ice in Trenton's open air skating rink. When the present arena was built, he continued to look after the ice except one year during the First World War, when he worked on the railroad.

Turning to the topic of marriage Mrs. Coutts said she believes the "getting a good start goes a long way toward building a happy home." During the interview, Mrs. Coutts revealed that she and her husband attribute the keeping house on five dollars a week, — and we didn't go into it," she added proudly — as the evident Mrs. Coutts meant something more than a good financial start.

Always Lived Quietly

"We've always lived quietly and never neglected our church. This we'd say to the conclusion that if more people took an active part in church life, that maybe wouldn't be so much trouble in the world," commented Mrs. Coutts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Coutts have been active members of Grace Street United Church for the last 50 years.

Harry W. Coutts and Mina Kleinsteiber were married at Bridgewater (now Actinolite) and travelled to Trenton for their honeymoon in a horse-drawn rheeton.

Wednesday afternoon and evening, the bride and groom were at home to a few friends. Two of their three children were home for the occasion, Mrs. Alice Fitzgerald of Toronto, and Frank H. Coutts of London. The other son, Lieut. Col. Coutts of Industry, Pennsylvania, was unable to be present.

Charlie Justice, Famous Negro Hurler, Stages One-Man Show In Trenton Softball Game

Trenton, (Special). —Charlie Justice, famous negro hurler of the World Champion Tip Top Tailors, staged a one-man exhibition of baseball here when the Toronto team took on a local All-star team at Bayshore Park, Wednesday afternoon.

At the end of six and a half innings, the crowd called the local heroes by a score of 8 to 1. From then on the game was a scorekeeper's nightmare but the fans loved it.

In the 6½ half of the seventh, All-star pitcher Harry Farrar, who replaced Don Boyle in the sixth, walked Bill Sadler then 'Pee' Palmeri hit a homer. That started the parade as the Tors onto Tailors tagged the local squad for ten runs.

Put Qui Fire

Then Charlie Justice deserted his own team and put out the fire for the locals. Such actions might be frowned upon in some encounters but neither team made any protest.

In the final game of the world's championship series, Justice pitched Tip Top to victory in 17 innings at Little Rock, Arkansas last Fall. Yesterday he put on a show that nearly drove the umpires mad. Firing the ball at batter's head, Charlie fooled the batters and the umpire but after hitting a single for All-Stars, he stole second, then ran home in the wrong direction while the bewildered Tip Top pitcher, All-star, Harry Farrar, threw to third.

A Big Inning

The seventh inning was a big one for Justice. He handled the pitching chores for both sides and hit for both sides. He demonstrated his ability to hit both left and right and hit a single through left with one hand on the bat.

Bruce Burtt was the winning pitcher allowing the policemen eight hits and striking out 16. Barney McColl was on the mound for the lads in blue and held the firemen to six hits. Both went the seven innings.

The outstanding player on both teams was the police pitcher, Barney McColl, who nearly won the game for the whistle tooters singled handed. He was a pitching a seven-hit ball game, Barney gained his make on a blinding delivery with four hits. Barney who also played with the All-Stars against the World Champion Tip Top Tailors in the afternoon fracas, slammed out two home runs, a triple, and a double for a perfect game.

Errors Made Difference

Errors made the difference. The policemen committed 12 to the firemen's nine. However the police nine proved the most costly. With the score tied at 12 all in the last half of the final inning and two runs down, Barney McColl struck out Ernie Ormshaw and retired Bill Westfall dropped the ball, scoring Fred McCrodin from third to win the ball game.

For the policemen, Doug Bradshaw also added a thousand with a single and triple for two trips to the plate. Bruce Westfall hit a three bagger in the fifth and Ivan Jensen hit a double in the sixth.

Following the game, Barney McColl said the policemen were considering protesting the game as a voluntary policemen, Ernie Norton played for the firemen.

The teams:

Firemen: E. Newton, rf; J. Lewis cf; Bob Mitts lf; E. Ormshaw ss; Joe Hastings 3b; F. Gainforth 2b; Jim Thompson 1b; Gord Coughlin c; Bruce Burtt p.

Women's Organizations To Head Municipal Effort For Raising Money for Fund

Women representing 15 church and lodge organizations of Trenton met at Canterbury Hall Tuesday afternoon to organize the campaign.

"While the various churches are taking up special collections, we feel there should be an overall effort on the part of the town so that everyone will have a chance to contribute," said Mrs. McConnell, who is in charge of organizing the combined effort.

A tag day is planned for Saturday, June 10th. As a special concession on account of the national emergency, the RCAF has given permission for the taggers to tag the air station as June 10th is Air Force Day.

Mrs. McConnell pointed out that by making the campaign a municipal affair, the town of Trenton will get credit for the contributions collected."

Town Clerk, O. W. Larry, represented the town in the absence of Mayor Ken Couch who was unable to be present.

FULL FORCE OF TRAFFIC PATROL

It is reassuring news that the motorcycle patrols of Ontario highways are out in full force for the first time this decade. A dispatch this week told of a fleet of thirty-two of these machines in operation with the expressed aim of ridding the highways of accidents and speeding by elimination of mile-long jams.

The whole of Southern Ontario will feel the benefit of service these patrols will be able to achieve.

The traffic police can render an essential service to whole of the Province for a very great share of the ness and activity of the Province has to pass along the ways and road networks to serve every part of Ontario. Direction of traffic has come to be a science and this ntial fact must be recognized by everyone.

The coming of the motorcar has had an immense upon the development of nations. Progress on roads a slow business before the car came. There were no things as the great trunk highways of today which take care of hundreds of thousands of cars going in direction at the one moment, where they are inevitably ed up with the entire life of the country.

Preventing traffic jams is one of the aims of modern le control. There is nothing like a jam to irritate and s a driver to temper. It is the aim of control today to traffic flow evenly and safely without irritation to drivers, for irritation if given way to may be a fertile e of crashes.

ROYAL CARPET'S TOUR

Queen Mary's carpet is moving eastward and will soon en in Philadelphia and Baltimore. On June 7th it will rn for a second exhibition in New York which will the tour of America.

Some of the interesting facts of the carpet and its sale given by United Kingdom Information Office. After 1 15, the closing date for offers to purchase, the London mittee responsible for the selling will examine the bids ved. Announcement of the bids are treated as confidential Along with the carpet there will go the copyright of its n. There will be no restriction on the use made of this, ch has of course considerable commercial value. Accordingly, all requests to reproduce the design (except for purposes) are being refused and any unauthorized ductions will be stopped. Copyright is protected in countries signatory to the Berne Convention.

The purchaser of the carpet has ultimately to present a public institution. But the London Committee emphases that this condition will be satisfied by presenting d the purchased carpet to the institution which in the first instance will be asked to make the entation within a reasonable period of years.

The attention which the handicraft of Queen Mary has given to the phenomenal Many thousands everyre it has been shown have attended the exhibitions.

TELEVISION AND SURGERY

British progress in television is indicated in the news colored television will be installed in St. Thomas' Hos- in London, to enable students in lecture rooms to ch operations. The equipment will be used experiment- in St. Thomas's for three months, probably in one or special departments and possibly to show eye operations.

How mankind is adopting television is one of the press steps in a scientific age which as soon as possible ilies the new knowledge to matters of individual and eral health.

POOR RICHARD'S FORE KNOWLEDGE

Benjamin Franklin, that extraordinary man, was al- surprising his contemporaries with his versatile gifts; is still surprising posterity with his prescience as more his writings are studied.

It is now revealed that as American minister to Paris, was privileged to witness a balloon ascension.

To most people that would be a rare spectacular event of no great practical use. That same day, however, chanced to have a conversation with one of the entors of the pastime, a device that was designed efly to enable trapped victims to escape from burning ildings.

To Franklin's alert mind the balloon and the parate were potentially wedded and destined to play an portant part in human relationships.

A few weeks later he was writing to a French friend t five thousand balloons, each manned with two solers, might conceivably change the entire aspect of war.

Those ten thousand men, descending from the clouds, ventured, might "do an infinite deal of mischief before a could be brought together to repel them." — Hamilton Spectator.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

20 YEARS AGO

May 25th, 1930.

A Long Hike. As an indication of the strength and endurance of the pioneers of this district, a story of citizen Ellis of Tweed, which still related by the oldest inhabitants, is interesting. Mr. Petrie had some business to transact in Kingston, which was then the headquarters for military, mercantile and legal business for a considerable section.

Transportation in those days was primitive and bumpiest ever century roads on springless stages or pioneer carts was not a pleasant experience. Boat service, more or less uncertain, was maintained and the open boats packets was extremely limited according to present day standards, depending a good deal on the quality of the cordwood available for fuel to produce steam. Mr. Petrie determined to travel to Kingston by packet, but when he reached the water front he found that, the boat had cast off and was well underway for the way-ago to the Limestone City. Notwithstanding his urgent affairs and the prospect of another passenger, the captain refused to return and the boat continued her voyage. Mr. Petrie had made up his mind to go to Kingston and as his legs were strong and his will good, he proceeded to walk the distance with the result that he arrived in Kingston in time to welcome the boat upon its arrival. Of course, in those days steamers were rather slow, but it was a remarkable achievement just the same.

May 25th, 1920

The following from this district will receive the degree of M. D. C. M. from Queen's University: Austin Walters and J. Cummins of this city; William Bowers of Sulphide; Carl Haig of Tweed and Reg. Elliott of Hungerford township.

Money placed in milk bottles at homes on the west hill is being stolen. Something should be done to stop this.

Touring motorists are beginning to arrive at the local tourist camp.

Mr. Allan Dempsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Dempsey of Ameliasburg, has graduated at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shortt left today to reside in Detroit, Mich., where Mr. Shortt will attend a convention of Y. M. C. A. executives.

40 YEARS AGO

May 25th, 1910

Mrs. S. M. Gilbert of the 2nd concession of Thurlow township has left to visit her nephew, Rev. Mr. Gilbert at Dalrymple.

Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Bonisteel are visiting their son, Dr. Bonisteel in Ingersoll.

Mrs. S. Carr of Toronto is visiting relatives and friends in the city.

Mrs. Stephen Eustace has returned home after spending some time in New York City.

The schooner Frontenac has cleared for Oswego to load coal for Capt. N. Allen of this city. Capt. Dorenda is in command of the steamer.

The schooner Maple with Capt. Matthews in command has cleared for Oswego.

Mr. and Mrs. Penn of Yarker, are visiting their daughter Mrs. C. Yerex, Lewis Street.

Mr. Charles Parker of Stirling, was in town today.

Mr. William Dame is able to be about again.

Sometime during last night some evil-minded person or persons placed some spikes and a large stone upon the track of the electric street railway near Canniffon road where the cars cross. Fortunately the motorman saw the obstruction in time or serious accident would have occurred.

MacKenzie's Column:

Drawing Line At Rhine Would Be Error - Tedder

By SIGRID ARNE
(Associated Press News Analyst)
(For DeWitt Mackenzie)

Lord Tedder, chief of the RAF, has just dragged a political dead cat back into view.

He thinks the western program to hold communism won't mean much until the west makes it possible for the States of Central and Eastern Europe, plus Greece, Turkey and Russian-trained stooges have helped to set up communist governments in all of them since the Second World War.

Only after the whole area had been grabbed by the communists did the United States lead off in a "containment" policy. The program started with aid to Greece and Turkey in 1947, went through the Marshall Plan to help Western Europe and now is building the North Atlantic Pact.

But all the time top political leader in the west said much about the people of Middle Europe who had failed to collect what the United Nations Charter promised to the whole world: the right to determine their own form of government and to preserve national independence.

Error to Step at Rhine

Lord Tedder said in a Washington interview:

"We are in a struggle of ideology. We've got to win it psychologically and morally. Europe is the birthplace of democracy. I think we would go astray if we drew a line on a military map and said 'the Rhine is the thing.'"

Until the recent Moscow conference, Western leaders made it appear that the west's struggle with dictatorship would stop at the Rhine. This now has been extended to the Iron Curtain in Germany, but to Middle European countries like Austria and even though they are being conceded to Moscow.

Lord Tedder objects to such a motion as does the former democratic leaders of Middle Europe who were forced to flee their communist-dominated countries.

Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former Polish Premier, urged the west to forget its old "non-intervention" policy. He warned against the use of force since that would mean "suicide" to the people living under communist rule.

What weapons does Mikolajczyk suggest?

He says the West could announce a definite policy toward Middle Europe to let the people behind the iron curtain know they have not been forgotten and to cut new resistance into them.

He wants the United Nations to take a more militant stand. The U. N. has protested violations of human rights in Romania, Hungary and Bulgaria. But all nothing about the forced mass deportations of the Baltic peoples and the equally serious human rights violations in other countries.

He thinks the right of protest before the United Nations should be extended to exiled political leaders. Then that right is denied to governments and all the governments behind the iron curtain are represented by communists.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT

Last night I stopped in at Jerry's for a lager and a listen-bear, and as per usual Long George Smiley and Sid "The Inch" Perry were at the end of the bar nursing their respective beers and grouches.

"Communism," said Long George, "is the dirty finger in people's pie."

"Only a Republican like you would sneer at dirty fingers," said The Inch. "Under this lousy system, who can afford a manicure?"

"Listen to that peewee pinko," said the bartender as he set a tall one at my elbow. "He's sore because he only gets one relief check a week."

"I wonder how Trygve Lie made out in Moscow," said The Inch.

"Better that one should have stayed in Norway and tended to his sardines," said Long George.

"Why is he a nut? They laughed at Joan of Arc, and look where she wound up."

"Yea, on Stromboli. As I see it, anybody who sets out on a one-man peace mission ought to have his head examined. Take Henry Ford and his Ford Peace Ship. I want a real Nutsy Fagin, take Eric Johnston."

"Eric who?" asked The Inch.

"Muenter," repeated George as he brushed the froth off the end of his nose. "He was that professor at Harvard who shot his wife before the War One poisoned his wife, shaved off his beard, changed his name and got a job as a janitor in Detroit."

"Don't mention that, capitalist institution," said The Inch. "They make the inmates row on the crew like galley slaves."

"When the war began," Long George went on, "Muenter appointed himself a one-man committee to stop it, and for openers he went down to Washington and planted a bomb in the reception room next to the Senate chamber. Fortunately, he got there around when it went off, and the papers next day reported the explosion had been caused by escaping gas."

"A logical enough assumption," said The Inch, "considering the building it was in."

"Anyway," said George, "Muenter says he got the notion that it he could kidnap J. P. Morgan's wife, he could force the financier to order Clemenceau and the Kaiser to kiss and make up. Somehow, he got Mrs. Morgan's home on Long Island, but a butler spotted him in the living room and he parted his hair with an andiron."

"A traiter to his class, that lackey," said The Inch.

"The bug-brain idealist wasn't done yet," said Long George. "Some reporters interviewed him in his cell, he said he had it fixed so every munitions ship would blow up within the week, and next day the whole country got jittery when a big freighter caught fire and had to race for port to keep from exploding."

"Sometime later, however, the punchy guy got it through his noodle that he was getting nowhere fast, so he killed himself by jumping off the top of a cell block and diving head-first onto the pavement."

"Which proves, I suppose," said The Inch, "that because Trygve Lie went to Moscow, he's not exploosing his wife and shooting somebody in the arm. How about a real capitalist logic."

"Stop sounding off like Vichinsky and Long George," said I, trying to prove that the guy who takes it on himself to tell everybody usually winds up with nobody to talk to."

"Speaking of talk, gentlemen," said the bartender, "we've had a plenty of it tonight. How about a little cash for those beers?"

"That's no way for one worker to talk to another," said The Inch. "Comes the revolution, I'll remember it."

"How do you like that for nerve?" said the bartender when the customers had finished talking up and left. "Last night I caught him feila alicing an extra dime and putting the pieces in the juke box."

Personal Health Talks

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

HEART DISEASE IN PREGNANCY

The victims of heart disease fall into four different classes. First is the class in which although heart disease is present, no limitation of activity is imposed upon the patient because of it. The second class involves those who suffer slight limitation of activity because of heart disease. The third class suffers moderate limitation of activity and the fourth class suffers marked limitation of activity because of heart disease.

Rheumatic fever in childhood is the cause of 90 per cent of heart disease which assumes importance in pregnancy. Perhaps three per cent of all pregnancies are complicated by heart disease.

Before the advent of modern obstetrics, infection and hemorrhage were the chief concern of the doctor at childbirth. Control of infection and hemorrhage has been largely mastered in the light of the advance of obstetrical knowledge, leaving heart disease the chief concern today.

Even in the face of modern knowledge of heart disease, it is perhaps safe to say that about 20 per cent of mothers succumb in childbirth or shortly afterward, do so because of heart disease. As a matter of fact, a good many of this 20 per cent—perhaps most of them—have those who die in the sixth and seventh month of pregnancy.

I am frequently asked about the prospects of pregnancy and childbirth, by young women who have heart disease who are contemplating marriage. It is very difficult to offer advice in specific cases, but in general I am inclined to the view that persons in class three and four, previously mentioned, should be very carefully examined by a physician before marriage —and should not marry, if so advised.

There are doubtless many persons who enter into marriage with the thought that contraceptive measures will control the matter of pregnancy. Such persons would say that I do not share their confidence in the matter. Most of the pregnancies that occur that there is often a difference between what should happen and what does happen.

Over-all statistics in the matter are not available, but in one group of over 200 women with rheumatic heart disease, 17 per cent failed to survive two years after childbirth.

Expert care and management throughout pregnancy will often carry a mother through, where disaster might otherwise be expected. On the other hand, indifferent care might result in disaster, in a case thought originally to be within safe limits. Again, I stress the importance of capable medical supervision of the entire subject—by the physician on the scene.

Many states now require an examination for venereal disease, before a marriage license is issued. Ideally, this examination should be complete—in order to ascertain the possibility of other condition — heart disease among them—which would interfere with pregnancy and childbirth.

The responsibility of denying the possibility of motherhood to a young woman is certainly outside the province of the conductor of this column. A good plan to follow in the case of one thinking is to be guided by the opinion of two physicians—preferably one specialist.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Vibrator

In a beauty salon where I work I have to handle a vibrator giving birth, by young women who come hours a day. It shakes me up at the same time. Can this injure my health?
—(Mrs. T. A.).

Embalmed

You said "any food fit for canning or preservation in the first place, does not need embalming with sodium benzoate" etc. Yet I notice on the carton of oleo sold in this country that it also contains sodium benzoate.—(C.C.W.).

Answer—You quote me correctly.

Shower Or Soak

Literature on why you oppose bath salts and showers.—(Mrs. A. P.).

Answer—I don't mind a Saturday night bath, but I prefer shower bath to tub bath because the shower is cleaner, in my opinion.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE GOOD NEW DAY

Literary critics and newspaper editors all over the country are lately getting the astonishment over something which has happened in the last year. The general public has become interested in religion. Ten years ago religious books were a drug on the market. Most editors shied away from religious articles as they would from smallpox.

Then something—or quite a few things—discovered that people have a natural interest in religion. Interest has increased further, namely, that this natural interest in religion seems at this very moment to be greater than it has been a generation or two. Never in the memory of anyone living has there been so many books been on the best-seller lists as they have been during the past year. Hardly a single weekly newspaper now that does not carry a religious column of some kind.

Today we frequently hear the statement that a great religious revival is in the offing. This is not correct; the religious revival has already started. We have expert stupendous results within the next few years. All over the world the thinking people of the world are turning toward the things of faith. No longer is science the opponent of religion. A new day has dawned.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

When sailing out a rowboat, with a tin can, it is a mistake to count the dips. A natural instinct in us inspires us to count. But only results the chore seem longer. If we do not count, and if we just keep dipping away while our mind and attention wander loose, thinking of where we are going as well as the bath itself, or wondering what our wife is putting in the lunch basket, the time spent on the task is over before we realize it.

Many people are hopeless counters. They count their steps to the corner, figuring the exact time it will take. They count the blocks in a city journey, or the villages on a trip by motor car. Counting is one of the surest means of making the road seem longer.

A journey alone is always longer than a journey in company, for the reason that we are not occupied with other things than the statistics of time and space.

Nobody finds the working day as long as does the clock-watcher. He is the man who constantly at wrist watch is that it is too easily seen. A watch is a useful engine, but should be worn in pocket or handbag.

Employers should respect and admire clock-watchers, for they are the most unhappy, who are attentive to something. It is the man who is not attentive to wander who are the happy mortals, who find all journeys short and all days long enough to pass swift. But as employes, they leave something to be desired. To make employers properly happy, employes should suffer reasonably.

In sailing out a boat, therefore, do not count the dips, allow your mind to wander freely, but in case your wife is within hearing, groan and grunt a bit, and shake your head. Then all one of these days you must fix those darn leaks.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE GOOD INFLUENCE

In Stevenson's "Inland Voyage" you will come across this quotation: "His was, indeed, a good influence in this world in which he lived among us; he had a fresh laugh; it did you good to see him; and, however sad he may have been at heart, he always bore a bold and cheerful countenance and left fortune's worst as it were the showers of Spring."

I have read that passage again and again and it has given me a little mind picture of what good influence never dies. Only this day I had a talk with a friend who never knew a word of poems to memory when a youth. He is today past seventy and recited one poem correctly that consisted of thirty-five stanzas!

Far better than gold is to distribute good influence every day of your life, but do it, and you will surely die rich!

If you're too young, you won't like curry—the hot Indian condiment made up of about 20 spices.

To most people tasting it for the first time, curry seems like a terrible mistake. Your first impression is that the cook accidentally dropped a box of some strange spice into the stew.

You are shocked and stunned by the pepper and salt sauce. Only when you follow the curry with a large fork full of rice does it seem tolerable. When you combine the curry, rice and chutney in one mouthful, the mixture seems to make more sense, but you still reach for the ice water.

After you've eaten it five or six times, you're probably an addict. As you grow older, that is to say, as your tastes become more jaded, you develop a real craving for all kinds of curries —shrimp, chicken, veal or egg.

Lamb, because of its very mild flavor, is especially well suited for curry dishes. The amount of curry you should use is a matter of individual taste. To develop the best curry flavor, it should be added at the beginning of the cooking process. During the long slow simmering the curry and the meat flavors will blend. Then, if you want more curry in the sauce you can add it to taste or even serve it at the table for guests to help themselves.

Lamb Neck Slices with Curry. Serves 4.

Order 2 pounds of neck of lamb cut into 1 1-2 inch slices. Wipe meat with a clean damp cloth. Place meat in a paper bag with 1-2 cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Shake bag well to coat meat.

Melt fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in a heavy frying pan. Add lamb slices. Brown on both sides.

In a large clean saucepan melt 2 tablespoons fat. Add 1-3 cup finely chopped onions, 1-2 teaspoon finely chopped garlic and 1-4 teaspoon of chopped thyme. Simmer slowly until onions turn yellow.

Remove from flame. Add 2 tablespoons flour and 2 teaspoons curry powder, mixing well. Add the lamb gradually, then cooked tomatoes, 3 cups of hot water and 3 bouillon cubes.

Bring liquid to a boil. Remove scum. Reduce flame. Simmer, covered, over lowest flame until meat is tender about 1 1-2 to 2 hours. Stir occasionally to keep meat from sticking to bottom of pan. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Clay Issues To Berlin People Rallying Call

New York, May 25 (AP) — Heckled and picketed, Gen. Lucius D. Clay cast aside a prepared speech at an anti-communist "hold 'Berlin'" rally Wednesday night and issued a rallying call to the people of the German capital and a warning to the Russians.

To the people of Berlin, the former United States military governor in Germany said:

"You have within yourselves the moral strength to stop any attempted uprising among the youths of Germany which would destroy freedom. Be patient—the time of freedom is rising."

A lone heckler disrupted the rally and caused brief disorder after police had routed 1,000 chanting pickets outside town hall.

A loud murmur arose from the audience as a young man began heckling Clay because he had cut the prison sentences of the notorious Ilse Koch of Buchenwald.

Many men and women jumped to their feet, some of them shouting.

Referring to the noisy, sign-carrying pickets who had been dispersed outside the hall, Clay said:

"Having lived through the blockade of Berlin, I am not dismayed by a blockade in New York."

Heckled on Koch Penalty

Just as Clay was about to begin his speech, the heckler questioned him on the issue of Mrs. Koch, wife of the commandant of the nazi extermination camp at Buchenwald.

"How about Ilse Koch and human skin?" the heckler demanded of Clay, who had cut the woman's penalty to four years after a military court had imposed a life sentence for her part in Buchenwald atrocities.

Mrs. Koch was accused of making lampshades from the skin of prisoners. German authorities now are holding her in an asylum for mental examination prior to facing trial by a German court on war crimes charges.

Clay told the heckler:

"I am never unwilling to give anybody his viewpoint on any question, but I also believe that any fair-minded American is willing to listen."

The unidentified heckler, who told reporters: "I'm just a plain GI," was not arrested. "This is a nazi meeting," he charged.

The rally was sponsored by Common Cause Incorporated, an anti-communist organization. The pickets, who chanted phrases often used by the Reds, represented the American Jewish Labor council and other groups.

Several Houses Are Destroyed By Forest Fire

By The Canadian Press

Hot, early summer weather Wednesday fanned small but dangerous forest fires in Quebec, Ontario and New Brunswick over a wide area.

Several dwellings in New Brunswick's Gloucester county, 25 miles south of Bathurst, were destroyed by a forest fire Tuesday. The fire still was burning Wednesday and it was believed that only rain could extinguish it.

A second New Brunswick fire is burning in Restigouche county and has burned out an area more than one mile square.

The Quebec Lands and Forest Department reported about 70 forest and bush fires and 800 rangers hard at work fighting them. Worst blazes are in the Temiskaming, Noranda, Lake St. John, Notre Dame du Lac and Lacoche areas. Notre Dame du Lac is about seven miles from Cabano, mill town partially destroyed by fire May 9.

Only three Quebec blazes are listed as forest fires, one a blaze near Ste. Anne Des Monts in the Price Brothers timber limits, 30 miles south of Rimouski. The bush fires are not alarming and none is close to a dwelling or village.

Many areas of Quebec may be closed off to travel if present warm conditions continue.

In Ontario, the Lands and Forest Department reported two small bush fires in the Kirkland Lakes area were causing "concern."

About 60 other forest fires in the province are under control.

Several scattered settlements in Teck township may be threatened. Fifty mile workers have started sliding regular fire-fighting crews near Kirkland Lake.

The worst Ontario fires are 30 miles west of Sudbury in Dorrome township, about 18 miles northwest of Swastika in Black township. These cover 4,000 and 2,500 acres, respectively.

Lord Alexander Pays Tribute To Lord Wavell

Cochrane, May 25—(CP)—Viscount Alexander, one of Lord Wavell's closest friends, said Wednesday that he was "more sorry than I can possibly say" to hear of the death of the British war hero.

Lord Wavell, who died Wednesday in London, was a "most distinguished soldier," the governor-general said. He recalled the Field Marshal's "very fine" handling of poorly-equipped troops in Africa during the early part of the Second World War and his "brilliant" campaigning against the Italians.

The Governor-General who is visiting here, recalled also that Lord Wavell had visited at Government House, Ottawa, just a short time ago.

"It is particularly sad news to my wife and myself, as Lord Wavell was staying with us in Ottawa only a short time ago and we both thought that he was in such good form and looked well.

"The Field Marshal was a most distinguished soldier. His handling of inadequate and comparatively poorly-equipped troops in North Africa during the early part of the war was very fine, while his campaign against the Italian was brilliant.

"He will be greatly missed by

Reds to Ignore Plane Loss Blame

Moscow, May 23. (AP)—Pravda says today Russia will ignore, officially, Russians were solely responsible for the loss of an unarmed U.S. navy privateer plane and its crew of 10, which the State department said Russian fighters shot down over the open Baltic Sea April 8. It accused Russia of ignoring international responsibilities in dealing with the incident, and left the way open for possible future appeal to the United Nations.

The communist party newspaper says the American note was "a collection of unsupported declarations in sharp contradiction with exactly established facts which are know now to the entire world."

First Monastery in Canada Was Built for Ukrainians

Grimsby, Ont. (AP)—A Ukrainian orthodox monastery, first of its kind in Canada, is being constructed a mile west of here.

The historic Glen Hewitt homestead is undergoing renovation and alteration to form the monastery, a museum and, later, an 11 people's home and orphanage. Three rooms in the front of the spacious home have been set aside as public museum. Art treasures from the Ukraine, some of them smuggled out under the noses of Nazis and Russians, are on view here where they can show Canada an art from which has sprung a name for itself among best in the world.

Overseeing the decoration work is Prof. J. Kubarsky, famed as one of Europe's leading portrait painters. Formerly chief decorator of Kiev opera house for 12 years, barely escaped ahead of the Russians. After spending time in displaced persons' camps in Europe he managed to reach Canada.

With him he brought a number of his own paintings and has been busy here painting murals on the dining room and chapel walls.

Biblical Murals

In the chapel the murals are Biblical scenes. In the dining room they are familiar landmarks around Kiev, such as the monument to St. Vladimir and the Lavra Theatre. Some he draws from memory, some from photos and drawings.

Among the relics is a painting depicting the bringing of Christ to Old Sinon, done on wood nearly 400 years ago. Another painting of St. Nicholas, in whose honor the monastery will be named, has both the robes and headdress fashioned from bronze, intricately worked into an elaborate costume. It is 200 years old.

Books covering the various services of the church, one 200 years old and one 300, are treasured relics, along with china and tapestries.

Also in the museum are elaborate ritual robes made in DP camps. A silver chalice and discus and star, used in celebrating mass, also were fashioned in the camps.

In the chapel, the Ikonostas—the partition fronting the altar—contains religious paintings prepared by artists in DP camps.

A skilled woodworker, John Iwanec, who spent two years in concentration camps, has fashioned frames and cases for the treasures. Other displaced persons help on the six acres of fruit and farmland.

May 21 is the dedication date. Archbishop Mistyslaw Skrypnyk of Winnipeg, head of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church in Canada, who has already visited the site, will officiate at the ceremony. More than 2,000 persons are expected to be present.

Pentecostal Rally Attracts Large Congregations at Holloway St. United Church

The fact that Jesus is the same yesterday, today and forever and that the power of the Holy Spirit works and moves in men's lives as in the days of the early Christian Church, was the keynote of the great Pentecostal rally which filled Holloway St. United Church on the 24th of May during the morning, afternoon and evening sessions.

Special speakers were the Reverend J. H. Blair of Hamilton, superintendent of the Western Ontario district and the Reverend Fred Parlee, evangelist, of St. John, New Brunswick. Other dignitaries present included Rev. W. B. Greenwood, of Peterborough, superintendent of Eastern Ontario; Rev. R. A. Bombay of Oshawa, president of section two and Rev. Gordon Mill of Kingston, presbyter of section two. Song leader was Rev. Tom Richardson of Vol and Rev. K. Combre of Gananoque. Pastors Laurie Price and Hope Smith of Belleville were in charge.

Music was provided by Rev. Gordon Mill, former concert pianist, who played medleys of well-known hymns, also Rev. and Mrs. Geo. Tonks singing and playing their own accompaniment on the guitar and mandolin. Rev. Fred Parlee presided at the organ console. The Frankford orchestra also played at the evening service.

Text From Nehemiah

Taking his text from the thirteenth chapter of Nehemiah, Rev. Parlee spoke of the "Unholy Alliance" that was made between Eliashib the high priest of Israel and Tobiah the Ammonite. "Nehemiah designed to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem," said the speaker, "but Sanballat the Horonite and Tobiah came to mock and to hinder him.

"That is always the way when-ever a person attempts anything for God," pointed out Mr. Parlee, "the mockers come on the scene and try to hinder. However, the enemies of Israel were not able to stop the work from the outside so they tried to attack from the inside. Tobiah got in the good graces of the priest until Nehemiah was away.

"The devil is a remarkable strategist," continued the evangelist. "If he can't attack on the outside he will insinuate himself on the inside. He tells people 'why be so narrow? Be modern and up-to-date and go with the crowd.'

"But the time came when Nehemiah returned and found that the high priest had made an unholy alliance. The vessels of the Lord, the frankincense, the meat offerings, the oil and the wine, had been removed to make a chamber for Tobiah. Nehemiah said "it grieved me sore; therefore I cast forth all the household stuff of Tobiah out of the chamber."

"It is a strange thing how some folk think they need a few influential people and some big shots in their church, and modern innovations in order to draw people," stated the preacher. "I am afraid that a great many of God's people are accumulating a lot of 'stuff' in their lives and assuming unto themselves a lot of weight that is holding them down.

Looking For New Ideas?

"Have you allowed some modern Tobiah to come in and try to nullify the Spirit of God? Are we looking for new ideas and worldly methods of putting over the message of God? I am of the opinion that the old-fashioned Gospel is able to adapt itself to every kind of people in every country of the world.

"We have got too much liberalism and temporizing these days. Let us clean up all the 'stuff' out of the chamber of the Lord and bring in the vessels and the corn and wine of the Spirit. Are you a vessel of the Lord? Do you stand for humility and holiness and principles? God needs holy vessels to show forth his glory. Separation unto God brings the blessing of God.

"We need the power and the glory and the unity daily with God. Our lives must prove that Jesus completely satisfies the heart. The thing I want most is what Peter and Paul had, rather than modern 'stuff'."

Need People with Faith

Rev. J. H. Blair, who was the speaker in the afternoon and evening, said that the young Belleville pastors, Rev. Hope Smith and Rev. Laurie Price, had vision and a faith in God. They had found that the present Grace Chapel was too small, so they had started construction of a large, beautiful new church on Dundas Street at the site of the former Old Folks' Home.

"What we need these days is people with faith in God and a vision for a lost and dying world," pointed out the Western Ontario superintendent. "Whenever you go by a good church you know that in years past a lot of blood and sweat and tears have gone into it.

"God wants us as Pentecostal people to preach the word of God, that there is power and cleansing and redemption in the blood of Jesus Christ. Some people think we are a two by four group. So we are—Acts 2:4, praise the Lord."

Must Launch into Deep

Rev. Mr. Blair referred to the fifth chapter of Luke, where it tells of Peter fishing all night in vain. Jesus told Peter to launch out into the deep and when he obeyed, the nets were so full that they broke and the two ships were so overloaded-they began to sink.

"There is a tendency of God's people to settle down in self-satisfaction," warned the speaker. "We get to a certain size, accomplish certain things, pay our debts, pay the pastor's salary, then sit back.

"But God wants us to launch out into the deep. Don't hang around the shore. God is as big as we see Him. If we believe in big things we get big things. If we believe in small things we get small thinks. Whatever God asks you to do, He takes the responsibility for it.

"Peter got a revelation of Jesus Christ that brought him to his knees, realizing his own unworthiness. That is what we need these days, a revelation of Jesus Christ that will bring men to their knees. The more you get from God, the smaller you feel.

"Are the days of revelation past? A thousand times no. I am not satisfied with simply marrying and burying and visiting people. I want to see the altars lined with people seeking God."

The speaker went on to say that the revelation Peter had, produced a consecrated life. He and his partners, James and John, were willing to leave all and follow Christ.

"We don't preach a cheap religion," concluded the speaker, "we preach the fullness of God. The main thing today is to move in the Spirit of God, not to be where we can be the most comfortable but where we can do the most good."

Greatest Thing is Faith

Speaking again at the evening service, Mr. Blair stated that the greatest thing in one's possession was not a bank account but faith in God. "What we need is simple child-like faith in God and a belief that: God is a rewarder of those who diligently seek Him.

"People want their own way today. That is why they are not seeking God. But God wants you to do what He wants. He wants obedience.

"Some folks wonder how they can know God. They say there are so many denominations and shades of belief that they don't know what to think. But if you get down on your knees in repentance and ask God to reveal Himself, He will. There is only one important thing in this short life and that is to make your calling and election sure in Christ Jesus. It takes a real man, and a real step, to make a decision for God."

Rev. W. B. Greenwood announced that twelve new churches would be built in the Eastern District during the past year and that he looked for great progress in the future.

During the day's sessions an appeal was made for contributions toward the new Belleville church. A generous response was made when over $4,200.00 was pledged, a good percentage of this being received in cash.

BENNY RIDES AGAIN

Indianapolis, May 25—(AP)—Buck Benny rode again Wednesday streaking down the main stretch of the Indianapolis motor speedway at a reckless 15 miles an hour.

The radio comedian's pace was just 100 miles too slow to qualify the 1904 Maxwell for the 500-mile race next Tuesday, however. He and his Maxwell driver, Rochester, got the black flag to get off the track.

Brandenburg Gate Now Art Victim Of Cold War

Berlin, May 25 (AP)—Brandenburg Gate, dividing east and west Berlin, is an artistic victim of the cold war.

The tall Grecian columns a mile eastward let the Soviet-British sector boundary were formerly topped by a quadriga, a bronze statue of a goddess driving a four-horse chariot.

Half destroyed in wartime, the statue was taken down early this year by the east Berlin government to be melted as scrap.

Eastern officials said they intended to cast a duplicate and restore Brandenburg Gate to its old glory. But complications were admitted today.

The original plaster form of the quadriga in west Berlin, It's valued at 12,000 west marks (approximately $3,000) and the Soviet sector of the city doesn't have funds to buy it.

The cost of bronze and labor for the new quadriga is estimated at more than 100,000 west marks (about $24,000) which the east government also lacks.

Western cultural experts said there was no likelihood of restoring Brandenburg Gate "until it belongs to all Berlin instead of the Russians."

POWER PROJECT NOT DEAD ISSUE

Cornwall, May 23 — (CP) — Transport Minister Chevrier said here Monday night the dominion government will not stand in the way of power development of the St. Lawrence River even though the United States fails to approve the seaway project. Mr. Chevrier said the power phase of the project was far from a dead issue as far as the Canadian government was concerned.

15 Serious Fires In Northern Bush Under Control

Toronto, May 25—(CP)—Fifteen serious fires in Northern Ontario bushland have been brought under control, the Provincial Lands Department said today.

T. E. Mackey, chief of the government's forest protection branch, reported "considerable improvement" in the fire situation during the last 24 hours.

The 15 worst blazes, concentrated around Sudbury, Kirkland Lake and Temiskaming, were out of control Monday. Mr. Mackey said all now have been extinguished or are "being held."

"Lack of green growth has contributed to the spread of the fires in the dead leaves," he said, "but there is nothing alarming in the situation today. In some cases, the fires have burned out to the edge of the road and have been checked. All fires were pretty well out or under control Monday night."

Provincial Rangers previously had brought 60 other fires under control.

Most serious of the 15 worst fires swept 4,000 acres of timber in Lorne township, near Sudbury. Shipments of pumps, hose and tents were flown into the area from North Bay.

In the nick of time, this little Manitoba family fled as flood waters swamped their home in St. Norbert. Now homeless and sheltering with another family in a tiny two-room frame cottage on higher ground, they will require aid from the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund before normal life can begin for them again. Complete with pets, the evacuated Dubuc children are shown above with their parents as follows: Michelle, 4; Denis, 7, holding his pet hamster; Nicole, 2½; Gerard, 8 months, and Teddy the dog. Cheques should be made payable to the Fund in Winnipeg.

'Homeward Borne' Is Serious Novel By Noted Actress

By W. G. ROGERS

New York (AP)—"To write a novel," says Ruth Chatterton, "I need a theme that makes me angry."

The stage and screen star hit on such a theme, or the theme hit her, a couple of years ago, and she did her first novel, "Homeward Borne", published by Simon and Schuster.

How did she write it? At a typewriter, writing and rewriting. It isn't the only thing which, starting from scratch, she has learned by doing. For instance, she started from less than scratch to study French. As she explains it, her sole equipment was: "I adored France." She also had a good ear. Out of that came, eventually, with the aid of a dictionary, the translations of three plays.

But some things still foil her, among them, spelling . . . "you should talk to my editor about my spelling," she says with a whoop of laughter.

A friend, overhearing an interviewer ask her about hobbies, jokingly suggested that one of hers was conversation. But she is not a chatter-chatter-Chatterton; she talks about her novel as professionally as if she had been at this kind of work all her life.

She is not the sort of person usually interviewed by this arts reporter, whose best tends to be cluttered with flat-heeled, stringy-haired woman authors who chew pencils. Miss Chatterton has dark wavy hair, a quick smile and an air that belongs to the stage rather than the study.

A Mature Book

Yet her novel is not what might be expected from theatre people. Recent examples of troupers' books have been flighty pieces loaded for laughs. "Homeward Borne" is serious, mature and worthwhile, and the idea of it will anger you as much as it angered the author.

The idea came out of her wartime work for a free Palestine. The story concerns a Vermont woman who adopts an 11-year-old refugee. The child is believed to be a Jew, and the badgered woman runs into diculties with her family, her friends, and the ill-used, wretched boy himself. Miss Chatterton intended originally to make it a play. When she told the story to a novelist friend, he said there was too much for a play, and that it should be a novel.

"How do you write a novel?" she asked, and he answered: Just the way you told it.

She has appeared in many plays, among them "The Rainbow", "Daddy Long Legs", "The Little Minister". The last of her movies done in this country was "Dodsworth" in 1936.

People are dickering to turn the novel into a film. Miss Chatterton declares she will not have any flutter-eyed blonde in the role of Pax Lyttleton, who adopts the child; and instead of some slick Hollywood youngster for the boy, she wants a bewildered, conniving, suspicious refugee, a real one.

CONSTABLE LEAPS INTO CAB OF STOLEN TRAILER

Toronto, May 23 — (CP) — A constable's leap from a police cruiser into the cab of a stolen transport trailer early today climaxed a wild four-mile highway chase. Constable Frank Green hailed the truck and arrested the driver, Donald Murray, 23, on a charge of truck theft.

Kingston, May 25 — (CP) — Booming cannon and rolling drums will mark the 118th anniversary of old Fort Henry tomorrow. A ceremonial flag-raising will launch another tourist season—one expected to break all records.

Last year some 90,000 visitors walked about the ramparts of the massive structure; officials expect more than 100,000 this year.

Fort Henry, built in the 1830s to defend Canada against attack by the United States, was restored as a historic site in 1938. During the Second World War it served as a prisoner-of-war camp.

Parties Going To Keep Religion Out of Politics

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 25.—(CP)— Britain's main political parties are going to try to keep religion out of politics.

Labor and Conservative spokesmen agreed in the House of Commons that financial provisions for church schools should remain as outlined in the 1944 Education Act.

Education Minister George Tomlinson and R. A. Butler, chief Conservative spokesman, said the 1944 act, which Butler piloted through parliament as education minister in the coalition government, represents the highest common factor of agreement on church schools.

"I would deplore," Tomlinson said, "any attempt to bring this issue into the hurly-burly of the ordinary political platform."

Church schools were a minor issue in Britain's February general election campaign. Some Roman Catholic spokesman said the 1944 act represents a death sentence for Catholic schools.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, said recently that those responsible for church schools are required to satisfy the education ministry that they will be able to fulfil future obligations for building in blankcheque fashion.

The Church of England, he said, is asked to undertake to meet "an unascertainable liability at an unascertainable time."

Under the act, "aided" voluntary schools must pay half the cost of external repairs and improvements to buildings in return for the right to appoint teachers to give denominational instruction.

Since 1944 building costs have risen sharply. Some schools say they will be unable to bear the load, and will have to revert to the plains of a "controlled" school, with an agreed syllabus and denominational instruction confined to not more than two periods a week.

The Independent Times said editorially it would be "unfortunate" if the demands of the education act resulted in a reduction of the number of church schools.

Oldest U.S.S.R. City Said Found In Armenia

Moscow, May 25 (AP)—Russian archaeologists say they have found "the oldest city in the U.S.S.R." in important new discoveries made in Armenia.

This ancient city is located not far from Erevan on the left bank of the Zanga river. It was a fortress of the Urartu Kingdom, which was named Teishevaini and dates back to the middle of the Seventh Century, B.C.

The city, they said, was the Urartu kingdom's stronghold in the trans-Caucasus region. Occupying an important position, it had trade ties with the Scythians of the North Caucasus, with the peoples of what is now Iran, with northern India and Asia Minor, with Egypt, Cyprus and southern Greece.

Historic Relics Wonderful Magnets for Tourists

By WILLIAM ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 25.—(CP)—Historic relics are at once a source of revenue and of affection to increasingly dollar-conscious Britain. They're wonderful magnets for tourists; and they appeal to the country's consciousness of its past.

The two-fold appreciation is shared by Britons of whatever political outlook, and the efforts to save souvenirs, however bulky or apparently unmanageable, continue under successive governments.

Preservation of Henry VIII's wine cellar has been a cherished task of first a Conservative, then a coalition and finally a Labor government, which is just about to finish a job begun 10 years ago.

Built 400 years ago as part of the basement —though still on ground level—of the Palace of Whitehall, it originally belonged to Cardinal Wolsey and later to King Henry.

Outside it resembles nothing more than an oversize brick shed, 82 feet long, 32 wide and 23 feet six inches deep.

But inside it is famous for its vaultings and columns, so famous that an outcry arose when it was proposed in 1938 to demolish it to make way for a modern block of office buildings in Whitehall. Its exterior couldn't harmonize with the proposed block and it would have used up valuable space. So it was proposed to sink it 20 feet.

Put On Rollers

The work is almost done. The building was ribbed with steel, put on rollers and—a quarter of an inch at a time—it was moved 43 feet.

Then the orginal site was excavated, underpinnings sunk and the building first moved back at the same rate, then lowered 1-16th of an inch at a time to its new foundation.

No piece of Dresden China was more carefully handled. When finally the cellar came to rest the cracks in its structure were no more serious than before, and even the rubble stonework of its interior, which could have crumbled into powder if jarred, was preserved.

The 900-ton masterpiece was preserved, and visitors to Britain may see it "by special arrangement" by going through the new block when complete.

Monkey Mistakes Dynamite Caps For Candy, Dies

On a shelf was a fruit jar containing dynamite caps.

"He was always a great hand at petty thievery," Jerry's keeper, Jojo the clown, said. "I guess the caps looked like a new kind of candy to him."

Jerry picked one out and took a bite.

Attendants heard the explosion and found the monkey's body in the shed.

Big Three Agree to Supply Arms and War Materials To Countries of Middle East

Washington, May 25 (AP) — Britain, the United States and France have agreed to supply arms to the countries of the Middle East.

Under the agreement, announced simultaneously in the three Western capitals, arms and war materials may be sent to the Arab States and Israel—but only under assurances that "the buyer state does not intend to undertake any act of aggression against another state."

The agreement was reached during the recent three-power meeting in London. It marks an end to a long-standing differences among these countries over the question of furnishing weapons to military forces recently engaged in bitter fighting over the partition of Palestine.

Although there was reference in the announcement of the strategic importance of the Middle East in the East-West cold war, officials here were of the opinion the Big-Three foreign ministers had this strongly in mind.

Their joint statement said the three governments recognized that the Arab States and Israel "need to maintain a certain level of armed forces for the purpose of insuring their internal security, their self-defence and to permit them to play their due part in the defence of the whole area." Act at Once

Should any country receiving arms under the arrangement show signs of preparing to "violate borders or truce lines," the statement said the three powers would "act at once" through the United Nations "to prevent such violation."

The decision on arms shipments to effect approved Britain's pact policy of shipping arms to Egypt and Hashemite Jordan, countries with which it has agreements for military aid.

Israel appealed to the United States for heavy American supplies such as tanks, artillery and jet planes. The United States delayed its answer pending a discussion of joint policy with France and Britain.

While the decision now reached could pave the way for American arms aid to Israel, military leaders here have been more concerned at the weakened state of the Arab forces than at the condition of the victorious Israeli Army.

Tribute is Paid To Eight Victims Of Fatality

River Valley, Ont., May 25 — (CP) — The residents of this modern Ontario village, and people from all over the province, gathered in the Parish Hall Wednesday to pay tribute to the eight victims of Monday morning's level crossing tragedy at nearby Vernon.

The large crowd forced a change in plans and the service in the church was moved to the Town's community centre. The auditorium was filled with people and a large crowd stood outside in silence while the service was being held.

The flower-covered caskets had remained in the community centre since Tuesday afternoon. All through the night, friends and relatives called to kneel and pray in front of the biers.

The tiny white caskets in the centre of the auditorium contained the bodies of Hector Cayen, Robert Forget, Denise Forget and Gerald Guay. They were flanked by the larger gray caskets of Mrs. Edouard Cayen, Mrs. Edouard Forget, Julleen Cormier and Herve Cayen.

The heart-broken members of three families knelt in the church as hundreds of relatives and friends joined them in prayer.

Following the church ceremony, a mile-long cortege of cars escorted the eight bodies to the little cemetery on the edge of the hill. And there, the eight people who had started on a fishing trip together, and had died together, were buried together.

Alberta Senator Thinks House of Commons in Need Of Reform Not the Senate

Ottawa, May 25 (CP)—A 72-year-old Liberal senator from Alberta thinks that if there's any reform necessary in Canada's parliamentary system, the House of Commons—not the senate—is the place to start.

Senator G. H. Ross of Calgary gave notice in the upper chamber Wednesday of a motion to set up a joint parliamentary committee to study constitutional changes affecting the Commons. These would include the suggestion of "the better functioning" of that chamber.

Senator Ross' notice brought evident delight from senators who for years have been hearing talk of the necessity of senate reform.

Only the day before many of them sat in the Commons' gallery and witnessed a day-long debate on a motion to launch a broad study of proposed changes in the functions of the historic senate.

Today members of the Commons will have an opportunity to witness the same kind of debate —in reverse. Senator Ross is due to speak on his motion this afternoon.

The motion of the Calgary senator, who has been a member of the chamber since 1945, said it was "expedient" to appoint a joint committee to study "constitutional changes affecting the house of Commons, including the better functioning of the House of Commons in our parliamentary system, with a view to formulating proposals to be presented to the government for discussion at the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial constitutional conference."

The motion said such a committee should have the power to call persons, papers and records, to sit while the House is sitting and to report from time to time".

It asked that a message be sent to the Commons "requesting that the House to unite with the senate for the above purpose and to select, if the House of Commons deems it advisable, some of its members to act on the proposed joint committee."

The motion was almost identical—in reverse—to one sponsored in the Commons Tuesday by George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader. This asked for a joint parliamentary committee to study broadly suggested reforms for the 102-member upper chamber, reforms that have been suggested for years but never acted upon.

Mr. Drew reviewed attempts at senate reform through the past years and said there was "widespread criticism" of the present constitution of the senate. M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said his party long had advocated outright abolition of the senate.

P.M. Rejects Motion

Prime Minister St. Laurent rejected the motion on two counts. First, he said, adoption would mean the defeat of the government since he regarded it—despite Mr. Drew's denial—as a motion of non-confidence in his administration.

Second, it was an invitation to "break faith" with the provinces, invited to the conference to discuss means of amending the constitution, not to discuss constitutional amendments as such.

C.C.F. social credit spokesman endorsed the motion, moved by a government minister to go into supply.

Introducing his motion, Mr. Drew reported a "growing demand" that the Senate be made an effective part of a bo-cameral parliamentary system "attuned to the needs of a vigorous and expanding democracy." All of the various proposals advanced in the Senate reform should be studied.

Mr. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, whose group long has advocated abolition of the Senate, said he felt the upper chamber was "archaic" and "undemocratic." Its representation across the country was "absolutely unfair" and its functions invited the people's "ridicule" rather than their respect.

John Blackmore (SC — Lethbridge) extended the support of the social credit group and said he believed there was a feeling in the country that the Senate was not giving the people the results they had a right to expect from it.

View Sceptically Lie's View on Result of Visit

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, May 25 — (AP) — United States state department officials view with skepticism the report from U.N. secretary-general Trygve Lie, after a visit to Moscow, that constructive negotiations to end the cold war are possible.

Though U.S. officials seem convinced that at this time and for the foreseeable future neither side in the cold war is prepared to make the concrete concessions or compromises which in themselves might lead to a true east-west settlement.

Moreover, they believe that, barring a major change on one side or the other, a top level international meeting would bring little if any relief from the pressent tensions of political conflict.

Little is known, even in inner government circles here, of Prime Minister Stalin's reaction to Lie's peacemaking proposals during the two met 10 days ago. According to diplomatic reports, as yet officially unconfirmed to the U.S. government by Lie, Stalin was non-committal, although as Lie has indicated publicly, he did not close the door to future developments.

Those who left Britain by plane Wednesday after issuing a statement in Washington next week to see President Truman and State Secretary Dean Acheson.

In his statement Lie said: I return to the headquarters of the United Nations with the feeling that the possibility of constructive negotiations exists."

He mentioned that the results of his exchanges of views cannot be judged, however, "except as they become apparent during the next two or three months."

Rossellini Weds Bergman by Proxy In Mexico

Rome, May 25—(AP)—Roberto Rossellini and Ingrid Bergman, whose widely-publicized romance was climaxed last February by the birth of a son, were married by proxy Wednesday in Juarez, Mexico.

The nuptials in Alemtia broke through legal delays that had blocked the couple's path in the United States, Sweden and Italy since February when Miss Bergman quit her film career to bear Roberto Rossellini's son.

The ceremony was performed at 1 P.M. EDT by Judge Raul Orozco in Juarez, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso, Tex. The judge said Javier Alvarez, a Juarez lawyer, signed the register for Rossellini and Arturo Gomez Trevino, another Juarez lawyer, signed for Miss Bergman. Two witnesses were present.

The much-heralded romance of the until-then U.S. movie queen and the Italian director blossomed while Rossellini and Miss Bergman were filming the movie "Stromboli" on a volcanic isle in the Mediterranean.

Rossellini said the marriage would be registered officially in Rome. He said it would be recognized here and his lawyers advised him it also would be recognized in Miss Bergman's native Sweden.

In the opinion of one person at least the marriage has no legal status. He is Dr. Petey Lindstrom, Miss Bergman's first husband, from whom Miss Bergman obtained a Mexican divorce Feb. 10—a week after the birth of her baby.

In Hollywood, a spokesman for Lindstrom said the proxy marriage will make no difference in the physician's plans to divorce Miss Bergman in the California courts.

Lindstrom has never recognized the validity of Miss Bergman's Mexican divorce.

Thousands Attend Festivities As Victoria Day Celebrated In Fine Weather Across Canada

By The Canadian Press

The weatherman was on his best behaviour as Canadians celebrated Victoria Day Wednesday.

Sports events and other celebrations attracted great crowds across the country, with an unofficial estimate of 35,000 huge at various sports in Toronto. There is crowd of 22,000 was at the Woodbine race track, with 11,500 at the International League baseball game, another 11,500 at the International soccer match, 4,000 at a rugby football meeting and big crowds at many other parks.

Railways and motor coach lines reported a heavy traffic load as holiday-goers returned home Wednesday night.

The fine weather was believed a factor in the low accident toll. Only three accidental deaths had been reported in eastern Canada this morning. Jackie Davis, 7, was killed by a truck in Toronto and seven-year-old Roy Steeves was drowned while fishing at Caledonia, Ont. At St. Felix de Valois, Que., Roger Frederick, 23, was killed when his motorcycle hit a truck.

Only minor injuries apparently resulted from the fireworks displays, large and small, that dotted the land Wednesday night. At Dresden, Ont., a wayward rocket dropped into a $150 stockpile of fireworks and the helter-skelter shooting sent the crowd scattering. One person, Landi Johnson, suffered minor burns.

Only Two Arrests

Fire director Raymond Pare at Montreal said extra precautions helped in keeping order. There included posting firemen at each alarm box in Cathtlntown and the Point St. Charles districts. Reinforced police squads patrolled the streets. Only two arrests were reported.

Parliament sat as usual at Ottawa and so did the railway commission. Provincial government employees and the provincial courts worked as usual at Quebec and French-speaking schools remained open.

But for thousands of others the holiday was a chance for relaxation and they enjoyed it. The flooded-out town of Emerson, on the border between Manitoba and the United States, had an impromptu powerboat race down the main street late in the day and most of Emerson turned out for a sing-song in the school-house Wednesday night.

At Winnipeg, most of the flood-fighting pomplace spent the day catching up on their rest as the waters slowly receded.

Field Marshal Wavell Dies In Nursing Home

London, May 25—(CP)—Field Marshal Earl Wavell, who in the dark days of 1940-41 led his famed "Desert Rats" to the first allied land victories in the Second World War, died in a nursing home Wednesday. He was 67.

His death came as a shock to his friends in many countries who held him in high respect both as a Field General and person.

In Cochrane, Ont., Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada and one of Lord Wavell's closest friends, said: "I am more sorry than I can possibly say."

Lord Alexander was Lord Wavell's smashing of Marshal Rudolfo Graziani's Italian army in North Africa in 1940-41 was a "brilliant" campaign, executed with poorly-equipped troops.

GETS MESSAGE OUT BY HORSE

Tokyo, May 25—(AP) — This Japanese war prisoner found a way to get a message out of Siberia. He fitted it off in a bottle, and it arrived.

It was signed T. Takai: "I'm now in Siberia. The only thing I want to do before dying is to see the face of my wife and child."

MacLeod Clan Folk Foregather In Isle of Skye

By TOM CHALMERS

Runnvoean Island of Skye, Scotland, May 25—(Reuters)—MacLeods from all over the world, at the call of their hereditary woman clan chief, Flora MacLeod of MacLeod, are back in the Isle of Skye for a week of junketing.

Their meeting place is the old stronghold of Dunvegan Castle, with its legends of fairy pipers and fairy flags, which brought doom or salvation to the ancient clan.

Skye—is the island of the Scottish Hebrides where bonnie Prince Charlie took refuge after his disastrous attempt to regain the throone of England and Scotland for the Stuarts.

It is the home of the MacLeods, whose fame and arrogance are enshrined in the famous story of precedence, where the chief, taking his seat at the conference table, declared:

"The seat does not matter—where ever MacLeod sits is the top of the table."

It is also said without undue satire that MacLeods had a boat of their own in Noah's flood.

One of the eldest of these here for Skye Week is Malcolm A. MacLeod, 3 making his first visit to Scotland after 50 years in New Zealand. He is 72.

Norman G. MacLeod of Calgary handed to the clan's chief a message from the mayor of Calgary saying the bearer was the son of the commander of the Royal C.M.P. post, Fort MacLeod.

Scots in Nova Scotia sent a telegram of greetings.

MacLeods from Canada, United States, New Zealand, South Africa, India and other corners of the earth were entertained to tea on the ramparts of Dunvegan by Flora herself in kilt and plaid—her piper playing MacCrimmon tunes from the castle keep.

By Alice Ross Colver

"When, Alicia?"

"I'll let you know."

"Soon," he urged. "Soon!"

"Hey, Sue!"

Susan turned, her books under her arm, and saw her roommate, Esther, pelting after her down the hall. She was little and cute and sly, and as curious as a magpie. If there were few secrets from anyone in the school, anyway, so Esther waited for her.

"Is he coming?" Esther asked breathlessly.

Susan nodded. "At least, I think so," she added. "Alicia promised faithfully she'd give him the message right away."

"Ooh!" Esther's saucer eyes rounded still more. "Aren't you excited?"

Susan nodded again. Yes, she was excited. That was exactly the word. She was a seething cauldron of excitement. For Gerry was coming. She had done what he asked—waited until he had tried anything for himself, but now had given up. Now he was ready to turn to her and the thought of helping him made her sweet swell with a strange, tender, old jubilance.

"Are you going to meet him?" Esther went on. "How will you get down to the station? How do you know what he's coming?"

"I think," Susan stopped as a soul came to her—down the long hall again. "That is it!" she called.

"Telephone! Long distance!"

"Oh!" Her eyes flew in warm relief to Esther, to whom questions she would now get the answer. For that was Gerry calling her, telling her when he would start. It must be.

"Take my books for me, will you? Tell them at the Study Hall that I'll come as soon as I can. Explain for me. Don't let them mark me late." Already she was running, her long hair flying, her white socks flashing.

But it was not Gerry. To her smothered, breathless "Hello?" came back, not Gerry's voice, but Timothy's. Tim! What on earth did he want?

"Oh, hello Tim." She could not quite conceal her disappointment.

"Hello, Sue. How's everything?"

"Everything's all right. Every thing's fine, of course. Why? What's on your mind?"

"Nothing. Nothing much, I mean. I just wondered because I had an idea if you weren't busy that is—that I might come up and see you. How about it?"

"Uh! Oh, Tim! Not this weekend. I'm sorry. But this weekend's full."

"All dated up, are you?"

"Yes, you are . . ." But she could tell Tim. She could always tell Tim anything. "You see, Gerry's coming."

"Oh."

Sue's pretty discouraged, Tim. He doesn't think he's going to get together at I.M.B. He was awfully appreciative of your trying to help him there. And so am I. I meant to write you but I haven't had time to.

"That's all right. When is he coming?"

"Well, I don't know exactly. I thought you might be be, telling me. But I imagine tomorrow. He must have gotten my message tonight before supper. I told him to come either tonight or tomorrow."

"Isn't this rather a drastic idea? What's the point, exactly?"

"He's going to meet Dr. Morgan, Tim. Dr. Morgan's going to help him."

"I see." There was a tiny pause. "No plans beyond that?"

"No. How could there be?"

"Well, all right! That's all I wanted to know."

"You mean . . ."

"I mean I just wanted to remind you of what you promised me. Not to do anything in a hurry. And to let me know first. Remember?"

"I haven't thought of such a thing!"

"Okay. But you can't blame me for wondering."

"Tim."

"What?"

"Is that what you called up for?"

"Yes."

"But how did you know?"

"How did I know what?"

"That Gerry was coming up here!"

"Oh! Why, Alicia stopped in at the Fergusons and your folks were there. So I heard it."

"And who told you, if you please?"

"Don't be mad, Sue."

"I am mad. All this checking up and spying." Her voice was shaking. "Who told you, Tim?"

"Your grandmother."

"Some day my grandmother's going to make me go off the deep end. Just what she doesn't want to have happen! You might tell her that, Tim. Then you make your report to her."

"I'm not making any report to her."

"You're not! Why not? Aren't you her little stool pigeon?"

"I'm nobody's stool pigeon."

"For Peter's sake! Then why did you bother?"

"I could be anxious on my own account, couldn't I? I could—There was a sudden silence. Then Tim spoke again in a voice that was not his voice at all. Yet she knew it was. "I could love you, too, couldn't I, Susan?"

She was so astonished she could not think what to say. She could only take the receiver down from her ear and stare at it in blank silence as if he might, in the next moment, materialize from it.

"Sue, are you still there?"

"Y—yes, I'm here."

"Did you hear me?"

"Yes, I heard you."

"Does it seem so queer?"

"Yes . . . I . . ."

"I know what it seems!" She pulled herself together. "Yes. It does seem queer." Her voice was suddenly loud and there was a sob in it, but she went on, talking still louder so that the wobble wouldn't sound. "It seems awfully queer that any man would say a thing like that to a girl over the telephone!"

"I know, Sue, but . . ."

She did not wait to hear the rest. With a sharp indrawn breath she hung up.

Gerry sat in the train that was taking him up to Susan's school. He sat motionless, not reading the newspaper he had bought, just staring out at the white landscape, his face closed and still and dark. But underneath this mask his thoughts and emotions were stirring tumultuously with fear.

He felt rebellious and chagrined and a little foolish at going up to a girl's school for the help he could not manage to secure for himself. He was not unwillingly, and the closer he drew to his destination, the more unwilling he felt—and the more like an inadequate or unregenerate boy who had been summoned to the principal's office.

This headmaster. There must be something wacky about him. He was probably one of those unworldly simpletons who think the job he was in because he was unable to meet the conditions he would have to meet in the world beyond his campus. Unbalanced, that, what he was. Gerry spoke in painful degree. Yes. Otherwise he wouldn't be running this kind of place he was running. Frankly, Gerry didn't look for much from him.

It was only desperation that had made him decide to come, plus the desire to see Susan again. He had to see her—especially after holding Alicia in his arms for that short moment last night. He had to hold Susan the same way and that he would remember, and never forget, the difference between them.

"Fairlawns! Fairlawns!"

The next station was his. The train was just crawling and now it was almost an hour late. Soon it would be dark. Would Susan meet him? He doubted it. Besides, he hadn't let her know. It had been impossible to send a wire until he reached the city, and then there hadn't been time.

But she was there. And she came running like the wind down the platform toward him in her red ski suit and clumsy storm boots with her dark hair winging back from her lighted face, and Gerry knew a glory across the sky behind her.

"Gerry! Oh, Gerry!"

In her voice he heard her clear joy, and, putting down his overnight bag, he caught her to him, regardless of onlookers, his own spirits vaunting suddenly upward.

"Susan." He kissed her on the mouth but she pushed quickly away from him in sharp dismay.

"Oh, please! No, Gerry. I mean, not here."

"Yes; Here." He kissed her mouth again, his arm iron around her shoulders. "And here. And here." His lips swept her face.

She pulled free in a surging embarrassment. "Really, no," she repeated, in a sudden dignity. "Dr. Morgan. Or the people on the platform who might be watching. Or Alicia. All were unimportant. There was only Susan and the bright and beautiful promise of everything she held for him.

"How did you know enough to meet this train?" he asked, as they moved along together.

"I'm a mind reader." She laughed, throwing her head back so that she could look up at his dark, sparkling, handsome face. "No, I'll tell you. It's the only one. They've taken off the other until traveling is better. You had to come now or not until tomorrow. And I was sure you'd come today, since you didn't last night."

"There wasn't time last night. Alicia didn't get down to the inn till late."

She stepped before a long blue car where a big man was standing with his back considerately toward them, and her voice became at once eager and respectful and triumphant. "Dr. Morgan. This is Gerry. He came! I knew he would."

The man turned and Gerry received his strong, warm handclasp, his eyes going in some surprise over the figure before him. For this person in stout British tweeds and high boots, with grey eyes keen and humorous under a visored cap, and a clean-shaven jaw, might, Gerry thought, have been anything but the headmaster of a girls' school. He might have been a successful business man. Or a lawyer. Or a retired gentleman-farmer. He was certainly an exfootball player with that build.

"Hello, Gerry. Glad you didn't disappoint us."

Gerry. Us.

Gerry smiled, all his warm, gay charm rushing out in response to that welcome. He said, "How do you do, sir? Thank you, sir. I'm very glad to be here myself."

In a moment he and Susan were in the back seat, and Dr. Morgan at the wheel was taking them to his house.

Gerry was not to face a campus dining room full of strange, curious, chattering girls. He was not to dine alone in the dreary old barracks of a hotel in town. He was to be the personal honored guest of the headmaster.

Afterward, Gerry tried to recall in detail all of that two-day visit. But only certain hours and moments of it stood out.

Strength is Slashed

Yesterday, Victoria Bay, Brig. R. E. A. Morton, the army's flood-control commander, announced at his daily press conference that the three services' flood-fighting strength of 8,000 was being slashed. By next weekend, he said, the number would be down to about 3,000.

And last night his headquarters announced that high-level parts of St. Boniface and some Winnipeg suburbs, previously listed as dangerous or flooded, now are safe. The statement reduced by about one-quarter the greater Winnipeg area previously shown as "flooded" on headquarters' official map.

Inclusion of several streets behind the gigantic Lyndal Drive dike in St. Boniface, clearly indicated that all danger of a break is ended.

Urged to Remain Away

Risk of mass evacuation from the twin cities of St. Boniface and Winnipeg, quitted voluntarily by almost 100,000 of their normal 350,000 population, has diminished and is continuing to diminish as the water recedes," Brig. Morton said.

But he urged evacuees "to remain away for the present until their homes are no longer endangered or until they have been cleared by health authorities."

Those whose homes were not flooded were asked to consider "the circumstances, inconveniences and schooling problems before returning."

It was a plea to keep orderly the return flow of evacuees. The army has no power to keep them away. The only real control is authority vested in medical officials to quarantine houses not fit for habitation.

Drops Six Inches Daily

The river's drop—now at the rate of about six inches a day—has raised the number returning to the city from a trickle to a stream.

The river's drop has been faster than was expected by army and civilian engineers. The feeling was that all the water in three river-formed lakes in southern Manitoba and North Dakota would have to drain slowly through Lake Winnipeg.

At a press conference yesterday officials recognized that the lakes, which once covered 1,000 square miles, were fast being split into numberless catch basins. Much water was trapped. With warm weather it would evaporate or sink into the land. The flow through Winnipeg was therefore reduced.

In greater Winnipeg itself—heart of the fight against the ravenous river—the hectic battle of the last two weeks has become merely a careful watch over defences against a vanquished but treacherous opponent.

Civilian volunteers no longer crowded buses heading for the dikes. Radio stations reported progress of the $10,000,000 Manitoba Flood Relief fund—approaching $1,500,000—instead of blaring warnings, frenzied calls and personal messages for refugees.

Open Bomb Areas

The feeling of urgency had left the city.

Opening of some evacuated areas to occupancy was the prelude to a long-term scheme to announce the other safe areas as they were inspected. The list of places to which evacuees may return was expected to grow daily, as water receded and the organized cleaning of muck-filled homes progresses.

Besides a score or so of blocks behind Lyndale dike, an area near St. Boniface Cathedral was declared open. It stretches from Notre Dame Ave. on the north, south between Tibault and St. Joseph Streets, across Provencher Street between Aulneau and Des Meurons Streets to Dollard on the south. It thins out along Des Meurons to swell again and take in an area south of Dubuc and Highfield Streets to the river.

All of St. Vital municipality, south of St. Boniface on the same side of the river, was still uninhabitable.

Sizeable chunks of Fort Garry and Riverview, east of the Red, were declared open, and other areas marked as flooded on the headquarters master map were narrowed greatly.

GARSON RALLIES

Still Investigating

In the opening stages, Mr. Garson disclosed that police still are investigating some of 150 persons listed in the notebook which also included Dr. Klaus Fuchs, the British atomic spy.

In the flood debate, Mr. Garson said the Manitoba government had been seriously maligded by many persons who did not have a full knowledge of the facts.

When he visited Winnipeg last weekend, he said, he had expected, in view of press criticism, to hear a "blast" against the government from municipal authorities. However, the municipalities had no complaints. They had been warned by provincial authorities six months ago and had made preparations against the flooding.

Some Made Plans

Farmers, as a result of experience gained in the 1948 flood, made plans to evacuate stock, grain and equipment, although it must be conceded that no amount of preparation could cope with a flood of the magnitude that eventually developed, Mr. Garson said.

Still, he added, "that doesn't sound like lack of foresight."

The Manitoba government had spent $1,750,000 in getting pumps, sandbags and other equipment to the municipalities. In addition they were given engineering advice and, in farming areas, hay was provided for stranded cattle and assistance given in the evacuation and care of 9,000 head of cattle.

A committee was formed to see that seed and grain will be available to farmers and a large supply of transplants had been purchased to help truck gardeners. Plans also were made to recondition farm machinery.

EXPERTS LISTS

Replying to David Croll (L.—Toronto Spadina) who asked how the "pay-as-you-go" system might affect the cost of living, Mr. Sharp replied that a tax on wages and salaries would undoubtedly have an effect on production costs and that would be passed on to the consumer.

The question was raised as to whether the money could be obtained through a sales tax and Mr. Sharp agreed with several committee members that revenue-raising by means of a sales tax would be "harder on the lower income groups."

Costs Would Mount

He also agreed that if the attempt was made to collect the revenue needed through special levies on personal income and by increasing the scope of income tax the collection costs would mount rapidly in cases where the government tried to collect from self-employed persons.

These, he said, included about 650,000 farmers and 350,000 other workers who kept their own accounts.

As the committee continued its investigation into various suggestions for providing Canada with an adequate old-age pensions scheme, the announcement was made that after next Wednesday sittings will be held in Ottawa, that is in private.

At those private sessions, it is indicated the members will really get down to the tough problem of just what kind of a pension scheme it should propose for the government's consideration.

Two proposals which may be considered by the committee as ways of bettering the present system are:

1. A pension of $40 a month for all those 70 and over without a means test, that is they will be able to obtain the pension whether they have sufficient means to maintain themselves or not.

2. A pension of $40 a month for all those 65 and over with the current means test still a hurdle to be passed.

Either one of these proposals would expand the number of people who can apply for the pension. Under current regulations, a person must bear reached the age of 70 and have passed a means test before he can obtain the pension, which in most provinces, is $40 a month.

WILL INVESTIGATE DEATH

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., May 25 —(CP)—An inspector of the Ontario Provincial Police Criminal Investigation Branch has been called in to investigate the death of Emil Yakawschuk, 40, whose body was found floating in the St. Mary's River near here Wednesday.

Yakawschuk, an employee of the Algoma Central Railway, apparently had been dead about 10 days. An autopsy has been ordered.

Shortage of Feed Cuts April Milk Production

Toronto, May 23 — (CP) — Shortage of feed on many Ontario farms cut milk production in April, the Agriculture Department said in its monthly dairy report. Many farmers considered hay and clover and concentrates too expensive to warrant heavy feeding.

As a result, 5.7 per cent less whole milk was used in manufacture of creamery butter and cheddar cheese than during April 1949 — 184,501,300 pounds, as against 195,637,900.

Creameries reported their output of creamery butter down 4.6 per cent at 5,974,400 pounds, compared with 6,262,000 pounds. Cheddar cheese output of 3,996,-000 pounds was 1.2 per cent lower than the 4,391,400 pounds turned out in the comparable month last year.

Advises Forces To Investigate Theft Thru Tax

Ottawa, May 25 (CP)—Clare Gillis (CCF-Cape Breton South) Wednesday advised the armed forces to investigate the "theft" through income tax provisions regarding pension fund monies paid to widows of some permanent force officers.

Mr. Gillis told the Commons defence committee a case had been brought to his attention recently in which the widow of a permanent force officer had been assessed about $650 tax after the army had paid over to her $3,000 that her husband had paid into a pension fund.

"I think the services should get after this sort of thing. When it comes to stealing money from a widow, it's pretty bad."

Passenger-Car Speed Race Produces Thrills

Kemptville, Ont., May 25 (CP) —Thrills, spills and even a hero was produced Wednesday as Kemptville launched its first passenger-car speed race.

Joe Walker of Hawkesbury, Ont., produced the major thrill when his car rolled over into the track fence in the first race and part of the 2,000 spectators crowd scattered for safety. Walker was not injured.

Hero was Frank O'Hearn of Ottawa, a spectator, who disregarded his own safety to dash into a cloud of car steam to pull a child out of the way when a car radiator cap blew at the end of a fast heat.

O'Hearn was scalded about the neck and shoulders. The unidentified youngster escaped uninjured.

John Archambault of Cornwall, Ont., emerged winner of the open class racing. He placed first in the initial heat, second in the fifth and took another first in the seventh.

Toronto Will Challenge Court's Ruling

Toronto, May 25 (CP) — This city will challenge a magistrate's decision that his by-laws governing Sunday operation of gasoline stations is beyond the powers of city council.

It will take the case to the Ontario Court of Appeals next month as a test of the validity of all municipal by-laws dealing with Sunday operation of gasoline stations.

Meanwhile, it has instructed its solicitor to prepare a new by-law to control Sunday gasoline sale.

A Toronto magistrate recently ruled that the existing by-law went beyond council's powers by delegating to the police chief certain authority that rightfully belonged only to council.

The case involved the magistrate after police charged all 16 Joy Oil Company station in Toronto for remaining open on Sunday. Previously, only one service station in each of certain areas of the city had permission to operate on Sundays.

Howe, Hagerman Wins Opener 10-6 Against Alemite

An eight-run fifth inning gave Howe and Hagerman a 10-6 win over Stewart-Warner last evening at the Alemite Field as the Commercial Softball League commenced operations for another year.

Pre-game ceremonies saw His Worship Mayor H. J. Allin, tee off on Commercial League president Don Lee's second pitch while chairman of the Parks Board, Harry Rollins, crouched behind the plate ready to look after any of president Lee's more tricky pitches.

The free-wheeling league curtain raiser was a nifty bit of softball with the exception of the fifth inning when a potent Howe and Hagerman lineup solved the shoots of Marty Halloran for eight runs on nine hits and three errors.

Howe and Hagerman opened the scoring in the top of the first frame as Rollins took second on an error to the right fielder with one man out. Wardhaugh popped out to second and cleanup man Mallory slashed out a double to centre field to score Rollins. Spafford went down second to first to end the inning.

Evened Score

Stewart-Warner evened the score in their end of the first with John Ronsky riding home on the first of Art Empey's two doubles. The Alemite crew took the lead in the second inning with Vern Carr, who had doubled coming home on an error to the second baseman as Claude Carr took first. Alemite poured over three more tallies in the third frame, singles by Lunberg, Booth and Vern Carr, and a double by Art Empey accounting for all the runs.

Ed Donovan, leading off the fourth inning closed the gap a little for Howe and Hagerman by clouting a home run to deep right field.

The roof fell in on the luckless Alemite nine in the fifth. Rollins led off with a single and came all the way home on a single by Harry Wardhaugh and a three-base error by the left fielder. Mallory singled and took second as Spafford got a life on a poor throw by Ronsky. Ed Donovan, Don Adams, Bob Hunter and Mike Tomasa connected, for singles as the runs flooded across the plate. Stan Arno popped out to the catcher, and Rollins up for his second time skied out to the pitcher. Wardhaugh singled and went to third on Mallory's double but Spafford popped out to the pitcher to end the inning leaving Wardhaugh and Mallory stranded.

Takes Over on Mound

Bob Hunter took over the mound from starter Al Adams in the fourth and set down the Stewart-Warner squad with two hits and no runs through the eighth inning. Alf Rowbotham leading off the ninth, poled out a home run to left field for Stewart Warner's last run. With one out pinch-hitter Moon connected for a single and was thrown out trying to take third on Lefore's single to centre field. Reid batting for Booth, went down second to first to end the game.

Al Adams started on the mound for Howe and Hagerman and in three innings gave up nine hits and no walks for five runs. Bob Hunter went the rest of the way limiting the Alemite crew to five hits, two walks, and one run to share the win.

Marty Halloran went all the way for Stewart-Warner giving up two walks, striking out four, and being nicked for thirteen hits and the ball game.

Best at the plate for Howe and Hagerman was cleanup man Mallory with two doubles and two singles in five trips. Lunberg with two for four and Rowbotham with a homer and a single in five tries led the Alemite slugfest.

Waterloo Tigers Riding High In Intercounty

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers are using sack to shoot down the opposition in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League—Yourak and Kyasnak.

Joe Yourak racked up his third straight victory of the season Wednesday night as the Tigers beat Galt Terriers 5-3 but the story could have been different if Manager Alex Kyasnak hadn't shown his team how to hit. He banged out a double and three singles in five trips to the plate to wreck an otherwise first rate exhibition by Galt pitcher Jim Bagby. Earlier, the Tigers trounced Kitchener Legionnaires 7-3. Yesterday's other league games played on the holiday Guelph Maples lost 10-8 to Brantford and 7-3 to Stratford to extend their losing streak to seven straight and dig themselves even deeper into the league cellar. Kitchener stopped Brantford 5-3 and St. Thomas Legion moved ahead of London into third place by dropping London 4-3 in a close game.

In games Tuesday Waterloo beat Brantford Red Sox 2-1 while Galt won 5-4 from Stratford Nationals.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NO COMPLAINTS!

The only representative of the genus homo sapiens, who does not agree that the Glorious 24th lived up to for some the celebrating adjective, is the bloke who received pay as a professional rainmaker.

It was one of those days, kiddies, that you read about, but seldom see, for the Twenty-Fourth of May, the Queen's Birthday is usually synonymous with rain, or worse depending on the mood of Mr. and Mrs. Joe, and the various sports organizations have planned.

Even sports writers and the radio chappies whose business it is to collect data regarding the one hundred and one "opening days" went about the job with a smile albeit beneath a few extra hours of toil beneath the midnight oil (fuel, that is).

Ole Sol apparently went into confab with his pal, the weather man early in the morning, for the day broke with threatening overcast skies, Ole Sol apparently won the argument for around mid-morning he scattered the overhead fuzzy-wuzzies, and the rest of the day was as rare as its traditional sister in June.

ROUND-UP

New let's see what happened in the sports world hereabouts. Tuesday night, as you probably know, our Belleville Cubs tossed up a disastrous first inning and lost out 8-3 to the Point Anne team in a Belleville District Baseball League opener . . .

While on the baseball subject, the Easton - led Batawa COB Elkers trekked to Smith's Falls and handed the champs of Kenny Lee's adopted home a 3-1 setback in a league game . . . Gordie Moffitt, ace hurler, limited the Falls Braves to seven hits on Saturday afternoon at Exhibition Park with game time scheduled for 2 o'clock . . . Opening ceremonies, and the Cubs were on hand . . .

Up at Alemite Park last night, the Commercial Softball League kicked off officially and our Mr. Upper tells us there were a few surprises . . . Harry Cy Bonney's crew down at the Six Fifth against the Stewart-Warner clan when suddenly the fireworks display commenced outside and the R. and R. bludgeons exploded with an eight-run barrage . . . Which goes to show that you can't altogether believe what you see on paper . . .

The Bay of Quinte Country Club golf links attracted the local Bobby Jones and Babe Didrickzons in goodly numbers . . . A mixed two-ball foursome was played by a good 100 and Mrs. Goodwin and Mrs. Alice Stuart won the honors and prizes . . . The links were busy all day with the golfing addicts and the "19th hole" was busy, too, the evening the ball-chasing boys and gals got together socially for bridge and dancing, and as usual a splendid time was had by all and sundry . . . The course and greens were in condition par excellence thanks to the efforts of one Charlie Pidsley, club pro . . .

Back to baseball for the moment. The Picton McFarlane Shoe Co. fell us that is the new moniker, adopted an Alphanse-Gaston attitude yesterday afternoon when their hometown baseballers tried after playing heads-up baseball for eight and one - half innings and having the game in the well - known container, blew up, through the medium of shortstop Keith MacDonald and practically handed the game to the Kingston Diamonds by a score of 7-5 . . . It was a heartbreaking game for Wally Dyer. Picton hurler who fashioned a splendid hurling effort while his mates were coming through with clutch-hitting . . . MacDonald committed two costly errors in the bottom of the ninth that paved the way to the unexpected Kingston victory . . .

Pyrotechnics with Peter wound up the day's activities and any grey-thatched oldster who says he doesn't enjoy the flashing, noisy displays wouldn't go across the road to see Barnum and Bailey's Circus, if his ticket carried a half-interest in the show . . . All over town, the oldsters and youngsters revelled in a glittering display of explosive color . . . The sky over the city was bright at times with rockets, while the staccato of the smaller crackers and the fiery beauty of the lawn displays rounded out a typical "Twenty-fourth" evening. It was a grand day, and a grand holiday.

MEET THE CUBS!

Henceforth Speedy St. Louis' Belleville baseball-ers will be known by a name somewhat more dignified than the "Orphans". They have been dubbed the "Cubs", egad, and any resemblance to the Chicago team of that name will be purely accidental. However, the master-minds of the squad pow-wowing following Tuesday night's game and after considering several names decided "Cubs" was it, and that's that. And no wise cracks from you local Jack Bennys who may suddenly discover that the name almost rhymes with "lugs". Or the more gentle hearts and friendly people of a poetic nature, taking into consideration the youth of most of the players, who might suggest "Babe" . . .

Tuesday night's opener was a fair exhibition of early-season baseball. Unfortunately for the Cubs, Bobby Bunton's sturdy right flipper was playing high jinks and Robert could not get the ball in the right place. When he did the Point Anners leaned on it. And when he didn't, they walked to first. However, the veteran hurlers came to the rescue, especially "Cuffer" Noakes, who fashioned a neat three-hit effort over a five-inning rout to check the Pointers. The run scored off him was the result of two successive errors. The veteran "stick" Barrigar, whose arm improved as the ole' took over in the seventh and the Ox Pointers went down like the police station telephone number.

With a shake-up or two, the Cubs should be able to take care of themselves. They didn't show much power with the bludgeon, but then, Johnny Green was in top-form for an early game, letting them down with four clouts. Neilson, a newcomer, has played baseball before and in his Belleville debut caught the eyes of the fans. He cracked out a double along the first-base foul line and fielded flawlessly. Ed's do.

Point Anne has a balanced team and should be heard from during the season. They had a romp in that first innings, but they did not appear too potent with the hickory against the Noakes shoots, or those of Barrigar. However they too, have some youngsters who will improve with the season, and their veterans do not weaken the, squad. Johnny Green was master of the situation on the mound especially in the pinches, although they were scarce. Manager Bobby Strahan has a team that should give the best of them a battle after they settle down for the season's grind.

Bunton Blows a Costly Seven, Johnny Green Tosses A Four And Pt. Anne Claws Cubs 8-3

Johnny Green's fine four-hit hurling plus a disastrous first innings when they spotted Point Anne seven runs in the first innings sent the Belleville Cubs' entry in the District Baseball League down to an 8-3 defeat in the opening game of the season at Exhibition Grounds Tuesday night.

Bobby Bunton blew higher than a kite in his first mound attempt and was removed in favor of "Cuffer" Noakes after he had yielded seven runs for four hits with two out. Bunton whiffed two and walked four in the terrible first and he wasn't helped any by a costly error.

The "Cuffer" handcuffed the Point Anners for the next five and one-third innings giving up three hits for one run, striking out seven and issuing one walk. He was removed for pinch-hitter Cook in the sixth. The veteran Chuck Barrigar took over and retired the side, but two, then when the umpires called the game at the end of the seventh.

Green in Rarg Form

Johnny Green was in rare form for the visiting crew. His formidable baseball for three chukkers, and the only time he was seriously battered came in the sixth when Galbraith and Elliott rapped out successive doubles for two of the Belleville runs. Nelson got the third hit, a two-bager off him in the fourth and galloped home on a passed ball for the first home-town counter.

Soules scratched out a single in the seventh but went out when he was trapped attempting to steal second. Green retired the side after issuing a walk.

The bottom fell out of the game practically before it started as far as Belleville was concerned. Bunton's shoots proved no mystery to the Point batters. Hits by Bradshaw, M. Green and Gilmour coupled with an error and a walk sent five runs across the plate before a man was retired. Bunton settled down and struck out the next two batters, but three successive walks sent him to the showers after two more runs had crossed the plate.

Two errors in the third innings accounted for the remaining Point Anne run and from that point they were held in check by the Belleville hurlers.

Opening Ceremonies

Murney Green was the big gun for the Cubs with three singles. Buchanan rapped out a double and along with Bradshaw and Strahan accounting for the remaining pair.

Opening ceremonies featured the game with Alderman Claude Tice representing the city, doing a "Newhouser." Vice President of the team Charles A. Mott, attempted a DiMaggio role (and rapped out a clean single) with Parks Commissioner Jack Devins, behind the plate.

International Soccer Team Defeats Ontario

(By The Canadian Press)

The English International Soccer team defeated Ontario All Stars 4-1 in an exhibition game at Toronto Wednesday before a crowd of about 10,000 at the Canadian National Exhibition Sports Field. The tourists led 2-0 at half time on goals by Charlie Vaughan centre-forward with the English first division Charlton Athletic.

There never was much doubt about the outcome after Vaughan's first goal five minutes after the opening whistle on passes from the incomparable Stanley Matthews, dubbed "Mr. Soccer," and Ted Walsworight, inside right with the Everton first-division team. His second goal was scored at the 21-minute mark, again on passes from Walsworight and Matthews.

Jackie Sewell, inside-right with Notts County, made it 3-0 after 31 minutes of play and Walsworight scored the clincher with only seven minutes to go. Ontario's goal was netted by Andy Ptolomey of Toronto St. Andrews spearhead of the Ontario attack, after 77 minutes of play.

J. W. Brown, president of the Canadian Standard Bred Horse Society, Wednesday criticized the Ontario Government for banning night harness racing in the Toronto area. Brown is vice-president of the Thorncliffe Raceway in Toronto which opens a 42-day harness meet July 3. He told the crowd at the opening of the spring harness meet at New Hamburg that action of Premier Frost in ruling against night harness racing "is the greatest instance of class discrimination by the leader of any Canadian government since confederation."

Brown urged harness horsemen to support Independent Conservative candidates in the next Ontario election as a form of protest.

The Toronto Allison Stable's four-year-old colt Escador won the King Edward Gold Cup feature of Wednesday's racing at Toronto's Woodbine Park before a Victoria Holiday crowd of 23,000. Escador covered the 1 1-16 miles of the handicap for three-year-olds and up in 1.45 4-5, with Montana Sandz second and Rogue third in the seven-horse field. The race carried $3,000 added. The winner paid $4.85 for a $2 winning ticket.

American-bred Prince Simon still ruled the favorite Wednesday night to win the Epsom Derby Saturday. The big colt owned by William Woodward, New York banker, was quoted at 2 to 1 in ex-allover at the Victoria Club, headquarters of British bookmakers. French-owned L'Amiral eased off from 13 to 2 to 7 to 1. The Aga Khan's Khorassan shortened from 100 to 7 to 100 to 8.

Dick Wakefield, New York Yankees' non-playing outfielder, Wednesday threatened legal action unless the New York Club pays him for the time he was suspended. Right now Wakefield is collecting about $100 a day from the Yankees for not playing.

Wakefield was traded to Chicago but declined to report until the White Sox restored a pay cut given him by the Yankees. The deal was called off.

The United States Trotting Association was sued today for $1,200,000 damages by track operator who alleged in his action that the association has established "a complete monopoly" over harness horse racing. John J. Carlo, a Buffalo lawyer who is part owner of harness tracks in Illinois, Ohio and Michigan, filed the suits in Federal court against the United States Trotting Association and its affiliate, the Canadian National Trotting Association.

Tommy Henrich, New York Yankee first-baseman, will leave the club in Philadelphia Friday for an examination in Baltimore by Dr. George Bennett of Johns Hopkins Hospital. Manager Casey Stengel had hoped to use the veteran today against Detroit Tigers but Henrich was unable to put any pressure on his lame left knee.

Three-Man Race for Home Plate Adds New Chapter to Dodgers Screwy Shenanigans

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Everything happens in Brooklyn! It's corny but it's true.

Remember the day three men wound up on third base? The fly ball that bounced off Babe Herman's head?

The 1950 Dodgers Wednesday night added the novelty of a three-man Ronan chariot race from third base to home plate that wound up an "interference" double play by Chicago Cubs. Sounds complicated? Well, it is.

The confusion in the eighth inning was wonderful to behold. It practically cleared the wrestlers off the television screens.

Jackie Robinson was on third. Gil Hodges on second. Eddie Mikata hit a ball to third base. That set it up.

The third baseman threw to the plate and catcher Mickey Owen chased Robinson back to third. When Robby arrived he found Gil Hodges also standing on the bag. Owen touched both men and the umpire ruled Hodges out.

Then Mikata headed for second base and Owen threw to Wayne Terwilliger. Although he had been ruled out, Hodges started for the plate in a three-man race with Robinson and Owen.

Down the stretch they came. Robinson was first, Hodges second and Owen third. But the finish was not critical. An objection was lodged. The relay from Terwilliger was taken by first baseman Phil Cavarretta who tagged Robinson sliding across the plate. Plate umpire Art Gore ruled Robinson out because Hodges interfered.

The official scoring was a double play—third baseman Bob Ramazotti to Owen to Terwilliger to Cavarretta.

Oh yes, the score. - Brooklyn won 8-1 with Dan Bankhead going the route for the first time.

Those Philadelphia Phils stuck right on the Dodgers' heels by blasting six runs in the eighth inning for a 6-3 edge over Pittsburgh. Dick Sisler's three-run homer off Murry Dickson started the big uprising.

Rookie in Relief Role

Rookie Lloyd Boyer pitched fine relief ball for St. Louis Cardinals after lefty Max Lanier had to leave the game due to a pain in his shoulder. The Lanier-Boyer team shut out New York Giants, 3-0, with four hits. Monte Kennedy pitched a steady five-hit game but hits by Red Schoendienst and Stan Musial and a steal of home by Stan Musial cost him the game.

Warren Spahn turned in his best effort of the season, a three-hitter for Boston against Cincinnati 4-1.

Boston Red Sox clung to an early lead to down St. Louis Browns, 7-5, for Mel Parnell's fifth victory.

Gene Bearden, the 1948 World Series hero but a flop ever since, bounced back with a fine relief job for Cleveland against Washington. Replacing Early Wynn in the second, Bearden allowed only four hits in 7 1-3 innings for a 2-1 decision over Joe Haynes.

Chicago White Sox came behind to topple Philadelphia 10-7. The Sox have won only eight games—the last three in a row. Nine Sox batters went to the plate in the eighth and five scored.

Red Wings Spoil Victoria Day For the Leafs

(By The Associated Press)

Tom La Sorda and Ronnie Lee are two of the smallest pitchers on the staff of Montreal Royals but they are tough customers when the chips are down.

Both La Sorda and Lee are lefthanders. La Sorda stands five feet-nine, Lee 5-foot-11.

Wednesday the two pitched the International League's pace-setting Royals to a Victoria Day double triumph over Buffalo Bisons. Lee got credit for the 8-5 first-game victory and La Sorda went the route in the 7-2 nightcap triumph.

Lee relieved starter Clyde King after the Bisons clouted King for four runs in the fourth inning. Lee held the Bisons to two hits and one run until he bowed out for a pinch - hitter during Royals' six-run rally in the eighth that gave the Royals the decision. The victory was Lee's fourth against one loss.

La Sorda stopped the Bisons on five hits in posting his second victory without a loss in the game. The Royal scored in every inning but the first.

Spoiled Holiday

Rochester Red Wings spoiled Victoria Day for Toronto Maple Leafs by taking two games 8-0 and 5-2.

Tom Poholsky blanked the Leafs on five singles in the opener while his mates collected nine hits, two each by Ed Mierkowicz, Steve Dilko and Hal Price.

Bill Reeder limited the Leafs to three singles in the second game. The Red Wings collected five hits but made the most of rookie Paul Stuffel's wildness to win. Russ Derry chipped in with his seventh home run.

Baltimore Orioles edged Jersey City Giants 2-0 behind the brilliant four-hit pitching of Bob Kuzava. Kuzava allowed only two hits until the ninth when Fred Gerken and Marvin Blaylock hit successive singles.

Babe Barna, with a home run and single drove in both Baltimore runs.

The scheduled game between Syracuse and Springfield was rained out.

Oshawa Keglers Take Over Lead In Open Tourney

Motor City Bowling Spitfires of Oshawa took over the leadership in the teams department of the Central Ontario Open Bowling Tournament at the Bowl-O-Drome Wednesday evening when they topped the score held-to date by the Belleville Golf team.

B. Rose with 341 and J. Ross with 787 were the best single games bowled so far in the tournament. In the doubles there was no change in the standing over the holiday.

Errors in Ninth Pave Way for Picton Defeat

Clutch-hitting and pitching that practically sailed away the game for the Picton McFarland Athletics was offset by two ninth-inning glaring errors that paved the way for the ultimate 7-5 defeat by the Kingston Disneys in a COBL fixture in Picton yesterday afternoon.

It was the second straight defeat for the Picton team. They dropped a 14-4 decision at the hands of their holiday conquerors on Tuesday night.

Keith MacDonald, Picton shortstop, was the "goat" of the game. Going into the last half of the ninth with a 5-3 lead, MacDonald committed two consecutive wild-throw errors, that should have been easy outs. Mulholland Kingston shortstop, drove out a scorching single that tied the score then Levandosky and Ferguson drove out consecutive hits coupled with an error by Jackie Wardhaugh—and the ball-game was over.

Deserved Better Fate

Frank Dyer, Picton hurler, deserved a better fate. The rangy righthander flung a masterful job of hurling coming through on three occasions with clutch-pitching that pulled his team out of the hole. He aided his own cause with two hits besides striking out eight and walking two. He was touched for eleven hits, three of them doubles.

The Picton bats shone in the pinches. On the short end of a 3-2 score in the sixth, Carson, Picton catcher, rapped out a stinging double that scored Dyer who had left a safety and Peery who had walked in front of the one-run lead. Carson later galloped home on Levandosky's bad throw to make the score 5-3.

Dyer turned back the Kingston team from then on— and then came the ninth inning debacle.

Eric Rank went the route for Kingston on the mound and was nicked for nine hits. He struck out four and walked a pair. He was a beaten pitcher until the fateful ninth when the game was practically handed to him.

Levandosky, Kingston shortstop, rapped out four hits for five making his record nine out of ten for the COBL season. Ferguson came through with a double and two singles.

Dick Fitzpatrick, Picton second baseman banged out a pair of clouts as did Dyer. Jackie Wardhaugh, third baseman got a single. Carson, Picton catcher, got a double and single, the double being a payoff clout that scored two runs.

The teams:

Score:

skimy hand should not hold the bidding of a 4 slam. Only ugh big cards are needed for k controls and timing. The depends on having enough ying (taking) tricks. Take a deal like this:

FRANKFORD Bachelors Defeat Benedicts 21-10 In Softball Game

Frankford—The married men of Frankford must be slowing up. At least that is the impression one would get after witnessing Monday night's Married and Single Men's ball game at the park. A strong single men's team doubled the score, in beating the husbands 21-10 in a game that packed all the thrills and strategy of a World Series game. Bates and Chase shared the pitching for the married men, with Will Rankin, Gib Gilmour and Herb Rankin toiling for the winners.

Besides twirling a fair game for the married men, Chase led his teammates at the plate with a single, double and a home run. Will Rankin and Bob Morgan were the sluggers for the single men.

If he continues at his present pace "Bombes" Babcock, handsome right fielder of the married men, should steal at least a hundred bases in the current season. On one occasion, in stolid little third base Monday night he laid both the third baseman and his own coach low, then continued in to score. Berscht plays a classy infield position, but some double crossing fifth columnist sawed about six inches off the end of his bat.

Herb Rankin was a strong feature in the single men's team, although he finds it difficult to bend over and field ground balls.

All in all, it was a real night of fun for a grand bunch of guys who are really playing in the spirit in which sport was intended. For the spectators, it was a good night of entertainment. Everyone will be looking forward to the next meeting of these two rivals, as they battle for possession of the Oscar Farrar Trophy.

Electric Girls Lose To Kingston Lassies

Ann McGrath and P. Coleman did mound duty for the Northerns and turned in fine jobs. J. Allen were the route for the homesters.

Kay Mills slammed out three hits for the Belleville team with Sequin, Day, Robson and Reeves getting two each. Coleman hit a home run in the eighth. B. Little with two was top hitter for the Kingston club.

Little Benny's Note Book

I woke up wondering what time it was and I heard pop talking dddown in the kitchen, and I thawt, G, I wonder it's a nile and he's still up, or whether it's morning and he's up alreddy!

And I called out, Hay pop, what time is it? and pop came running upstairs and lit the lite in my room, saying, For Pete sake what goes on here? You should of been asleep hours ago, he said.

Maybe I was, pop, but maybe I woke up again, I said, and pop said, But why should you? Does anything seem to be wrong? I meen do you feel all rite? he said.

Well, I'm not quite sure, I said, how what does that meen, you're not quite sure?

It meens I dont feel exactly perfect, but I can quite explain it, I said, and pop said, I must say I dont quite like the sound of that explination.

And he put his hand on my forehead, saying, Well I'm relieved to report that you're not burning up with fever.

I'm not shivering with the chills, either, pop, I can tell you that mutch, I said, and pop said, Good, thanks for your cooperation. How do you feel inside? Any panes? he said.

No sir, nuthing herts in there, I said, G, it must be something pop, to make me feel this way, but darn if I know what, I said. Come on now, think hard and tell me just how you feel, or you'll have me really worried. Shall I cell your mother? he said.

No sir, I know now, pop, I said, I just realized what's a matter. I'm thersty, I said, and pop said. Ye gods, thank goodness.

Why, pop, what's so good about that? I said, and pop said, Never mind.

Pacific Islands' Phosphate Output at Pre-War Rate

Auckland, N.Z. (CP)—One of the biggest post-war reconstruction jobs of the Pacific has reached an advanced stage on the phosphate islands of Nauru and Ocean which lie just below the equator.

These islands, vital to the great farming industries of Australia and New Zealand, were wrecked during the war by German raiders, Japanese bombers, and lastly by American bombers and capital ships during the Japanese occupation.

Their output now is equal to the highest pre-war record and may exceed that figure during the present year.

Phosphates from Nauru and Ocean islands are the largest source of fertilizer for pastures in the intensive dairying industries of the two southern dominions. They became a major target for the enemy in the war. Two German raiders sank shipping off the islands and smashed the great loading equipment. Then the Japanese captured the islands and occupied them for the later years of the war.

When the Japanese were driven out after three years it was clear that on Nauru the phosphate settlement would need rebuilding completely, and that the phosphate quarrying, transport, drying and storage plant would have to be entirely replanned.

Tram lines had been ripped up by the enemy, sleepers being used for firewood and rails cut into short lengths for building machine gun posts and pill boxes. Overhead cableway towers had been toppled over and cut into lengths for building underground shelters. Costly conveyor belting had been cut up and used for floor covering.

Engineers of the British Phosphate Commission, which controls the island, found ways of using much of the damaged steelwork, as replacements were extremely scarce in the immediate post-war years. They also re-designed the plant to make greater use of mechanical handling, thus speeding up production.

Greatest engineering feature of Nauru was the huge loading cableway which jutted out to sea, enabling vessels lying offshore to be loaded with phosphate at high speed. Although badly damaged by enemy action, the vital parts of the cableway miraculously escaped destruction. Repairs took a long time but engineers improved the loading rate in the process.

Before the war phosphate could be shipped at the rate of 350 tons an hour into vessel's hold. Now it can be delivered at 1,000 tons an hour. As a result a 10-000-ton vessel can be fully loaded in a day, a major consideration in the open Nauru roadstead where maximum use must be made of periods of calm weather.

The plant at Ocean Island before the war was not as extensive as at Nauru and it was less severely damaged. At both islands, however, much reconstruction work still remains to be done, but eventually it will result in much more efficient operation and a larger output than before the war.

Bible of the Mutiny Ship Bounty Returns to Pitcairn

Honolulu (CP)—The Bible of the Bounty—that English ship of mutiny fame—has returned to Pitcairn Island after 111 years.

A letter from the south Pacific island of Pitcairn to Mrs. Chester E. Frowe of Honolulu said the Bible arrived there in March. It started the search for the holy book in 1941.

When the men of the Bounty mutinied in 1789 and put their captain, William Blight, adrift in a boat, the Bible remained aboard. It was taken to the mutineers' Pitcairn Island shores.

Mrs. Frowe read in 1941 that the Bounty Bible converted mutineer Alexander Smith and turned the Pitcairn Islanders to a religious life. She wrote to Pitcairn and found the Bible no longer was there.

It wasn't until 1945 that the answer came back, because a war had intervened and communications with Pitcairn are slow anyway. The reply said no one knew where it was.

Mrs. Frowe wrote friends in New England about the missing Bible. In 1946 Mrs. J. Francis Saunders found the Bounty Bible, dusty and stained, in the attic of the Connecticut Historical Society in Hartford.

Letters Tell Story

Letters inside the Bible said it had been brought to New England by a traveller who visited Pitcairn in 1859.

Mrs. Frowe wrote to Pitcairn that the Bible had been found, and the islanders requested the historical society to return it.

The Bible was sent to England in January of 1949, where the worn pages were patched up and the book recovered in leather. It then was given to Lt.-Cdr. Dobbs of the Western Pacific High Commission in Fiji.

A letter to Mrs. Frowe said the Bible was presented Feb. 22 by Dobbs to Warren C. Christian, chief magistrate at Pitcairn. Special ceremonies were held welcoming the return of the Bounty Bible.

Fletcher Christian, a great-great-grandson of one of the mutineer leaders, told his fellow islanders:

"It was this book that saved us from growing up to be a band of heathens. It will make us all better people if we heed it today."

'Omnivorous' Jets Engulf Fowl, Metal

London (CP)—In the language of mechanics, the jet engine would seem to be "omnivorous".

Bench tests recently have seen dead birds, bits of metal, stones and even fairly large lumps of concrete "swallowed" by full-throated jets without the variation of a murmer.

The tests were ordered by manufacturers after a few accidents to jet-propelled craft were said to have followed "explosions" of their engines.

The theories offered were:

1. Birds or other material objects swept into the jets' intake stream had damaged their compressors or turbine blades.

2. The objects might so damage the engine as to affect its balance, causing it to disintegrate—on the principle of the unbalanced fly-wheel.

Aeronautical engineers, however, say that their tests indicate the jet can absorb likely air hazards without risk.

Turbines with centrafugal compressors can handle almost anything that are ordinarily presents, while those with axial-flow compressors, although more delicate, certainly do not "explode" when eliminating foreign bodies.

Champion Filleter Is Fishmonger May

Fishmongers from all over Britain showed their skill with the filleting knife in a recent competition here.

To win his title, Joe plain-cleaned a haddock, cleaned and cured seven whiting, cut a small plaice into two fillets, a big one into four, cleaned a third and prepared a large Dover sole for grilling—all in 14 minutes.

WENT WITH HOUSE

Callington, Cornwall, England (CP)—John Northam, 82, sold his cottage here when his wife died and went to live four miles away. But he still felt attached to the place. Now he has married the buyer, Mrs. Louisa Trask, 81, a widow. Says the bridegroom back in his old home: "I'm as happy as a king."

33 DIE IN FLAMING TROLLEY-GAS TRUCK CRASH

Western Powers Staff Strategic Spots in Berlin

Precautions Intensified Against Red Violence

Berlin, May 26 (CP)— All 13 trunk roads into Berlin were closed to normal traffic today to make way for 7,000 trucks and buses bringing thousands of blue-shirted east-German youths to the city for Sunday's monster communist youth rally.

Throughout East Berlin this morning gangs of workmen and young volunteers were unfurling flags and erecting huge "peace" placards in Unter Den Linden and other main streets and squares.

The Western Allies intensified their precautions against communist violence as 200,000 young East Germans jammed the city's Russian sector.

Precautions at Dawn

Communist officials appeared anxious to keep their "Free German Youth" out of the Allied sectors. Warning the demonstrators away from West Berlin, the Reds brought in 8,000 "People's Police" from the surrounding Russian zone to augment a force of 15,000 already on duty in east Berlin.

With 200,000 more young Germans expected en route to Berlin special Allied precautions went into effect at dawn today. Five British armored cars and 50 soldiers occupied a strategic post behind Brandenburg Gate, yards from Potsdamer Platz.

Tanks and West German police guarded the opposite side of the square.

Other potential trouble spots in mid-city also were staffed with an Allied military escort.

The total Allied force of 8,000 officers and men was on the alert. Three deserters from the communist "People's Police" in cluding a girl escaped into the western sector early today and appealed for political refuge. Two others had deserted Wednesday night and surrendered in the U.S. sector.

Reach Climax on Sunday

The youth demonstrations are scheduled to reach a climax Sunday in a six hour "peace and unity" parade. But with most news newspapers and officials warning the youths away from west Berlin, the Allied military expected competent Allied sources said the parade would be largely discarded earlier fears that the Whitsun demonstrations was disguise for a violent putsch against the West.

Army Pigeonholes 'If' Plan for 'Peg Evacuation

Winnipeg, May 26—(CP)—The army announced today it is pigeon-holing its "if" plan for general evacuation of greater Winnipeg because the Red River flood situation is so much improved.

The statement was made by Brig. R. E. A. Morton, the army's flood-control commander, at his daily press conference in the legislative building.

It came less than 24 hours after D. M. Stephens, top expert on the Red's behaviour and one of the firefighter's strategy, said in an interview that "greater Winnipeg now is out of danger as far as wholesale evacuation is concerned."

Simultaneously, Operation Rainbow— the rehabilitation proposals of a joint military-civilian committee—started at both ends of the Red River disaster area.

Brig. Morton said casually:

"The 'if' plan can now go on the shelf."

He said it will be kept in reserve for use in any future emergency. And he added that in his view Winnipeg city should have a "defence plan" of this nature.

Trapped Driver Screams for Help After Accident

Napanee, May 26—(CP)— An injured truck-driver screamed for help today as rescuers spent a frantic two hours to free him from the crushed cab of his transport.

Bob Johnston of Toronto suffered face cuts and undetermined other injuries when the big truck, carrying an 18-ton load of sugar, crashed into the railing of a 50-foot bridge across the Napanee River.

He was taken to hospital in Kingston, 30 miles east of here. Traffic on No. 2 highway—main road link between Toronto and Montreal—was held up for 3½ hours.

Johnston, a driver for Canada Packers of Toronto, was given a sedative by a doctor during the time he was trapped. A tow-truck chain was passed through the transport cab and around the twisted steering-wheel to free Johnston.

About 40 feet of steel railing was ripped away in the accident. Gasoline spilled, causing fear of fire, but firemen played water on the wrecked truck during the rescue.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 26 (CP)—Synopsis: Skies are cloudy over most northern regions and in western sections of Southern Ontario this morning. The weather over Northern Ontario is cool and showery but warm air still covers most southern regions, and a few light showers were reported over Southwestern Ontario and Quebec.

The cool air over Northern Ontario is advancing slowly southward and early this morning moved into Timmins and Kapuskasing. The progress of the cooler air is so slow that the shower activity along its leading edge has become very light and widely scattered.

The cooler air is expected to cover all regions of the province Saturday. Warmer air spreading across the prairies will bring rising temperatures to Northern Ontario Saturday.

Blames Crazy Things He Did on Drink, Says He Spent $6,000 on Taxi Fares

Los Angeles, May 26—(AP)— What would make a United States Navy officer, with 19 years of honorable service and combat behind him, rifle a safe, steal a car, and then blow it all in a wild drunken binge with a bankroll?

Lieut. Bascom B. Boaz is in jail today accused of just that. Broke, he is there in lieu of $10,000 bail awaiting preliminary hearing on charges of embezzlement of government funds from the U.S. Navy.

What made the 42-year-old officer do it?

"Domestic trouble started me drinking," he said, "and drinking magnifies all troubles. That kept on until I felt like I was cracking up."

Boaz said he drank little before the war but took it up strong after he separated from his wife in 1941.

"I did crazy things when I drank," he added.

His current trouble started last November when he got drunk in a Long Beach hotel and felt the urge to continue the binge.

"I went over to the ship (The Navy tanker Navasota) and went aboard. I had a right to. I was the commanding officer. I had the keys, utes later, drunk and with $19,- 201.50, mostly in small bills.

"I hailed a cab and told the driver to head north. I handed him $900, gave him $500 more on the way and told him that he would be could buy a television set for his wife.

"In Oakland, I gave him another $1,600 to go out and buy me an automobile. That's the last I ever saw of that guy."

Boaz estimated that he spent $6,000 of the cash on taxi fares. His reason was simple:

"I don't drive."

Fresno, Calif., he picked up Melinda Ann Rosemary Carter.

"She betrinded me," he says she never knew that I stole the money."

Miss Carter was with Boaz when Federal Bureau of Investigators and Navy Shore Patrol officers arrested him Thursday, but she was not held.

Boaz said they hired more cabs and took in the gambling casinos at Stateline and Lake Tahoe, Nev.

"My luck was bad and the money went fast."

It was still bad when a month later, he and Miss Carter came back to the Los Angeles area to play the horses at Santa Anita's opening meeting.

Broke, he got a job a few days ago with a nursery in Pomona, digging ditches at $2 cents an hour.

ROCKY PASSAGE FOR AERONAUTICS ACT IN COMMONS

P.C. Renew Assault On Trade Minister

Ottawa, May 26 (CP)—A series of amendments to Canada's aeronautics act, bringing it up to date and improving its application, won a rocky passage through the Commons today.

With the amending bill in committee stage, Howard Green (PC—Vancouver-Quadra) led a lengthy volunteer attack against many of its provisions and renewed an assault on Trade Minister Howe as the minister responsible for Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Mr. Green charged that "hangover" of "arbitrary and dictatorial" powers originally exercised by Mr. Howe are hampering the role of the Air Transport Board in efforts to develop Canadian aviation. Even now, as Trade Minister, Mr. Howe retained a grip on T.C.A. which the cabinet was afraid to loosen.

Then, supported by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) and M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, Mr. Green moved that the board, not a government proposal to give the effect of law to hundreds of civil aviation orders and directives approved neither by parliament nor cabinet.

He moved that the provision be stricken from the bill, but withdrew it when Transport Minister Chevrier, piloting the legislation, offered to reduce from $5,000 to $1,000 the maximum fine for those who fail to abide by the regulations.

DRAW SWEEPS HORSES

Toronto, May 26 (CP)— L. J. MacPherson, Toronto bookkeeper, has drawn an Irish Sweepstakes horse with his ticket, it was learned here tonight. MacPherson who says he bought the ticket several months ago and forgot about it, drew Volnay II, a 50-1 starter in tomorrow's race. If Volnay wins, MacPherson's ticket will be worth $77,350.

Woodstock (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Tom Harper will be rooting for Irish Sweepstakes ticket on Galcador, a 100-to-8 shot in the race. Their ticket would be worth $77,300 if Galcador should win.

Celebrates Birthday

Bouquet of Roses Pleases Queen Mary on 83rd Birthday

London, May 26 — (Reuters) — Queen Mary's face broke into smiles this morning — her 82rd birthday — when among her profusions of presents she found a box of pink and gold roses.

It was a tribute from a man who had met the Queen Mother with her son, King George VI, at a flower-show this week and knew that flowers are one of her greatest loves.

Malinen arrived at Queen Mary's residence, Marlborough House, burdened by heavy sacks of congratulatory letters from friends all over the world.

And the world's gloomy gifts were swept from the front pages of the press by pictures of the Dowager Queen — both as the Royal Lady she is today and as the beautiful Princess Mary of Teck at the age of 20.

Holds Adequate A-Defence Of Britain 'Impracticable'

London, May 26—(Reuters)— One of Britain's foremost atomic scientists today published an opinion that Britain would be almost defenceless in an atom war.

Professor P. M. E. Blackett, writing a booklet just published, termed adequate atom defence of the British Isles, "quite impracticable".

He added that atom bombs would not necessarily prove quickly decisive in a war between Russia and the United States.

He also claimed it would be a "major blunder" to launch atomic attacks from British air bases.

Blackett, Professor of Physics in Manchester University, recently aroused wide interest in the west and in Russia with his book, "The Military and Political Consequences of Atomic Energy."

Opinion Expressed in Booklet

In his contribution to a booklet "Atomic Attack", just published by the Association of Scientific Workers, he wrote:

"I think the arguments presented make inescapable the conclusion that adequate defence of the United Kingdom against atomic attack launched from nearby bases on the continent is quite impracticable, it only on economic grounds.

"The cost of necessary passive defence measures, dispersal, underground factories, shelters, etc, is widely outside the economic possibilities of this economically hard-pressed country.

"It is entirely made to conclude that these steps will not, in fact, be taken.

"This conclusion rests on the peculiar geographical position of the United Kingdom and on the high congestion of its population, and in no way conflicts with the conclusion that atomic bombs alone are not likely to be quickly decisive in a major war between continental powers such as America and Russia."

Other atom scientists writing in the booklet said invisible gamma-rays following an atom blast would slowly destroy the blood-forming elements of the bone marrow so that victims would die lingeringly after three to six weeks.

The scientists said 12 inches of solid concrete would reduce the effect of the gamma-ray by only one-tenth.

They estimated that it would be possible to limit the death-rate in Britain to 50,000 for each bomb. But they warned that a hydrogen bomb could be two or three times as deadly.

TENDERS ACCEPTED

Brampton May 26 — (CP) — Tenders were accepted Thursday by Etobicoke Conservation Authority for construction of a water diversion project for the Etobicoke River. The project—to cost $460,000—will be completed by October 1951. Brampton is about 20 miles northwest of Toronto.

Recovered from a recent indisposition, Queen Mary was in excellent spirits. She lunched at Buckingham Palace, where the King had arranged a special party in her honor with most of the Royal Family present.

The Queen Mother's own standard fluttered over Marlborough House, and she herself had been up since 7:15 a. m. Her customary rising hour.

Just before leaving to drive to Buckingham Palace, a little girl arrived at Marlborough House with a nosegay of flowers, which was given a place of honor among the great number of bouquets. The child had brought her gift because it was her own birthday, too.

FLOOD DISASTER OVER AS RED R. FALLS RAPIDLY

Work of Rehabilitation Under Way in Winnipeg

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 26—(CP)—Operation Rainbow started today at both ends of the Red River disaster area.

Clean-up squads moved into greater Winnipeg flood zones behind the retreating river, to start a city-wide scrub-and-disinfect campaign.

The first train in two weeks moved into Emerson, the international border point where the muddy Red's month-long rampage started.

Risk of further serious damage in the worst flood of a century was minimized by the No. 1 expert on the river's actions.

"Greater Winnipeg now is out of danger as far as wholesale evacuation is concerned," said D. M. Stevens, Top Flood Forecaster for Manitoba and watershed adviser to Brig. R. E. A. Morton's flood-control headquarters here.

He said in an interview that only phenomenal rainfall could put the river back to the 30.3-foot level of last weekend. Even 30.3 feet, peak since 1852 in the twin cities of Winnipeg and St. Boniface, Man., is more than two feet below the point at which, the army says, general evacuation would be necessary.

Boys Sell Pets To Raise Funds For Pal's Burial

New York, May 26 — (AP) — Holding back the tears, Rudy Brownie and his beloved pup Brownie for 22 Thursday to help raise funds to bury a 17-year-old pal who was drowned.

The pal, Frankie Romanger, met his life 10 days ago while playing with Rudy and other friends on an East River dock.

Frankie's parents were short of cash, and his body has been at Bellevue Hospital morgue since it was recovered two days ago.

Boys on the neighborhood started collecting a funeral fund Thursday. After Rudy sold his pup, another kid sold some pet pigeons and tossed $3 into the kitty, made up mostly of pennies and nickels.

Some boys ran errands for tips, others collected rags and bottles to sell.

There was $35 in the pot this morning.

The grown-ups who knew Frankie were expected to kick in with the rest of the money needed.

Servicemen Believed in Sympathy With Communism Being Discharged

Ottawa, May 26 (CP) — The forces, reacting to the communist menace, have quietly discharged some servicemen from the post-war forces and for the first time are spelling out one of communism's basic tenets as a military crime.

The Commons Defence Committee was hearing from a busy bill to consolidate and modernize defence legislation. Thursday night approved a clause which takes the place of a one-word offence and defines the offences if any had been discharged for that reason. They declined to name the organizations but the committee was told that such matters come, under the heading of military service.

It was indicated reliably, however, that the process of easing persons out of the civil service for security reasons has touched the forces as well. It is the National Research Council, the National Film Board and other branches of government.

Department law officers said the clause is taken from the criminal code and told a reporter it is being injected because of the cold war and the communist threat.

The maximum penalty is two years imprisonment. The penalty, but there are numerous others that could be imposed, among them plain dismissal from the service. Thus the clause conceivably might be used as a lever to oust Reds.

Mention was made in the committee of discharges of communists or sympathizers from the civil service. The reasons for the officers if any had been discharged for that reason. They declined to name the organizations but the committee was told that such matters come, under the heading of military service.

Chicago, May 26. (AP)—A wall of fire enveloped a crowded streetcar after it struck a double trailer gasoline truck Thursday night and 33 persons died in the flames.

Thirty others were injured, at least three critically. About 20 remained in hospitals. Many of the dead and injured were Negroes.

The spreading flames from the thousands of gallons of gasoline in the huge truck set fire to eight two-story buildings and several automobiles. No bodies were found in the wrecked buildings. But more than 100 persons —mostly Negroes—were made homeless.

The accident occurred near the end of the evening rush hour—7:30 p.m. E.D.T.—near the heavily populated 63rd and State Street district, on the city's south side.

A similar accident—but unless costly in lives—took place in Toronto in May, 1946. A gasoline trailer truck crashed into a crowded streetcar at Bloor and Bathurst streets and burst into flames. Three persons died and 42 were severely injured. The truck, its brakes defective, hurled down Bathurst Hill, with the driver jumping clear before the collision.)

The crash and a deep roar were followed by black smoke and billowing flames that surged along State Street like a rolling flood of waters.

Commissioner Stringer Says Keays Was Discharged Last July

Toronto, May 26—(CP)—Commissioner W. H. Stringer said today that J. Ernest Keays of Belleville was formally discharged from the Ontario Provincial Police force—and that Keays knows it.

Keays, a former constable, charged publicly in 1948 that he was persecuted because he got justice in the Belleville area. A Royal Commission last July found the charges groundless and recommended that he be fired.

He told Thursday by King's action that he never was officially discharged and that he would continue to wear the policeman's uniform until he got one—"honorable or dishonorable."

Commissioner Stringer said:

"Provincial Constable J. E. Keays of Belleville was discharged from the Ontario Provincial Police force by order-in-council dated July 14, 1949 and Provincial Constable Keays was so advised by registered mail."

Burning oil from the explosion spattered a nearby dock and an automobile, which caught fire to both.

Mayor Stands by, Helpless Watches Flood Engulf Town

What happens when a town dies? What are your feelings when you stand helplessly by, watching 800 homes and buildings fill up with water, destroying furniture, clothing and personal belongings? Ask the mayor of Morris, Manitoba, Harry Shewman, he supervised the complete evacuation of his town's 1,300 men, women and children, and watched the once prosperous farming town strangled by the waters of the Red River.

Morris prepared for this year's floods on the basis of the flood in 1948. From various sources it decided that the Red River would reach a maximum of two feet over the '48 crest, and the townspeople backed up their furniture and belongings to that height. The town is now under seven feet of water, and in some parts under 12 feet of water.

The value of the homes and buildings in Morris was set at $1,000,000. This includes the new school, the new hospital and two new rinks completed since the '48 flood.

Sorrowful Stories

There are many sorrowful stories to come out of Morris, but all tell the same tale of suffering and poverty. There was the Second Great War veteran who lost his home in the first flood and built another, only to have it washed away in this flood. There was the old pensioner who left with tears streaming down their faces, not knowing if they would ever live to go back home.

Mayor Shewman had a difficult decision to make in the early days of Morris leave their homes and belongings, to live for their lives. He dressed friends of his in Mounted Police uniforms and used them to order residents to leave.

The residents of Morris were brought out by boat and barge to safe ground miles away, and from there they were dispersed to towns and villages in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Alberta.

The municipality of Morris covers 240,000 acres of rich farming land. This land is now a huge lake 25 miles wide. The grain, livestock, barns, seed and equipment of the Morris area farmers has been swallowed up by the flood.

Many Heroes

There were many heroes in Morris. The telephone girls who worked for days in two feet of water to keep communications open were some; the Canadian National Railways people who kept the rail lines open to evacuate hospital patients were some; the Manitoba Power Commission workmen who kept the power in the town going until the last minute were some; and Mayor Shewman was another.

Even now, with the town wiped out, the work of helping farmers goes on. Mayor Shewman and volunteers make their way by boat to Morris every day, searching for cattle and horses and arranging for the homemade barges to take them to safety. During the past two weeks there have been 2,000 head of livestock rescued. But there was a terrible loss of livestock in Morris which the rescue teams couldn't reach in time.

Mayor Shewman stated that the loss and damage to furniture and personal belongings in Morris would run to 90 per cent. For most people this means absolute poverty unless help is provided.

The people of Morris will receive aid from the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund which was established at Winnipeg for the express purpose of helping flood victims. For the residents of Morris, the Flood Relief Fund provides their only chance of replacing their lost furniture, clothing and other possessions.

It is a grim and ugly picture but with the help of the Flood Relief Fund, the town of Morris will live again.

Hundreds of loads of fill will settle to raise the centre of the park several feet, new grass will be started and the park will take on a rejuvenated appearance.

Excavation for the new county home has been a blessing in disguise for the parks board. Fill which some years ago was responsible for deteriorating the park.

Approximately 5,000 yards of fill from the excavation of the new county home on the Trent Road have already been dumped into the north end of the park. Services of bull dozer will be acquired for levelling the fill and the whole will be seeded.

When the north end of the park area has been rehabilitated, the south area will receive the same treatment.

Since the period of high water level in the Great Lakes and in the Bay of Quinte some years ago, Victoria Park has been more or less in a shambles. The area remained flooded for nearly two seasons, then with a drop in the water level marsh grass and other undesirable vegetation sprung up. The result was that the once popular Victoria Park took on a deserted and neglected appearance.

Commenced Last Year

Rehabilitation of the park commenced last year when money was spent to install new yatch docking facilities and a new road into the park. This year stonework will be added to round off the ends of the docking area, the stones to be cemented in for permanency.

Fine Record of 32nd Battery Will be Recalled at First Annual Reunion Held Here

"The right of the line, the left or the paybook and the pride for the bloomin' army".

Mechanization or no mechanization, the Canadian artillery slogan still holds good with the boys who manned the guns whether in the Crimean, Boer or the two great World Wars.

It will be Artillery Weekend in the city on Saturday and Sunday. Ex-members of the 32nd Light Anti Aircraft Battery, from all parts of the district, from west as far as Alberta and the east from the Maritimes, will converge on Belleville for the first reunion of the unit since the guns ceased their thunder.

Will Recall Grim Days

Reminiscences will flow thick and fast as these former warriors recall the grim days and others in the bloody battlefields of the continent and the training grind in Britain.

An outstanding program of entertainment has been arranged by President "Mac" Smith of the battery association and his hard working committee headed by secretary Irving Browning.

Registration will take place at the armouries starting at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. The afternoon will be spent in a get-together and a banquet will be held Saturday evening. Special talent has been secured for the "troops" and many city dignitaries have been invited to attend.

On Sunday morning at ten o'clock the gunners will remember those gallant buddies who "went west" and parade to the Station Street Cenotaph where a brief memorial service will be held and a wreath deposited.

"Ninety-Mile" Salvo

These valiant "anti-aircraft" artillery have been dubbed by satirical members of the other branches of the army, the navy and the air force are proud, and rightly so, of their record overseas. Composed of a large number of Belleville and district residents, the unit stands out in the annals of anti-aircraft units.

They stormed the beach-heads in Sicily and Italy and made their "kills" with a skill born of long hard training. Their record in the 4th Anti Aircraft Regiment in which they were associated with the 100th and 69th batteries from Brantford and Listowel respectively, is a proud one. Living up to their "number" the battery brought down 32 kites of Goering's proud Luftwaffe The regimental record was 68.

The battery prior to the invasion was taken to the concentration camp at Rochecourt on May 16, 1944, then proceeded on June 4th with the three troops of the unit taking off from Tilbury, London and Southampton.

"A" Troops' objective were the bridges at La Riviere with orders to "hold at all costs". "C" Troops went to Columbiers-sur-Aure Headquarters was located near "A" Troop clearing mines from the high areas.

Take 183 Prisoners

Nazi snipers peppered the gunners. They took 183 prisoners the first night in action and by the first 48 hours of anti-craft action they brought down 14 German planes, none of them "official."

"A" Troops' "casualty" that day was a twin, which dropped in a mine hole. Sergeant Terry, a former Belleville boy, "walked to" and found 23 Jerries. He took a number of prisoners, captured their anti aircraft gun and some munition and turned it against their own aircraft.

The fine record of the 4th A. A. Regiment was recorded in the "Maple Leaf" Canadian wartime newspaper.

News of Trenton East of River Boys Out-Pull Boys From West in Tug-of-War

Trenton—(Special)—The argument as to which side of town is best, east or west was settled temporarily Thursday evening when the boys from east of the river out pulled the west in a tug of war.

Staged on Albert Street and billed as the first annual tug-of-war between the two sides of town, the east took the honors and the Recreation Commission a Trophy in two straight pulls.

In the first pull, the eastern representatives pulled north toward the Post Office while the western strong men pulled south toward the bay. There were about 50 on each side, but the east had too much power and the westerners couldn't seem to dig in their heels and take the initiative.

When the two teams switched ends for the second pull, it was the same story. From the first whistle, the easterners started the rope moving and never stopped until the ribbon crossed the white chalk line.

Legion Lounge Redecorated

A giant chicken smoker will be held in the newly redecorated lounge of the Canadian Legion Memorial Hall Friday evening.

Workmen are busy putting the finishing touches on the interior, which has been refinished in a toned down dusty rose worked into blended shades. The refreshment bar is to be completed with a grey plastic material.

There will be a door prize at tonight's smoker and proceeds are for the Recreation Commission.

Little Crime Reported

Proof of the value of recreation is to be found in the number of entries on the police blotter this week.

Trenton police report there has been very little crime and few arrests during recreation week.

Bathers Try Trent

One of the boys who was having a fine time splashing about in the water reported that the water was "quite warm."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 26 — (CP) — Western oil stocks boomed ahead to the highest average price level in 13 years as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The trading spotlight turned from penny golds to the western oil list. Volume for the first three hours was 2-661,000 shares.

The western oil list started strong and climbed rapidly. Some signs of slackening in interest were evident in mid-session. Royallite and Home Oil were ahead fractions and Calgary and Edmonton, Pacific Petroleum, Okalta and Superior Oil showed gains ranging from five to 25 cents.

Industrials were strong in early trading but lost much of the advantage as the session progressed. Papers showed a stronger tone.

A few individual low - priced gold stocks traded briskly for some good gains. Much of the list was under pressure of profit-taking on recent strong advances.

Base metals sagged slowly with losses about tripling gains.

Blames Imported Oil For Unemployment

Coal prices are going up in Canada but unemployment is spreading among the coal fields of the U.S. Here Rhomas Kennedy, United Mine Workers vice-president, tells a U.S. Senate investigating committee that importation of foreign oil is the cause of lack of demand for coal. (United Press Canadian)

Communications Survive Worst Test in '50 Flood

Winnipeg, May 26 (CP)—Railway telegraph communications, strained as never before during the 1950 floods, are just beginning to get back to normal.

The nerve centres of greater Winnipeg, vital to the communication of personal and business messages and flow of money to other parts of Canada, were in the heart of the month-long battle against the Red River.

While wires hummed with an unprecedented volume of traffic, backed up sewer water lapped at cables beneath the streets.

Canadian Pacific Railways and Canadian National Railways lines were deluged with personal messages from harried relatives and people offering shelter to the homeless. Dozens of newspaper correspondents from Canada and the United States poured out millions of words.

The C.P.R. handled its peak load within 25,000 pieces an hour of muddy water was being pumped ed from its basement at the corner of Portage Avenue and Main Street.

Both companies arranged emergency circuits. They installed emergency power plants when the electrical supply was threatened two weeks ago.

Deliver on Foot

Messenger boys delivered by bicycle, canoe and trudging in Lake boots through flooded streets. Disrupted telephone communications were made more bal delivery impossible. Radio stations and newspapers published lists of undelivered messages.

First major failure was the CPR's pneumatic-tube system for dispatching telegrams to the depot and the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Water which smashed the tubes poured through them into the buildings basement.

The CPR's biggest crisis came May 22, when a slip in the waterproof covering a cable serving The Canadian Press—and through it the other newspapers and three radio stations— cut service to some 400 points.

The CP bureau moved into prearranged facilities in the telegraph building, and lost only a half-hour in the switch. Emergency arrangements got service back to normal within five hours.

Gas Rationing In Britain Is Abolished

London, May 26 (CP)— Britain today abolished gasoline rationing.

Fuel Minister Philip Noel-Baker, who made the announcement in the House of Commons, said the three-a week slip in the gradual easing of Britain's wartime controls—is effective Saturday.

He said two American oil companies, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and the California Texas Company, have agreed to bring in additional supplies of oil and to accept sterling instead of dollars in payment.

A provision of the agreement between the ministry and companies was that Britain abandon rationing.

Noel-Baker said both American concerns propose to send the sterling they will earn under the arrangement to building tankers in Britain or in expanding their services.

The news was welcome to Britain's motorists, for whom gasoline has been rationed for more than 10 years.

Since gasoline supplies went on ration, Sept. 23, 1939, during the first month of the Second World War, motorists have been allowed varying amounts, permitting from 80 to 270 miles' driving a month.

The Labor Government for some months has been under pressure from the Conservative opposition and from motoring groups to do away with rationing.

United States' oil reserves and the British government have been at odds since Britain slashed her imports of dollar oil by one-third at the start of this year. The measure cut heavily into business done here by American oil companies. The purpose was to help Britain build up her depleted dollar resources.

Three-Foot Lizard 'Gives Itself Up'

King William's Town, South Africa (CP)—Many dead lizards have been brought to the Kaffrarian Museum in the course of its long history, but the museum staff got a surprise one morning when a live three-foot water leguan walked in through the back door of their laboratory.

Leguans are outsize lizards which look like a small version of something out of Conan Doyle's "The Lost World".

Arming himself with an old Japanese Samurai sword and a beaded Kaffir knobkerrie, the director of the museum, Mr. C. J. Skead, trapped the leguan behind a box and killed it. Half an hour later it was immortalized in a formalin bottle and has joined the museum's collection.

Enjoy all three!

MILITARY GENIUS, STATESMAN PASSES

The British Commonwealth of Nations and peoples of other lands mourn the passing of one of the great military leaders of the Second World War, Earl Wavell, who died at the week-end after a brief illness.

In the early days of the war he performed one of the miracles of that struggle. It was he who by his genius smashed the Italian army of Marshal Graziani in North Africa in the days when optimists were pressing for solution on the field and at home. He led the army of "desert rats" to triumph over the Italians in North Africa in a series of brilliant victories in the dark early days of that struggle. It was the counter-offensive of 1940 and 1941 which smashed the Badoglio forces, driving the enemy back 500 miles across the deserts of North Africa in the space of 66 days. That was a time which raised many problems for solution. He became military commander in India and was called to the Pacific theatre of war. Then he went to India and later became Viceroy of that continent of Asia.

His name will remain in British history as that of one of the men who were able to serve at a crucial moment and render such service as helped greatly to bring the victory for which the Allies fought.

His life was an inspiration to those who served under his command and to the British people and to those of the United States in the most trying time of the war. In it he was able through his great gifts to render such service to the British and Allied cause which helped to advance the victory. His life lived up to the high plane of a British leader and was motivated and guided by a sense of devotion. He was able to give the Allied cause true military leadership in the testing days early in the war. In India he was able to do important service to the Commonwealth and to the people of that sub-continent.

Those who were old enough to follow the story of his victories against the Italian armies in North Africa recall the confidence he inspired among the democratic nations in the early days of the war.

Earl Wavell by his service in the earlier days of the late war was an inspiration to the men on the field and to the people at home and in all parts of the world ranged under the allied flags.

One of his happy interests in his life was the pleasure he received from the poets. In his latter days he indulged a taste for poetry and music, a taste and an achievement which indicated something of the spirit of the man who was one of the great military leaders in a period of the war when victory meant more than victory, when it gave confidence to the world forwhom his armies were fighting.

He leaves the memory of a brave heart who was able in the time of great danger to render s service to his King and the Empire and to the cause Britain and her friends had espoused, the defence of the freedom of the world against the blows and the ruthless assaults of aggressors. His steel heart was an invaluable defence for the Commonwealth and through its member nations for the rest of the world.

THE PORT OF BRISTOL GOES TO CANADA

Canada has been linked to the Port of Bristol for more than 450 years. It was from Bristol on May 2nd, 1497 that John Cabot, in a Bristol ship the "Matthew," manned by Bristol men, led the first expedition across the Atlantic, and eight weeks later made landfall off the coast of Newfoundland.

So it is appropriate that Bristol should be the first British port ever to exhibit at the Canadian International Trade Fair in Toronto (from May 29th to June 8th.). The exhibit will consist of a model of Avonmouth Docks, made up of nearly 1,000,000 pieces and a large photographic stand showing the activities and facilities available at the port. Development of the port (nearly 600,000 tons last year) is particularly featured.

Incidentally, the port record for discharge of grain was established with a cargo of Canadian wheat—8,376 tons in two days.

RIGHT SIDE IS THE WRONG SIDE

A growing practice among Ottawa motorists, and a very dangerous one, is to attempt to pass other vehicles on the right side contrary to all provisions of the Highway Traffic Act and sensible driving. This is particularly evident at lights and at stop streets, says Ottawa Journal.

Where there are just two traffic lines in each direction, which is usual in Ottawa, traffic going straight ahead or making a left turn should line up in the centre lane while a light is red or at stop streets. This leaves the right hand lane clear for traffic making a right turn.

But a lot of drivers who like to appear smart and beat the other fellow have got into the bad habit of coming down the right lane and then attempting to rush ahead when the light changes or traffic starts to flow in their direction. It may gain a few seconds but would certainly go against them in the case of an accident.

OPENING GAME EXCUSES

When I was just a growing lad
(At least I think I'm still the same)
I told a story false, but sad,
To get to see the opening game.

I during grandmas many a year
And Aunt Maries and Uncle Joe;
Without a sigh, without a tear,
And all without a single woe.

The funeral tale I use no more,
Although at heart I'm still the same,
I have a happier reason for Attendance at the opening game.

Though fond of baseball still am I,
A grandpa with a silvered brow,
I use this old man's alibi,
"I have to take my grandson home."

The Belleville Get Ile Name

The coming centennial celebration of Belleville brings up a very interesting story as to how Belleville got its name. One day General Gore, who was then Governor of Upper Canada, was driving from Kingston to Toronto. On his way he drove into the little village then called Myers Cook by some and by others Thurlow village and stop was made for the party to take dinner. Being delighted with the the picturesque little place and with the people whom he met he decided to remain over night. The only hotel in the village was kept by John Simpson and stood at the corner of Dundas and Front Streets. Some of this historic old inn is still standing and forms part of Mr. William Clarke's blacksmith shop. The host had a reputation for those days for good liquors, good food, comfortable beds and cleanliness. The Governor and his wife, Lady Bella Gore, were taken on to Kingston and in the meantime arrangements were made for Belleville's first great ball that night in the evening. The Governor and Lady Bella made such a favorable impression on the inhabitants of the little village that it was decided to name the place Belleville after Lady Bella Gore. This is interesting in connection with the Centennial and Old Boys' Reunion to be held this summer in Belleville.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

SUBSTANCE TALK

An American writer tells in his book of his visit with Robert Browning in Italy. He said that he talked a wonderful quantity in a little time." I believe that we have experienced meeting people who talked like that. People probably are not thought it that when they sat around listening to the great Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Tennyson and Carlyle were good friends and used to visit each other and sit for hours smoking their pipes saying next to nothing. I have an idea, however, that there was a deal of wonderful silence at times of thought between them at each visit.

Where there is substance to good talk it is often given in very little time, and that talk is long remembered. I recently met an old acquaintance who accosted me and talked and talked and talked saying a single thing that was worth listening to, or remembering. Not long ago, however, met Robert Frost, our greatest poet, and I left him home, and everything that he said was worth remembering, for he was like Browning, who talked a wonderful quantity in a little time.

There was substance to that brief address by Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg, but it took time for the world to realize it. It was great because it came from the heart, and feeling, without great expression has. At that same celebration there was Edward Everett, who talked a "wonderful quantity," bit for a long time, nothing like two hours! And that speech as remembered by no one, much less read.

Harriet Monroe, who did so much to stimulate interest in poetry in America, early fell under the spell of Stevenson, and looked forward to the time when she might meet him face to face. After long waiting her dream came true, and she was invited to meet him, but the meeting of physical forces were gravely on the decline. But the poet was given fifteen minutes in which to concentrate her visit. Sadly she was disillusioned as to how great a writer should be housed and fed such a precarious physical frame, but the quantity of talk in that brief time was something to be recorded and remembered and it was.

The youth I heard an inspiring lecture by a noted speaker on many phases of science. I recall one sentence: "It is now the business to start a soul voyaging toward Eternity. Thoughts are deeds, and may become crimes."

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

BLIND DATE

Last Saturday, Eleanor and I, motored to Lake Success for dinner with a fellow named Ed Gilson who occasionally sells electrical supplies to the theatre.

The Gilson house was one of those white-clapboard, green-shutter jobs, and he and his wife were on the porch as we drove up. After a brief real beauty, but when Ed introduced us we could tell she was blind by the way she looked right past us.

Nevertheless, it turned out to be quite an evening—the grub was first rate, the talk was small but not microscopic, and by 10 o'clock the girls were swapping recipes and gossip while Ed and I watched the fights on the television. An hour later, Eleanor announced she had a yen for chocolate ice cream, so Ed and I got into his Chevvy and drove to the village.

"How long have you kids been married?" I asked.

"Eight years," he said, "and in case you're wondering, the fact that she can't see doesn't bother us at all.

"That's pretty obvious," I said to him under my breath. "Come up, how did you know the marriage was going to work out that well from the beginning?"

"Well, that was something that was pretty obvious to me, right from the evening when a stinker named Frankie Stearns got us together."

"Mind telling me about it?" I said.

"Not at all," said Gilson. "I happened to meet Alice only six weeks before I left for Flying to play a practical joke on me."

"Give it to me in short takes," I said.

"Well, I was a pretty green kid when I first hit New York, and Frankie, who was a salesman for an electrical appliance outfit I worked for, took a shine to me and showed me around. Looking back at it, I can see why. For one thing, I was a bit of a boob and made him look good by comparison. For another, I was so happy to be in the theatre, a hot-shot that I didn't mind when he stuck me with the check.

"One night Frankie introduced me to a knockout of a girl named Joyce and told me they were engaged. Later that evening, thanks to a couple of highballs, I found myself asking Joyce whether there were any more at home like her.

"Joyce does have a sister," said Frankie, and she's quite a dish. I'll fix it for you."

"That's not funny," said Joyce but Frankie shut her up with a look and gave me the telephone number. And when I called the next morning the voice at the other end said 'Frankie told me all about you and I'd be glad to meet you.'

"Well, Alice turned out to be every bit as attractive as her sister—in fact, maybe more so—and I was blustered into a notion anything wrong until I asked her to go the movies. When she told me the title of the picture I realized Frankie had played a dirty trick on me, but I swallowed and gabbed for a while and had a pretty good time at that.

"I'll tell you the rest. We got married and I've never regretted it. I've had a few spats with Alice too, but he gave her a rough time of it, and she divorced him after only a year. She hasn't married since."

"Nice story," I said. "Joyce undoubtedly had plenty of boy friends to choose from and two to one she didn't choose wisely she picked a lemon. Alice, on the other hand picked a winner the first try."

"My misuse has a corny way of entertaining," I said. "She says sometimes being blind helps you to see."

Communists Fail To Stop Shipments Of American Arms

By SIGRUND ARNE
(Associated Press News Analyst)
(For DEWITT MACKENZIE)

The communists seem to have lost another skirmish in the cold war with the west.

They set out the first of the year to stop shipments of American arms to Europe. They banked on European Labor Unions to do the job. Nothing but the communists seemed to think that would play ball. Europe is getting the arms it considers necessary.

The United States Labor department tells the story in the latest issue of its "Labor Research."

Most of the trouble occurred in France and Italy.

In both countries communist-led unions started with the "Stockholm" line telling workers that the way to insure peace was to refuse to handle American arms. When that argument failed in France, the communists began a flood of short strikes for higher pay, conspicuously among workers needed for the arms of French defences.

In both countries enough union people have grown so tired of the sly sabotage of communist leadership that the non-communist unions have been formed.

The communists still want better wages, but they also take into account the security of their countries.

Called Shore Strikes

In France the communists' shift from "peace" to more wages took place in February. They called short strikes on railroads and in mines. The strikes failed. The non-communist labor union people refused to go along.

Then came acts of sabotage, whereupon the French government called the strikes "political" and brought in an anti-sabotage bill in the National Assembly.

That called forth a general called a strike that pulled out a third of their group in the Paris area. The non-communist majority asked French workers for an all-out effort to block communist arms.

In quick succession there was a 24-hour strike among longshoremen and strikes among workers in shipping and in railroad transportation, gas and electric plants and some textile mills.

These strikes were so ineffective that it was apparent the communists had lost much strength ahead of the strikes of late 1947.

In Italy the communists had some few successes in the northern ports, but they were stopped in such big southern ports as Naples and Bari.

Recent reports say arms were unloaded in Norway, Denmark and Netherlands "without incident."

I often wondered what was the Biblical statement that a prophet is not without honor except in his own country and among his own people.

Take myself for example; I know that I am a fairly good musician, yet when I try to demonstrate either vocally or instrumentally I get little more than deserved acclaim but when I have been away for a short period or any other of the places between here and Toronto I am treated as a former for a rendition. Take another example: There was the late Col. F. N. Peterson (Nulli Secundus), who was in constant demand locally in Canada and the U.S. and Great Britain, and yet was not as fully appreciated as he should have been locally.

Coming back to myself again: I have been asked to write poetry in my "spiritual-mental-physical convalescence" but have been compelled to holler "Hallelujah" occasionally.

Atomic-Produced Electricity Near Says Speaker

Toronto, May 26 (CP)— Canadian Industrialists were told Thursday they may have atomic-produced electricity feeding their plants sooner than they believe if scientists of today are in engineering school.

The forecaster was Dr. L. G. Cook of the National Research Council, Chalk River, and the audience the annual general meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Summing up current views, he envisioned a day of expansion in Canadian plant in eight to 10 years and a plant available for special use in 15 years, with power in about another 10 years. However:

"There is no reason to expect atomic energy industry to spring into being overnight, with industries which now serve us and disrupting in a few years the whole pattern of our economy.

"It will almost certainly follow the course of supplementing rather than supplanting existing economical sources of energy and supply.

"Our judgment is that industry no one should delay sound and economical additions to power supply, whether by fuel-generated electricity or water power because of uncertainties in the future atomic energy will come on the scene as an additional source of power.

"There will certainly be ample room for all types of generating plants may be needed."

ACCORDING TO SAIREY GAMP

My obstetrician, writes a deluded woman—she is definitely deluded to be the subject of a column to follow—has a rhapsodic enthusiasm about natural childbirth, as explained by Dr. G. D. Read in the book you have repeatedly recommended (Childbirth Without Fear, by Grantly Dick Read, M.D., Harper's) and he says part of the procedure is having the husband present in the labor room, but not in the delivery room.

I have been particularly interested in your campaign to have the husband remain with his wife in the delivery room. You have said more than once that there is no law against the practice. But my obstetrician says my husband cannot remain in the delivery room with me; he says there is a law against it in Illinois... (K. S.)

According to Mrs. Gamp's Mrs. Harris there is some such law, ordinance or hospital rule somewhere in Illinois—I have not been able to learn just what it is—but give me time and eventually we'll discover the origin of this convenient canard.

There isn't room to repeat the arguments for the husband standing by — at bedside—for the miracle. These reasons are given in the booklet, Information for Maternity (twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope) which every prospective father should read and study with his wife.

I have had a score or more letters from Illinois ladies since I hehe encountered this same chenanigan when they have sought childbirth.

Now I repeat—and challenge any one with authority to disprove me if I'm wrong—there is no law in Illinois or anywhere else in America against the prospective father remaining with his wife throughout the ordeal of labor when the prospective mother wishes to have him with her.

From what I know of politics I cannot give the same assurance in regard to city ordinances.

From what I know of hospitals, latter-day "specialists" and the petty politics of many members of hospital boards and administrators I am inclined to believe that there are not hospital "rules" regulations" designed and enforced for the primary purpose of concealing the neglect and the malpractice that too frequently occurs in the delivery room.

That is the primary purpose of such "rules and regulations," and any blah-blah about the "danger" that the husband may bring infection into the delivery room or the nurses being too busy looking after mother and infant to bother reviving the husband from fainting spells is an insult to the intelligence of the prospective parents.

Let us, then, with an I. Q. equivalent to that of a moron imagine the state enacting a law prohibiting a citizen from attending the birth of his own child! That might go in a dimwit Soviet republic, but hardly in the U.S. S.)

Again I assure you that home is the best place to have a baby provided you have a home fit to live in. If you haven't, maybe one should be. Then you squander may much money on trick specialists. Read many of the people in America do.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Nicotine

Can you possibly get nicotine poisoning from smoking cigarettes? Sometimes when smoking I swallow particles of tobacco, and sometimes they make me have cramps. (A. E.)

Answer—Most physicians believe that you are not convinced of it—I think the poisoning may be due to the nicotine in the smoke, but this is merely my personal opinion.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

The manager of one of those interior panel board establishments, who sells a lot of gas and service to his customers, was struck by the sameness of the amount sold week after week and year after year. He compared last year's account with this year's and there was little difference in the individual accounts.

So he held a series of several hundred motorists to find what to extent they are creatures of habit.

Eliminating travellers from his survey, he found that the great majority of motorists stayed at the most fixed routine over the year. During the winter they drive to their homes and offices, and do a limited amount of other driving in the evenings. In the various individuals, this amount of extra driving per week was almost always the same. On the days they visited the same places each week, making the evenings, the same friends, the same movies, the same number of times.

It was in the summer months that the surprising figures emerged. The majority of his customers followed the same routine from home to and from the office, of golf, of driving on weekends to their summer cottages. And week by week followed this line up a little more each day, to the same golf club, went to the same places by the same routes, each weekend.

So he held a contest, for wings to go from one end of the country to the other. Five other airways lace the land from coast to coast. We are supposed to be the heirs of wonderful mobility of movement.

But the majority of us seem to be without curiosity for new places, or strange routes. With all our freedom we get into a deep in the rut. The champion among the automotorists surveyed was a salesman with more than 30,000 miles on his car for one year. And he had not been, for more than that year, nearly all of it back an forward over familiar paths.

RELIGION'S BEST ARGUMENT

There are many reasons why people have religious doubts. Some people are skeptical regarding the Bible because they believe that if they make any religious pretensions they will have to live up to the high standards which it sets for them. Some people are skeptical because they do not want to make a few people—a very few—have genuine intellectual difficulties. Still others lose the will to believe, and, after all, believing involves the exercise of the will as well as the exercise of the brain.

But most people who entertain doubts about religion do so because they have observed that many of the advocates of religion do not live up to their pretensions. The parent who pretends one thing on Sunday and does something quite different on Monday is a big stumbling block in the eyes of some people to the futility of religion. The pious fellow who is not honest in his dealings, or ungodly to guffaw in a most disconcerting fashion.

The truth of the Christian gospel do not depend for their validity on the personal worth of of them. Though all men are hypocrites, God's truth remains indestructible. The sincere believer still remains the best argument for religion.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

God Never Gives Up

By ROY L. SMITH

If one were to judge by the editorials he reads, the radio comment to which he listens, the best sellers he is urged to buy, he might be excused if he decided that this world is incurably bad. It even happens occasionally that some preacher joins the world's chorus and proclaims his belief that everything has become so bad that God is going to give up.

That there is some justification for such cynicism no one of course, would attempt to deny. The cold war, the war of nerves, the general breakdown of ancient standards, the revision of the world's life as a result of the discovery of the atom bomb—all this is having the effect of upsetting our calm and poise.

The primary need of this world and this age is security, but it is impossible for military power, economic forces, or cultural activities to provide us with that security. It can be achieved only by a profound religious faith.

The Ancients Had Cries Too

One of the most inspiring things any man can do in times like these is to read history.

The ancients faced crisis just as we are facing one, and in every instance they survived because of the fact that someone had a great faith.

This week's Sunday school lesson treats of such a crisis and of a Hebrew prophet whose faith rose up superior to the crisis.

The Crisis Micah Faced

The little kingdom of Judah, consisting of no more than a few scores of thousands of Hebrews, was face to face with annihilation. It occupied a land which was destined to be the battleground whenever the great empires of Assyria and Egypt finally clashed in their struggle for world supremacy.

The Sunday school lesson for May 28: "Micah's Hope of God's Salvation," Micah (4:1-5; 5:2-4; 7:18-20).

Already the Hebrew government was helpless. Its king was incapable of rational action, its defences were in a complete state of collapse, the spirit of the people was sapped by the injustices to which they had been subjected by their own rulers—injustices to which the religious leaders of the times were quite indifferent. Neither geography, politics, religion, or numbers could be counted on to defend the little kingdom of Judah, and no one knew it better than the farmer-prophet from Moraseth Gath. If ever a man had reason for despair Micah was that man.

Micah was a Realist

Micah was a realist. He saw all the hazards his nation faced, and he saw also something else and something more. He saw God active in the affairs of men.

He saw that Judah's case was just, and because he believed that justice had greater survival value than military power he believed that Judah would somehow survive and be vindicated.

He saw every dreadful fact anyone else did, but he saw one more fact—the greatest of them all. He believed that there was a divine power at work in the world on the side of things that were true, honest, and right. This Power, he was convinced, could and would outlast every terror with which his people were confronted.

Micah is a realist in these days who does not see that same fact. It is perfectly right and reasonable for any man to see plainly the factors and forces of evil. No man has a right to call himself intelligent who cannot see them. But to see these and nothing more is not to be a realist. No man has seen all the facts who has not also seen God, at work on man's destiny.

Micah's Vindication

More than two hundred years passed, but in the end Micah's case was vindicated. The Hebrew survived. The presence among us of more than 15,000,000 Jews today is abundant evidence.

Not only so, but Micah's own words continued to have the authority of God inside the nation for at least one hundred and fifty years. A century and a half after Micah's preaching was done, his words were quoted as authoritative in Hebrew courts.

And even more, to this day the advocates of righteousness and honor in government turn to his sermons for their inspiration and their encouragement. They learn from the man who knew God would never get through until he had succeeded.

Those who assisted the hostess were Mrs. Reginald Skinner and Mrs. Cecil Arthurs.

WEDDINGS

GRIFFIN—SEDORE

Tweed. — Ferns and Spring flowers formed the setting in the Salvation Army Citadel, Saturday afternoon, May 20, for the wedding of Edith Lucy Sedore, daughter of Mrs. Della Sedore, Tweed, and George Griffin, son of Mrs. Lounder, Marying Place, and the late Richard Griffin. Captain John Merrifield, of Trenton, formerly of Tweed, performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride was brought with a halo of seed pearls and beads. She carried a bouquet of deep pink roses.

Mrs. Malcolm was matron of honor, wearing powder blue taffeta with matching headdress and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Miss Elsie Sedore, sister of the bride, and Miss Ruby Griffin, the groom's sister, were bridesmaids, wearing identical gowns of pink taffeta with matching halos and carried nosegays of deep pink roses.

Little Miss Nancy Griffin was flower girl, wearing yellow taffeta and carrying a basket of sweetpeas.

Mr. Fred Griffin, brother of the groom, was best man. Mr. Thomas Deline of Madoc, and Mr. Harold Griffin, of Belleville, were ushers.

For travelling, the bride donned a navy blue ensemble and carried a shortie coat. They will reside in Tweed.

BEAMISH—JAMIESON

The marriage of Marilyn Fern, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Jamieson, of Peterborough, to Clifford James Beamish, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Beamish, of Indian River, took place last Saturday in Peterborough. The Rev. E. W. Rowland performed the ceremony at his home on Lock Street.

The bride was gowned in white satin and wore a white and blue headdress and corsage of red roses. Her attendant, Miss Roberta Brooks of Havelock, wore a pink taffeta dress with navy and pink headdress and a corsage of white gardenias.

Princess Fathia Weds Commoner, Farouk Furious

San Francisco, May 26 (AP)—Dark-eyed Princess Fathia, 19, honeymooned today with a 31-year-old commoner—but the fury of Egypt's King Farouk hung darkly over them like a desert sandstorm.

Sauve Qui Peut, denounced by Farouk's unwilling royal brother-in-law, said after his Moslem wedding to the lad last Thursday night that he may have to leave for Cairo "like Mr. Ordered Around," the indignant Farouk, he passed the word to the United States immigration service.

The Princess scorned her regal brother's orders lifting her title and her family fortune to wed her heart's choice. But she thought after the bold ceremony that the silence from Cairo was ominous.

Queen Mother Nazli, bejewelled and wearing a strapless, rainbow-hued gown, frowned and faced as her youngest daughter and Ghali exchanged "I do's."

King Farouk, though far away in Cairo, was much in the thoughts of those who watched the couple become husband and wife under a magnolia tree decorated with wired gardenias.

King Farouk recently divorced his wife, Queen Farida, after two sons. Since then he has been reported so interested in a beautiful girl commoner that he has taken steps to separate her from her fiance.

King Farouk has denounced Ghali as an "adventurer"; opposed him as a commoner and a couple Christians.

Princess Fathia and Ghali, former political adviser to the Queen Mother, went through a civil ceremony on April 25 but have lived apart while waiting for King Farouk to approve Moslem rites.

They waited in vain.

Pretty Mrs. Leo Kennedy, 27 1-2, Talbot Street, is the "Gunners' Queen" of Belleville for 1950.

The Gunners' young matron was selected from a bevy of beauty by a panel of six judges at the Gunners' Ball held in the Club Commodore last night. The ball was held in conjunction with the first annual reunion of the 32nd Light Anti Aircraft Battery held in the Bridge Street Armouries Saturday and Sunday.

The judges were, Mayor Jack Ellis, Belleville; Mayor Ken Couch, Trenton; Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., Hastings West; Lieut. Col. Jack Cousins, former commanding officer of the Battery; Major Frank and Geo. H. Carver, sports editor, Ontario Intelligencer.

The judges' task was a difficult one. It took lengthy deliberation on their part before they narrowed the "field" down to six contestants. These were Mrs. Kennedy; Miss Barbara Wilson; Mrs. Hors Blair; Gwen Kellner, Miss Mae Sedore and Isabel Munroe.

Miss Valuable Prizes

Mr. Kennedy, the ultimate winner, was given a fine ovation by the large crowd following her selection as the "Queen". With her title went handsome prizes valued at nearly $300.

The committee in charge offered several dance and door prizes with the first door prize, a radio, going to Walter Westfall. The second prize, a full-ton of coal, went to Mr. Jack Veach of Codrington.

Among the numerous spot-dance winners were Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Cooper; Mrs. Fowler-Hardwick and Mr. Rusty Jenner; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Keller; Mr. and Mrs. H. Preston, Wilfred Picard, and Miss C. Faulkner and many others.

The Club Commodore was en fete for the occasion with the sparkling "swing and sweet" rhythms of Lacy Brown and his Commodores orchestra adding melodic color to the occasion.

Art Duby, one of the city's outstanding baritones, was heard in several popular numbers with the band. The young singer was given a fine ovation on several occasions.

ROSLIN Miss M. Fargey Gives Delightful Travelogue Talk

Roslin—An interesting travelogue was given by Miss Maron Fargey on her first trip via Greyhound bus from Toronto to San Francisco, California, where she has been nursing for the past two years.

Leaving Toronto, she went to Chicago, and then on to Memphis, Tennessee, where she saw cotton growing. Here, the negroes were segregated from the white people. The weather grew warmer through Arkansas on to Texarkana which is on the border line. From here she went to Dallas, Texas, where there was much sand with many oil wells dotting the terrain. The country was very dusty with plentiful sagebush and jack rabbits as well as wild horses. Then on to El Paso, which is situated on a high plateau, and is a large, beautiful centre like an oasis in the desert.

Arriving in California just as the sun was rising, a vista of palm trees and flowers greeted the eyes seen, and then on into Los Angeles, which is an extensive city and then inland to Hollywood and Santa Barbara and by coastal route to San Francisco. This was a beautiful part of the trip. San Francisco is quite hilly and the cable car is the popular way to travel. November is the ideal month to visit California as there is no rain from May to September, things become very dry for a time.

Miss Fargey also showed pictures of Oakland Bay Bridge, Fisherman's Wharf, grottos, and Lake Merritt, and mentioned the Golden Gate Bridge, which is a single span one mile long; the Redwood Pacific Railroad which is operated solely by railway employees and for them. Golden Gate Park, which is near, contains 1,013 acres.

Votes of thanks were extended to Mrs. J. Fargey for her splendid report of the convener's conference and to Miss Marion Fargey, Reg.N., for her interesting travelogue.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social time was enjoyed.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

'll never keep friends if you are jealous

Fairfax:

[illegible] been seeing boy with this boy, who is 18, a little over a year. My [illegible] is that I'm jealous when [illegible] girl talks to him. When [illegible] say "hello" to him, I [illegible] him of going out with them. [illegible] him where he met them, [illegible] how. When he goes home [illegible] right from my house, I ask [illegible] if he is going to meet some[illegible]else. He gives me no reason to accuse him of going out [illegible] other girls, and when he [illegible] me talking with other boys, [illegible] makes no comment. It is just [illegible] who does all the arguing. [illegible] have tried to overcome this, [illegible] I just can't help being jealous, and I'm afraid I'm going [illegible] lose him if I don't stop acting [illegible]

Dolly

[illegible] Dolly:

[illegible]ince you realize so perfectly [illegible] it is wrong with you, it seems [illegible]ittle silly that you're not able [illegible] do anything about it. [illegible]hat you don't realize, perhaps, is that you're jealous [illegible] of someone, it usually means [illegible] you don't quite trust him. [illegible]you say he hasn't given you [illegible]reason to worry lest he is [illegible]ing out with other girls. [illegible]ou certainly are going to lose [illegible] if you keep on acting this [illegible], because no one is going to [illegible] for that sort of thing very [illegible]. If you don't stop feeling [illegible]ious, at least you can stop [illegible]ting that way. Instead, you [illegible]n stop questioning and accusing him, and make up your mind that you do like and trust [illegible] enough not to be afraid that a [illegible]-crossing you with [illegible]one else. If you act the [illegible] sensible girl, in time you [illegible] get to feel that way, [illegible]how, you'd better start right [illegible] if you ever expect to keep [illegible] friends.

Although I did [illegible] very foolish things when I [illegible]younger, I certainly never [illegible]mything so very terrible that [illegible]ould be talked about as I am [illegible]

[illegible]was always popular in [illegible]ol and had a great many dates. [illegible]Biggest trouble is that I am [illegible]friendly and believe in every[illegible]. Apparently people I consider my friends really were [illegible]. Anyway, they have told my [illegible]friend and his family that I [illegible]wild and not his type at all, [illegible]has always said that he knows [illegible]better than anyone else, and [illegible]he doesn't believe any of it, [illegible]his family have always been [illegible]nice to me and have not said [illegible]ord about all this until recently. Now they are wondering if [illegible]s what some people say, and [illegible]boyfriend tells me that he [illegible]he loves me, but that he too [illegible]begun to wonder, and finds [illegible]ard to trust me anymore. [illegible]ow can I regain his trust and [illegible]t can I do about these [illegible] stories? I know he loves [illegible]but I guess it is pretty hard [illegible]ear stories about me without [illegible]e doubts.

Clever Classics

Blue fallie frock

By VERA WINSTON

THE shops are rich with good-looking easy-to-wear classics, clothes that are good support for any wardrobe. This one is a classic daytimer fashioned of navy blue rayon tissue faille. The softening touches include a pretty collar, square neckline and a sparkling rhinestone hook-and-eye fastening down the bodice. Other details are dropped shoulders and half sleeves with flared cuffs. Seaming shapes the bodice terminating at the hip pockets.

Dear J.:

It's pretty hard for me, too, not to have some doubts when you say that stories are getting around that you are wild. It hardly seems possible that if a girl has always behaved as she should, people shouldn't be able to judge her character better than that.

Of course, you don't tell me exactly what these stories are, so it's pretty difficult for me to advise you. You are the only one who could possibly figure out whether or not any of them have any basis in fact. If you are quite sure they don't, then why don't you go to some of the people you think are talking about you, and ask them exactly where they got their information If they are just circulating malicious rumors, then you can at least have something definite to tell your boyfriend and his family, and if they really have confidence in you, they will be ready to take your word for it.

ICY LAND

The total area of Greenland is about 830,000 square miles of which only about 50,000 are free from ice.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S A NICE IDEA, that of the silk party suit. Pure silk taffeta in a rich shade of steel blue-gray is used for a beauty, slim of skirt and with a fitted jacket. The jacket is cut out and curved low to the waistline with tapering revers. Three-quarter length sleeves have flaring, pointed cuffs. With the suit a scoop-neck blouse of navy blue lace.

SLEEVES STAND OUT in many dresses. Blue and white silk in a tiny check makes a pretty dress marked by umbrella puff sleeves that fall into points at the elbow. Fabric buttons fasten the dress to below the waist. Skirt has a back panel pleat.

FORWARD is the position of many of the new hats. White straw for a big sailor, the underbrim faced with burgundy red velvet to within an inch of the edge. Trimmed with a cluster of matching red roses.

TRENDS are crystalizing already for autumn fashions. One such trend is the strong revival of the fine fur-trimmed coat. Two furs are used for a smart wrap-around coat, navy woollen. There is a flat yoke collar of lighter-than-navy dyed moleskin that is bordered by a wide band of matching blue-dyed fox.

SMART GIRLS are buying permanently pleated nylon ruffling by the yard and creating nice collar and cuff sets with but the addition of a button and loop or snap fasteners.

HANDBAGS are good travelling companions when well selected. Soft glove leather makes a big drawstring job with double-tackled strap handle. Curved side zipped compartment for big items, and an outside pocket for small items with a change purse on the flap.

Approximately one dollar out of every five spent on recreation in the United States goes to motion pictures.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckmas

No return address . . . No "and family".

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it considered good taste to write the return address on the envelopes of wedding invitations? I would like to do this to be sure that everyone receives the invitation. If it is permissible, should the address be written in the left-hand corner of the front of the envelope or on the back of the envelope?

2. Is it correct to address an invitation to "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith and family", to include the parents and the unmarried children in that family?

C. S.

1. No; it is not considered good taste to write the return address on the envelopes of wedding invitations and announcements. These invitations and announcements are extremely formal items, and every detail should be in the formal tradition. A return address on an envelope is obviously, not in the formal tradition. The point of view must be that every name and address must be checked and double-checked for accuracy, and then the envelopes must be addressed with extreme care by someone (or several) whose handwriting is absolutely legible and regular, and who has proper respect for exactness and care. If there is no possible way of checking on the address of some few, the return address may be written on the back of the envelopes addressed to these . . . but these would be the exceptions, not the rule.

2. Do not use the phrase "and family". There are correct ways to circumvent this taboo phrase. For example, if you are inviting the parents and several young children, address the outside envelope: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark; and on th e inside envelope write:

Mr. and Mrs. Clark
Frances, Marie and George
If there are two or more adult daughters, you may address one envelope to

The Misses Baker
or to:
Miss Mary Baker
Miss Alice Baker

If there are two or more adult sons, you may address on envelope to

The Messrs. Smithson
or to:
Mr. Henry Smithson
Mr. Paul Smithson

(Any of these forms makes the personal gesture the "and family" does not make.)

Surnames should have been written also

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Several days ago I attended a wedding with my boy friend. He and I are not personal friends of the bride. On the card enclosed with the wedding present we gave I signed our names like this: Jane Moore and John Dawson. My brother-in-law said that this was incorrect, that I should have signed the card "Jane and John". Which form was correct under the circumstances?

A Reader

You should have included your last names in the signature.

Since you and your boy friend did not know the bride very well, you were right and practical to sign your last names, for definite identification.

EIGHT TWO-STOREY

Panic followed the crash. And there was terror and confusion at the scene long into the night.

Thirty-three pieces of fire equipment answered the extra-alarm fire. Four hundred policemen were on duty.

Traffic snarled as more than 20,000 persons milled in the vicinity, flocking to the scene of Chicago's worst streetcar accident. It also was Chicago's worst fire disaster since 41 persons died in the La Salle Hotel blaze June 5, 1946.

Scream Hysterically

The frantic, trapped passengers screamed hysterically as they fought to flee from the flaming streetcar. Thirty-two of the estimated 48 passengers burned to death, their lives snuffed out in a matter of minutes after the collision. Many of their bodies were piled in a sheared mass at the rear doors.

The truck driver perished in the cab of his truck. It was loaded with between 7,000 and 8,000 gallons of gasoline.

Only a few of the dead passengers were identified. Many were burned beyond recognition. One was believed to have been the motorman, Paul Manning, 42.

The conductor escaped by jumping through a rear window. About 15 passengers escaped in the same manner, many of them with clothes aflame. The rear doors on the streetcar jammed and the Chicago transit authority ordered an investigation.

Stream-lined Car

The crash occurred as the streetcar — one of the new stream-lined cars — moving south in State Street, swung suddenly to the left to enter a switch back siding in a vacant lot on the east side of the street. A flooded underpass at 64th Street had made it necessary to reroute the car.

Witnesses said the car crashed into the northbound truck. Gasoline poured out of the torn sides of the trailers, spilling and spraying over the streetcar into the street.

A transit authority spokesman said the car was moving at a brisk speed when it entered the switch. A flagman said he frantically waved at Motorman Manning that the switch was open—in a position which would change the course of the car. The car continued on—and collided with the gasoline truck.

No One Could Escape

One witness —Peter Simadis, 40, a tavern owner near the crash scene—said the fire "was travelling in a series of explosions, spreading so fast that no one could have escaped its path.

The intense heat blistered billboards 75 feet away. Four or five explosions followed the crash.

Mrs. Mary Pokorney, 42, a telephone company supervisor and one of the passengers who escaped with minor injuries said one passenger had shouted a warning "look out" before the crash.

"Then I heard a crash and the car rocked, then righted itself," she said. "... I saw people sprawled about the car. There was black smoke everywhere. . . .At first all doors were closed. Then someone got the back door open and I fell out."

Screams Horrible

Another passenger, Arleen Franze, 18, said "everyone in the streetcar was jumbled up and the screams were horrible. It was just like a nightmare."

She said the passengers could not open the rear doors.

"They clawed at them, but they wouldn't open. Finally a colored women smashed a window with her fist and people crawled through it."

Other passengers described the frantic efforts of passengers to get out of the burning car. Many were trampled in the aisle and others were killed before they could get to the broken windows.

When the bodies of the victims were removed, they were laid in a charred mass under tarpaulins on the sidewalk and priests administered last rites of the church to the group.

FLOOD DISASTER

The river-level reading at 5 a.m. CDT today was 22.35 feet, down a little more than five inches in 24 hours. It still was more than 10 feet above flood stage, but falling steadily.

No Failures Expected

Mr. Stephens said he agreed with a Canadian, Press assessment that:

There is only a remote possibility now that any failure of public utilities such as electricity and water, will occur.

Greater Winnipeg's 20 miles of dikes probably will hold firm since the pressure on them is being reduced hourly;

All risk of further serious damage in the greater Winnipeg area will disappear as soon as there is assurance favorable weather will continue through Monday.

Today there was a good prospect the weather will be about perfect through the weekend.

Brig. Morton was less definite than Mr. Stephens Thursday, but he was more optimistic than any other time since he was called in by the provincial government May 6 when the Red's full fury struck first at greater Winnipeg.

"It can no longer recommend the necessity for people to leave town," he told his press conference. It was clearly a hint he no longer feared mass evacuation under which almost the whole of greater Winnipeg's 350,000 normal population would have been moved out by the army.

Even before he relaxed his appeal for residents to quit the flood zone, the voluntary movement from the city had virtually stopped. But it had reached 100,000 persons—mostly women, children, old folks and invalids.

Col. F. T. Meldren of Washington, a civil-defence officer, said the exodus was "comparable to what might be expected . . . In a future war." He had been "impressed and amazed" by the efficiency of the population transfer.

Some of the evacuees have already come back. Brig Morton urged the others to wait until their flooded home are declared it to live in. They would be advised when it seems "reasonably safe to return."

Several greater Winnipeg areas previously considered dangerous — including some streets behind the huge Lyndale dike protecting St. Boniface—have been opened to returning evacuees.

South from the city proper is a series of sloughs that 25,000 people once called home in St. Vital.

Beyond that, the valley south to the international border is a quagmire where the river has receded. A 600-square mile river-formed lake has largely drained to create a farmers' nightmare. Basins of water trapped in depressions of land must evaporate or sink into the ground before seeding can begin.

ROCKY PASSAGE

Mr. Chevrier said the legislation was necessary because safety regulations now could be ignored since they did not have the force of law. There had been infractions.

Wants Greater Benefits

When the Aeronautics bill finally was cleared through the committee stage, the chamber turned to study of Mr. Chevrier's departmental estimates and he heard Mr. Green renew his sessional fight for greater benefits for veterans of Canada's wartime Merchant Navy.

The senate opened debate on a motion seeking reform of the commons and heard Senator G. H. Ross (L—Alberta), its sponsor, charge that "horseplay" goes on in the lower house in the making of the law and that its members are wont to engage in vote-catching tactics.

In the aeronautics debate, Mr. Green urged that the Air Transport Board be given greater freedom. Its "handicaps" dated from the date when Mr. Howe was transport minister because "he likes to have power in his hands." Through holding another portfolio, Mr. Howe still was the arbiter of T.C.A. routes.

Powers Limited

The government had said the board would help expand Canadian civil aviation, but its judical powers were limited because any approving decision it gave in a licence application could be vetoed by the transport minister. At the same time, any denial it gave could be appealed to the minister.

Gordon Graydon (PC—Peel) said the public found it "very confusing" that the T.C.A. should be under the trade minister.

Mr. Chevrier told the chamber it would be "improper" for the board to have powers which were too wide when the largest air line in Canada—T.C.A.—was owned by the government. As for the operation of T.C.A. by Mr. Howe, that was the decision of the cabinet.

Termed Retrograde

In the clash over a safety directives, Mr. Diefenbaker termed the provision "a retrograde step" under which parliament would abdicate its legislative authority to officials who could act "on the caprice of the events of the moment."

Mr. Graydon said the directives "take us another mile along the road of order-in-council government."

Mr. Chevrier said the directives were framed by himself—were necessary because there were times when the urgency of a situation made it essential to move more quickly than orders-in-council made possible.

Purchase Tax In U.K. to Stay Says Cripps

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 26 (CP)—Purchase tax, which makes an ordinary British radio two or three times as expensive as its Canadian counterpart, is here to stay.

Sir Stafford Cripps, brushing aside all Conservative arguments to the contrary, said the tax has replaced other indirect taxes, and must become a permanent feature of the economy.

Anyone who proposes to abolish purchase tax, the Chancellor of the Exchequer said in the House of Commons, will have to find another way of raising £300,000,000 ($930,000,000) a year.

Sir Stafford was answering Conservative criticism of the finance bill, which implements provisions in Britain's 1950-51 budget. Anthony Eden, deputy Conservative leader, earlier recommended appointment of a commission to study proposals for removing anomalies in the tax.

Purchase tax originally was introduced as a wartime expedient. It adds between 33⅓ to 100 per cent to the retail price of a wide range of goods.

Currently, clothing organizations are trying to organize a revolt of housewives against the high price of clothes. One of the chief grievances is that the price differential is so great between utility goods, which are exempt from purchase tax, and non-utility goods, which often bear the full tax.

Utility good are those produced under standard specifications, with the idea of guaranteeing reasonable quality at low price.

One standard complaint is that good-quality gabardine skirts sell at about $25 ($13.85), if you can get them, compared with £5 or more in the non-utility range.

W. Lister Barber, a London clothing merchant, recently called purchase tax "today's biggest criminal" in forcing up living costs. H. W. M. Brown of Portsmouth told a London meeting:

"I must quite a large number of dear old ladies who are old-age pensioners. They want to buy a piece of flannel to make a night-gown to keep out the cold. They have to pay the tax, because, according to the government, it is a luxury."

TWO MEN HELD

Hamilton, May 25 — (CP) — Police said they found Peter Horne, 33 hiding under display materials in the front window of the Mills Hardware Company early today. They said they stopped Edward Wells, 48, as he moved along an aisle of the store after a citizen reported hearing a noise in the building.

In court later, Horne and Wells were committed for trial on a break-in charge. They asked for trial by judge and jury.

729 Stations Will Carry Show For Relief Fund

Toronto, May 26 (CP)—George Formby the English comic, arrived by air Thursday and was flabbergasted when he was told the extent of the radio network that will carry the all-star benefit show here tonight on behalf of Manitoba Flood Relief.

Formby is one of numerous headliners on the variety show at Maple Leaf Gardens here. A veteran stage comic, he scanned the tentative program and the line-up of radio stations and said "I'm mortal afraid."

Three more United States radio chains Thursday came in on the relief show network, making a total of 729 radio stations in the United States and Canada. Networks include the CBC, MBS, and ABC, formerly the Blue network of the NBC.

Kidnap Child, Demand $18,000 Ransom in Gold

Mexico City, May 25 (AP) — Two men kidnapped the six-year-old daughter of a millionaire movie house operator Thursday and left a note demanding $18,000 ransom in gold.

The child, Norma Granat, was snatched as she and her nurse left the home of her father, Samuel Granat, owner of a chain of movie houses. The men gave the nurse the ransom demand then drove quickly away with the child.

The note gave no instructions for delivering the gold, but warned that if police were notified "the child will be killed."

Says Russ Explode A-Bomb Stronger Than U.S. Bomb

New York, May 26 — (AP) — The London editor who claimed knowledge of Russia's first atomic explosion now says he has reports that the Russians have tested a new type atomic bomb stronger than anything tested out thus far by the United States.

Kenneth De Courcy, editor of a private news letter, said in a statement here Thursday:

"The reports reaching us persist that Russia has exploded some kind of bomb many times more powerful than the type of atomic bomb used by the western powers."

De Courcy said the information was based on reports from observers he did not name.

Navy Scores 2-2 Tie With 6 R.D. In Soccer Game

Two goals by Navy newcomer Keith Carr-Brainl gave Navy a 2-2 tie with 6 R.D. last night in a Bay of Quinte Soccer League fixture at the Fair Grounds.

Navy won the toss and kicked off with the sun at their backs. Airforce centre forward, Rimmer, scored the first goal shortly after the kickoff and the shaken Navy squad began to press. Carr-Brainl evened the scoring late in the first half and then put the Navy one up with his second goal. The airforce hammered home the equalizer just before the first half whistle with Harrison scoring on a low drive into the left hand corner of the net.

The two teams played through a furious but scoreless second half with Navy having a slight edge in the play.

Line ups:

Belleville Navy: Hughes, Leich, Longhurst, O'Bryan, Murphy, Salter, Carr-Brainl, Jones, J. Jones, Carter, Carr-Brainl, Hatfield.

6 R.D.— Land, Chilton, Bett, Loutit; Eatherly, Adcock, Law, Woodcock, Rimmer, Harrison, McNeil, Robinson, Fletcher, Wright.

Referee: Angus.

Red River Floods Described by Two Who Were There

Ottawa, May 26 — (CP) — A graphic story of the Red River Valley flood was told today by two men who were there.

It was the story of a surging river that mocked man's puny efforts to hold it back, story of submerged towns, smashed homes, sunken cars and tractors and of dikes and sandbags.

The two men who told it were Ted Burch, 35, of Wilfordale, a suburb of Winnipeg and Bruce Mackenzie, 40-year-old farmer-councillor of the municipality of Morris. They are making a trans-Canada "thank you" trip sponsored by the Winnipeg Free Press and backed by the Manitoba flood relief fund.

In an interview they told the town of Morris went under water, with all but 13 of its 1,300 people evacuated, how Winnipeg became "a city in the middle of a war" with trucks, bulldozers and dike workers on duty everywhere.

The damage, they said, will be heavy but it will take months to get any kind of an accurate estimate.

Mackenzie, who spent six weeks in hip-boots during the flood, said some people believed the worst was over. So far as Morris was concerned he thought "the worst has yet to come when evacuated people come home and find out what the score is."

Wheat Purchase Announcement Expected Tuesday

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, May 26 — (CP)—An announcement probably will be made early next week on Britain's future wheat purchases from Canada, Trade Minister C. D. Howe of Canada said Thur.

Howe said the announcement will be made probably next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The Canadian minister, who left later today by air for Canada, thus erased all doubts about the progress of the Anglo-Canadian wheat negotiations.

There had been persistent reports which said the negotiations foundered over the question of price.

"That is not true," Howe said in an interview. "I have had a very happy and satisfactory visit in which I dealt with a number of matters.

Howe declined to specify the "other matters" he discussed here. Earlier today spokesmen for the treasury and Canada House categorically denied a report by Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express that the wheat talks had broken down.

HAPPY WITH OUTCOME

Montreal, May 26—(CP)—Trade Minister C. D. Howe arrived here early today from London where he attended wheat and lumber talks with United Kingdom officials and left immediately for Ottawa. Mr. Howe said he was happy with the outcome of the talks but could make no statement before conferring with other cabinet ministers.

(By The Canadian Press)

The danger of spring floods over in Eastern Canada, another equally serious menace — forest fire — has taken its place.

To date, the main brunt has been borne by Ontario and Quebec where a ban on forest travel in practically all parts of the province has been applied, but the maritime provinces also have had a taste of the annual scourge.

The ban on forest travel in Quebec was announced in Quebec City Thursday by Lands Minister Bourque and followed the outbreak of a number of brush and forest fires through a wide area of the provinces.

A Dominion government spokesman said that although the situation is not alarming at present, the government was taking no chances.

Yesterday night, a spokesman in Quebec said the general situation was "improved" as 2,000 men continued to work in widely-scattered areas to keep the fires from spreading.

Two serious fires are reported burning in the townships of Caldwell and Biencourt, both in Charlevoix county on the north shore of the St. Lawrence River.

65 Fires in Ontario

At Ottawa, the Lands and Forests Department announced that 65 fires are being fought in Ontario in blazes that extend from Port Arthur in the northwest to Cornwall in the east.

The most serious situation is in the Timiskaming and Sudbury districts where 36 fires are being fought.

Although all forest fires in Nova Scotia are under control, government officials warned at Halifax that the "hazard is very high."

Forest travel permits were cancelled in the five northern counties of New Brunswick.

Apart from the brush fires in Quebec, there are four more are burning in heavy timber at Trinette Dee Monts, near Rimouski, Que., from Ste. Pegole, in Provincia county and near Pinet in Terrebonne. Under favorable weather conditions, these fires are expected to be brought under control.

In Ontario, the hazard is rated from "high" to "extreme" throughout the province.

GIVEN 36 YEARS

Rouen, France, May 26 (AP)—Louis Blondeau, 39, accused of causing his wife's death by forcing her to sit twice while naked on a hot stove, was sentenced Thursday to 20 years at hard labor. A jury in the assize court here found Blondeau, a hairdresser, guilty of voluntary homicide. He denied the charge. The wife died as a result of her burns.

RESTRICT TRAVEL

Washington, May 26 (AP) —British, American and French officials are discussing the possibility of restricting the travel of communist diplomats in their countries. Government officials said the matter was discussed by the three governments at the foreign ministers conferences in London early this month. No immediate decision was reached, they said.

Industrialists Asked to Find Places for Vets.

Toronto, May 26 (CP)—Veterans Affairs Minister Gregg today asked Canadian industrialists to find places in their plants for middle-aged veterans of the First World War.

Addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, he said some 13,000 of them are at present registered as in need of employment.

"Some of the arguments against employing men over 45 are pretty well known. There is the standard one about the greater costs to the company's pension plan and group life insurance.

"It is true it will cost a little more, but, if you will have your actuarial people work out for you, you will find that the percentage increases won't be as great as it first appears; and I am sure that the rewards will far outweigh the money costs...

"Through it you can leave these men to the care of government, or you can continue the practice of direct method of utilizing their skills, loyalties and integrity—many of them old comrades of yours and mine, and get for your money the service the loyalty they will give you..."

The 12,000 stated Mr. Gregg, constitute less than three per cent of nearly 500,000 veterans of the First World War still alive.

Sound Policy

C. A. Pollock of Kitchener told the meeting's research conference:

"It is sound policy and planning for the future for small Canadian businesses to familiarize themselves up with research facilities as a first step on the outside and, secondly, inside the business organizations.

"Research can be done by utilizing the industrial research services of the Ontario Research Foundation and, after experience in this manner, the second stage can be moved into by adding research staff to the organization on a utility basis.

"It is recognized everywhere that the future of industry is closely linked with industrial and scientific research. In this sense Ontario has opportunities not paralleled elsewhere in Canada, and perhaps not equalled anywhere on this continent when supporting population is considered. It only remains for manufacturers to make the best use of them."

NEW HEARING SET

Toronto, May 26—(CP)—Hearing of Toronto's new application for amalgamation with surrounding municipalities will probably begin in the week of June 12, the Ontario Municipal Board said Thursday. An earlier application was thrown out on the grounds that only whole municipalities could be amalgamated.

One-Legged Diver Cheats Death, Hits Tank Bottom

Westbrook, Me., May 26 (AP) —A one-legged, one-eyed carnival torch diver, whose head struck the bottom of a shallow tank in a 100-foot dive Wednesday night, left hospital yesterday with only a stiff neck and a few facial bruises.

"I think I'm going to be all right after a day's rest," said Duncan J. Fairlie.

The 32-year-old performer has cheated death many times. He plans to try the spectacular dive here again Saturday night.

While 2,000 spectator gasped, Fairlie's head crunched against the tank Wednesday night with a horrible thud.

"That was nothing," he said. "I've broken my nose 14 times, my jaw twice and my fingers so many times that I can't recall."

Young Husband Likes Trading Horses too Well

Brighton, N.Y., May 26 (AP) —Mrs. Lisa Murray MacGee, who preferred "a young man's love to an old age pension," is spending her honeymoon anniversary away from hubby.

The 25-year-old woman still wears the dime-store ring that Clarence MacGee, 36, slipped on her finger two years ago today.

But she is visiting a son in Cedenburg for a couple of weeks, and MacGee is working on farms near here.

She and MacGee have had financial troubles, Mrs. MacGee said.

"Clarence can't work much because of his asthma, and he likes horse-trading too well," she told a reporter. MacGee has owned about 100 horses since their marriage.

TWO MEN REMANDED

Cornwall, May 26 — (CP) — Kenneth Johnston, 49, and Frank Gendron, 52, both of Pendleton, today were remanded a week for sentence, after they pleaded guilty to 10 charges of issuing worthless cheques.

Johnston is under a 10 year sentence imposed at Belleville on similar charges. Gredron was given six months by the Belleville court.

The two men were arrested last March at Stayner. They had in their possession a cheque making machine.

Counterfeit Plot Broken at Miami, Eight Are Held

New York, May 26 — (AP) — Seven men and an attractive blonde have been seized in a crackdown on an alleged $3,000,000 counterfeit smuggling ring said to be linked to a Caribbean revolution plot.

The fantastic scheme, according to an authoritative source, was to sneak $3,000,000 in bogus United States bills into Cuba's national treasury, exchange them for good Cuban money and then finance a revolt in the Dominican Republic.

The blonde and four men were arrested here and one man was apprehended in Miami Thursday. Two Cubans were held in that country.

An indictment returned by a federal grand jury here alleged a conspiracy to buy money from a big American counterfeit ring. They did not mention the reported Dominican revolution connection.

The alleged plan to milk the Cuban treasury was revealed before U.S. Commissioner Edward W. McDonald.

No Comment

"What was to be done with the $3,000,000 in Cuban money?" The commissioner asked. "That's enough to start a revolution."

Roy M. Cohn, assistant U.S. attorney, replied: "There has been speculation." But he added that his boss, U.S. Attorney Irving H. Saypol, "will not comment on that."

The speculation to which Cohn referred was about a revolution plot.

Those arrested here were: Charlotte Whitehurst, 25; Jesus M. Rolan, 39-year-old restaurant worker; Henry Chavarria, 55; Joe Antonio Roche, 50, and Rudolph Schmidt, 53.

Man Surrenders And is Charged With Murder

Toronto, May 26 (CP)— William G. D. Clark, 24, of Toronto, sought in connection with a hotel room slaying in Windsor, surrendered to police Thursday and was charged with murder.

Clark denied any connection with the slaying.

He said he read from newspaper accounts that police were looking for a man named Clark in connection with the fatal beating of Mrs. Margaret Cody, 53, whose nude body was discovered in a Windsor hotel room Tuesday.

"I was in that hotel Monday night, but I'm not the man they're looking for," Clark is reported to have told police.

The room the woman's body was found in was registered under the name of William Clark of Toronto.

Clark said he went to police to clear up suspicions in regard to his name and the fact that he had been in Windsor at the time of the crime.

Following Clark's surrender, Toronto police communicated with Windsor police and found they held a murder warrant for Clark. He was then charged with murder. He is being held pending arrival of Windsor police.

NILE DAM

One of the Nile River's regulatory dams, at Gabel Awlia, Egypt is the longest in the world — 18,400 feet across.

50, was seized in Miami. The Cubans are Jr. Jose Manuel Fernandez, 60, said by Cohn to be prominent in Cuban politics, and Fina Mon, 38.

All the U.S. defendants were charged either with passing or conspiring to pass counterfeit money.

CBC Chairman Says System Can Get Along on Current Revenue Only if Service Cut

Ottawa, May 26 — (CP) — A. D. Dunton, chairman of the CBC, said Thursday that the publicly-owned National Radio Broadcasting system could live within its means if it slashed services.

He made the statement before the Commons Committee on radio broadcasting after disclosing that the CBC is heading for its third consecutive deficit.

He was asked by A. L. Smith (PC — Calgary West) if an end to the deficits was in sight. Mr. Smith said he did not want to see the corporation follow the footsteps of the publicly - owned Canadian National Railways and finish continually in the red.

Mr. Dunton said that in 1938 Parliament had said it was providing the CBC with revenues from a $2.50 annual licence fee on radio-receiving sets. It told the Corporation to go out and do its best and live within its means.

The CBC had been able to do that for years, but then it got caught in the squeeze between static revenues and climbing costs. The CBC felt that while a $2.50 fee might have been sufficient in 1936, it was not enough today when the value of the dollar was about half of what it was 14 years ago.

The CBC could still operate on the revenue from a $2.50 fee, but it would have to reduce service to some parts of the country, eliminate some programs, reduce the quality of others, abolish some departments and cut staff.

The CBC felt that any decision to reduce services should be made by Parliament.

Needs Higher Licence Fee

Mr. Dunton estimated that to continue present services and to provide for expansions and improvements the CBC would need a licence fee of $5 a year on radio receiving sets, or its equivalent.

He said that with revenues of $13,000,000 or $15,000,000 a year the CBC felt it could provide a good national service and carry out many improvements it has in mind.

The CBC would like to spend an additional $1,000,000 a year on programs. It spent $4,198,000 in 1949-50.

"Mr. Dunton said preliminary figures showed that the CBC ended the 1949-50 fiscal year with a deficit of $242,000. This compared with a deficit of $43,000 in the previous fiscal year. A deficit of $900,000 is forecast for 1950-51 if additional revenues are not forthcoming.

Revenues in the last fiscal year were $7,998,000 and expenditures $8,029,000. The revenues were made up of $3,481,000 from the licence fee on receiving sets and from television; $2,368,000 from commercial broadcasting and $149,000 from miscellaneous sources.

Ottawa May 26 (CP)—Out of mass of material seized by ice as a prelude to Canada's eported 1946 spy probe has ne clues as the identity of some ames still under police in-stigation.

hese persons, Justice Minister son told the Commons Wed-sday, are among the 150 per-s listed in a pocket address book which named Dr. Klaus hs, United Kingdom atomic y now serving a prison term 14 years.

Because of the nature of cur-nt investigations, Mr. Garson d in reply to E.D. Fulton (PC-Kamloops) that it was "not de-rable to specify the number of sons identified" in the note-

ite of many thousands of do-ents seized, the notebook, Mr. Garson contained names of 150 persons resident in Can-da at the time of the 1946 spy istry.

Keenness in Indentifying

The majority of entries in the ebook referred to "profession-l people and others of good re-e whose loyalty is beyond estion," but there is a "limited-mber who could be suspected either espionage or subversive tivity."

In all such cases where posi-e identification proved pos-ble" said Mr. Garson, "the en-s were then related to and ght with on the appropriate in-stigation files."

The notebook, he added, has been examined for "points in the st of spy developments, such the arrest and trial of Dr. chs, or wherever it was "in-icated that such re-examina-n might contribute to or engthen security measures."

Questioned by Mr. Fulton as how many of those 150 persons e been or now are in the gov-nment's employment since 1945, Garson answered guardedly, at the question could not be swered precisely because of the e covered and the "vagueness" the identifying data available the book.

It can be said, however, that number involved was small." Mr. Garson added that there uld be no reflection on the alty of other government em-yees identified, with the ex-ption of two persons who ap-ared before the Royal Com-ssion on espionage and subse-ently resigned from the gov-nment service.

Told of Harry Gold

Washington, May 26 — (AP)— nator Brien McMahon (Dem.-nn.) said today the Federal reau of Investigation set its on at least two months ago for Philadelphia bio-chemist Harry old, who is being held on charges aiding atomic spy Klaus Fuchs. This disclosure by McMahon, airman of the Senate-House of resentatives Atomic Energy mmittee, came on the heels of formation that the F.B.I. sifted ough a list of 1,200 suspects fore it finally ran gold down. The 38-year-old Philadelphian is arrested Tuesday night and ussed of receiving secret in-rmation about United States mic developments from Fuchs d passing it on to the Russians. Fuchs is the German-born at-omic scientist who recently was sentenced to a 14-year prison term by a British court after his conviction on charges that he stole British and American atomic secrets for the Soviet Union.

The trail led to Gold after the list of 1,200 suspects was narrowed down to a group of chemists in the New York-Philadelphia area.

The trap finally was sprung, officials said after Fuchs (A) told agents in Britain that his contact was a biological chemist—whose name he did not recall—and (B) identified Gold's picture as that of the man to whom he has passed information.

Suspicion As To Third

There was some speculation that the third man in the espionage triangle—the one who got the secrets Gold is charged with receiving—was a member of the Russian Embassy staff here. This person, referred to in official documents as "John Doe," is believed to be in the Soviet Union now.

Gold was charged with committing espionage during wartime, an offence which is punishable by death or up to 30 years in prison.

Fuchs was questioned about his contacts by F.B.I. agents and Scotland yard detectives last Saturday, again Tuesday, and a third time yesterday.

British and American officials received a bundle of secret documents by plane from New York Wednesday. The papers were carried by a special courier who kept them under guard all during the trip. What connection, if any, they might have with the Gold case was not disclosed.

$5,000,000 LIBEL SUIT FILED IN CHICAGO

Chicago, May 25 (AP)—Preston Tucker Wednesday filed a $5,000,000 libel suit against the Crowell-Collier Publishing Company, charging an article in Collier's magazine June 25, 1949, libeled him. The article was written by Leslie Velie and was titled "The Fantastic Story of the Tucker Car." Tucker and seven associates were acquitted Jan. 22 on charges of mail fraud and securities exchange commission violations in connection with his $28,000,000 rear-engine car enterprise, which Snapped.

New Teachers Appointed to Sidney Schools

The Sidney School Area Board held two meetings in May to carry on the business required. A regular meeting was held at Wallbridge on the regular night and a special meeting was held at Avondale school on Monday night. Besides the regular business was the report of the teacher committee.

Resignations had been received from Mrs. I. Arbuckle who had accepted a position on the Frankford P. S. staff; Miss Beryl Gilbert who has been accepted on the Trenton P. S. staff; Miss Luella Homan who is going to Kenora and Miss Mary Shannon to a school near Marmora. Miss Marianne Rutherford had already informed the board that she had accepted a position on the staff of the Ontario School for the Deaf. The board accepted these resignations with regret.

The supervising principal reported that he had made a trip to the Peterborough Normal School to interview applicants for these positions. The following applicants were accepted: — Miss Lillian Cunningham, Wellington, for Johnstown school; Miss Sheila McEwen, Belleville, for Hogle's school, and Miss Katherine Benton, Peterborough, to teach at Meadowdale. The Principation minimum salary of $1,800, was accepted. Miss Reta Harrison, who taught for a time in Peterborough was engaged to teach at Riverside for the coming term. Glen Ross Wins Banner

Glen Ross school, whose attendance has been exceptionally regular all through the year although they had never captured the banner for the highest monthly attendance, finally were rewarded for their efforts. Their percentage for April was 98.5 per cent with Marsh Hill's 98.25 per cent bringing them second place.

More Accommodation Needed

The increased attendance at Avondale, Belcrest and Bayside, occupied a good part of the discussion of the second meeting. Several suggestions were made for a temporary solution to take care of the expected September enrolment, while plans for building an extension to Avondale school go through the regular channels for approval and construction. A committee was formed to look into the matter and arrange for details.

Hydro for Riverside

The extension of the hydro line past Riverside School (S. S. 17) will make it possible to have lights installed in this school. This is the only school in the area without hydro service. The secretary was authorized to advertise for tenders for wiring the school according to the specifications and approval of the Department of Education.

Replies Being Tabulated

Replies are still being received from the letter and questionnaire sent out by the board to the parents and ratepayers. To date seventy-five per cent of the replies favor school area with 25 per cent opposed. Various reasons were given for and against. These are being tabulated and will form the basis of a discussion at a meeting being called by the board. The majority of replies favored a meeting or meetings to discuss local and general area problems. With this in mind the board decided to hold a general meeting at the Orange Hall, Wallbridge.

Steel Employees Vote to Accept 1950 Contract

Hamilton, May 26—(CP)—Employees of The Steel Company of Canada have voted to accept the 1950 contract covering some 3,500 workers negotiated by Local 1005 of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.)

Acceptance of the two-year contract followed 11 weeks of negotiations climaxed by agreement in principle reached May 1 between the union negotiating committee and company officials. Details of the contract were worked out in subsequent meetings and put to a vote Tuesday following a report to the union membership.

Larry Sefton, area supervisor for the union and member of the local's negotiating committee, said the contract was accepted by a good majority.

The contract provides for a wage increase of eight cents an hour retroactive to April 1 with an additional five cents effective April 1, 1951. This boosts the basic rate to $1.12 this year and $1.17 next year. The work-week is reduced from 44 to 40 hours.

A joint committee will study the present company pension plan which provides a maximum of $1,000 a year but averaging $50 a month.

In addition the agreement provides a contributory sick benefit plan covering a $2,500 group life insurance policy. On retirement of the employee the company will bear the cost of $1,250 of that policy. The contract also provides for statutory holidays, seniority and other working conditions.

French Filly Wins Famed Oaks In Heavy Rain

By The Canadian Press

Asmena, a French filly who seemed lame as she paraded to the post, romped home ahead of 14 rivals in the rain Thursday to win the famed Epsom Oaks.

Plume Two, another French-bred horse, was second, a length back of the winner. British-bred Stella Polaris was third, another 1½ lengths away.

The royal family was on hand for the 1 1-3-mile classic for three-year-old fillies, but the King's entry, Above Board, never was in contention.

Asmena, a chestnut daughter of Goy-Astronomie, returned 5-1 and was ridden by Jess Johnstone, an Australian jockey who rides most-ly in France.

It was France's second victory of the season in an English classic. Camarero, the 3-4 favorite in Thursday's race, won the first of the season's classics—the 1,000 Guineas, also four fillies.

Asmena was time in 2:42 2-5 and earned a purse of £8,400.

In the royal box were the king, the queen and the two princesses, and the Queen mother who celebrates her 53rd birthday today.

Residence rules bar George Masters, Toronto lacrosse player, from playing the British Columbia Lacrosse League this season so far as the Canadian Lacrosse Association is concerned.

Gene Dopp, secretary of the C. L. A., said Thursday night at Toronto that Masters, now on holiday in Vancouver, is expected in Toronto shortly. Masters is signed with Hamilton in the Senior Ontario League this year.

The Vancouver Richmond-Kerridale team of the Coast Intercity League seeks Masters' services and may be allowed to use him in a couple of games.

Dopp explained that the Vancouver club can use Masters in a couple of exhibition games while the player is on the coast. But the C.L.A. rules are that a player must qualify by April 30 under the residence rule, and Masters did not do this as far as Vancouver is concerned. Therefore he is not eligible to play league games on the coast under the C.L.A.

Montreal Alouettes announced Thursday night that Johnny Newman and Marv Meirowitz, two linemen who starred with McGill University football teams, have signed with the Big Four club.

Both players graduate from McGill this spring.

These McGill acquisitions are the first since the Alouettes and Redmen established a close liaison with the arrival of coach Vic Obeck at McGill a few seasons ago.

President Leo Dandurand of Alouettes commented: "We knew that in time McGill would be able to supply us with prospects for the Alouettes and I am delighted that our close association with the Redmen has started to pay off."

Said coach Lew Hayman: "Both Newman and Meirowitz have come to us highly recommended and we're going to give them every chance to make the team.

At Fort Worth, Tex., Sam Snead the money man from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., swept in Thursday with a four-under-par 66 to tie the giant Skip Alexander, the Knoxville, Tenn., slugger, for first place in the opening round of the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament.

Alexander's great round —just one stroke over the competitive record for par 35-35—7,035-yard Colonial country club course —stood up until Snead, golf's No. 1 man in money winnings and everything else, posted an identical 33-33.

Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash., finished next with a 68 while E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Canadian open champ from St. Andrews, Ill., and Jaumy Demaret tied for the next spot with 69s.

Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., the tournament favorite, had a 71 and a tie for ninth place.

Mancester, England's barnstorming soccer team, scored an easy 5-0 victory over the St. Louis Simpkins Thursday night at St. Louis before a crowd of 8,500.

The St. Louis team, National cup champions, was outclassed throughout. At the half, the visitors led 3-0 and from then on it was merely a matter of what the final margin would be.

The Englishmen have won four and tied one in their 13-game tour of the United States and Canada.

Yuhas Scores Sixth Victory Without Loss

(By The Associated Press)

Eddie Yuhas, who never won more than 10 games in any of his previous three seasons in baseball, is well on the road to a 20-victory campaign.

The 26-year-old righthander with the high-flying Rochester Red Wings turned in his sixth victory without a loss Thursday night as he pitched the Wings to a 10-6 victory over Montreal Royals.

The victory also was the Wings' sixth straight and it moved them within 1½ games of the International League's pace-setting Royals. The Wings are two percentage points behind the runner-up Syracuse Chiefs.

Yuhas, who was signed by the parent St. Louis Cardinals in 1943, didn't play professionally until 1947 due to a four-year stretch in the United States Army.

Yuhas had the Royals beaten, 10-4, going into the ninth when he weakened a bit, walked a batter and permitted two singles. Consecutive errors by Ed Mietzkowski and Joel Wilber followed and little Jackie Collum took over. Collum nailed the next three hitters to end the game.

Lefty Bill Kennedy pitched his second straight shutout as Baltimore Orioles defeated Jersey City Giants 4-0 in the only other game played.

Kennedy, who set an organized ball record in 1946 when he fanned 456 batters for Rocky Mount, N.C., allowed only four singles in besting Andy Tomasic.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, May 25 — (AP) — You can't say those Dodgers aren't right up to date - - - Take that goofy play Wednesday night for instance, when Gil Hodges and Jackie Robinson thundered down on the plate together - - - The rule under which Jackie was declared out had only been in the book for two days - - - When the Major League rules interpretation committee met May 4, they found a long-standing interference rule had been overlooked in re-writing the code for 1950 - - - So they came up with an amendment which says: "The penalty imposed by this rule shall be inflicted also on any batter or base runner who has been retired and who obstructs or interferes with any following play being made on a base runner. The base runner shall be declared out for the interference of his teammate of team-mates."

Brown Study

This happened a few years ago, so Paul Brown can get a chuckle out of it now - - - The Cleveland Browns coach is father of three lively and football-minded sons, Robin, Mike and Pete - - - When Mike was five years old he tried to emulate a comic strip favorite by tying a sheet to the foot of his bed and climed out a second-storey window - - - He lost his grip and broke a leg when he hit the ground - - - When the distraught parent was summoned to the hospital, Mike greeted him "Dad, I'll bet you're glad it was me instead of Horace Gillon." - - - Gillon was Brown's star fullback at Ohio State University.

Several horses that have been touted as Plate winners at one time or another trailed those two last week. All assessible winners Saturday when they travel 1¼ miles, or three furlongs longer than the trials.

Carr Hatch's Unionville will be ridden by Jockey J. Nichols, who rode the winner of the last race at Belmont Park, New York, Thursday. Hatch had been unable to secure Eddie Arcaro to ride his good colt.

Two other United States riders definitely engaged are Chris Rogers, aboard Vince Sheridan's Mac-Gill, and Clarence Picou rider of Blue Dance.

The official entries later today will give a definite line on the starting field. Possibilities are for a total between 12 and 16, and if the maximum goes, some will have to be started outside of the automatic starting-gates. The track can accommodate comfortably about 16 racers, but a field of that size will bring some jamming on the turns.

Between 12 and 16 Horses Will Start In King's Plate

Toronto, May 25—(CP) — The racing strip at historic Woodbine Park will be crowded with good thoroughbreds when they start the classic King's Plate Saturday afternoon. And no one feels too sure in choosing the winner of the 91st renewal of the Plate, which this year has $20,000 added to the King's 50 guineas.

A total of 17 Canadian-bred three-year-olds started in the Plate's trial last Saturday, split into two divisions. Jack McIntyre's Blue Dance was an easy winner of one division, covering six furlongs in 1.15. J. Frowde Seagram's Roanlie won the other division in COME ON CUBS!

Belleville Cubs garbed in their new uniforms (at last) go to the post this evening at 6:15 against the Napanee entry in the Belleville Twilight Baseball League. Coach Speedy St. Louis has shaken up his team and will start a strong squad against the lads from Glenwood-ville. The loan showed possibilities in their debut against the Point Anne team in the opening game despite the fact they took an 8-1 lump on the mound chin. They played a good brand of baseball after the roof fell in on them in that disastrous seven-run first innings and held the Ox Pointers to one run and three hits. They're fit and rarin' to go tonight and hope to took away their first league victory.

COBI OPENER

Bill Zeiden's Batawa Shoemen, playing heads - up baseball locked up their first COBL victory on Wednesday against the strong Smith's Falls squad on the latter's diamond. The Shoemen came through with a fine exhibition and the St. Louis expects to make it two straight at the expense of the Kingston Dimeys in Exhibition Park tomorrow afternoon. Meanwhile, flushed with two straight victories over the Picton Athletics will field a strong well-balanced squad. They have potent sluggers in Leandowy, who has poled out three out, four of them extra-baners in his last times at bat. Not a bad average in any man's league. Gilmour and Ferguson are also solid hitters. On the hill duties the Shoemen by virtue of their opening performance are riding high and the game Saturday should be productive of some scintillating baseball. Opening ceremonies will precede the game with Alderman Claude Tice representing the city if Mayor Jack Allin is detained. Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A. and another prominent official will take part.

THE FUR SHOULD FLY!

The past-masters of their own particular styles of wrestling and two of the game's topnotchers will be the main bout opponents at the memorial Arena tonight. The bout should be a fine fur will be the popular, talented Whipper Billy Watson against the rough, ex-lumberjack Yukon Eric Pederson, of Portland, nicknamed the Cement-mixer on account of his punishing tactics. While Whipper is as rough and resourceful, in an insidious fashion, as any of the villains in the sport, he will be up against no ordinary adversary when he faces Watson. Though Watson doesn't resort to the kind of attacks usually employed by Wagner, Whipper nevertheless has plenty of knock-out stuff on the wrestling ball and, what's more, it's legal. Consequently, their collision is likely to be something that will be talked about for a long time afterwards. A mat classic has been signed in the semi-final, with Lee Fields, the Los Angeles speedster, meeting Mickey Gold, the capable Jewish star. In the first match, Al "Krusher" Korbeck will take on Jimmy "Red" Simms.

A FINE SHOWING

Moe Fogarty's Northern Electric softball lassies threw a good-almighty scare into the Kingston Combines gals in a holiday exhibition tilt in Kingston on Wednesday afternoon. The Belleville gals proved handy with the hickory, poling out no less than fifteen clouts as against nine for the powerful Kingston squad. Fogarty has gathered about him the cream of last year's interdepartmental league and has formed the squad in the Eastern Section of the Lakeshore Intermediate League. Other teams are Quinte, Bellmore and Trenton. The girls' journey to Grafton tonight where they take on the village squad in their first league fixture.

THE BIGGEST YET!

The COSSA (Central Ontario Secondary Schools Association) Track and Field Meet, slated for the Saturday afternoon at Albert College will be one of the biggest held in this grouping to date, Already fifteen schools, with 300 competitors and more than 700 entries in three major classifications have packed every event in both the boys' and girls' division.

Schools entered are: Belleville Collegiate Institute; Albert College; O.S.D.; St. Michaels High School; and the high schools in Picton, Tweed, Trenton, Napanee, Madoc, Brighton, Campbellford, Wellington, Deseronto, Stirling and Marmora.

The meet has been divided into junior, intermediate and senior divisions in both boys' and girls' events. The meet is scheduled to start at 1.40 p. m. and it is expected that the final event will be run off about 5.30.

STARS APOOT

Special dessert will be available for soccer appetites at Bain Park, Trenton, tomorrow afternoon when the Toronto All-Star eleven meets the cream of the Bay of Quinte Soccer League talent. Soccer fandom of the district is agog over the game, and weather permitting a large crowd should take in the fifth classic. President Les Digby of the Quinte loop said today that the district will field the strongest team possible, one that should make the stars of Queen city crew go all out for victory. Kickoff at 3 o'clock. The line-ups of the teams appear in another sports-page story.

"Break Up the Yankees" Is Familiar Cry as Champs Win Eight Straight on Road

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Any day now you'll hear the cry: "break up the Yankees!"

Thundering through the west with eight straight victories, the world champions head east with a 9½-game lead in the American League.

Casey Stengel's surprising New Yorkers are doing better than the 1949 "miracle team". A year ago today they had a 22-10 record. Now it's 22-8.

And they're doing it without old reliable"—Tommy Henrich—sidelined by a knee injury.

High spots of the trip were the three-game sweep in Cleveland and Thursday's 8-4 triumph over Detroit, Oddly enough it was just a year ago that Tommy Byrne silenced the Tigers for Reclaim No. 22. He went it alone that afternoon, Thursday he needed help from Joe Page in the late innings.

Byrne makes a habit of whipping Detroit. His lifetime record against them is an impding 10-3.

Yogi Berra—the other half of the winning battery—was the big wheel at Detroit. Berra, batting, bobbled out of the west with a 5-5 mark. They almost didn't make it.

It took a grand slam homer by Walt Dropo, topping a six-run rally in the eighth inning for the Red Sox to subdue St. Louis 15-12. Johnny Pesky helped the cause with five of the 19 hits.

Lemon Gave Three Hits

Bob Lemon of Cleveland caught Washington batters by the shirttails and hauled them back into a fourth-place tie with the Tribe. Lemon shut out the Senators with three hits, 3-0.

Homers by Paul Lehner, Sam Chapman and Pete Söder jerked Philadelphia Athletics out of their losing ways with a 6-1 victory over Chicago.

Eddie Sawyer's Phillies continued to get fine rookie pitching as Bob Miller, also from Terre Haute, Ind., shaked Pittsburgh, 3-0, with eight hits. It was the third victory for the 23-year-old righthander. The Phils hopped on Cliff Chambers for all their runs in the fifth, featured by triples by Mike Goliat and Andy Semrick.

Preacher Roe wobbled through the early innings before settling down to make Chicago his fourth victim, 5-4. Homers by George Shuba and Roy Campanella topped Brooklyn's 12-hit drive against loser Bill Voiselle and two others.

Two of Them Chased

Manager Leo Durocher and his second baseman, Eddie Stanky, were chased long before Leo's New York Giants dropped a 13-inning game to St. Louis Cards, 7-5. Leo and Eddie got the thumb for arguing with umpire Lou Jorda over a called strike in the fifth.

The Cards racked up Dave Koleo with four runs in the first inning and took a 5-1 lead on Andy Hansen in the fourth. Johnny Lindell's two-run homer topped the third-inning explosion. Wes Westrum's homer off the bench rookie Gilbert's clout with nobody on routed Howie Pollet in the sixth.

Then it turned into a 5-5 battle between relief pitchers Kirby Higbe of the Giants and Al Brazle of the Cards. Brazle picked up the decision in the ninth. Then a walk to Red Schoendienst, Stan Musial's single, Lindell's double and a single by Enos Slaughter broke up the game.

Frank Stranahan In Semi-Finals Of British Tourney

St. Andrews, Scotland, May 26 — (AP) — Frank Stranahan of Toledo, O., stroked his way into the semi-finals of the British amateur golf championship today with an over 5 and 3 victory over A. B. Taylor, a local architect. Stranahan won the title two years ago.

The Toledo muscle man, who started the meet as co-favorite with Willie Turnesa, shot a sharp 35 going out — one under par for the famous "old course" — to take a three-up lead over Taylor at the turn.

Dick Chapman of Pinehurst, N. C., followed Stranahan into the fourth round with a 3 and 2 triumph over Donald Cameron of Scotland.

Jimmie McHale of Philadelphia made it 3 Americans out of four survivors in this afternoon's semi-finals by nosing out Percy Tait of Britain, 1 up, after a tense battle.

The American Walker Cup star shot his worst golf of the week, a 40 going out, to stand one down at the halfway point, but he steadied to overtake Tait on the long back nine and finally beat him out on the home green, where each got down in par four.

Cyril Tolley, 52-year-old veteran who won the British title 30 years ago, accomplished one of the tournament's greatest surprises by defeating young Joe Carr, British Walker Cup star, on the 20th hole to fill the fourth berth in the semi-finals.

His opponent in the afternoon round was Stranahan, while Mc-Hale and Chapman fought it out in the opposite bracket for the right to play in tomorrow's 36-hole final.

Among Starters in Canada's Famed King's Plate

McGILL

UNIONVILLE

MEDAL OF FREEDOM

Among starters in 81st running of Canada's famous King's Plate, on May 27, in Toronto, will be these four Canadian-bred three-year-olds. At left is McGill, winner of last year's Cup and Saucer at Long Branch, Ont., recently purchased by Vince Sheridan for $17,500. Next is Unionville, owned by Carl Hatch, a Plate favorite by reason of startling timings in recent workouts. Sir Strome and Medal of Freedom, owned by Joe Hollack, a comparatively newcomer to racing are western bred. Hollack bought both colts from Jim Speers, the western sportsman. Sir Strome is regarded as much the better of the pair, but Medal of Freedom has worked well enough to rate the test. —Central Press Canadian Photos

Dick Wakefield Will not Report To Minor League

Detroit, May 26 (AP)— Outfielder Dick Wakefield stood firm today in his determination not to report to the minor league team which bought him from New York Yankees Thursday.

Even a telephone call from his new team, Oakland Oaks of the Pacific Coast League, failed to sway Wakefield from his decision not to play minor league ball.

"I'm going to telephone Baseball Commissioner Happy Chandler and try to find out how this thing stands," said Dick, obviously irked over the Yankees decision to sell him.

The Yankees, in announcing the sale, said none of the teams in either the American or National League had been willing to pay the usual $10,000 waiver price to get the big outfielder.

Wakefield, however, bitterly criticized general manager Geo. Weiss of the Yankees, saying "I think that George Weiss has treated me unfairly and I'm certain the commissioner (Chandler) will give me a fair hearing on my appeal."

All Teams Waived

Wakefield expressed astonishment over the fact that all major league clubs had waived on him.

"It seems funny that only a month ago the White Sox were ready to give $25,000 and a ball player for me as well as paying me $17,100 salary," he commented.

"It's an amazing thing the way my value in the major leagues has gone down in the last three weeks," he said. "It sure has dropped off since all this business started."

Wakefield suggested he might try to buy his contract and thus become a free agent, legally able to deal with any major or minor league baseball team for a job.

An Oakland official said the sale "was part of the deal whereby the Yankees owe Oakland players for the purchase of rookies Jackie Jensen and Billy Martin."

GOVT WATCHES BONDS

In 1933, parliament passed an amending act providing that all directors of the Bank of Canada be appointed by the government and the entire capital be owned by the Dominion of Canada.

Derby Will be Richest Race Ever Run in Britain

Epsom, Surrey, England, May 26 — (AP) — A Big Three of the horse world — American, French and British in that order — commanded most attention today for tomorrow's Derby, the richest race ever run in Britain. Twenty-five probable starters, including five French entrants, were listed to go in the 1½-mile run around the fish hook-shaped Epsom Downs course at 10:30 a.m. EDT.

The record purse for this 171st edition of the classic is £17,000, 10 shillings ($52,732.50).

Three horses were favored heads and shoulders over the other three-year-olds.

They were American - owned and bred Prince Simon, representing William Woodward, New York banker; U'Amiral, owned by French widow Suzy Volterra, and Castle Rock, from the stable of Lord Roseberry.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A poor bridge player is a poor bridge player no matter how he plays it; a poor advance plasher. An expert plays his bridge by following his first trick. This is what makes him expert.

The purpose of planning seems too obvious to need stressing. Beginners, however, assume this takes too much time. To the contrary it saves time and plenty of it before the deal is over.

Planning helps to decide at once whether or not trumps should be pulled now or later; where the finesse should be preserved; where the danger lies; how to plan the safest guards against danger.

Start working on this deal:

	NORTH
	♠A 8 7 5 2
	♣K Q 8 7 2
WEST		EAST
♠J 9 6 4		♠K 10 3
♥Q 9 7 6 2		♥A K 8
♦10 9 3		♦A K 6 4
♣None		♣10 6 5 3
	♠Q
	♥J 10 4 3
	♦Q J 8 2
	♣A K Q 9

South was declarer at a small slam contract of six clubs. West led heart six, a fourth best of a long suit. South saw at once he learns that south has two hearts higher than his five.

East won the first trick with heart king and realized at once what would be needed to make the contract. To take 12 tricks the declarer must ruff his trumps separately for ruffing purposes.

In the hope of preventing this, east returned the jack of clubs. Declarer planned as follows: With no place to ruff his spade hearts and fourth diamonds, they must be ruffed with dummy trumps.

If so, trumps must not be pulled out. At least not until dummy could use 4 trumps to ruff south losing reds. To accomplish this he must also consider means of entering his south hand often enough.

All this is done by an expert before any of the dummy cards are won. The best time to plan is when all the cards are in sight.

PRIEST RUNS LOTTERY

Newcastle, England, May 26 (Reuters) — A Roman Catholic priest, Father Cullum MacCabe, was fined £6 10s. (£20.15) Thursday for running a lottery in his presbytery. His assistant priest and 27 persons associated with the draw were fined a total of £16 10s. It was stated that the profits had been used for new church schools and not a cent had gone to private profit.

AT THE STRAND — Tyne Medlin, starred with Barbara Stanwyck, Angela Lansbury and Keenan Wynn in the sensitive love story, "East Side, West Side," opening tonight for the last time at the Belle Theatre. A Tom and Jerry Metrocolor Cartoon is an added attraction.

AT THE CAPITOL — "San Antonio Ambush," current attraction at the Capitol Theatre, stars Monte Hale as a Texas Ranger who tangles with a Texas Robin Hood to round up a gang of rustlers. The double feature bill is at the Capitol Theatre today and Saturday. On the same program, "Rocks on Panther Island," starring Johnny Sheffield. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00.

COTT'S SCRAP BOOK By R. J. SCOTT

Little Benny's Note Book

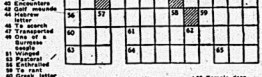
I was watching pop smoking a second half of him first cigar, ing, I had a very imbarrissing perience while I was down town ay.

Did you find yourself facing a driver without having the ex- fare in your hand? pop said, d sena said, No, I was thinking fretfully that I was missing my o favorite daytime radio serials, e Ordeal of Anna Dickens and e Cutting Family, when sud- nly I had the shashed sensation realizing that I didn't remem- r who sponsors them.

But you've been listening to them for years, pop said, and ma said, That's what made it so im- barrising and added to my silly feeling. Of course I knew that one is sponsored by Luvuoso Miracle Spred and the other by Perfection Blending Cream, but I hadn't the slightest notion of who sponsors which, and it filled me with an un- comfortable sensation that I had been callously living all that wonderful entertainment under false pretenses. I felt I had to make it up to those two sponsors in some kind of a retroactive way, and that's precisely what I did. I bawt a large 5 dollar jar of Luxu- oso Miracle Spred and the same size jar of Perfection Blending Cream, she said.

For Peet sake, 10 dollers worth of salad dressing! pop said, and ma said, Dont be silly, they're face lotions. They're both fine prod- ucts, although under normal cir- cumstances I would not dream of being so extravagant. But now I have an unlimited supply of my 2 favorite skin foods, and at the same time I've vindicated my con- science by satisfying my sense of duty, she said.

Yes gods, it's a woman's world, pop said.



Being the end of the subject.

Police Pressing Wide Search for Gun-Crazy Thug

Montreal, May 26—(CP)—Police today pressed their search for a gun-crazy thug who Thursday cut down two persons, injuring one of them seriously, following an abortive holdup attempt at a branch of the Bank of Toronto.

Fighting for life in hospital is Constable Alex Gamman, 38-year-old veteran of 14 years service with the R.C.M.P., felled at point-blank range when he attempted to capture the fleeing gunman.

Second shooting victim is S. C. Bickley, bank manager, brought down with a bullet in the leg as he pursued the holdup man. His condition is reported "good".

Meanwhile, police said they were looking for an Italian bleeding profusely from a groin injury near the bank just after the holdup attempt on midtown Beaver Hall hill.

Police believe the injured man is the would-be bandit and that he accidentally shot himself when he fired a fusillade of shots at Constable Gammon and the bank manager.

Gun Jams

In an effort to steal a car for a fast getaway, the gunman jammed his gun into a unidentified motorist as the latter was getting out of his car. The car owner refused to hand over his keys and fled across the street.

The gunman then fled on foot. For Mr. Bickley, 48, of Ste. Anne de Paris, 19-year-old cashier, credited with having foiled the holdup when she refused a command to "hand over the cash," it was the second experience with an armed thug in less than five months.

Early last January, a lone gunman forced Miss Paris to hand over $3,300.

Last week, the bank robber—Andre Masson—was given a five-year penitentiary term after both Miss Paris and Mr. Bickley had testified at his trial.

WANT MORE MONEY

Ottawa, May 26 — (CP) The Ottawa Police Association Thursday appeared before a wage arbitration court in a bid for higher wages and other concessions.

John P. Latchford of Cornwall, counsel for the Police Association, asked for a 15-per-cent salary increase with special pay boosts for officers whose duties have been doubled because of the city's annexation program. He also asked for a 5½ day week.

RUNDOWN MAN SURPRISED WITH SYNTONA RESULTS

Got Bad Headaches, Dizzy Spells, Unable to Sleep Well. Rheumatic Pain Set in Back, Limbs and Muscles. Stomach Out of Order. Tells How Syntona Helped Him.

MR. R. C. POWNALL

"Because of the grand results I got by taking Syntona I am glad to recommend this medicine to others," said Mr. Robert C. Pownall, 568 Colborne St., London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"For a number of years I was troubled with rheumatic pains in my back, limbs and sometimes very bad after my meals. My entire system became run-down. I was subject to headaches and dizzy spells. More recently rheumatic pain set in my limbs and muscles and I began to suffer very bad headaches. Sleep was poor and I would awaken sleepy, wet all night and felt completely fatigued and worn-out in the morning.

"After trying everything I knew of I went to the drug store and there they recommended that I try Syntona. I got a bottle and started taking it. But even after I began taking it I noticed that my food was digesting better. As my condition got better, the gas, sour and heartburn cleared up and I could enjoy all my meals.

"Although that is only a few weeks ago, I have since then improved so much that the aches and pains are gone away. I am free of headaches and I certainly feel fine."

Why not let this 'pure herbal' medicine help you too? It is inexpensive, easy to use, and contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs.

Navy Officer Blew $19,000 Of Ship's Money

Los Angeles, May 26 (AP) — A grey-haired United States Navy lieutenant admitted Thursday, the Federal Bureau of Investigation reported, that he took $19,000 from his ship's safe last November and blew it all on a binge with a blonde.

Agents said he described six months of joy-riding, playing the races and champagne parties.

The FBI and naval intelligence officers arrested Lieut. Beacon B. Boaz, 42-year-old paymaster of the Navy tanker Navasota, in nearby Pomona. There, "flat broke" he had taken a job in a nursery at 85 cents an hour.

The blonde, Pearl Rosemary Carter, was found with him in a rooming house, but was not held. Boaz was arraigned on a charge of embezzlement of government funds and desertion from the navy. He was committed to jail pending preliminary hearing June 8.

I'd be as good—he was unaware of his long silence until Susan slipped her hand into his and leaning close, whispered "oh dear! Please look and act as if you were enjoying yourself anyway."

"I'm sorry."

"What were you thinking?"

He looked at her. "About what makes people act the way the way they do."

"Their hormones, isn't it? Or glands. Or something!" She laughed. But she took her hand back, faintly troubled, because even for a moment, Gerry could go away from her like that. Where did he go? When Tim is with me, he's with me all the time. And then, with a return of her anger against him, she put him from her mind.

Gerry did not forget himself again after that. But when the play was over and the girls bolded and pushed back against the walls, and the classes had gathered themselves into little separate groups around the auditorium and were cheering the actors, and Susan, beside him, was enthusiastically adding her voice to those of the others, he felt himself once more completely out of place. 'The Elevator' Packed With Interesting Copy

The Belleville Collegiate year-book, "The Elevator", a combined literary and pictorial record of the past year's activity in the Collegiate has been distributed during the past week to the students.

The book this year is patterned after the books of former years with added features. Possibly the smartest new addition is the use of individual photographs for the junior school graduating class with an accompanying thumbnail sketch of each graduate.

No phase of school life has been neglected by editor Carol Wishart and her hard-working staff of 34. Mr. Linton Read and Mr. Archibald were staff advisors.

184 Pages

Included in the 104 interest-packed pages is a heavy literary section containing short stories, essays, and poems and a series of short terse articles on subjects ranging from the introduction of the maintenance men to the students to a review of the wood encountered in washing dishes.

As in the past there has been a lavish use of pictures. As well as photographs of the graduating class there are photographs of the fifteen clubs active at the collegiate as well as accompanying write-up for each one. Special mention is given to the dramatic and glee clubs in a full page of pictures devoted to their major productions. In addition to the posed photographs there are two pages of candid camera pictures taken of the students during all phases of their academic and social life.

Good Sports Section

A comprehensive sports section, covers inter-school and interform boys' and girls' athletic activity from September until the magazine was published. The inevitable collegiate humor receives a good going over in almost three pages of jumbled but corrected time-tested jokes.

The general theme of the year-book this year is "Better-Pupil Relations with the principal's message, the student editorial, and a specially written article introducing the new teachers emphasizing the theme.

Gracie Fields Will Appear At Local Arena

Slightly more than half way through her current Canadian tour during which she will make by personal appearances across the Dominion, Gracie Fields, well-known English comedienne will be at Belleville on Wednesday, May 31st.

Sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club, "Gracie" will appear at the Belleville Memorial Arena where she will be heard by a record crowd.

Ticketd for "Gracie's" one night stand in Belleville are selling well and a packed arena is almost assured for the event. However, there are still a number of good seats left. But they are selling fast.

Beloved by veterans of two world wars and by followers of two conditions of war, Gracie has almost her entire life behind the footlights. At the years of age and already with promise of an exceptional vocal range she entered in singing competition at her local theatre in England. Since then she has entertained millions.

Throughout her entire Canadian tour she has received rave receptions at each appearance. On a recent tour of England critics raved "Gracie" was better than ever—a superb artist who can hold a concert stage for nearly two hours and sing song after song without effort, ranging from the uproariously comic to the heights of vocal artistry.

Net proceeds of the Belleville concert will be used by the local Kiwanis club for their welfare work, principally the young people's camp at Roblin Lake.

Letter to the Editor

Boost for Gracie

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

If don't know if there are many people in Belleville and district from Rochdale (the home town of Gracie Fields) but you can rest assured they will all be at the Arena next Wednesday. We have all been to her on the radio but to really enjoy her one must see her in person for it is her personality and vitality that radiates through her entire audience and leaves it with the feeling it is good to be alive.

Gracie is a Lancashire who has given freely of her time and money through peace and war, and has never let her fame rise above the fact that she is just a lass from Lancashire and claimed by all Rochdale as "Our Gracie." So let's show the Kiwanis we do appreciate them bringing her to Belleville by attending the Arena Wednesday night and nothing will please Gracie more than to know she has Rochdalians in her audience."

A Rochdale Family.

Boy Accidentally Shot Thru Chest While Hunting

Accidentally shot through the chest while out hunting groundhogs, 13-year-old Earl Fraser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reid Fraser of Batawa, is in Belleville General Hospital. His condition Saturday morning was said by his physician not to be critical.

Friday evening the lad had accompanied his father to a farm near West Huntingdon where the youngsters had a gasoline and had taken his .22 rifle along to do some hunting. Some time after he disappeared he was heard calling for help and he was found lying behind the barn shot through the chest.

First aid was given by Dr. William Cornell of Stirling who ordered him to hospital where he was attended by Dr. G. H. Stobie.

Dr. Stobie said the .22 bullet had gone directly through the lower left chest but that the boy's condition was "fair".

No details as to how the accident occurred were available and the matter is being investigated by O.P.P. Cpl. Jack Hatch of Madoc.

Nurses Alumnae Honor 1950 Graduating Class

Last Thursday evening approximately 92 nurses gathered at the Kiwanis Centre to pay respect to their Alumnae Association and to honor the graduating class.

The banquet tables were attractively decorated with spring flowers. The room was alive with smiling faces, greeting each other, some of the members were from San Francisco, Bancroft, Codrington, Warkworth, Toronto and Consecon.

The president Miss Jewell Bailey, extended greetings to all present and hoped they would enjoy their evening together. Miss Dorothy Brown, Director of Nursing spoke to the Alumnae telling them how much she is to be associated with the Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing. Mrs. Bailey and Mrs. Brown conducted the group in several sing songs. Mrs. Miller played a piano solo.

During the evening's program there was a roll call of all present, each member addressed the group, stating their name while in training, hospital they trained, and the year of graduation.

The president read a letter from Miss Mary Jane Youmans, who was unable to attend. Miss Youmans is at the Queen Alexandra Veterans' Hospital, Montreal.

Miss Bailey asked the graduating class to stand, the following is the address given to the group of graduates:

"Graduation from your school of nursing may seem the end of formal education for most of you, the members of the class of '50. Perhaps, as you go out into life, you will not reach Plato's ideal of a philosopher queen, the golden crown of glistening honor, the sceptre as the symbol of ruling power and all the symbols with which we associate with the position, but rather you will become yours. But for you have stored up treasure for yourselves which no moth can take from you, and for which there is no substitute. If you will put your cultural values to work, then you will find that you have something which is finer than gold and sweeter than the honeycomb." If you will look upon opportunity as a chance to give something rather than to get something, yours will be the enobling experience of service. Into the culture and life of the people the things which really endure.

"By so doing, you may become the contemporary equivalents of a "philosopher queen" as a teacher public health nurse or administrator. No matter in what vocation you put that kind of philosophy of life to work, you will thus bestow honor upon your Alma Mater and Belleville General Hospital School of Nursing can be proud of you. Moreover, you will thus be giving tangible expression to that Christian heritage, which is the privilege of our Alumnae Association."

Miss Ruby Wilce, secretary of Alumnae Association and Miss Doris Plati, treasurer, presented the graduating class with their year pins, Miss Margaret Lenfesky on behalf of her class, thanked the Alumnae for their lovely gift.

Mrs. Alice Smith introduced Mrs. I. L. Moore, the guest speaker for the evening. Mrs. Moore held the attention of her audience with an interesting address, regarding her trip to Australia. Miss Fitzgerald thanked the speaker for her stimulating talk.

Miss Bailey expressed appreciation to all the committees, who worked so diligently to make the evening such a success.

Ladrone Islands Handed to Reds

Hong Kong, May 27. (AP)—The Chinese Nationalists today handed the Wanshan (Ladrone) islands to the communists, British Naval officials reported.

A spokesman for the Royal Navy said evacuation of the Hockelake base 40 miles southwest of Hong Kong was completed by Nationalist warships at 8 a.m.

In giving up the Wanshans the Nationalists left the trade-starved communist metropolis of Canton open to foreign sea commerce for the first time in more than eight months.

Canada to Write Off Desertions Of Second War

By DOUGLAS HOWE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, May 27.—(CP)—The armed forces, finally washing their hands of Second World War desertions, are giving some grownlight for a return home to roughly 100 Canadian servicemen who quit their uniforms while stationed overseas.

Nobody will ever know how many heed it. Nobody knows their whereabouts. Some may have settled quietly back in Canada but the majority, defence officials feel, have disappeared into the web of British or European life and will probably never return.

Once the bill to consolidate defence legislation passes parliament, the forces will no longer care. Once that happens, there will be no deserters from the war. They and their crime will be written off.

A clause tucked away at the end of the bill's sections tells the last chapter in the war's story of desertion, one that involved nearly enough men to fill a division.

The great majority of those men have already been written off by cabinet order-in-council passed in 1946. They were largely the so-called Zombies, soldiers called up for military duty who refused to volunteer to serve overseas.

That order covered 14,100 men who were deemed "never to have served".

A special provision in the bill covers the last 414 deserters still on the forces' books. About 100 of them were men who deserted overseas. The rest deserted after they came home at the end of the war in a period between 1945-46, covered by the order-in-council—up to the end of 1945—and the formal establishment of the peacetime forces in late 1946.

Both the order and the bill adopt the same process. The men are deemed never to have served. But if they walked into an army barracks and offered themselves as prisoners they would be sent away.

Canadian Colony In Leading Role In Fiji Islands

Written for The Canadian Intelligencer

By MARGARET E. FRANCIS

Suva, Fiji — (CP) — South of the equator, between 16 and 25 degrees latitude, 300 Fiji Islands are Gauguin canvases come to life.

Hills, jungle, beaches and palm groves are brilliant splashes of color under a tropic sun whose heat is tempered by soft winds from the south Pacific.

Fiji could hardly be more unlike Canada; perhaps that is why a growing colony of Canadians is making the islands its home away from the northern cold. Several of them came to the crown colony at the turn of the century when the island had only recently become a part of the British Empire. They pioneered the development of Fiji from the ways of cannibalistic wars between hostile tribes to the present law-abiding, economically stable country.

At 19, Henry William Johnson, with a suitcase and 25 cents in his pocket, set out from Port Dover, Ont., for the south seas. Now Sir Harry Johnson amassed a small fortune through copra plantations and trading and moved to the Fijian capital of Suva.

Here he became a member of the legislative council and played an active part in colonial affairs. He is still a justice of the peace and deputy mayor of the city.

'Tavua practically ran Fiji," said one friend. He was noted for progressive schemes for the economic development of the islands, and even in remote islands he is still held in great respect by the natives.

Stranger Than Fiction

"My life has been stranger than fiction," Tavua Johnson admits. His grey-blue eyes snap and his deep, Canadian-accented voice is full of laughter as he spins yarns of trading, gambling and adventuring during pioneer days in the islands. "And now Fiji is a beautiful land in which to dream away my old age."

His son Tui, born here in 1900, is William Grange Johnson, who received part of his education in Simcoe, Ont. "Tui," which means "king," was the name given him by the Fijians among whom he spent his early childhood. He is managing director of a large copra firm which manufactures margarine and coco-nut oil.

A vice-president of the chamber of commerce, Tui is also on the Tourist Board and promotes Fiji as a holiday mecca for Canadians.

Last year, following his graduation from the University of British Columbia, he brought Lorne Swindells of Vancouver to Suva as his chief chemist. Wife Swindells was his bride, Bonita. The wife of one of Tui's executives, Arthur Jackson, is the former Betty Bright of Winnipeg and Regina.

Another pioneer and crony of Tavua Johnson is William Bolton Stinson, who arrived 50 years ago from Toronto at the age of 19. He started by copra trading with the natives. Following his marriage to a New Zealand girl, he returned to Toronto and there married Miss Stinson, who arrived 50 years ago from Toronto at the age of 19. He started by copra trading with the natives. Following his marriage to a New Zealand girl, he returned to Fiji with his bride, Bonita. 'Frogmen' Were Human Subs in War

By HUGH SCOTT
(In the Philadelphia Inquirer)

A near-sighted baron, dying high over the Caribbean this month, might pardonably be puzzled. He'd see, getting some light tan beach and its crinkled surf, it would see what appeared to be a number of frogs. Yet if it swooped down to dine, it would find these frogs really were members of the U.S. Navy.

Aside from the appearance and their unofficial name, Frogmen, draped on their shiny greenish suits, the odd swimming fins on their feet, and their amphibious activities. During the war these activities were top secret. The men who made up the Navy's 26 Underwater Demolition Teams never made headlines.

But when the Marines stormed ashore at Guam they found a nearly lettered sign: "Welcome Marines By UDT's." And when the invasion troops came ashore in Okinawa there was another sign: "Welcome to Tokio. Buy Bonds." Similar signs might have been erected in North Africa, at Normandy and other islands throughout the Pacific. For the Frogmen were there, blowing up coral, clearing away beach obstacles, making soundings, charting currents and sandbars.

England is said to have given these underwater experts their popular name. But it was a young Navy medical officer from Philadelphia, Captain Christian James Lambertsen, who had the idea of training human underwater demolition. Associate Professor of Pharmacology there, Lambertsen worked out a portable breathing device that freed divers from their hampering air lines and heavy suits. Obviously, this device allows the Frogmen to dive only in relatively shallow water. If necessary, they can use a line, while easing about 30 feet below the surface. Too, they often operate without this breathing aid, depending on their training and their swimming fins in dire emergency.

In 1940, Captain Lambertsen took his development to Washington and offered it to the Navy. Two years later the Frogmen went to war. At first their status was as uncertain as it was secret. Personnel was furnished by the O.S.S., the Army and the Navy. But gradually the Navy took over.

Today the Navy has four teams of UDT's. All are volunteers, and all have been put through ten rugged weeks of training. The first week, appropriately called "hell week," gives the men a good —or bad—idea of what they may expect in this service. Hours are spent in rubber boats, paddling against tricky currents and across rock jets. Long marches through swamps are staged. Other hours are spent in forced drills with pentad charges spattering mud and water. Meanwhile, the men are learning to be expert in underwater operations and to swim a mile without aids. From an original class of 120 men, perhaps only half will complete this high tension training period and receive their swimming fins, which serve as a diploma.

Frogmen usually wear rubber suits made in one solid piece and stamped in the back. Exhaust tabs on the body and headpiece allow them to release excess air if they have to go any depth under water. The portable breathing device, which looks something like a Mae West with headgear, allows them to stay underwater for periods up to two hours, without greatly hampering their swimming progress. A handy knife is hung in their belts; and for shallow water work, they use a glassfaced mask, coming up for air just as ordinary swimmers might.

The fins attached to their feet add a lot to their swimming power, and the cloth, lining of their suits, plus heavy underwear, enables them to swim comfortably for hours in icy waters. Recently in the Caribbean, they were going through manoeuvres called Operation Portex.

During the war the Frogmen operated with the invasion forces. Some days before the actual attack they were dropped from landing craft off the enemy coast. In daylight operations, they were protected by ship fire and dive bombers; at night they depended on being unseen. On their first swim ashore they checked the depth of the water, noted all obstacles in the water and on the shore. On their second trip, they carried explosives on their back, and set them to clear the obstacles. At other times they swam into enemy harbors to blow up ships.

Typical of the dangerous work was a trick the Frogmen developed. Ducking under when they were fired upon, they would watch the bullets hitting the surface above. Then, as the spent bullets sank, they would catch them, and carry them back in their teeth as trophies.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BUILDING MATERIAL

Sticks, twigs, grass, moss, mud, bark, straw, plant down, seaweed, feathers, hair, rags, paper, string, spiderwebs, and dear knows what other things are used by birds as building material. Bobolinks depend entirely on grass, ospreys find sticks essential and nothing else, but most make their homes of one or two kinds of material with the addition of a soft lining.

Chipping sparrow babies rest on hair mattresses in little nests of grass, rootlets, and fibres. Mud cedar waxwings are brought up in nests made of strips of bark, leaves, twigs, rootlets or moss. The catbirds' twigs, grasses and leaves are so loosely put together that it is no wonder the nestlings do not fall through. The female Baltimore oriole weaves together fibres, plant down, hairs, and string for a hanging pocket which lasts throughout the following winter.

Grass and twigs seem to be greatly favored, but mud is extremely important to several species. It makes the robins' home really heavy. Wood thrushes put a mud lining into their nest of twigs, leaves, rootlets, and week-stalks; on the other hand, mud is the foundation material of the phoebes' home, with moss and grasses added. Cliff and barn swallows both use mud pellets as a bricklayer would use bricks, but their homes when finished are quite unlike in shape.

Blue-headed vireos find that spiderwebs give the finishing touch to their home when spread over the exterior of their finely woven baskets; hummingbirds use cobwebs like thread to bind bits of lichen onto the outside of their exquisite, tiny cups.

Identifying nests is often quite difficult. However, a mere glance at the nest or a close examination of a particular species is evident. A snake-skin at the entrance immediately shows the owner of the nest to be great crested flycatchers; a nest of moss and felted fur made in a tree hole is a sure sign that the proprietors are brown-headed chickadees. The use of grapevine bark combined with fluffy cocoon and hair indicates the workmanship of black-polled warblers. A well-made, but badly kept little nest of grasses and plant down lined with thistle down most certainly belong to goldfinches.

ABSENCE OF SERIOUS ACCIDENTS

It is a happy event that no serious accident on roads or highways in this district took place over the twenty-four hours of May, Victoria Day. The summer upturn in volume of traffic has of course not fully developed and visitors-tourists from the south of the International Boundary to their towns a little later than this generally.

Driving was reported as more of the leisurely type for sitting on a holiday.

The kindly weather may have had an influence. Speed up from the days before, the mild temperature may have had its effect in the family groups out to the city which turned out almost immemorial has a holiday in the minds of most people.

There has been a local adage that fine weather can only be expected before the twenty-fourth and perhaps had something to do with it. Anyway there were no fatalities of the road to report. This creates and leaves room for gratitude that accidents took a holiday.

To repeat this should be the aim of everyone day after day.

THE WEATHER WE LIKE

Weather which proved tardy and contrary for a good part of the spring made a last decided stand up to the traditional May at this season of the year. At last according to the records at Belleville, late May has turned tables and brought weather people like in this merry day. Yesterday the temperature's high was 14 degrees the maximum for the same day last year while during the early morning hours the low was nine degrees over than it was at the same time in 1949.

Temperatures such as these accord with the time of season when June is just around the corner and nature bing towards her best in the color of her flowers. It is in very truth the merry month of May.

"THE GOLDSMITHS' VERDICT

The other day at one of London's oldest ceremonies, a of 18 members of the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths reviewed what they said, silver and cupal coins issued by the Royal Mint were the proper ht and composed of a metal of the degree and fineness ired by law. The law requires that officers of the Mint place specimens of coins minted in the pyx—as the box is called—and that these coins shall be periodically examined by a jury of members of the Company of Goldsmiths who are specially sworn by the King's Remembrancer. The jury returned its verdict to the King's Remembrancer, who in turn informed the Master of the Mint, Sir Stafford Cripps.

These proceedings, known as the "Trial of the Pyx," are very ancient origin. Since early Saxon—or even Roman days, an examination of the justice of the coinage obtain in comparison with standard trial pieces is believed to have taken place, and there is a record still extant dating back as 1248 of a public trial of the coinage before the Barons of the Exchequer.

In this year, the jury not only judged the quality of coins themselves, but also sampled some gold sovereigns which the Mint has coined in order to bear their crafted practice. But these coins were not put into circulation.

The Goldsmiths Hall, where the ceremony took place, is believed to be the present site since 1340. The Worshipful Company itself was founded as long ago as 1327 by Royal Charter of Edward III.

THOUSAND TREES AN HOUR

We see that one of the provincial government's tree-planting machines is in the Olds district. It is putting in the ground at the rate of a thousand an hour. So if they are small seedlings, but however small the planting-rate is astonishing.

The second machine is to be sent down to Camrose next week. Between them, if they could be operated eight hours a day indefinitely, they could change the face of the districts.

Tree planting, however, is one of the seasonal occupations and a very short one it is. Even city folk, who wish to put an extra tree or two in a bare spot in the backyard, can choose the right time — and do the job the right way.

A tree is so worthwhile that it deserves the best start it can give it. Of course, when planted at a thousand an hour, the individual cannot expect to receive the same consideration; the objective then is a shelterbelt, or even a plantation from which, later on, sturdy young trees may be distributed by ones, two or dozens to the farms of the district. — Edmonton Journal.

JUST FOLKS

BOYHOOD

They call them on their way to school; I watch them at their play—
The nation of tomorrow—the youngsters of today.
Freedom's flag above them—the red, the white, the blue,
Freedom to tomorrow be passing in review.

They little boys this morning, but, oh, so fast they grow!
Time to train and guide them will all too quickly go.

But in their smiling faces and in their boisterous glee
Our country of tomorrow I may see.

The manhood of tomorrow, we hear them called today,
And ours the task to teach them and show to them the way.

The liberty we cherish, their care will shortly be.
Our nation, of tomorrow—God grant they'll keep it free.

Solitudes Are Haunt of Whaup Or the Curlew

The whaup—curlew if you are a purist or a Saunnach—is as wild as the wild, windswept moods which are its summer home, shy as a cushat, wary as a fox, long in leg and long in beak, uncouth and stately, easy to recognize, difficult to approach, the watchdog of the barrens, with a haunting, mellifluous voice that is the echo of most beautiful of bird songs and the very utterance of the solitudes, says a writer in the publication Scotland.

Spirit of Solitudes

It is the real spirit of the bleak, untamed solitudes of the north; its voice is as familiar to the red deer and the ptarmigan of the mountains as it is to the dwellers among the pit-lings on-more southerly moors. All the bird asks is solitude and space and a bog cotton, with plenty of elbow-room and a pronounced scarcity of human beings. It can conceive no life except on the perimiter of industrial Lanarkshire.

In the north the whaup is the real harbinger of spring. When the first curlew is heard it tears and the estuaries, a wild clan beating northward in the cold sky in the last days of February the northerner knows that spring is coming to the north. And when their haunting plbroch is heard again on the moors, the edge of winter has been definitely set northwards. In March moors are by the lapwing and the curlew till the mass exodus of autumn, their trill and bubble and coo-ee will be heard in the still days of the darkness of every night at rest-time. Then, like the lapwing, they are lonely birds.

The bird's song is a sweet, bubbling trill, with an indescribable melancholy about it, but in perfect harmony with its surroundings. Uttered on the wing, or when the nesting ground, or descends to earth on a long, gliding slant, it can stand comparison with the song of any other bird. And the plaintively whistled, low-pitched whoo-ee: whoo-ee of courting birds is one of the most flawless and musical sounds of nature. Even in its shrill alarm call of whaup-whaup-whaup-whaup-whaup as the more agitated cu-cu-lu, there is rare quality.

Soon after their arrival at their breeding grounds the birds set about building their nests, usually marking out their nesting territories by a holiday among heather more frequently among coarse grass or among bog cotton, or perhaps on a hummock of rushes. The nest is scraped out and lined with dry grass and the eggs laid. It is deep and commodious. It has to be, for the eggs, four pear-shaped, blotched, pear-shaped eggs that are not easily rolled out of the nest.

When you consider that an adult bird measures about two feet from bill to just over two feet in length, and that most of its length is neck, it is not difficult to realize that the eggs measuring 2.66 inches by 1.88 inches are of a size in proportion to the size of the bird.

Well Concealed

The nest is extremely difficult to find, partly because the bird is startlingly open and obvious, but it is also hiding its nest by hiding her nest, or to be surprised while brooding, but I have known birds to sit so close that I have almost trodden on them before they rose. Usually the bird is in the air, calling plaintive in alarm, when an intruder is over a quarter of a mile away. Afterwards, a tortuous path is taken back to the nest, the bird skulking through the ground cover like a rat.

The popular idea is that, when disturbed, the parent birds feign her eggs and runs away stealthily, rising into the air when she is some distance from the nest, but my interference being that in this way the plunderer is drawn away. Nonsense. Usually the bird is in the air, calling plaintive in alarm, when an intruder is over a quarter of a mile away. Afterwards, a tortuous path is taken back to the nest, the bird skulking through the ground cover like a rat.

The popular idea is that, when disturbed, the parent birds feign her eggs and runs away stealthily, rising into the air when she is some distance from the nest, my interference being that in this way the plunderer is drawn away. Nonsense. But my own experience has been that the whaup invariably flies into the air, standing when her eggs, at the approach of an intruder, whether the danger is near or far. I have arranged all sorts of fiendish contraptions around my nest, but have not yet found a bird that behaved in any other way.

It has been argued that whaups only behave like this when suddenly flushed, that is when they are caught napping on the nest and have no time to do otherwise. Observation from close quarters does not bear this out at all, and in any case this bird is seldom surprised on her eggs.

Coming back to the nest is another story. Then the bird is alert, wary, circumspect, walking half a dozen steps, then pausing for a minute or more, watching all the time, ready to take wing at the slightest indication of danger. She goes every blade of cover, coming home at a crouch, on a twisting course, like a fox returning to her den. I believe that the whaup's keen stalking from the nest have, in reality, been returning to it.

Sometimes the bird will crouch on the nest as she thinks the danger is likely to pass, but will do it, for instance, when a crow flies past some distance off, or when a roving dog skirts her territory.

Wine Cellar Of Henry VIII Is Saved

(From the London Times)

Assurances given more than 10 years ago that King Henry VIII's wine cellar in his Palace of Whitehall would be faithfully preserved when the new Government offices were built over the site have now been fully honoured. The first brick vaulting, with four arrival stone columns, and most of the original walls are now almost the final stage of reconditioning — but-20 feet below their original site.

The building was neither a cellar nor a crypt in the strict sense, but a storage for vaulting and pillages. It was underneath the main floor of the palace, but not below the ground. Moreover, once the surrounding buildings had been swept away to make room for the large block of offices in Whitehall Gardens, it was revealed, externally, as a box-like structure, which would have protruded into the forecourt of the new offices and defied blending with any architectural feature.

Now its shell is hidden in the basement, almost adjoining a boiler house, and the admirable interior has been preserved for visitors, who, when the offices are completed, will be admitted by special arrangement.

The work of moving the crypt, weighing nearly 5000 tons, badly to one side, a distance of 43 feet, clear of its original position was done by underpinning and stopping. More alcoholics do so by internally damaging and incapiration they get from Alcoholics Anonymous, God bless them. Did even hear or an epileptic who stopped having seizures because he decided to have no more? Or a migraine victim who stopped having side headaches because he or she decided to have no more? Or an asthmatic who stopped having difficulty in breathing because he decided to have no more difficulty?

Then there's the change of life. From the anxious inquiries I receive, many of them from women of good education, as educations go, I gather that many young women look forward to this so-called "crisis" with morbid anticipation. They still, some of the voluble psychologists, psychoanalysts and paper neurologists are busily promoting the concept of the "female climacteric"—a "change of life" in men that gives the so-and-so's an alibi or an excuse for their bad behavior after forty, or for being caught at it.

It is an indisputable fact that most women experience no disturbance of health, comfort, personality, personal appearance or any other feminine characteristic at the menopause. They simply cease to menstruate, and that's all. Therefore, it is just plain stupid for a young woman to approach marriage with dread or anxiety about the "crisis." There isn't any "crisis" if the woman has had a fair education.

As for the alcoholics who like to blame their drinking on this mysterious "disease," they belong in the same category with mature, drunken women who claim that misconduct on a mysterious "change of life." They aren't any good, in the long run, we should let them know that we are onto them and their trick psychologics!

CAN'T TAKE THE MALARKEY ABOUT CHANGE OF LIFE

CAN'T TAKE THE MALARKEY

When it comes to a question of hygiene, physiology, pathology, medicine or health you may not be me but you can't tell me about it. No matter whether you have made half a dozen trips to the best advertised clinic or talked about your case with the most eminent all-around specialists touted by Aunt Polly or Uncle Fats.

"The main reason that we refer to alcoholism as a disease," says a member of Alcoholics Anonymous, in voicing the same opinion as many other members have voiced in letters written to me concerning an article printed in this column, in which I said the alcoholic doesn't have to get drunk, he merely chooses to get drunk—"is to serve as a constant reminder to ourselves that we can never again drink sensibly or socially."

The main reason why we doctors, or some of us, at any rate, refer to alcoholism as self-indulgence or bad habit is that the alcoholic doesn't have to drink but merely chooses to drink. Some alcoholics prove this by deciding to stop drinking and stopping. More alcoholics do so by internally damaging and incapiration they get from Alcoholics Anonymous, God bless them. Did even hear or an epileptic who stopped having seizures because he decided to have no more? Or a migraine victim who stopped having side headaches because he or she decided to have no more? Or an asthmatic who stopped having difficulty in breathing because he decided to have no more difficulty?

Answer—The bid is readed: "20 Million Patients Can't Be Wrong" —with a statement that thirty million people patronize trick healers every day. That's a lot —people. The other 120 million people who depend on regular physicians are presumably wrong.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Nature never stands still. A botanist is constantly moving on every minute of the day, each day of the season. The light is constantly shifting and changing on it; clouds come and go, bringing a beauty in degree never the same. Dull days and bright days alter its very essence.

Artists watch a landscape hour by hour, day by day, until they catch it in the instant of its greatest beauty; or in its nearest approach to constancy. And then paint it.

Life is like that. It never stands still. And our memories seize upon moments. It is bold as pictures in our mind's eye.

Those who love mountains claim that it is the sense of immutability in them that is most appealing. Yet those who know mountains best, the artists who paint mountains, claim that even they are never the same from one hour to the next. Snow may shift on them only in half a years' time; the thin overgreens fingering upward on a mountain's side may change the pattern only in half a century. But mountains still have the appearance of being ever new.

Some people are drawn to country like the Laurentians where spruce and other evergreens dominate the scene, the shape of which changes little and slow with the years. On the North shore of the Georgian Bay and Lake Superior, the ancient rocks give a changeless expression to the landscape.

But there are people who choose a country of deciduous trees, where the shape of the horizon changes from month to month and where a period of a few years can alter the whole panorama. New maples, elms, can rise to dominate a section of the view; whole groves of birches can spring up or spring up, where formerly there were hemlocks.

Nature with its mountains, rocks or with its groves or soft maple woods, can oblige all tastes, for haste or for repose.

Therefore, on an instant is it actually still.

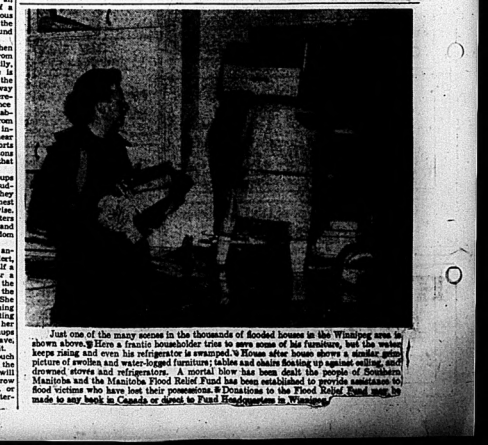
Strength for the Day

DR. EARL I. DOUGLASS

SEEDS CARRIED BY THE WIND

Many years ago a piece of art was sent from England to India. For some unknown reason it was wrapped in the pages of a religious magazine, and to keep it from the quiet thinking sort, with comfort and hope in their words and manner. They look upon the bright side of things, have few illusions, have known sorrow and disappointment, but retain their faith and sense of values. Such people make up the small handful that we hoard and honor as our friends.



When trouble comes, and we are confused over happenings, or events, we want people around us who give us a lift, and who soothe both our physical and spiritual distress. It may be no more than a press of the hand, or the offering of a prayer, from such a one, but thereby hangs the miracle!

An English writer, his telling of the sale of great masterpieces at auction, mentioned in all the "quietude of the paint," so inspiring it was to note the effect of such great art upon those who came to buy and to wonder. This same quietude comes over one when dining with a friend, or when relieved from worries by one who has an understanding heart.

People who have formed the habit of speaking softly, using words of kindness and considerations, are the benefactors in our everyday life. They move about quietly. They seek out for ways in which to serve, and themselves are sought! Tie to them, for they are the inheritors of heaven here and now.

gious tracts have fallen apparently by accident into the hands of certain persons and have produced astonishing spiritual results. The Bible teaches that the Holy Spirit can lead every one of us to that supreme truth which will give us peace and happiness, if only we will resign ourselves to the Spirit's influence.

Times without number some verse of Scripture has been unveiled in all its glory to the waiting and needy heart of someone who was walking in darkness. The Bible is the message of God to man, and it is as cogent today as it ever was.

Just one of the many scenes in the thousands of flooded houses in the Winnipeg area is shown above. Here a frantic householder tries to save some of his furniture, but the water keeps rising and even his refrigerator is swamped. House after house shows a similar grim picture of water-damaged furniture, tables and chairs floating in upstairs rooms, and drowned stoves and refrigerators. A mortal blow has been dealt the people of Southern Manitoba and the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund has been established to provide assistance to flood victims who have lost their possessions. Donations to the Flood Relief Fund may be made to any bank in Canada or direct to Fund Headquarters in Winnipeg.

Warden Opposes Surcharge On County Patients in Hospital But No Vote Taken by Board

Discussion on a motion to remove the $2 per day surcharge paid by county patients at the Belleville General Hospital ended in stalemate Friday at the regular meeting of the hospital Board of Governors when the meeting adjourned without a vote being taken.

The motion was introduced by County Warden Clarke T. Rollins and resulted in a lengthy discussion by board members as to what alternate there might be to provide the hospital with funds equivalent to that realized from the surcharge.

"I am pretty well at the end of my patience," replied Warden Rollins answering a query from Board Chairman McGuire as to what alternative might be suggested. "I am not in a position to recommend anything until councils of the county and city are on record as favoring the removal of the surcharge."

Continuation of the surcharge was serving to increase the indigency of county patients through their inability to pay and at the same time was doing much to further deteriorate feelings between the city and the county, the Warden said.

Drives Business Away Claim

The surcharge was serving to drive county business away from the city, it was stated.

He said the county had given a grant of $8,000 to the hospital last year and then the hospital had slapped on the surcharge for county patients. I'll know the feeling of my council on the matter and if you want to further aggravate the feeling continuing the surcharge will do it," he said.

Mayor H. J. Allin thought the question of the board chairman was fair. He said the county could not expect the city taxpayers to bear a share of the cost of indigent patients from the county. "If you are prepared to recommend anything to replace the money realized from the surcharge I don't know where the hospital deficit will go," he said.

Dr. Stobie Concurs

Dr. G. H. Stobie concurred in the Warden's viewpoint claiming that many good paying patients were now going elsewhere than to the hospital. He said the board was losing $1,000 in revenue merely to collect $100 in surcharge. Revenue from good paying patients would come back if these patients could be persuaded to return.

County Treasurer Ross Bailey said he thought the county council had done well by the hospital in giving the $8,000 grant last year. "No other county in other parts of the province had done as much," he said.

Board Chairman McGuire said he had had no intention of provoking the Board Members when he asked if he had any alternative to offer to the surcharge. He pointed out if the surcharge were dropped city council would want to know where equivalent funds were to be realized.

Mayor Asks Question

"Would the county pay all the indigent but lost if the surcharge were removed?" asked Mayor Allin.

The answer to that is that you cannot expect the county to pay the cost of the entire increasing the value of the hospital by maintenance should be termed capital expenditure," was the reply by the Warden.

Here if by Mr. DeFadden, hospital auditor, said what could and could not be termed capital expenditure was set down by the department in hard and fast rules." Only major improvements which extended the hospital service could be capitalized," he said.

Under particularly stressed conditions application could be made to the municipal board to determine the cost of maintenance not classed as capital expenditure but this request was seldom granted.

Auditor Gives Answer

Warden Rollins asked if equipment could be capitalized. He was told by the auditor that replacement equipment could not be capitalized. As far as he was aware all new equipment at the hospital had been capitalized.

The auditor went on to say that it was a difficult thing to arrive at the cost of maintenance at the hospital. The reason for this was that there was a difference of opinion as to what should be included in indirect patient costs.

Mayor Allin suggested that a vote on his motion stating that the surcharge had been forced on the county. He was still not prepared to offer any suggestion regarding alternative revenue until the county and city were placed on an even footing for removal of the surcharge.

Here Hospital Administrator H. Wakefield said the board finance committee had already made a move for the removal of the surcharge and had suggested as an alternative that all hospital room rates be increased by 50 cents per day and that the 25 cents per day charge be discontinued. This in effect would raise the room rate to $4.50 per day and would realize the hospital an additional $6,000 annually. No action had been taken on the recommendation, he noted.

Board Adjourns

The Board meeting was adjourned until next Friday when two of the board members were forced to leave, leaving the meeting without a quorum.

Several members of the city council committee meeting with the board asked for the current financial statement of the hospital but it was pointed out by the auditor that this could not be made possible without a physical inventory of stock. Steps should be taken to get one completed and then a report could be given at any time.

Alderman Potter noted that the hospital's stock keeper could be asked why proper stock records were not kept. He was told that the hospital's present quarters it was practically impossible to keep such records. It was noted that the old hospital laundry will be used to give the stock keeper additional room.

On suggestion from Alderman A. M. Ross, it was recommended that an inventory be taken with a report on the hospital's financial position to be made to the board at the end of June.

Star-Spangled Show in Gardens Draws 14,907

Toronto, May 27 — (CP) — From the tight-packed seats of Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night went out a-mighty appeal for relief for the Manitoba flood sufferers.

Official attendance of 14,907 paid $25,338 for the opportunity to applaud a star-spangled show that was broadcast over Canadian and United States radio networks involving 729 stations. All radio listeners were urged to contribute to the flood fund.

All receipts at the Gardens also went to the fund. All performers donated their services. No one could estimate the total that would result.

The show had Jack Carson, Hollywood movie star and native of Carman, Man., as master of ceremonies. It had the Toronto Symphony Orchestra under Sir Ernest MacMillan and Fred Waring's Pennsylvanians orchestra, donated by the American Musicians Union, and a host of others.

Deficits During First Five Years Of TV Operations

Ottawa, May 27 (CP) — The CBC expects that it will pile up deficits during the first five years of operation in the field of television, the commons committee on radio broadcasting was told Friday.

A. D. Dunton, CBC chairman said he believed that by the end of five years revenues would be sufficient to meet all expenditures.

The CBC has been authorized to construct one television station in Montreal and in Toronto. It is hoped to start operation by July, 1953.

It was estimated that the operating costs of the Montreal station would total $1,500,000 in the first year; $2,175,000 in the second year; $2,775,000 in the third year, and $3,000,000 in the fourth year.

A $4,500,000 loan obtained from the government last year to cover the initial cost of television likely will be used on capital expenditures and installations.

Mr. Dunton estimated that another loan of $5,500,000 may have to be obtained from the government to help cover operating costs in the first few years.

Mr. Dunton said the Montreal and Toronto stations will serve as production centres which will be able to provide television service to stations in other parts of the country through the use of microwave relays.

He did not evisage a transcontinental network as an early development. He believed it would be better to establish television transmitters in various parts of the country and service them later from centralized production centres. Later the transmitters could be joined in a network either through the use of coaxial cable or through micro-wave lengths.

Why Flood Came

Toronto, May 27 (CP) — Weather forecasts, not flood warnings, are the business of the Dominion Meteorological Bureau here but a detailed indictment of the weather as the cause of the Manitoba-Saskatchewan floods has been worked out by one of the bureau's experts.

C. C. Boghner, heading the climatological section of the transport department's meteorological service, prepared a study of the meteorological factors entering into the Red River floods. With the river valley still standing and the official word that no disaster risk remains, his study will become a matter of what to look for in the future.

Boeghner found the chief contributing weather factors were unusually heavy rainfall which saturated the soil before the thrust up the freeze-up was later than usual; unusual cold and deep penetration of frost in the Red River basin from December to mid-February; heavy late winter snowfall; a late spring with subnormal temperatures in April and May which reduced normal evaporation and finally heavy rainfall in April and May.

Pathologist Requires More Room at Hospital, Board Of Governors Told at Meeting

Possibility of the Belleville General Hospital losing its recently acquired pathologist unless increased accommodation is provided for the laboratory will hasten the consummation of the proposed chest clinic from the institution.

At the monthly meeting of the hospital board held Friday, authorization was given for the board secretary to communicate with the Ontario Department of Health with the view of discussing other accommodation for the clinic which is now housed at the hospital.

Two months ago members of the board voted to request the chest clinic to vacate its present quarters, they noting that more accommodation now being used could be utilized to much better advantage. Among other changes it was proposed that the laboratory be given larger accommodation.

Yesterday members of the board were read a communication from their pathologist Dr. J. Forbes Booth that unless more accommodation was given his department he would be unwilling to sign a permanent contract with the hospital.

Removal Held up

Removal of the chest clinic from the hospital will not be held up as result of a motion from city council asking for no further action be taken by the board until a committee from council was able to confer with board members. This motion had been debated by the cost of attendance of a representation by a member of the medical profession asking that a clinic was very effective in that the chest clinic retained at the hospital.

Yesterday the council committee met with the board and the whole matter of the chest clinic was again entered into. Chairman of the Board, Mr. Percy McGuire, stated that the additional revenue, which could be derived from accommodation now being used by the clinic would far outweigh the amount now being received as rental.

Matter of Economies

"It is purely a matter of economies," he said.

Various suggestions as to the utilization of other space in the hospital were offered, but it was stated that every possibility of this nature had been explored.

Dr. G. H. Stobie, a chairman of the local medical association, stated that his association was desirous of having the chest clinic retained in Belleville as close to the hospital as possible.

It was pointed out by one member that the board was not trying to get rid of the chest clinic, but was trying to make it more effect economies by otherwise utilizing the space.

In the same line of thought Dr. J. Marshall noted that the clinic occupied approximately 1,800 feet of floor space and returned the hospital only $720 annual rental. The hospital possessed 1,200 feet of space and showed a need for more than $35,000 annually. If additional space was available the work of the laboratory could be increased.

Accepts Responsibility

When the importance of increasing accommodation of the laboratory was pointed out, Mayor H. J. Allin stated that he accepted the responsibility of authorizing the board to confer with the Department of Health relative to either subaccommodation for the clinic.

"If the matter is as urgent as is indicated, I will accept the responsibility," he stated.

Education About to Begin Minister of Education Tells Graduating Class of BCI

"Your school has given you the foundation and grounding in the discipline with which to face life and now your education is about to begin," Honorable Dana Porter, Minister of Education for Ontario told the 39th graduating class of the Belleville Collegiate Institute last night at their graduation banquet held in the basement of the Bridge Street United Church.

For most of you this is a time of looking back on your days in school, a time of thankfulness to the staff and the principal as you set out to do other things," the speaker said. "And what are the things of value which you have learned?

"It is likely that you will have forgotten the facts of geometry, and the other subjects which you have taken within two weeks time. But education is more than just book-learning."

Two Kinds of Discipline

"Education teaches discipline. There are two kinds of discipline. One is the discipline of the hickory stick, which proves to be very useful under certain circumstances. The other is the inner discipline of the mind which becomes a habit as a result of getting through your classroom courses. The second seems dull and tedious to you and you may think now that you are graduating that it will not be so tedious or dull but I can assure you that that is not likely to be so."

"It is a great thing in life to do well and the tedious task in our own way," Mr Porter continued. "One never knows what emergencies lie ahead in life but if you have discipline of your inner resources you can devise the means of an intelligent solution. There are emergencies of many kinds, in business, to the professions, and in all walks of life, and if you can solve these problems you will be much better off than one who is not so well trained."

Don't Lose Interest

"Don't lose interest in books," the minister urged. "You all have the ability to read and write but in this day many people do not continued to use these abilities. Get in the habit of reading regularly.

"Education does not end with the closing of the classroom door. Education is just beginning."

Mr. Porter then went on to point out the value of the ability to express oneself orally and in writing. Simple writing conveys ideas most vividly and descriptively," he said in support of the habit of reading and writing. It is a great resource. Do not lose the thread of your training."

The speaker concluded by saying, "You have the foundation, the grounding and the discipline with which to face life and now your education is about to begin."

The speaker was introduced by Mr. L. A. Kells, Administrator of Schools, who thanked on behalf of the graduating class by Jchn Hagerman.

Principal Heard

In a brief address to the graduates principal Mr. Leonard Mc. C. E. Curzie, urged them to maintain your faith in the automatic system; maintain your faith in the goodness of life and those little things that exist. I hope you keep a lively faith in God and everything that your religion stands for," he said.

"I hope that you maintain your own standards and that you will further the best that has been given you in school; perseverance your work, and may your interest and zeal never waver. You are going forth to meet a great challenge; I hope you accept it."

Mr. Currie concluded by extending his own best wishes and those of the staff for the success of the graduates in later life.

Chairman of the banquet was Mrs. F. R. Harbeck, president of the Home and School Association which prepared the program and served the delicious meal.

Toast Proposed

Mr. W. J. Musgrove, past president of the association proposed the toast to the graduating class and the reply was given by Miss Joan Harbeck.

Mr. Ray Howard proposed the toast to the school authorities and Principal G. E. Currie replied.

The appreciation of the graduating class to the Home and School Association for the banquet was expressed by Leo Marcus, past-president of the students' council, and the reply from the association was given by Mrs. R. C. Clarke, general chairman of the banquet committee.

During the course of the program graduate Robert Elmy sang "Ol Man River," accompanied at the piano by Miss Jean Gordon.

Grace was said by Reverend D. C. Amos, minister at Bridge Street United Church.

Sees Cold War Lasting Intensely Years to Come

Edinburg, May 27 — (AP) —A cabinet member forecast today that the Western Allies' cold war with Russia "will continue intensely" for years to come.

The statement came from Hector McNeil, former Minister of State who has headed Britain's delegation to the United National. He was appointed Secretary of State for Scotland when the new cabinet was formed after last February's general election.

McNeil, addressing the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, quoted U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie as saying that something must be done to end the cold war in the next year.

"Of course we all share Mr. Lie's concern but it must be our job to see that the conditions that sometimes make for physical war are roped with," McNeil said.

He say with the greatest respect to Mr. Lie that there can be no expectations that the cold war will end in the next twelve year after that or the year after that," he added.

"It is my guess that the conflict will continue intensely and it will involve all the different discussions, dramatic disagreements and humiliations and tragedies which we are inclined, being too close to the picture, to describe as 'the cold war.'"

British Gifts For Flood Area In Montreal

Montreal, May 27 — (CP) — A giant British Overseas Airlines Corporation Stratocruiser, carrying the biggest air cargo ever to cross the Atlantic, touched down at Montreal's Dorval airport Friday night en route to Winnipeg with nine tons of emergency supplies for flood victims.

This gift from the Commonwealth Relations Office in London, England, was to repay the kindness of Canadians who sent food parcels to Britain during the Second World War.

"This is only a token shipment of the most urgently needed supplies," said Jonathan Lewis, head of the C. R. O., who travelled with the plane.

The first instalment of a British government gift of $210,000 worth of supplies. Next week we plan to load a ship with the bulkiest supplies and on my way back from Winnipeg I will probably visit Cabano and Rimouski, to find out what is needed there."

(Rimouski and Cabano are Eastern Quebec towns ravaged by disastrous fires this month.)

about Food ...

The fish runners of ancient Rome were real sport merchants.

These lyi fooiers who carried fresh fare from seaport towns to inland cities knew that the value of their cargo depended on the speed with which they ran.

If you live in a neighborhood where strictly fresh fish is not always available, then your best bet is to use quick frozen or canned fish. Canners lose no time in getting fish cooked and sealed right after it is hauled in.

Canned salmon is probably so well liked because it never has anything of a stale or "fishy" taste. Unlike many other canned foods it isn't just a poor imitation of the fresh article but has its own tasty delights.

The old German dish of stuffed cabbage can be made with canned salmon instead of the usual ground meat. The stuffing should be seasoned with onions and sage, and combined with cooked rice. Fresh salmon or any other fresh fish, in season, may be used in place of the canned product.

Stuffed Cabbage with Salmon.
Serves 4 to 6

Drain a one pound can of salmon. Remove bones. Break fish into flakes.

In a saucepan melt 2 tablespoons fat. Add 1-4 cup chopped onion, 1-4 cup chopped green pepper and 1-2 teaspoon garlic chopped fine. Simmer slowly until onions turn yellow.

Combine salmon and onion mixture. Add 1 cup cooked rice and 1-2 cup tomato juice. Add 1 tablespoon chopped parsley and salt and pepper to taste. Set aside.

Remove core from a medium size head of cabbage. Separate leaves, keeping them whole as much as possible. Plunge leaves into a large kettle of boiling water for a few minutes to make leaves pliable. Drain cabbage.

Divide salmon mixture into 12 parts. Place each part on a large cabbage leaf. Wrap cabbage around mixture. Use more leaves to wrap securely. Fasten with toothpicks.

Place stuffed cabbage in greased baking pan. Add a number 2 can of tomatoes, chopped fine, an 8-ounce can of tomato sauce, 1-4 cup vinegar, 1-4 cup sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Bake uncovered in a moderate oven, 375 degrees, for 1 hour. Spoon liquid over cabbage frequently during cooking.

BRIDGE STREET, Y.P.U.

An explanation of Chinese doctrines, customs and etiquette provided an interesting evening for the Bridge Street Young People's Union members last Monday. A letter from a Chinese missionary, stationed in China with his family was read by a member of the congregation and well-being while there.

The Misses Lenore West, Florence Foster, and Betty Jose read several articles on Chinese life. Belief in ancient gods still constitutes a majority of the peoples' religious attitudes. A family rejoices over a baby boy's birth, but a daughter's appearance is a cause for sadness and sorrow in celebration. A girl is considered important as she does not carry on the family line.

One Chinese custom which proves distressing to an English teacher, is putting the family name before the given Christian one. Chinese etiquette demands washing one's hands following a meal, and having everyone eat out of the same bowl. The latter is supposed to bring about greater family unity.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Log Galloway

Recently at dinner, we happened to sit next to Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, who was guest of the Canadian Women's Press Club . . . Dr. Smith was telling us about the new Professor Training school which will open this summer at Kingston, Ont., as a constituent of Queen's . . . Up to now, there have been Normal Schools to train public school teachers and the College of Education for secondary teachers. But we have never had in this country, a school for college professors and instructors.

"I know, but I can't pick a fifth because I don't know what all these others are about." The busy registrar hesitated, "Well in that case you'd better take Economics." . . . "Economics, what's that all about?" she asked. "Oh, it has to do mostly with men and money," he replied. "That's my meat, etc."

Free Losing Casle

Speaking seriously, Dr. Smith talked of the growing fetish among parents that their children must go to university or otherwise they would lose caste. This is one of the most problematical of universities have to contend with, he explained. It means that there are overcrowded with young people who really haven't the aptitude to benefit by study.

To meet this problem, the University of Toronto has raised entrance requirements from a percentage of 50% on matriculation examinations to 60%. Thanking records for the last 10 years, university authorities have found that 70% of first year university student failures come from the group which graduated with a standing of from 50% to 60% at high school.

The Toronto university president believes that first year students are coming to college before they are mature enough to benefit from a university course. He supports the view that a student should work a year between high school matriculation and college entrance.

Track Earnings Are Not Subject To Income Tax

Ottawa, May 27 (CP)— A decision handed down by the income tax appeal board supports the view that the man who goes out to the race track occasionally and happens to hit the jackpot —even repeatedly— should not have to account for his winnings to the income tax collector.

The decision announced Friday affected one man particularly but an official said later that it also would affect the thousands of horse-race lovers who go out to the track each year in the hope of hitting the jackpot and keep wondering what the government will do about their winnings.

In a nutshell, the board's decision means that the government may do as it pleases, but if the case ever comes before the appeal board, then the better is almost certain to get favorable consideration. That is if he can prove he is an occasional bettor.

The decision won't help the bookmaker or the habitual bettor, however, for either sort usually follows the tracks, living by what he wins, and starving by what he doesn't.

"Each case will be treated on its merits," the official said. "There are cases where it will be difficult for the government to decide the category in which the bettor falls."

Friday's decision will be particularly gratifying to William Scott Walker of Winterburn, Alta. He won an appeal against the government which was trying to assess him with having taxable earnings of $17,863 in 1946 and 1947.

Walker, who is called "Lucky Walker" by his track friends, appealed to the board and won his case when he claimed that the money was earned over a seven-year period, 1941-1947, in occasional betting.

Walker, whose regular business is farming, also won another point in which he asserted that the amount of cash he had in the bank in 1941 was $10,000 —and not $5,000 as determined by the government. In winning that point, he cut down the department's estimate of his income in later years and therefore the amount of tax he was liable to pay.

News of Trenton Motorists Put Nickels, Pennies In New Parking Meters Despite Fact By-Law is Not Approved

Trenton — (Special) — Town clerk-treasurer O. W. Lacey isn't certain if Trenton motorists will unusually honest or just plain cautious.

Thursday afternoon, 3 new installed on the new parking meter posts but the meters are not in operation officially as the by-law has not been confirmed by the Department of Highways.

Many car owners didn't take any chances. As soon as they saw the shiny new meters they started pouring in the pennies and nickels.

Iran Government Pressed To Take More Vigorous Action Against Opium Consumption

By LEOPOLD HERMAN

Tehran, Iran, May 29 — (Reuters) — Powerful sections of public opinion in Iran again are pressing the government to take more vigorous action against the consumption and illegal cultivation of opium, the "scourge of Iran."

There are some 2,000,000 opium addicts in Iran today. It has been estimated that some 100,000 of them die every year as a direct result of habitually taking the drug, while another 50,000 commit suicide.

One expert calculated recently that opium addiction costs the country some 500,000 man-hours and millions of rials (about 30 rials to the dollar) every 24 hours.

But to stamp out the opium habit, enforce the ban against illegal cultivation and suppress smuggling activities will be no easy task.

Opium is a government monopoly and is expected to net the government $5,500,000 during the current year.

Since the establishment of the monopoly in 1928, poppy-growing and selling has been illegal except under government supervision. Nevertheless, hundreds of thousands of peasants and tribesmen all over the country continue to grow poppies.

Effective Control Impossible

The size of the country, the value of the crop and the widespread addiction to the drug make effective control impossible without drastic action and far-reaching measures.

In the spring of 1946, the government published a decree prohibiting the consumption and cultivation of opium.

As the poppy seed was already in the ground, and as it was a government-monopoly crop, it was not totally destroyed. But only four tons were collected that year instead of the usual 400.

The government lost money and so in the following year some 200 tons were collected.

Last year, the government decided to collect the crop, which was delivered under special safeguards penalizing the growers if they didn't deliver the agreed quantity. But this did not prevent growers from secretly producing a larger acreage while they kept for themselves.

System of Race Segregation More Rigid Than Any Yet Attempted Planned by S.A.

By GEORGE ASCHMAN

Capetown, South Africa, May 29—(AP)—Fearful of mounting racial tensions which have broken out in bloody riots, the South African government plans a system of race segregation more rigid than any yet attempted.

This policy is called apartheid. Its aim bluntly is to maintain white supremacy at all costs and to prevent the non-whites, who outnumber the Europeans four to one, from ever gaining political domination.

The instrument designed to bring this about is the group areas bill now before parliament. Apartheid was one of the planks of the Nationalist party of Prime Minister Malan in the 1948 election which brought the party to power.

The party is opposed to any interbreeding between the European and non-European races. And to prevent territorial political, residential, and, as far as possible, industrial separation of European and non-Europeans."

Here are the four main groups into which South Africa's bewildering and ugly problem:

Voters Or Rights

The whites, who include Afrikaans-speaking people of Dutch and German descent and people of the English-speaking races. In race terminology they are referred to as Europeans. They number 2,500,000, and possess full political and commercial rights.

The colored people, are people of mixed blood—white, Hottentot, Mozambique, Madagascar and Malayan. They number 1,000,000.

The African or Bantu (generally referred to in South Africa as natives) who number 8,000,000.

The Asiatics, mostly descendants of Indians who emigrated to South Africa in the last century. They are mostly confined to Natal and number about 300,000.

About 40 per cent of the natives live in what is known as native reserves or territories where they elect out a poor living on impoverished land.

Many Laborers

The rest of the natives are employed on the white man's farms as gold and diamond mine workers, on railways, in heavy industry and in a variety of unskilled jobs.

Except in the Cape province, the natives enjoy no political rights, are mostly illiterate, and are entirely segregated from the white people.

In the Cape province, the natives enjoy a restricted franchise, entitling them to send three elected white members to the House of Assembly and four elected white members to the Senate. The government proposes to deprive them of their present privilege of electing white assemblymen, leaving four white senators to speak for them.

The natives travel in separate railway coaches, have their own churches and schools, and live in separate towns, townships or villages.

Areas Set Aside

The group areas bill aims to make this segregation from now on more complete. It sets aside areas where only natives, colored people or whites can live.

For the colored people, the apartheid plan also is a bitter pill. They have enjoyed more rights and privileges than the natives. They have a higher standard of living, greater education and enjoy a strong moral claim on the white man, who 200 to 300 years ago was responsible for their coming into being of these people of mixed blood.

Many of the colored people pass over as whites as the years go by. The plan before parliament is to establish a national register on a race basis, with identity cards and photographs to be carried by adults of all races.

Oust White Bread From Rover's Menu

Edmonton — (CP) — If you love your dog, don't feed it white bread. Or cake or pie or cookies, either.

That's the advice of an Edmonton veterinarian who says dog owners probably show little real appreciation of man's best friend when they feed it commercial canned dog food.

But if you must feed your dog bread, be sure it's brown bread, the vet says. White flour such as used in making white bread, cakes, pies, and cookies causes deterioration of the nerve cells of a dog's body.

As far as Edmonton can discover, this effect of white flour has evidently on the nervous system of dogs. Cats and most other animals, as well as humans, seem to be immune to it.

Council Concerned About Number of Loose Dogs

Trenton, (Special.)—One question that will likely receive plenty of discussion at Monday night's council meeting is the matter of dogs wandering loose about town.

"The council is very much concerned at present with a number of complaints," clerk-treasurer O. W. Lacey told the Ontario Intelligencer Friday. One application for a canine has already been received and there will possibly be another," said Mr. Lacey. Councillor C. Graham said that there will definitely be some action by council on Monday night to deal with the situation which he describes as "a definite nuisance."

The dog by-law states that "dogs must not be permitted to run at large" and in spite of the fact that the by-law is being strictly enforced, two children have been bitten recently by stray dogs, Mr. Graham declared.

Mr. Graham declared that he was in favor of having either a full time dog catcher or hiring a part time man, because "it is practically impossible to enforce the by-law unless there is someone to pick up the dogs that are running around loose."

Another matter that clerk-treasurer Lacey said "would probably be discussed" is co-ordinated effort by the whole town to raise money for the Manitoba Relief Fund. Mr. Lacey said that matter is in "the formative stages."

Broadway Season Now Ending Disappointing Compared With Previous Two Years

By PAT USSHER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 27. (CP)—Statistically speaking, the Broadway Theatre season now ending was a disappointing one compared with the two previous years.

Figures compiled by this department show a total of 62 incoming productions during the drama year ending May 31, compared with 72 in 1948-49 and 89 two seasons ago. The present season's productions break down in 38 straight plays, 13 musicals and revues, 12 revivals and nine miscellaneous shows, including ballet and opera.

The theatre year's start and end is determined by actors' equity contracts, which run from June 1. Quality Better

From the standpoint of quality, the 1949-50 season seemed better.

It included "The Consul", a tour de force for Gian-Carlo Menotti. The 37-year-old Italian born composer, wrote the words as well as the music and staged the production of this musical drama which climaxed months of the efforts of a family to flee one of Europe's "Iron Curtain" countries.

It also included T. S. Eliot's

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

COME ON, CANADA!

It comes as no surprise to Canadian track fans that Don Scott McEwen, the high school flash from Ottawa is setting fire to U. S. collegiate tracks this season as he starts to show the tremendous speed his performances in Ottawa forecast.

It was only a few short years ago that the McEwen name flashed across the sports pages of Canadian papers. At that time he had just lowered the Canadian high school mile mark to 4.32 in a race that saw him finish all alone in a good, but badly outclassed field.

Perfidy doesn't have stepped out of the capitol about him and then in the Olympic Trials run off in Molson Stadium in July 1948, McEwen came into prominence again.

It was the 5000 metre race and McEwen, still in high school, went out to gain a berth on Canada's Olympic team. It was a blisteringly hot day with a relentless July sun frying the athletes and spectators alike as the thermometer registered temperatures in the low 90's.

McEwen stepped right out at the start of the race with a led from British Columbia and it was obvious after the second tour around the track that the race would be a battle between the two leaders both of them could stand the punishing pace. One by one the other runners in the race fell back or dropped out and McEwen and the British Columbia runner toiled along.

Then two runners lapped the field and then, within three hundred yards of the finish line, McEwen began to falter. His great fighting heart would not down the back stretch but he tried to match his more experienced competitor's final kick. He began to stagger and finally fell to the cinders and was caught just as he turned into the final hundred yards.

It was a heart-breaking thing for the thousands of fans who rose and gave him an ovation that he had won but he was carried to the first aid tent. The winner had had to be good to beat him as both runners had broken the Canadian three mile record by the time they finished another three laps.

That is the last time that McEwen has been story in distance. The University of Michigan student and McEwen went off to the big school at Ann Arbor to begin a career that is destined to carry him into the front rank of the track runners that have been developed in North America.

Don is still young, he is just a sophomore now, and already he has left a string of broken records behind him in two years of campaigning in the gruelling Big Ten collegiate circuit.

Early this spring he romped home 100 yards in front of the nearest competition in the Big Ten cross country run, setting a new conference record and downing a U. S. Olympic Trials miler in the process.

A few weeks ago he raced to a new indoor two mile record for the Big Ten Conference and has smashed varsity and meet records in every appearance he has made so soon. One of his more spectacular accomplishments was absorbing the Michigan relay team to a smashing meet victory with a 4.16 mile.

Although Don specializes in the two mile run — he shattered Roger Dane's famed Gregg Blake's eleven year NCAA record 9:06 in that event with a dazzling 9:02 just last week in a dual school meet with Wisconsin and Northwestern — Don can run at almost any distance and, according to his coach, Don Canham, "has so much speed that he frightens me sometimes."

Today the black haired speedster steps out in the mile with Wisconsin's Don Gehrmann, and Illinois' Les Truex, at the huge Western Conference meet at Evanston, Illinois, as Michigan's powerful seven man team tries to upset the favored squads from Illinois and Ohio State.

Don will also run the two mile event and though many track fans feel that he will dip under the nine minute mark today, it is not likely that he will do so today as the mile is expected to take away much of his fabulous reserve.

Don Scott McEwen, barring injuries, looks like he is destined to be one of the greatest stars in the ragged world of track, and seems to be a sure thing to take that Olympic boat trip for Canada when the world's great athletes are marshalled in Helsinki in 1951.

SHOEMEN INAUGURAL

The curtain rises on the Central Ontario Baseball League seasonal drama this afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds when the Bay Shoemen will start the Kingston Dinneys in the leading roles. Both squads are undefeated in the league with the strong Kingston squad having a pair of Picton scalps inched in their collective belts. Batawa bucked down to fine early-season baseball in Smiths Falls and licked a 3-1 defeat on the home town squad in their first appearance of the season. Both teams will be at full strength and a fast tilt is predicted. Kingston will likely send Stone to the mound with Batawa probably relying on the good right arm of Gordy Mauffitt. Incidentally the game will be aired over CJBQ starting at three o'clock. All Picton's home games, by the way, will be broadcast over the same station.

Ken Holmes and his merry men of the Madoc Kiwanis Club have entered the leather-pushing game and are staging an attractive card in the village armouries come Monday night. Starry mittmen of the district and Toronto will feature the card including main bouters Joe Sharkey, leading contender for the Canadian lightweight title and Ronny Reynolds, former Maritime featherweight champion. Jimmy McGovern, Ireland, tangles with Dick St. Louis, starry RCAF puncher in the semi-final while the five round prelim brings together Vince McNeill, Toronto and Jerry Durrel, also of Toronto. Other bouts include Dave St. Pierre and Ray Langlois, Trenton RCAF; Jackie Cooper, Toronto and Al Veltch, Toronto, Doug. Hinton and Lorne McMillan, Trenton RCAF and a couple of local boys, Jack Hatch, Joe Sharkey, headlining.

Bass Fisherman's Paradise

Now that the automobile and the aeroplane have come into general use as a means of reaching the faraway places, such a thing as "virgin waters" is virtually unknown.

Oh, I suppose that you can find an odd lake here or there which might be classed as new territory but generally the fishing is just about as good in your own back yard as it is in the high Sierras of the "unexplored" reaches of the Height of Land.

We read of lakes, ponds, and rivers "teeming with hungry fish, just waiting for your line to drop among them." I've fallen for such propaganda and have travelled—at the cost of not a little trouble, time and expense — to have my sport with the "teeming millions."

Usually Disappointed

The only "thing that has impressed me" in these faraway places, with no exceptions, is the disproportionate overabundance of water which surrounds each individual fish.

So I've stopped falling for published propaganda and I'm happy right here in town where the fishing is just right — not good enough to attract hordes of strangers and not bad enough to warrant the discontinuance of fishing entirely.

Of course, I indulge myself in some of that traveling fly fishing around the Florida Keys now and then by Key Largo is 1442 miles from my front door and that's a long drive for a little weekend fishing trip.

Regardless of disappointments, I find myself somewhere near the location of a "sleeper" — a fishing place where better than average fishing is reported, but on which, somehow or other, has escaped the attention of the vast army of fishermen on our waters these days.

I think I have found just such a place!

The doubt is expressed because I haven't actually fished there. But I have talked to those who have and, even when I divide the assembled evidence by four, it still sounds like pretty good fishing.

Not a Secret Lake

The spot is not hidden away in the back country. Far from it. Anyway, it's too big to hide. Hiding it would, from the public view is about as easy as hiding a bull fiddle in a telephone booth.

If this fishing spot were within easy reach of a spot where this is being written, wild horses couldn't drag the location from my reluctant lips. But it isn't. It's in sparsely settled country and, at that you have to go for a fair piece by car. So I'll let you in on the secret. Here's the story.

Mrs. Knight and I were returning from what is usually called a "much-needed rest" in Florida. Rest! I never worked harder, trying to shatter the vacation record. Anyway, we were driving home over Route 15 in South Carolina. The meant crossing Lake Wateree, a damned-up portion of the Santee River.

That evening, while we were having dinner in L. H. Godwin's restaurant on the outskirts of Summerton, South Carolina, I engaged the owner in conversation.

I had looked at Lake Marion several times on the way to and from Florida and it certainly looks hazy. So I asked Godwin about the fishing. Immediately that familiar look came into his eye.

Too Good to be True

Some two hours later I had learned about Lake Marion. How much of it is true is a matter which lies between Mr. Godwin and his fishermen friends. But I'll give it to you just as I received it.

"Fishin'?" he exclaimed. "Brother, you just ain't seen fishin' 'til you fish that lake."

Only that morning a doctor from a nearby city had showed up at the restaurant with 78 pounds of fish, fairly taken and within the bounds of legal limits.

Of course a forty-odd pound catfish had helped to pad the total poundage, but even then! seventy-eight pounds of fish is still a lot of fish.

And the bass fishing! He said I wouldn't believe him (and, frankly, I don't) but you could take just any old bass plug, fasten a yard of stout line to it and catch bass.

No rod, mind you! Just drag the plug around in "figure eights" alongside the boat and it'd a bad day when you can't pick up your limit of bass in an hour or so. They even have a name for this method. They call it: "Jig fishin'." I'm not making this up) "jerkin' for bass."

I was a little punch-drunk when the lady of my choice at last freed me from Godwin's conversational clutches. But I'm a gullible fool — I suppose all fishermen are so — I talked to the game warden, to service station boys, to waitresses (who didn't go fishing as a rule) and to the wife of the man who runs the Summerton Motel with cabins and all.

Each and every one, most of them with go axes to grind, assured me that the bass fishing is pretty much what Godwin claims it to be.

No Closed Season

One nice thing, in addition to many others, about Lake Marion is that you can fish in it at times there when other places are either closed or climatically unsuited. March and April, for instance, or November and early December.

South Carolina, they tell me, has no closed season and you can go bass fishing most any old time.

Neither Godwin or the game warden had heard of the Solunar Tables prior to my arrival, so we spent some time checking it. They compared the times when good catches had been made during the past couple of weeks with the times of the Solunar Tables' sunar Periods, and they were surprised that the Solunar Tables were right every time.

I'm going down there next fall and go fishing with Godwin and the game warden. After all, I want to make sure of two things. I want to find out if the fishing is even half as good as they say it is.

Last but not least, I want to see if those two are still working hard at the daily Solunar Periods. Right now, I'll lay even money that they are.

Dick Wakefield Will Report To Minor Club

Ann Arbor, Mich., May 27 — (AP)—Outfielder Dick Wakefield said Friday night he was leaving for Oakland, Calif., "within 48 hours" to join the Pacific Coast League club there.

The major leagues' problem child, who has said for weeks he wouldn't step down to the minors, changed his mind Friday after Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler talked to him.

After that telephone interview Wakefield said:

"Chandler has been wonderful to me. He has given me some very sound advice. The chances are I might take his advice."

A few hours later, at his Ann Arbor home, the former University of Michigan star and Detroit Tiger bonus player told reporters he was packing his bags to head west.

New York Yankees, who bought Wakefield from the Tigers and tried a few weeks ago to trade him to Chicago's White Sox in a deal that didn't go off, sold his contract to Oakland.

Wakefield appealed to Chandler, and the commissioner advised him to accept the assignment.

Does Not Closed

It was learned the commissioner told Wakefield that his record for temperamental outbursts and run-in with major league management did not close the big door to return to the big club if he proved himself worthy.

Wakefield changed his mind after saying for weeks he would quit baseball before going down to the minors.

But the 20-year-old former University of Michigan star, who received a $52,000 bonus from Detroit Tigers when he entered organized baseball in 1941, still seemed uncertain as to what turn his career might take next.

"I'll be back, mark us that", he promised.

"I hit .400 at Oakland and show Weiss (George Weiss, New York Yankees general manager) a poor judge of ball players he is.

Just a few hours later, however, Dick was speaking his piece to return to the majors. "They've seen me play a long time," he said, now glum. "Apparently I'm not as good as I thought I was."

Fifteen Horses Entered to Start In King's Plate

Toronto, May 27 (CP)—Cloudy and cooler weather was the forecast today for the 51st running of the King's Plate, Canada's classic race for Canadian-bred, three-year-olds.

The Canadian derby had 15 horses entered overnight, survivors of nearly 100 nominated two years ago. Track conditions were a factor in determining the final starters, expected to be at least 12. Candidates may be withdrawn up to 45 minutes before post time at 3:45 p.m.

The automatic starting gate can accommodate 12 and if more than that number should start, the Queen's plus will be handled by assistant starters outside the gate. The racing strip itself can comfortably accommodate about 16 horses, but a field of 12 and more means considerable jamming on the turns.

They race 1¼ miles, starting from the seven-furlong mark on the mile track. This brings them pounding past the finishing post on the first run and all the way around to the finish. The big jam will come at the first turn of the Woodbine's mile track.

It looked to be one of the most open races since King's Plate, the oldest continuously-run turf fixture in North America, was first contested back in 1860.

The two winners of the split Plate trials a week ago were jammed with at least half-a-dozen others in speculation on the winner of the King's 50 guineas and $15,000 added by the Ontario Jockey Club.

Both trial winners were J. R. McIntyre's Blue Dance and J. Frowde Seagram's Rosaire. But each won over only six furlongs, and the added distance today entices four-legged owners of winter favorites that ran in the muck a week ago.

Among these long-time good bets were R. S. McLaughlin's Stephdale, Unionville, Sir Strome, McGill and Brazen Buzz.

Viscount Alexander, Governor-General, will present the guineas to the owner of the winner after the race. The crowd is expected to be at least 35,000.

Firing of Jack Onslow, Big Shakeup of Philadelphia A's Has Baseball World Buzzing

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Firing of Jack Onslow as manager of the Chicago White Sox and the vigorous shake-up of Philadelphia Athletics' high command has the baseball world buzzing today.

Even New York Yankees' nine-game victory streak and the sizzling pace of Brooklyn Dodgers are overshadowed by the managerial changes.

Onslow's ousting came as no surprise, Jack's name had been on the wall since last fall because of a feud with the White Sox' front office.

When Onslow heard the news he said, "they won't second guess me any more. As far as I'm concerned Lane (general manager Frank Lane) can manage the team and Comiskey (vice-president Charles A. Comiskey) can coach at third base—or any place else he so desires." That tells the story.

Johnny (Rad) Corriden, former Brooklyn and Yankee coach and minor league pilot, was moved up from coach to manager for the rest of the season.

The new deal at Philadelphia is more complicated. Manager and club president Connie Mack, now 87, named Jimmy Dykes assistant manager and Mickey Cochrane general manager of the club. Both former Athletic great were working for Connie as coaches.

While Dykes and Cochrane moved up, Connie's son, Earl, who has been running the club as assistant manager, became chief player scout. He is to leave "immediately" in search of new talent.

Both the White Sox and A's have been bitter disappointments so far. The Sox are last, 14 1-2 games behind the leaders and the leaders and the A's are six, 13 games out.

Newhouser Again Right

Onslow's firing wasn't announced until after the Sox' 2-1 loss to Cleveland. The Philadelphia changes were released before they were beaten 2-0 by the Yankees.

Al Rosen's eighth-inning double ruined Onslow's departure Friday night as Chicago manager. Rosen's hit produced both Cleveland runs to give Bobby Eglier a decision over rookie Bob Cain.

Casey Stengel brought in Joe Page for the second day in a row when the A's threatened in the ninth. Page replaced Eddie Lopat and threw one ball. Pete Suder lifted the pitch to centre-field to end the game.

Hal Newhouser showed no traces of his shoulder trouble in his seventh rolling-along job against St. Louis Browns. Hal gave the Browns six hits, yielding them with a 11-2 victory, it was the first half of a scheduled twi-night doubleer, but the second game was rained out.

Boston Red Sox and Washington were not scheduled.

Burt Shotton tried his Brooklyn relief pitcher, Jack Banta, as a starter and came up with a complete game victory, 3-1, over Boston and Johnny Sain, a six-time winner.

Despite their winning spurt, the Dodgers are unable to shake off the Phillies who remained one game behind the whipping New York 3-2. Robin Roberts struck out 11 Giants en route to his sixth victory.

Roy Smalley was the difference between Chicago and Pittsburgh Friday night. The Cub shortstop hit a basses-loaded home run in the fourth inning to give the Cubs a 4-0 victory.

Kenn Raffensberger, always rough for St. Louis, let down the Cardinals with six hits while Cincinnati banged out a 9-4 edge.

Betting Odds Say Walcott Will Be Champ

Mannheim, Germany, May 27 (AP)—A German boxer who couldn't even get a fight in the United States last year will climb into the ring against Jersey Joe Walcott tomorrow to bid for a shot at the world heavyweight title.

It's the chance of a lifetime for Hein Ten Hoff, but the betting odds say he won't cash in on it. Walcott ruled a solid favorite.

It's the greatest card of big international ring show since Hitler started them fighting with guns instead of gloves. Some 60,000 will probably cheer their national champion. Walcott's cheering section will include about 8,000 American soldiers.

With his 6 feet, 4½ inches, the black-thatched, big-jawed German towers nearly six inches over Walcott. His 215 pounds outweigh Joe by about 17 pounds.

At 30, Ten Foff also is at least six years younger than the Jerseyman. He's never lost a professional fight and has won most of them by knockouts. But despite his record, German critics say he can't match Walcott's hitting and has a glass jaw.

Joe Primeau Named Coach Of Maple Leafs

(By The Canadian Press)

Changes in the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League were made official Friday as managing directors of the Maple Leaf Gardens approved recommendations made a month ago by Managing Director Conn Smythe.

Coach Clarence (Hap) Day of the N. H. L. club now is assistant general manager to Smythe. New coach is Joe Primeau, former Leaf star and manager of Toronto amateur Marlboros.

As assistant general manager, Day "will take part of the load off my shoulders," said Smythe. "Day will be our minister of supply. He will be directly responsible for the results attained by all our minor league clubs and will keep a supply of players flowing to the Leafs. Primeau will be coach and manager of the Leafs. Both men will report directly to me."

Coaching plans throughout the rest of the Leafs organization will be completed by Day, said Smythe, indicating that men he has been dealing with announced the executive shuffle on April 28 still hold the inside track. On that basis Tommy Anderson would appear headed by Pittsburgh, while Robert Davidson and Flash Hollett are in line to coach the senior and junior Marlboros.

Cuban Kid Gavilan snapped his losing slump Friday night with a lop-sided 10-round decision over Georgie Small of Brooklyn at New York's Madison Square Garden. Gavilan weighed 151 3-4, Small 158 3-4.

Beaten by Sugar Costner, Robert Villemain and Billy Graham in recent bouts, the flashy Kid from Havana handled his heavier but less experienced foe with ease.

Gavilan was unable to floor Small but he almost dropped the Brooklyn battler in the final seconds. Small was pinned against the ropes, taking a two - handed lacing at the final bell.

In the dressing room after the fight it was learned that Small's left jaw bone was fractured in the fourth round. His manager, Sol Gold, wanted to stop the bout but Small wouldn't let him.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, said Friday at New York he had rejected a Chicago protest of a game played with the Giants in New York last Thursday. The Giants won 10-4.

The protest was over a balk called against Chicago pitcher Walt Dubiel. The Giants had men on second and third with one out and Henry Thompson at bat. Dubiel intended to pass Thompson intentionally. Umpire Lon Warneke called a balk because the pitcher did not make the one-second stop.

The Cubs protested that the pitcher didn't have to halt on an automatic pass.

Frick ruled that there can be no protest against an umpire's judgment. He added that on a set position a pitcher must make his stop no matter what the situation.

Sam Snead soared to a two over 72 Friday but that was still good enough to give him a three-way total of 136 and undisputed lead in the $15,000 Colonial invitation golf tournament at Fort Worth, Tex.

Skip Alexander, Knoxville, Tenn., co-leader with Snead at the end of the first round, shot a 74 today for third place.

Ed Oliver, Seattle, Wash., turned in a 71 for second place and a 139 total, one stroke better than Alexander.

The Peterborough Petes opened the Senior Ontario Lacrosse season at home Friday night with a 10-3 victory over Hamilton Tigers 1949 champions. Bob Thorpe led the Petes with three goals, and Arn Dugan and Fitzgerald each scored two. Ashley Khnna and Vitarelli were the other Peterborough goal-getters. Stu Scott scored for Hamilton and Jack Dorner one for Hamilton.

Owen Sound Crescents displayed power in all departments Friday night to defeat Mimico 21-9 at Owen Sound in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series. Playing-coach Doug Gillespie scored four goals and two assists to pace the Owen Sound attack. Ken Dixon netted two goals for Mimico.

Quite a good crowd were there including some from Point Anne, Trenton, Madoc, R.C.A.F. etc., and some very nice tennis was served for the benefit of the many spectators who were there from all parts. The grass courts were in really first class condition. Further were drawn from the hat so that everybody had a chance. The winners of the various events were:

Ladies doubles, Hilda Finlan (Point Anne) and Mrs. Caverley (Madoc). Runners up, Elizabeth Pitney (Quinte) and Chris. West (Quinte).

Mixed doubles, Iona MacDonald (Point Anne) and Ken West (Madoc). Runners up, Mrs. Caverley (Madoc) and Walter Ives (Quinte).

Men's doubles, Ken West (Madoc) and Dick Morden (Quinte). Runners up, Cecil Aist (R.C.A.F.) and Walter Ives (Quinte).

League tennis starts for the 1950 season on May 29th when Point Anne and Trenton hook up in the Quinte tennis club that afternoon. On Tuesday, 30th May the two Quinte teams play in Belleville. Batawa have signified their intention of entering the League this year and word is still awaited from Campbellford. S.R.D. are definitely out as they cannot muster enough players. As soon as word is received from the Campbellford club the schedule for the year will be drawn up by the executive and it is hoped to be able to do this next week at the latest. This season then will definitely be a five team and possibly a six team loop.

Later on in the year it is hoped to hold games with teams from league clubs and other clubs in the locality. These teams will be of interest to the spectators and will not include players who take part in the Bay of Quinte League games. Any club who is interested in competing in this series is requested to get in touch with the League secretary, Mr. Eddy Monteith, or any of the League executive.

Rochester Wings Roaring Along In High Gear

(By The Associated Press)

Rochester Wings of the Red Wings haven't won an International League pennant since 1940, are roaring along in high gear today.

Johnny Keane's relentless crew stormed to its seventh straight triumph Friday night as it trounced the pacesetting Montreal Royals 12-3 to pull up to within a half game of the groggy Royals.

The victory was Rochester's second straight over Montreal in the four-game series.

George Copeland throttled Montreal's big bats and hit his shutout in the ninth with his own error a contributing factor.

Don Richmond homered with one on in the first to start the Wings. Hal Rice clouted a three-run homer and Del Wilber one with the bases empty in the second inning surge.

Baltimore Orioles took over fourth place from Jersey City by beating the Giants 7-3 on a three run pinch-hit homer by Clyde Kluttz in the eighth inning.

Norman Roy, who relieved Ford Smith in the fifth, yielded Kluttz's game-winning blow. Karl Drews, second Baltimore pitcher, was the winner.

74 today for third place.

Ed Oliver, Seattle, Wash., turned in a 71 for second place and a 139 total, one stroke better than Alexander.

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

Last Wednesday several of the local soccer enthusiasts trekked to Toronto to see the fine exhibition of the football art put up by the English International team. All eyes of course were on Stan Matthews the Blackpool wizard and he really gave the crowd their monies worth. The touring team never fully extended by the Ontario All Star squad although one or two of the Canadians managed to hold their own. Dick Arends in goal put up a sterling display and but for the efforts of this Toronto Scottish player the score would have been much more than 4-1 in England's favor.

Charlie Vaughan of Charlton Athletic scored two of the goals for the visitors whilst the other two were scored by Jackie Sewell of Notts County and Ted Walsh of Leeds United. Alex Finlayson of St. Andrew's club scored the lone counter for the Ontario Selects. These English lads are a fine quiet unassuming bunch of boys and were really pleased with their reception since they had entered Canada. On Wednesday they left for Saskatoon and return to Toronto again for a match against Manchester United on June 14th after having toured the Dominion.

A fine exhibition of soccer has been organized in this district for today when the local All Stars take on Toronto Senior League All Stars at Trenton, kick off at 3.30 p.m. Tee of the Toronto clubs are appearing with their visiting team, and they really mean to give the local boys a good testing. Rob Scott of C.I.L. who was on the side against the English team will be the opposing visitors. It is hoped that Tom Lancaster, president of the Toronto Referees Association will be able to come down and officiate at this match.

Locally the Flyers are still in the lead in the Bay of Quinte League and are the only unbeaten team in the League, having beaten Batawa in a game played last Monday. Belleville gave them quite a shock last week when they led them 3-3. In fact Belleville were three goals up at one time.

Kingston United still occupy top slot in the Ontario Loop. Neither of the two local clubs is involved this weekend owing to the Queen Star match at Bain Memorial Park, Trenton but next Saturday Brockville will be the visitors when they tie up with Belleville United at the Fair-grounds in Belleville.

English Soccer Players Seek Higher Wages

London, May 27 (CP)— When Neil Franklin and George Mountford, two of England's leading soccer lights, jumped to the Sante Fe Club of Bogota, Columbia, recently they accepted one of the bitterest arguments in British sport.

The argument: Do soccer players draw salaries in keeping with their box-office powers?

Among the most vociferous of the "noes" is sports writer Alan Hoby of the Sunday Express, who said recently: "The player. . . is grossly underpaid. The scandal of chicken-feed pay to English soccer stars must end."

At the moment the players who draw around 1,000,000 fans to see 44 league matches every Saturday are paid a maximum of £12 ($37.20) a week during the playing season and £10 a week in summer with bonuses for winning.

Franklin and Mountford, both of Stoke city, took matters into their own hands by accepting £3,900 salaries and £2,000 signing fees. Now the offer-Columbia movement may affected English soccer may face set-ists somewhat similar to that which threatened big-league baseball when the off-Mexico balk became contagious a few years ago.

In Market for More

Bogota Millionaires club has said it is the market for international wingers Stan Matthews of Blackpool and Billy Liddell of Liverpool.

Touring Europe with an all-star group, Liddell said he would be interested. But in Canada, where he is travelling with another English representative team, Matthews has been quoted as saying he is open to reasonable offers from Co-bian or Canadian clubs.

In an interview in Montreal May 19 Matthews said that that time he had no offers had no intention of accepting them anyway.

Rumors keep flying about London that this or that player is considering Colom-offers—and if they're as good as those Mountford and Fran-lin got, there likely will be plenty more soccer men on their way to South America.

Hollywood, May 27, (AP) — The white-haired Laurence Olivier and his vivacious blonde bachelor" (Little One) celebrated their silver wedding anniversary Friday night with champagne, caviar and a cake. And they offered this advice for marriage success:

Understand each other's problems.

Olivier follows the formula to the extent of handling all her husband's business. He consults her about everything.

What's our recipe for happiness?" said Melchior. "Then it is nothing she knows more about, decides. When I know more about a situation, then I decide. Either of us is boss all the time. It's a 50-50 thing."

Assistant Companion

Mrs. Melchior, a foot shorter than her hulking husband, gave up her acting career after they married in Copenhagen in 1925.

Her reason? "We would be accused by our different careers—what kind of marriage is that?" Since then she has accompanied him everywhere, except on his big game hunts.

The opera singer enjoys telling about meeting his wife, and no wonder:

"I was studying Wagner in Munich. Kleinchen was studying as an actress in a studio nearby. She did her own stunt work and one day she had to bail out of an airplane in a parachute. I heard a big commotion in my garden and ran out to find her caught in a tree. I didn't even know it was a girl until I had untangled her. At First Sight

"I guess it was love at first sight. We had a date that evening."

She debunked the common belief that opera stars are temperamental and denied that her husband is hard to live with. "They aren't all like that," she said, adding with a sigh, "Thank goodness."

By SAM GORDON
The Bridge Expert

Squeezes, endplays, throw-ins, smothers, and other coups are nice to know. But most bridge contracts are made by establishment of suits and ruffing. The first to consider is ruffing.

South is declarer at six clubs in this deal:

NORTH
♠A 8 7 5 2
♣K Q 8 7 2

WEST	EAST
♠J 9 6 4	♠K 10 3
♥Q 9 7 6 2	♥A K 8
♦10 9 6 3	♦A J 4
♣None	♣10 6 5 3

♠Q
♥J 10 4 3
♦A K Q 2
♣A J 9 4

Opening lead from west is the heart six. East wins this with the king and returns the club trey. At least this is the way it was started when the deal came up in actual play.

To make the contract, south realizes he must ruff three hearts with dummy clubs and establish spades in the south hand. There is also the little matter of ruffing the fourth south diamond.

At any rate, south covered the east club return with his four. When west shows out of trumps on the first lead of that suit, dummy ducks this trick by playing the deuce.

A south heart is ruffed with dummy club seven. A diamond return enters south with the queen. Another south heart is ruffed with dummy club eight spot. Another diamond return enters south with the king.

South cashes diamond ace and shuffs a small dummy spade. Now a heart is led and ruffed by dummy club queen. Unable to overruff, east shuffs a small spade and is left with three trumps and two spades.

Dummy cashes spade ace and a small spade from there is ruffed by south. The last red card in south is led and ruffed in dummy with club king. All east can do is throw a trump on it.

Although dummy is now in the lead and must return a spade, it is simple from here in. South has nothing but two trumps that gobble the last two tricks, east helplessly peeling trumps from his hand.

This is an answer to those who ask when declarer should pull trumps. The time is when you do not need them in one hand for ruffing lovers. Make the most with what you have.

Car and Truck Tires Increase In Price

Toronto, May 27. (CP)— A second company today announced increases in the price of automobile and truck tires.

Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Company Ltd., said "most" of its tire prices will be boosted from 9 to 17 1-2 per cent. Goodyear earlier this week boosted from 7 1-2 to 10 per cent the prices of some of its industrial rubber products.

James L. Simpson, Dunlop president, said "the steady rise in the price of natural rubber and other manufacturing costs" is behind the tire-price hike.

Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company of Canada Ltd., on Thursday announced increases from five to seven per cent on certain lines of tires and tubes.

Trade Minister Says Exports Will Improve

Toronto, May 27 — (CP) — Trade Minister Howe Friday night expressed confidence that recent increases in exports to the United States will be further improved in the future.

Addressing the annual dinner of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, he gave two reasons for this belief.

"One is the fact that Canada is bringing into production new resources which are bound to find a ready sale in the United States, such as titanium, iron ore and so forth. The other reason is the American attitude regarding imports."

He instanced certain hampering practices which have been rectified and the customs simplification bill now before Congress.

Little Benny's Note Book

Apparently it got crowded off the frunt page, she said.

And she started to look on the inside pages, saying, Mayor Yowe He Will Stop Crime. More Coffee in Brazil, Less Elsewhere.

Oh, it's just not in there, forget it, pop said, and ma said, I certainly will not forget it. It's here somewhere, or elts the paper aint to be ashamed of itself, she said.

And she kept on terning the pages and reeding the headlines, saying, Hollywood Stars Will Remarry to Settle Problem of Child Custody. There, I knew it, here it is under an especially neet little headline saying, Insurance Men Dine, she said.

Do you meen it mentions my name? pop said, and ma said, Well of course. It says, "Members of the National Insurance Ligg were addressed at the Hotel Silts by Rooben Z. Artberat, president of the Fire and Air Surety Company, and others."

Well, go on, pop said, and ma said, That's all. "And others"—that's the part that means you, William, as every single person that heard you last nite will very well know, she said, and pop said, My dear, you're not only an outstanding genius, you're a wonderful woman.

With Canada's Naturalists:

North-Eastern Panther Once Thought Extinct Reported in Maritimes Area

Written for The Canadian Press By PERCY GHENT

Cougar, puma, mountain lion, panther — the largest of the unspotted cats of the New World has names in picturesque variety.

This tawny animal was at large in the wilderness over all North America in earlier days and was certainly common from the Gulf of Mexico to the Great Lakes. In most of that wide range it is now extinct.

In the Maritimes, as far as can be ascertained, the North-Eastern Panther, a type of shaggier coat and with a weight approaching 200 pounds — a bigger animal, it is said, than the western puma — has not been reported for 40 years, and was considered extinct. In recent months however, the animal has been seen and reported authentically both in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

This is exciting news for many naturalists, for the dense bush regions where the long-lost giant cat has been found again, is well-guarded secret, in the hope that the rare animal can be protected against hunters and collectors and given a chance to survive.

By whatever name selected this native lion of dense bush is rarely seen by hunters and trappers even in regions where tracks in the earth show it to be fairly common. It is healthy and cautious in its wanderings and in its hunting, silently stalking moose, deer, and other prey on which it feeds.

Captured young, the panther has all the playful ways of domestic cats: A century and more ago, Edmund Kean, one of the greatest of Shakespearian actors had a pet panther which followed as faithfully and affectionately as any dog.

"Expedition Caribou" was the title of a paper delivered recently before the Federation of Ontario Naturalists in Toronto by A. H. Criegan of the University of Toronto. He told of his experiences studying the woodland caribou in the remoter regions of Ontario last summer.

Many colored slides of the handsome mammals were shown. Once plentiful over a wide range, the species is now extinct in the United States and in its former haunts in the Maritimes and other areas in Canada. In Ontario an effort is being made to save the few scattered herds of the animal that remain. There is some prospect of success especially on island sanctuaries of Lake Superior.

Outside hope for the restoration of the woodland caribou as a game animal is dim, said Mr. Cringan, the animal can be spared the extinction suffered in so many other regions of North America, it has been demonstrated on crown game preserves of the Ontario department of lands and forests. There, strict and vigilant protection of the animals is saving the remnants of former vast numbers and giving them a chance to increase.

Ontario's "Expedition Moose" and "Expedition Caribou" were sponsored by the Royal Ontario Museum and the Carling Conservation Club. In both instances results have been gratifying in increased knowledge of the mammals and in the initiation of measures to save them from the extinction that threatened them so seriously.

FLOOD-CONTROL

Plan Pigeonholed

Brig. Morton has pigeonholed the emergency plan for this tremendous population transfer because the river has behaved so well during the last week.

At 9 a.m. GMT its Winnipeg level was 27.95 feet — still almost 10 feet above flood stage — but down 2 1-3 feet from the 30.3-foot peak it reached May 19. The risk that further serious damage would occur was considered remote.

The weather, which caused the flood in the first place by pelting the Red River Valley with heavy rain and snow in April, was with Winnipeg and St. Boniface at last. A weekend of sunshine and drying winds was in progress, the Dominion weather office said.

A week of fine weather has licked up the water in the suburbs with unbelievable rapidity. Once-submerged municipalities are emerging from the sludge that has oozed around their houses for two weeks. Some areas, including streets behind major dikes, have been declared open for the return of residents.

Must Clean Up

But before most of the 100,000 voluntary evacuees can come back to their homes in Greater Winnipeg, a highly-organized cleaning problem — widely called "Operation Rainbow" — although it is a civilian job — must be completed. Health officers must pass on all flooded premises before they can be used.

The provincial cabinet has taken steps to determine property loss. After a government caucus it discovered, appointment of a two-or three-man commission to make an "immediate appraisal" of damage, which has been estimated unofficially at more than $100,000,000.

Consistent, though small, drops in the level of the 60-odd miles from the International Boundary are freeing a dozen small towns from the muddy water. The huge lakes between here and the International Boundary are draining rapidly.

GAS RATIONING

First sales were phenomenal. One London garage sold 3,000 gallons—four day's supply previously—in six hours. The price of gas, recently raised 10 per cent, now is three shillings a gallon (about 46 cents).

Motorists Dance Joyfully

Motorists danced joyfully around their cars lined up in the longest gas queues in history. They tore up ration coupons or made bonfires of them.

The coupons had entitled them to only 90 miles of pleasure driving each month. Many persons filled cans as well as automobile tanks for fear the sudden rush would dry up the supply.

In Bristol garage mechanics toasted the news in champagne. The prices of used cars in London jumped one-fifth over last week's listing — for example to £350 ($1,085) for a 1949 British-made Ford "VP"—or "victory of petrol"—day, as the London Daily Graphic christened it, has been delayed five years after VE-Day because of the dollar shortage.

Holiday Starts

The end of rationing coincided with the start of the Whitsun holiday weekend lasting through Monday. Motorists organizations predicted 1,500,000 or Britain's almost 2,000,000 private automobiles would be on the road.

London garage owners who had replaced "come and get it" signs with "sold out" notices got the cheering news that extra barges were bringing thousands more gallons of gasoline up the Thames to the capital to meet the rush.

Holiday resorts, which had prepared for a "pedestrians weekend", made drastic changes in their plans for meeting the invasion by road.

The treasury is happy, too—it expects to get an extra £20,000,000 a year tax revenue from gas sales.

Hull, Que., May 27 — (CP) — Printed cards, bearing the statement that "Witnesses of Jehovah Are Not Allowed to Have Premises", soon will appear above the doorbells of hundreds of homes in this western Quebec city.

The cards are the creation of Rodrique Bedard, Hull recorder and acting secretary of the Hull Knights of Columbus, Roman Catholic service organization, which is sponsoring the distribution of the cards as a move to discourage the Jehovah Witnesses from gaining entrance into Hull homes.

Whipper Watson Triumphs Over Villainous Bob Wagner While 1,300 Howl Approval

Strangler Bob Wagner, imported villain from Portland, Oregon used all the tricks he has accepted in the "bag of cement" but they failed dismally to make the proper impression on ost Whipper Billy Watson in the main bout at the arena last night.

The "Whip" formally baptized the new ring installed by the Arena Commission with a thrilling victory over the long-haired Oregonian who repeatedly failed to find the range when attempting a third strike on the handsome lad from East York.

In fact the raging Robert did not take Referee Bert Maxwell's trespasin thumping signalling a Watson victory on two occasions too kindly and at the end of the melee decided to bash the noggins of the official and Watson together in order to get a little more brain out of the mess, he said.

Weak Work

He did get in a spot of track work in the second fall which he won in order to matters on an even basis after the "Whip" had flopped him like a freshly landed carp in the first fall. He skinned the former Empire champion all over the brand new canvas and then tucking the Wrtenslan noggin underneath his good right arm, introduced him to the four ring posts without the formality of speech. The Whip reeled from the several impacts and Wagner leering like a Hi Lee spread the "teen-agers" delight and got the official nod.

But the third fall was different. The Whipper took over matters and in one time, with the cheers of the faithful ringing in his ears looked down at the prone figure of both Wagner and corpulent Referee Maxwell. It seems that Wagner hurled a flamlike fist up to the elbow in the inflated equatorial region of His Mibe. Maxwell writes a grunt that stopped traffic at the Shanmeville evening and decided to mount the cobwebs on the arena roof from a prone position.

Two Down

While Wagner is gloating over that unmerited victory over Officialdom the Whip stepped into the picture. He evaded the Wagnerian paw with several heavy elbow jolts and down went the screaming McGinty. The Whip looked down at the prone form of the official and proceeded to attempt agonizingly to the 1,300 fans as though asking for three to make a bridge foursome.

Wagner finally crawled over the Maxwellian carcass and rose his 3 bits. Infuriated he tried every trick in his bag but the Whipper calmly took over and bashed him to earth for the count.

Micky Gold and popular Ray Villmer staged one of the best bouts seen here in years in the semi-final. Both played it the clean way and the roar of the fans echoed and re-echoed as Villmer and Gold "broke" cleanly in a fast and furious exhibition. Villmer finally got the nod after 25 minutes of outstanding wrestling. The powers-that-be can bring this pair back any time.

Red Simms and Al. Korman opened the ring festivities with a fast preliminary.

ST. THOMAS WINS

(By The Canadian Press)

St. Thomas Legion of the Intercounty Baseball League tried to play the perfect hosts last night, but it didn't do them any good.

Despite committing six errors and issuing 12 walks, they defeated Kitchener Legion 10-6. Kitchener made five miscues.

At Brantford, the Red Sox pushed Guelph Maple Leafs further in the League cellar by defeating the Leafs 11-4 behind the seven-hit pitching of Harrison Fisher. London at Stratford was rained out.

HURLS THREE - HITTER

Lindsay, May 27 — (CP) — Young Bill McTamney put up with a three hit pitching effort and struck out 10 men as Oshawa Transporters held Lindsay Merchants to a 3-3 tie in a twilight Ontario game here Friday night. Lindsay took a 3-0 lead in the fourth but Oshawa tied it up on triples by Ted O'Connor and Grabby Joskowski. Junior West held the Transporters to four hits until relieved by veteran Lloyd Tamblyn.

REDBREAST IN CLOVER

Leicester, England — (CP) — A robin here has built its nest in a motor car. The owner of the car, Henry Smith, says he won't remove the nest or bird until the eggs are hatched and the young birds can fly.

Ramsay Paints Tops S-A Crew By 8-6 Count

From the class of ball that is being played in the Commercial Softball League, the fans are in for a good summer of their favorite pastime. Last night at Alemite Field, the Ramsay Paints sang a duet with the Stephens-Adamson squad with a four-run outburst in the fourth frame. The Steel Men made it close with a three-run rally in the eighth and had the tying and winning run on the base paths in the ninth but could not produce the necessary bingle.

Jack Reid, hurling for the winners will go, top all the way and threw a six-hitter at the opposition, four of these coming in the eighth frame. He whiffed ten and was backed by superb fielding on the part of his team mates, especially Wannamaker, who made a brilliant running catch in the fourth off Archie Deline. Harold Young started for the losers but was relieved in the sixth by Grant Wright, who incidentally pitched a steady relief job. Between the two hurlers only two strikeouts were recorded but the team played excellent ball behind their hurlers. They were, however, lucky in the winners connecting for thirteen hits including a home run.

For the winners Empey, a big rangy boy at first, was the hitting hero with four for five and was robbed of a home run smash in his last time at bat when Prain who replaced Archie Deline, ran a mile to gather in his booming drive. Holland, the catcher for the winners, as did the hurler while Young had a three-banger for Stephens-Adamson. The game was played in a little over an hour.

The lineupst

Kingsridge

By Alice Ross Colver

"I can understand that, but—"

Susan spoke.

"Don't you see? Gerry has lived Dr. Morgan! He's been out in the world. He's known battle and—and sudden death, and a lot of gory things like that. He couldn't possibly go back to a schoolroom and lesson books now."

For a moment the Headmaster said nothing. He just looked from Gerry's stark rebellious face to Susan's ardent pleading one.

"Other men have," he said finally. "And I think you will make a mistake not to follow their example, because . . ." He checked himself, slapped both hands on his knees and rose. "All right. I see how it is. And I was somewhat prepared for your reaction, Gerald, so I have made ready a list of names and addresses for you." He moved to his flat-topped desk over by the window. "I have, too, a letter of introduction that may be of service." He picked some papers from the drawer and came back with them to Gerry. "These are all good men," he said, "who have been out in the world, too. You will find them tolerant and generous. And I sincerely hope—you will find a chance for yourself with one of them."

He seemed to have dismissed the idea of further study completely. Dick, Gerry thought now, if he could so easily dismiss it—if he had expected him to refuse it, why had he brought it up at all?

Suddenly he knew. It was because of Susan. So he would be good enough, educated enough for Susan.

"New Yawk! New Yawk!"

Gerry looked up with a frown on his face, walked with his bag off the train and out to the station and the street.

He as about to start toward the bus station when it occurred to him that that was foolish. Why go out to Kingsridge tonight when he would only have to come in again tomorrow morning? He would stay at the nearest hotel instead, have dinner there and get a room. First, though he would buy himself a clean shirt.

He turned his steps toward a shop, bought his shirt, and then walked on to a hotel further along the block. As he entered it, he remembered that it was here he had lunched with Alicia only many weeks ago. With her in his mind, he went to the desk, registered, and moved toward the elevators behind a bellhop who had his bag.

One elevator had just been filled and, as the inner gate closed, he found himself looking straight at Alicia Brandt. For a second he thought she must be the creation of his imagination. But no. Through the iron grillwork he saw her plainly, and, next to her, standing sideways to Gerry, and talking to her with a curious expression of desperate casualness on his face, was Frank Park.

Gerry stared, hardly believing his eyes, and Alicia stared back. Though she gave no sign of recognition, he knew she had seen him, for her gaze remained riveted on his in a slow-growing horror as the elevator mounted, until the solid expression of congealed misery left her face, and Frank Park,

See Signs Canada, U.S., Britain Busy On Anti-Spy Step

No Mention Made in Ottawa, Officials Decline Comment

Ottawa, May 29 (CP)—Indications today are that Canada is engaged with Britain and the United States in an anti-espionage drive whose pace hasn't been matched since the celebrated spy trials of 1946.

There are signs that it may blow wide open at any time.

But it is all shrouded in curtained off. Nobody in Ottawa is talking.

Officials are so firm and steadfast in their determination not to talk that they smugly redouble conjecture that Canada may soon see a revival of the 1946 prosecutions.

London Report

The latest indication is a London press report that one Canadian, but not by name, was swept up in a three-nation swoop on espionage suspects seen in that area.

Heavily - armed police squads combed maple sugar camps and vacant cabins in the wooded region but to no avail.

REHABILITATION TASK CONTINUES IN WINNIPEG

Winnipeg, May 29—(CP)— A few lonely sentinels today watched the last of the receding waters mark on greater Winnipeg's sandbag cities. For most of the city, the worst flood in a century was almost a thing of the past.

The huge volunteer-services the menace had thrown 80,000 men machine—which at the height of into a round-the-clock drudgery to save Winnipeg and nearby St. Boniface from destruction—was fast breaking up.

Brig. Ronald Morton's flood-control headquarters, which had operated a vast and hectic network of secret communications, today reported:

"Nothing new; the river is dropping fast."

By Wednesday his corps of 8,000 regulars and militia troops would pass over control of the river to civil authorities. An ready army reserve units, called to active service when things looked very grim, disbanded.

The Red is still several feet above the 18-foot flood stage. At 7:30 a.m. (CST) the river was 24.7 feet, down 3.6 feet from the May 19 crest of 28.3. Brighter, warmer weather and drying winds had accelerated the recession.

Reuther Outlines Long Policy For CIO Workers

Detroit, May 29—(AP)—Walter Reuther Saturday outlined a long-ranger for his C.I.O. United Automobile Workers, including a guaranteed annual wage, to achieve "dynamic, expanding, full employment economy" in the United States.

The first chief of the U.A.W. at a press conference was jubilant over the 5-year contract signed May 23 with General Motors Corporation. He called it a "billion-dollar contract." It provides at least $100-a-month pensions including social security, and an annual wage boost.

"A guaranteed annual wage is the next objective of our union," Reuther said.

Other union objectives included:

1. Pensions for workers of $200 a month, including social security, within the next 10 years.

2. Extending the provisions of the G.M. contract to smaller companies in the industry "able to carry the load."

3. An expanding economy, with pressure on the steel industry and government action as a last resort, to assure ample supplies of steel for the country.

4. A fundamental realignment of political forces in the United States with Labor and farmers as the "basic core" of the democratic party.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 29 (CP)—Official forecasts issued by the Dominion Public Weather Office in Toronto at 8 a.m. EDT:

Synopsis: The cloud layer that persisted over southern and central parts of Ontario Sunday still covers southeastern sections of the province today. Slowly clearing skies are expected today in these regions as the band of cloud edges eastward.

The weather on Tuesday is expected to continue mainly sunny and warm across northern Ontario. Temperatures in southern Ontario will range in the 70s.

A new disturbance developing over Oklahoma this morning will bring increasing cloud to southwestern Ontario late Tuesday. Thunderstorms associated with this disturbance are likely to spread from the Lake Erie region Tuesday evening.

SEARCH GOES ON FOR MURDERER OF CONSTABLE

Series of Hold-ups Adds to Crime List

Montreal, May 29 — (CP) — One of Montreal's greatest manhunts continued today for the killer of R. C. M. P. Constable Alexander Gamman as a minor army force was kept police on the go throughout the weekend.

The 56-year-old constable was fatally wounded when he attempted to stop a would-be bank robber in a Bank of Toronto branch on downtown Beaver Hall Hill Thursday noon. He died in hospital after a 35-hour battle for life.

Some 2,000 men from the R. C. M. P., provincial and city police forces, spurred by the death of the constable, converged countless tips as to the whereabouts of the desperado.

Their search spread as far as Maskinonge county, 80 miles east of here, when it was reported a man answering the killer's description had been seen in that area.

Watchman Tied up Thieves Rob Hotel of $2,000

Toronto, May 29 (CP) — Thieves escaped with $2,000 from the Orchard Park Hotel early today after tying up watchman Tony Martyniuk, 44. Police said most of the money was in small denomination bills.

Martyniuk said the thieves appeared to be led by a short, stocky man and man wearing a sport shirt and a milkman's hat.

The watchman said the second man told him:

"Keep quiet and you won't get hurt."

Martyniuk said the man threw a rope around him and tied his legs with cord. Then he could hear other men assembling in the safe.

Police said the thieves entered by a rear door. John Ross, day chef, released Martyniuk when he arrived for work.

Gasoline-Powered Toboggan Help To Fire-Fighters

Toronto, May 29 (CP)—A sumsuper-toboggan, aimed at replacing the pack from the back of the hard-pressed bush fire-fighter, has been developed recently in early trials and the research division of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests is making three more of the gasoline-powered packcarriers.

The machine, powered by a single-cylinder engine, will carry 700 pounds of fire fighter equipment up hills which defy the fire fighter at present carrying range. They are driven by a half-track arrangement.

A complete fire-fighting unit and other equipment can be portioned through the bush by a single man with the machine.

First Whooping Crane Ever Born In Captivity Disappears From Nest

Austwell, Texas, May 29 (AP) — The first whooping crane ever born in captivity was hatched on April 28 in the world, had disappeared this morning and was presumed dead, Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, said today.

Rusty, a reddish-brown chick, was born in a salt marsh on the wildlife refuge last week and was first sighted by jubilant bird scientists early Saturday.

He was the chick of Josephine and Crip, rare whooping cranes.

His hatching was a triumph for persons who have striven for 13 years to preserve from extinction the colorful, graceful, whoopers, largest American bird.

Experts of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife service and the Canadian Audubon Society had maintained a tense "maternity watch" since May 6 and Crip's hatching date, 22.

The bird scientists had used telescopes and field glasses 13 hours a day from a tower 300 yards away from the nest.

Little Rusty, named by Howard Lockley of his staff, was probably the prey of a predatory animal, Lockley reported.

Every precaution — short of disrupting Josephine and Crip — had been taken.

Britain's UN Delegate Says Cold War May Not End For "Generations"

Montreal, May 29 — (CP) — Sir Alexander Cadogan, Britain's delegate to the United Nations, predicted today that it may take "generations" to put an end to the world's cold war, but he could conceive of only victory for the free nations.

"Except no early or easy solution," he told a McGill University audience gathered here in a speech prepared for delivery. "It may take generations to reach the end, and many years your generation will not look upon it."

But in time, he said, "if you remain firm and united and true to the dictates of your conscience and your heart, you will gain in strength and know that the battle is to be won at the last."

Sir Alexander, who received an Honorary Doctorate of Laws Degree at today's ceremonies, said that while the cold war is being waged by "the ruling gangsters which threaten the free peoples — a danger of "fatalistic despair" would be a "fatal and easy optimism."

"Have great ideals and inspirations," he told the McGill graduates, "but apply to them the test of what is possible at this time."

There is the complaint, he added, and "it is no pious trust" that free nations are at a disadvantage, that they are on the defensive with the initiative to choose the place and time of attack in the hands of the aggressor nations.

Because they may be like jungle dogs exposed at any moment to sudden attack from unexpected quarters, the free nations should..do all they can to provide themselves with defence against attack, Sir Alexander said.

"But it does not follow that they have no means of counteraction. I do not say that they do not wish to suggest that the free nations should take a leap out of the armament race and resort to what is sometimes called a 'preventive war'."

There was another way of winning the struggle and this was by "capturing men's minds." If the free nations could put their house in order, labor to develop new resources and see that they are distributed justly, "then it may be that a way will be opened by the teaching of hard facts which cannot be gainsaid — and that these others may realize no longer to live under the tyranny that now oppresses them."

Canadian-American Defence Picture is 'Satisfactory and Heartening' Says McNaughton

Halifax, May 29 (CP)—A keen old gentleman of youthful vigor today compared joint Canadian-American defence preparations before the last World War with joint defence measures of today. He called them "equally satisfying and heartening."

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton had taken a salute in the old Wellington parade square here before the Second World War. At that time the buildings were dilapidated, the equipment antiquated. There was no money for such business, and only a handful of troops involved. Today the defence estimates. There was no such thing as a joint defence program, or international integration of forces.

Takes Salute

Today the General took the salute at the same parade ground —now used by the naval base. Modern new brick and concrete buildings were built and well built and equipment looked ultra modern. The general was just about to take his place as joint chairman at a meeting of the Canadian-United States permanent defence board. There were thousands of troops on parade in the parade square and behind them short siren blasts signalled the departure of one of the Atlantic squadron moving to sea exercises.

The General saw the contrast and told reporters "I can tell you the picture is both satisfying and heartening."

Both Gen. McNaughton and his fellow-representative—Gen. G. V. Henry of the United States—were impressed by the gathering strength of co-operation which stemmed from their recommendations board.

"I believe our greatest contribution has been in promoting the whole spirit of the armed forces so that tactically and technically they have established splendid relations," Gen. McNaughton said. "And I mean these relations are not merely on the basis of international liaison but they are more fundamental than that. You see members of the armed forces of one country are working in the very heart of the forces of the other—as a matter of fact a part of the other."

The General said the commission's most important mission here was to see the Canadian navy's anti-submarine force at work in the Atlantic—let the Nova Scotia coast tomorrow.

Both generals spoke of the vital importance of co-operation with the Canadian navy and said they were interested in seeing tomorrow's exercises and what they they already had paper knowledge.

Nationalist China Says Russia Sent In 300,000 Men

Taipei, Formosa, May 29 (AP) — Nationalist China accused Russia today of pouring 300,000 Soviet troops into Red China.

There was no way of confirming this accusation. Nationalist data said earlier Russia and communist China had agreed that 300,000 Soviet citizens would settle in Manchuria.

The defence ministry said that more than 150,000 Russian troops are stationed in such key Manchurian cities as Harbin, Changchun and Mukden and Changchun.

The ministry said 10,000 to 20,000 Soviet troops are stationed south of the great wall in Peiping, Tientsin, Tsinan and other main cities. Ten thousand Soviet troops wearing Chinese communist uniforms but carrying Russian equipment are stationed recently in Shanghai, the ministry asserted.

It said huge amounts of rice were being requisitioned to feed Russian troops.

LABOR GETTING SET FOR NEW ELECTION DRIVE

Campaign Will Feature Showdown on Socialism

London, May 29—The Labor party is getting set for a new election, with featuring a showdown on Socialism.

Two secret conferences in the last 10 days have picked out two salient efforts to win the favor of the voters, say informed sources in the Labor government.

The first is beamed at the British housing.

Labor's new deal will mean lower prices for fruit, vegetables and fish which now are largely free of government help, is part of their chief plan for attempting to show that Socialism can mean a shilling in the purse for the least person in the country as well as a grandiose plans for public ownership of industry.

Plans once laid for state control of food distribution have been shelved, however. In its place will come a plan to shake up the distributive trades, so as to reduce the wide spread between prices paid by consumer and the system of municipal markets, based on the grower-to-consumer idea, is likely to be established.

"Battle for Berlin" Turns Out to be Communist Parade

Threatened Putsch Expected By West Did Not Materialize

By WES GALLAGHER

Berlin, May 29 — (AP) — The much-publicized "Battle for Berlin" turned out Sunday to be just another big communist parade, not the threatened putsch the west had girded itself to meet.

The demonstration, which recalled days of Hitler's goose-stepping legions, had its significant undertones, however.

The west proved itself ready to meet any red putsch and not be moved one inch by Russian threats.

The east proved it had laid the groundwork for an automaton state in East Germany, firmly in the communist grip, by pouring out 300,000 youths to pay homage to Russia.

There was no communist storming of the west sectors, as first threatened last February.

Neither was the red outpouring in the east even close to the fair.

Up the Wilhemstrasse, past the rubble that marks the end of Hitler's reich, into Unter Den Linden where the Kaiser's legions and later the Nazi hoards used to march, came the 300,000 chosen youths by the tens of thousands.

Hour after hour they marched through rain and sun, chanting the hymn of hate against the west and praise for communism.

60-Year-Old Wife Drops Husband From Sixth Floor

New York, May 29 — (AP) — "I guess I won't bother me out," paralyzed Fred Bornholdt pleaded as his 60-year-old wife balanced him on the edge of the sixth-floor window.

"I'm not afraid," she told him — and dropped him to his death on the courtyard below.

Police got her story after arresting her Saturday night.

"I'm glad I did it," she told them. She rambled vaguely, finally saying, "I'm a bad girl." She was charged with homicide and will be examined mentally after a hearing Wednesday.

Neighbors filled out the rest of the story. Bornholdt, a fat, 62-year-old waiter, was paralyzed by a stroke last November. His wife, now a hotel chambermaid, slaved away to keep things going. Friends said, and neighbors said she talked of cats prowling the apartment . . . of the devil outside the window . . . and more.

Two weeks ago she told one friend she had taken time off to the window to drop him out but that her nerves failed.

But nobody paid an attention. They said she always talked like that.

Evacuation of Dunkirk by British 10 Years Ago Described in Book

London, May 29—(Reuters)—

Just 10 years ago there took place the "Miracle of Dunkerque" — the evacuation of more than 335,000 British and French soldiers across the English Channel, when Hitler swept through the low countries and France.

The story has been brought to life again in a new book written in it—Lt.-Col. Ewan Butler and Maj. J. Selby Bradford, authors of "Dunkerque Spearhead — The Memory Green."

Gathered together by professional writers, adds fresh facts to a narrative already a legend, to the people of both Britain and Britain in particular—of the need to keep prepared.

Lacking in equipment, the British army found strength, however, in a good spirit and worthy leadership.

Viscount Gort, commander-in-chief, set an example among his officers for austerity living. Only once, says Butler, did he find his officers really needed a drink to-day. Then the Belgian army capitulated after weeks of furious fighting.

U.A.W. VOTES TO STRIKE JUNE 5 AT CHRYSLER

Windsor, Ont., May 29. (CP)— A strike deadline at 10 a.m. June 5 faces negotiators of the Chrysler Corporation of Canada Ltd., and United Automobile Works (C.I.O.), scheduled to resume talks today on Union pension and contract demands.

Strike action was approved at a general meeting Sunday of some 3,000 of the 3,600 members of Local 195, U.A.W., in Chrysler's three Windsor plants. A union statement said that 98 per cent of those voting agreed to stop work June 5 "or sooner" unless an agreement is reached.

George Burt, Canadian U.A.W. director, told the meeting the union will seek conciliation negotiations from today until the strike deadline in an effort to settle the long-standing dispute.

In recent negotiations, Mr. Burt said, the company has refused to compromise "package offer" by the union, equivalent to a 9 cent-an-hour increase. The union will now revert to its original demands, he said.

200 Members of Aircraft Battery Join in Reunion Held During the Weekend

They fought the guns again and fought them well. They lived and relived the battles fought overseas when they established a record for "kills" against Goering and Luftwaffe.

Nearly 200 ex-members of the 22 Light Anti Aircraft Battery, member unit, of the 4th Light Anti-Aircraft Regiment held their first reunion since the cessation of hostilities in the British Street Armouries on Saturday and Sunday.

The strong bond that binds ex-service men was again exemplified in the fine representation of the battery. One former gunner came from Newfoundland and another from Newfoundland. Montreal was well represented as was all Ontario with special emphasis on the city and district.

Officially Welcomed

Popular commanding officer of the battery, former Major Jack Cousins, who later commanded the 9th Anti Tank Regiment RCA (A.U.) was greeted by the men who served under him in England and Italy. Greeted by the official welcome of the city was tendered the ex-gunners by His Worship Mayor Jack Allin with county greetings extended by Reeve Elmer Sandercock, M. P. for Hastings West. Brief addresses were given by Col. Cousins, Mayor Allin and Mr. Sandercock at the banquet held on Saturday night.

"The best battery that ever brought down an enemy aircraft" was the tribute paid to his men by Col. Cousins. He recalled several incidents that occurred during training and in action and many humorous as well as serious stories were recounted. Col. Cousins was afforded a vociferous reception.

"Proud to Have You"

"We are proud to have you men visit our city" Mayor Allin said. "We like to think we think one of the best communities in Ontario and Canada, for that matter. We hope you will enjoy your visit and I think you will find that we are friendly and hospitable. The city is yours and I hope that you will enjoy yourselves and come back and visit us again in the near future."

The banquet was served by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Army, Navy Air Force Veterans' branch here under the supervision of Mrs. William McKenna, president of the branch. The ladies were tendered a vote of thanks for the excellent repast.

A Visiting Mayor

The "mayor of Pontypool, John Payne, veteran of two wars and former resident of Pontypool Ont., was given a warm welcome by his former buddies. It was recalled that ex-gunner Payne was a deputy reeve of his village at the time he enlisted and while overseas paid a visit to Pontypool, Wales. The mayor of that city extended the freedom of the community to Mayor Payne and the town in general turned out to give the "Canadian mayor" a royal reception.

The gunners did not forget those gallant men who gave their all for civilization during the war. On Sunday morning to the skirl of the pipes of the 9th Anti Tank regimental band under Pipe Major Jamie Clark, the bereted veterans with a host of identification badges paraded up the Station Street Cenotaph where they took part in a brief memorial service. Archdeacon the Venerable Arthur Smith, of St. Thomas Church and padre of the 9th Anti Tank Regiment conducted the service. The gunners deposited a wreath to the memory of their buddies who never came back.

Remember Flood Victims

Nor did they forget the victims of the Red River flood in Manitoba. The gunners took up a collection and $28.71 was realized from the "hat."

Reminiscences flew thick and fast during the various get-together and many old time buddies saw one another for the first time since the end of the war.

Albert College Year Magazine Splendid Edition

In a small, compact, "packed-up-tight" edition of 116 pages, "The Alibi," year book and literary magazine of Albert College, greeted students this week.

Edited by Drew McKee and his staff of ten, "The Alibi" appears in a black-covered edition that threatens to burst its seams under the quantity of material contained between its covers. Owing to its small (6½ by 9 inch) size and the packing that this entails it fails to convey the sense of leisure that ensues with the use of large areas of white paper, and gives rather the impression of a bustling, enthusiastic young man whose style is being cramped for want of space.

As a year magazine it fulfills its duties to a T. It is a complete of record of the activities of school as is possible in a book of its kind and it has excluded nothing from its literary, athletic and athletic life which it has set out to record. It has gone in heavily for informal, candid camera pictures of campus life, giving over eight pages to this end.

Literature, often disregarded in school magazines, plays a prominent part in the alibi with more than 20 pages devoted to short stories, feature articles and poetry. A series of original and topical limericks give the humor note a sparkle and dash usually not found in high school publications.

A picture of the graduating class and thumbnail sketches of each one renders due honor to the passing senior year, while a alumni are remembered in a lengthy section devoted to their interest.

Boy Ran Out From Behind Car Onto Highway

Struck by a car as he ran across the highway in the village of Carrying, the eight-year-old Oliver Plane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Plane of Cannilton is in serious condition at Belleville General Hospital, where he was taken following the accident Sunday evening.

The boy suffered a fractured pelvis and femur, broken ribs, internal injuries and facial cuts. Emergency calls were made from the hospital for blood type O-RH-negative to give the boy blood transfusions.

The accident occurred shortly after the supper hour Sunday evening when the Plane boy, accompanied by Jimmy Latchford, aged 10, a playmate, darted out from behind a parked car and started across the highway. The other boy ran back but the Plane lad continued on the highway and was struck by a southbound car driven by D. P. McAvoy, 181 Golden Street, Belleville. The lad was carried for some distance on the bumper of the car.

Dr. W. B. Beattie and Dr. G. S. Porter attended the injured boy at the hospital. The accident was investigated by Provincial Constable Smith.

700 Bird Lovers Hear First Lark

Glanton, Northumberland, England, May 29 — (AP) — Seven hundred British bird lovers spent the wee hours on damp and chilly hillside this morning harking the first lark.

The first was harked at 2:52 a. m. local time by a watcher stationed in eastern Scotland's lowland meadows.

The annual bird listening derby has been going on since 1933, except for those years when the crump of the blitz bombs was like as not to drown out the first thin notes.

Noble Rollin, director of the Glanton bird research station, compiles the bird song reporters into charts.

This year's listening again confirmed reports that the common house sparrow—known in United States as the English sparrow — is the winter busybones of the song bird world.

He kept his bill shut until 4:20 a.m.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, May 29 — (CP) — Considerably profit-making sales appeared as the season progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today. Western oils bounced up strongly at the opening into a new high ground for a third successive session but profit-taking pressure reduced some advances.

General Petroleum attracted considerable attention in firmer western oil list. Leading issues like Calgary and Edmonton, Atlantic Oil and Foothills nagged under pressure of realizing today. National Petroleum, a standout in recent sessions, also slumped.

Low-priced gold stocks continued trading at the rapid rate of last week's markets. Omega Mines had a moderate gain and Amalgamated Larder and Donald were also active. Several of the prefrontiers were leaders as weekend slightly as traders took profits. Leading junior producers dipped from opening firmness.

Industrials opened higher and sagged as the session progressed. Foods and liquors were higher while agriculturals, constructions and refining oils eased. Base metals moved in a narrow price range on slightly lower levels.

No Rain of Any Account in Sight To Aid Fighters

(By The Canadian Press)

Eastern Canada's May heat wave today threatened further devastation of Maritime and Quebec forests. And the weatherman warned that no rain of any account was in sight to aid fire-fighters.

In Ontario, however, rains Friday and Saturday doused forest and bush fires in the Kirkland Lake and Sudbury districts.

In New Brunswick, all travel through forests has been banned and in Quebec a number of wooded counties are under a similar ban. If conditions improve in Quebec today, the ban may be lifted.

Nova Scotia officials are watching controlled bush and forest fires around Halifax and on Cape Breton Island but they do not plan to close the woodlands to the public unless the situation deteriorates.

New Brunswick was the hardest hit province. Only one forest fire is out of control, but it has destroyed 16 homes in the last week. Four dwellings near Allardville, in Gloucester county, were destroyed Sunday.

Eight Under Control

Eight other New Brunswick fires are under control.

At Cagetown, a lumber operator estimated damages in his district so far at $1,000,000. The total damage for the province may run in several millions. Most of the New Brunswick fires are in stands of spruce, fir and pine.

At Allardville, citizens Sunday paraded to church and prayed for rain.

In Nova Scotia, stubborn fires were burning around Halifax while other blazes had broken out in Hants county and near Sydney, Cape Breton Island.

In Quebec, rains helped exhilgulish bush fires in northwestern counties but other fires were burning along both shores of the St. Lawrence River below Quebec.

Will End Bilateral Wheat Agreements

London, May 29 (Reuters) — Canada and Britain have agreed to end the system of bilateral wheat agreements between them, which has been so strongly criticized in the United States, wheat experts in London said today.

The decision, which experts believe the two governments took in the London discussions last week between British officials and C. D. Howe, Canadian Trade Minister, is not expected to be made known until next week.

Under it Canada and Britain will have no firm bulk contract for Canadian wheat after the current four-year agreement expires July 31, experts believe.

Industrial Peace For Five Years Assured Workers

Detroit, May 29 (AP)— General Motors Corporation now has contracts insuring five years of industrial peace with 267,000 production and electrical workers.

The automobile industry's biggest producer signed an agreement Saturday with the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (CIO), which has a membership of 32,000.

G.M. and the I.U.E. patterned the pact on a contract announced five days earlier by the corporation and the United Auto Workers (CIO) representing 225,000.

Both 5-year agreements which cannot be reopened, cover:

1. A formula to pay $100-a-month, including social security, to employees retiring with 25 years' service. The pensions will go if social security payments are done by Congress.

2. A four-cent hourly wage boost effective today and an additional four cents each year the duration of the contracts.

3. Continuation of the cost-of-living plan, by which wages are adjusted quarterly according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics' consumer price index.

4. Improved life insurance, sickness and accidents benefits and a G.M. promise to pay half of each workers' hospital and surgical coverage.

The contract with the I.U.E. lacked a modified union shop agreement, included in the G.M.-U.A.W. pact.

The new contract was approved unanimously by the I.U.E.-General Motors conference.

The I.U.E. formed after the CIO ousted the United Electrical Workers Union last fall, won bargaining rights in G.M. plants Feb. 26.

Says Prejudice Against Vitamin E Treatment Declining

Guelph, May 29 — (CP) — Medical prejudice towards the vitamin E method of treatment for vascular and heart ailments is gradually breaking down, says Dr. Evan Shute of the Shute Institute in London, Ont.

Dr. Shute, in Guelph during the weekend, said in an interview that more and more surgeons and physicians were recognizing the value of claims made by the Shute Brothers in connection with the treatment.

He pointed out that at a recent meeting in Ottawa of leading Canadian medical authorities, numerous physicians testified personally to the merits of vitamin E.

Further evidence of its success, he claimed, could be seen in the fact that on March 31 of this year, 2,316 new heart and vascular patients were attending the Shute Institute in London.

Crow Goes Berserk, Attacks Six Men, Riot Gun Ends it

Toronto, May 29 — (CP) — Police hauled up heavy artillery — a riot gun — to win a battle with a berserk crow Saturday.

But it was a humane society inspector's .410-calibre shotgun which dispatched the bird.

A shot from the riot gun got another crow by mistake.

The action took place in a cemetery — as funerals passed slowly by.

Mount Pleasant Cemetery echoed with shots—and with the bird's defiant caw-caw-caw — during a two-hour battle.

The big, black bird whose mate had set up housekeeping in a cemetery tree, had caused trouble for a week. Saturday it made at least six dive-bombing attacks on humans.

Women had their hats knocked off. A bald man suffered a scalp cut from the crow's sharp beak. One cemetery employee fought off the bird three times.

SHUBERT ALLEY SERENADE

As everyone and his Aunt Esmarelda knows, show business for the most part, is one big headache.

1946, stage-struck lass from Nebraska named Judy Peters moved into a boarding house on Forty-Second Street in a two-act play that lasted four performances.

Then a solid and sobering year after that, Judy made the rounds, using the usual health salads and waiting on table to pay for her furnished attic in fashion room. It was heart-and arch-breaking work, but it finally paid off when the Big Chance came along — the second lead in a flop revue.

The day after the play opened out of town, Judy retired her fifty dollars a week to Equity, her any more, and when George Jean Nathan singled her out for mention in his review the farm girl figured it was all over but the shouting.

One swell notice, however, doth not a stage career make, and when the play closed after a run of three months, Judy had to go back to reading the casting notes in Actors' Cues. By this time her family, fed up with her show business shenanigans, had put her on notice that the only further money they would spend would be train fare back to Nebraska. And so, to keep body and hopes alive, Judy and Helen Hayes went back to waiting on tables.

Last April, after three grim years of scratch-scratch, but nine play, Judy was handed the script of Keith Winters' old hit, "The Shining Hour," by the director of a summer stock company. He asked her to bone up on the part of Judy Landen — a typical farm girl whose accent was pure Midwest, and whose face and figure were more silo than sex.

The audition went off without hitch or hesitation, and Judy was in the heaven above seventh heaven. The director complimented her on how well she read her lines. He told her he'd let her know definitely the following day, and she went back to her one-room-and-bath on Third.

The next night the landlady smelled gas in the hall, and the police arrived Judy was dead. On the bed by her side was the script of "The Shining Hour," opened to the scene in Act Two where Judy, as Linda, the farm girl, takes her own life.

Suicide is a crime, for a suicide motive, didn't have far to look. On the dresser was a note from the director. In it, he regretted that he had read the part fine, but I'm afraid you're not the type."

American Aid To Indo-China May Cause Tangle

By SIGRID ARNE
(Associated Press Foreign Analyst)

(For DEWITT MACKENZIE

Promise of American aid to Indo-China—just made by the State department—could move the United States into another political tangle as aggravated as the Greek troubles in 1947.

Chinese Communist troops are perched on the mountainous north border of Indo-China. And armed elements near that if Indo-China falls under the shadow of Moscow, India and Indonesia will certainly feel the pressure next. So little Indo-China seems to have become as the old bolding point, much as Greece was chosen in the Mediterranean. Until recently Britain was head of French dependency. Now it has granted independence and has been broken into three small countries: Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

Viet Nam, the northernmost unit, and it is there that the guerrilla warfare of Communist Reds and a combination of French troops and native Vietnamese is being fought the most violently.

There are about 23,000,000 Vietnamese and they live in an area about the size of Manitoba. Together with the mountainous strip that sort of fat peninsula which hangs down from China toward Skymaster and slammed into the plane's horizontal tail structure.

The unnamed patient was tackled by fellow patient-passengers as he prepared to dive into the cockpit and seize the lever. The lease handle that jettisoned the door.

The pilot was able to land his crippled ship without mishap.

Besides the pilot, the patients and a crew of three, was en route from Hickam Field to Hawaii.

SMOKING AND NUTRITIONAL DEFICIENCY

One-fourth of the individuals with stomach trouble or digestive disturbances attributable to ulcers have excessive acidity and one-fifth of them have subacidity that is, not enough acid in the gastric juice for good digestion.

Years ago Dr. Irving Gray reported a large series of cases in which most of the symptoms and signs of stomach or duodenal (peptic or gastric) ulcer were present, but X-ray showed no ulcer. The cause of the trouble in such cases was smoking, and only cessation of smoking brought about lasting relief or cure of the "ulcer."

In many cases of peptic ulcer in which the X-ray findings confirm the diagnosis the patients enjoy great clinical improvement when or if they stop smoking, and derive little benefit from dieting and other remedial measures as long as they continue smoking.

The way to find out whether your stomach trouble will get better when you quit smoking is simple enough. Quit smoking. That's the therapeutic test. It is not a fair test to quit using or smoking for a day or a week or a month. Nor does it matter whether it takes 24 hours or four weeks to "get the nicotine out of your system" because there is no nicotine in the system for more than an hour or two after the last smoke is completely gone. Getting the nicotine out of your system is enough—completely—from smoking or chewing for 12 to 24 hours. But arresting and, if possible, reversing the degeneration of cells, tissues and organs in the body from nicotine poisoning of tobacco or tobacco smoke is the serious question for the victim of tobaccoism.

The stomach troubles already outlined are common deficiency complaints of persons who smoke too much, and the heart and artery manifestations of CVD (cardiovascular degeneration) are probably next to the stomach troubles in frequency in excessive smokers. Third in frequency, I think, are ailments of the throat and bronchi.

The unhealthy effects of smokers probably predisposes to nutritional deficiency in more ways than one. It lowers their capacity to assimilate calcium, for one thing, and calcium deficiency is almost inevitable anyway if the consumption of milk or milk products such as cheese or ice cream is a minimum of 1½ pints (three glasses) a day.

I believe there is a kind of vicious circle involved here. The calcium deficiency and other nutritional deficiencies from which most Americans substitute

ONE IDOL STILL CHERISHED

Chromatius, a heathen, many centuries ago wanted very much to be saved and sent for a certain Christian teacher who, he was told, could heal his disease. This teacher responded to Chromatius that the first thing necessary, if he would benefit by the true religion of Christ, would be that he must destroy all the idols in his house. Chromatius gave ready consent and brought many idols out into the courtyard and destroyed them. But there was no difference in his malady, and it seemed as if the healing power of the Christian religion had failed on this occasion.

But the Christian teacher suspected that Chromatius was keeping something back and so he was, and idol of beaten gold which he greatly cherished. And the story goes on to say that no healing was effected until he brought the idol out and destroyed it also.

All of which, whether it be truth or fiction, illustrates this great truth—that no power is infinitely withheld so long as we refuse to cast the idols of sin from our hearts. The price of salvation and of the peace which follows it, is surrender. Like Chromatius, people are so often willing to sacrifice every idol except one which they cherish in their hearts.

Only, when this last debasing idol is cast out does the power of God rush down over our lives like the waters of a mighty stream.

Air Force Vet 'Goes Berserk' Aboard Plane

Fresno, Calif., May 29 (AP) A 28-year-old United States Air Force veteran Sunday held 28 airline passengers at gunpoint for nearly half an hour on a flight from Los Angeles to Oakland, the Sheriff's office here reported.

It was the weekend's second such incident in the coast area.

Deputies arrested John O'Reilly soon after the California Central Airlines plane landed at Fresno and said he was booked on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon.

Officers said O'Reilly evidently "went berserk" shortly after the plane took off from Los Angeles. His 22-year-old German wife and eight-month-old son were among the passengers.

Joseph N. Nuccitelli, pilot of the ship, told deputies he tried to pacify O'Reilly after receiving a call for help from Stewardess Joan Herring.

The man became belligerent, Nuccitelli recounted, accused one of the passengers of smuggling dope, smashed out windows of the plane "10 ft in some fresh air," then pulled a gun.

The pilot told how he ducked back into the cockpit, locked the door and radioed the field at Fresno for help. When the plane landed 25 minutes later, deputies coaxed O'Reilly out of the plane and took him to jail for psychiatric examination.

On Saturday, a suicide-bent psychoneurotic patient threatened a military transport plane with 24 persons aboard when he ordered the craft's emergency door 20k miles off the California coast.

The failing door was emptied up by the airstream of the C-54

Both political and military troubles in Indo-China are what we can advisers who are, even now, flying to Saigon to see what can be done.

Politically, the Vietnamese resent the French puppet rule by which they still are tied. France is determined to itself directions of foreign affairs and defence. It has set up special advantages for French businessmen.

All Paid by France

So the provisional ruler, Bao Dia, whom the French have recognized, enjoys practically no popular support. The three-year-old war has laid waste much of the land.

Bao Dai has an army of some 50,000, many of them officered by somewhat uncertain factions, and he is supported by French troops of 120,000 who are paid by France. Military equipment is old, and the Vietnamese need by less than 100 fighter planes.

Bai Dai is opposed by a communist-dominated group headed by Chi Minh, an old revolutionary who starts out in a mountain capital, supported by an army of about 60,000 Vietnamese who are not regulars.

The French in France the war is unpopular. It is taking about an eighth of the French budget to support it. In 1949 that was more than the equivalent of $300,000,000. Meanwhile, the property is estimated at $140,000,000.

Vietnamese have lost much more. Whole villages have been levelled, communications have been destroyed, and crops rot in the fields.

The west's job will be to rally the Vietnamese around Bao Dai, but Bao Dai has little to offer except appearing to support colonialism. Nationalist aspirations elsewhere only recently shaken off the yoke of foreign rulers.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LOVE NOT FOR SALE

Its the love we put into things that gives them value. I attended a party the other night. It was noted collection, gathered together over many years by a man who specializes. One of them, he loved beauty, and who had an appetite have none of them.

One by one the examples came up and were "knocked down" rapidly for a few dollars each of their real worth. Those buying were only paying for rarities, and things that were unique, and of speculative buys. The love that this former collector had put into each work of art, was not considered, apparently.

There are any number of things that we can buy for money, but the love that we have put into something precious to us cannot be bought. for it is something intangible and priceless, that does not even remain with us, should the object itself be destroyed.

We look upon a beautiful garden and admire it, but the love that its owner put into it will before any beauty appeared cannot be seen. The love that the author wrote as she read, and many a passage is marked. The love that apparently has been the favorite of Mary Webb's, for it has been read repeatedly, but the love for Browning was rifted all over the book. When I bought this book, many years ago, I did so because of this trackage of love across the pages. I only paid for a book that once belonged to a famous author.

The artist's artist puts much of himself into all that he creates. This cannot be seen, but it often he felt. This is what makes it great, and often immortal!

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

Psychiatrist say that one of the commonest complaints of people who come to them for help is that they "feel trapped." Life has got them cornered. They find there's no selves in a situation they had no intention of entering.

This comes, the psychitrists say from demanding too much of life. There are fairly large numbers of people who actually want less than they have and would be content it with the greatest of ease. You can see them everywhere, especially in small towns and villages, and in the backwoods. They are the folks who have no use for big cities; men and women with small jobs with which they are wholly content, and which they can perform without difficulty.

A fellow I went to school with, for example, who might easily have become a leader in business executive or a newspaperman or a thriving merchant like the rest of the class, has a job dismantling razors and scissors. He has, over his life-time, worked up a nice trade, going from day to day to a succession of barber shops, hospital nurseries and other places that require expert sharpening done. Like him there are many. He has no wife, whose personality and its problems he would have to share. No children, in whose fates he would have been inextricably involved. Few friends, in whose troubles he would have been involved more than in their joys. For him, he has asked for less than he could take at will. He lives in a small community where he has occupied for twenty-five years. He has built up one of the finest stamp collections in North America. Once a year, he goes on a two month train or boat journey to some interesting part of the world. He's been to Brazil, Mexico, Alaska, and five times to California. He spent one whole summer in the Library of Congress in Washington and last year he went to Australia at stamps.

He has never felt trapped.

Trenton Man Missing 33 Years Turns Up in US Army Hospital

Trenton (Special) — William A. Graham who lives at the edge of town on the Wooler highway, received the surprise of his life one evening about a year ago. When he returned home from work that night, the American Consul was waiting in the Graham living room.

The reason for the consul's visit was even more surprising because he had come down from Toronto to tell Mr. Graham that his brother Malcolm, missing for 33 years, was in an American Army hospital on the west coast.

'Mac' Graham joined Canadian Army at the outbreak of the First World War and was posted overseas shortly afterwards. From England, he was sent to France and was listed as missing a short time later.

Until the American Consul appeared in the Graham living room years later, nothing was known of the whereabouts of 'Mac' Graham.

Presumed Killed

Naturally, it was presumed that he had been killed in action. His name is listed on a legion plaque of Trenton who served in World War I. However, several investigations by the Graham family and the government failed to turn up any records.

Apparently Graham was an amnesia victim and how he landed in the United States is still a mystery. In the hospital, Mr. Graham slowly regained fragments of his memory, enabling the American government to trace him to his younger brother, Jim Trenton.

After being transferred to a Kingston hospital, the mystery man was identified as the missing 'Mac' Graham by Mrs. Jim Graham Trenton who grew up with him.

There is no doubt that he is my brother," Bill Graham told the Ontario-Intelligencer, "because he asks about relatives and friends he went to school with."

Now, Mr. Graham is living with his brother, Bill Graham and is gradually readjusting himself but he is still unable to furnish any details of the last 33 years.

Unable To Locate Records

The unfortunate part of the story is that Mr. Graham who is now 63, is unable to find work and his brother is unable to find records of his army service in order to get him a veteran's pension.

Bill Graham was only 15 when he last saw his brother. He remembers going to Belleville to see him when he was stationed in barracks there. However he is unable to recall the unit that his brother enlisted with and the Department of Veterans' Affairs in Ottawa is unable to locate records either.

Mr. Graham is anxious to get in touch with anyone in the Belleville-Trenton area who enlisted with his brother or accompanied him overseas in the hope that they may be able to supply some of the missing information.

New Voters' List Being Prepared For Referendum

Trenton (Special) — A special voters' list is being prepared for the June 12th referendum which will give Trenton ratepayers the opportunity of deciding whether or not they are in favor of the town issuing $125,000 in debentures. This is the amount required to complete the new Memorial Hospital.

The new list will be posted not later than June 2nd, and clerk-treasurer Larry urges all property owners who are eligible to vote, to make sure their names are on the list.

"With so many changes in real estate, there may be many people who are eligible to vote, whose names have been omitted," said Mr. Larry.

Mr. Larry pointed out that the present list is being made up from the "last available voters' list which was compiled from the latest revised assessment role. This year's assessment role is not yet available."

Final revision will be held sometime between June 2nd and 7th, which is the latest date that changes can be made.

Talent Show Well Attended Sunday Night

Trenton—(Special) — A capacity crowd filled the Legion Memorial Hall here Sunday night for the Talent Show which rang down the curtain on Trenton's Recreation Week.

Harriet and Janet Houlihan of Codrington, topped the 14 contestants and won the first prize of $10 with their vocal duet and tap dance routine.

Thirteen-year-old Mark Shenfield, also of Trenton, who won third prize of $2, really put on an exhibition of trap drum artistry. Squadron Leader L. G. Shenfield accompanied his son on the piano.

It was a jazzy contest because even though the applause was measured by electric applause meter, it took the judges several minutes to decide the winners.

Councillor Charles Allore did a capable job of emceeing the show. Wing Commander W. H. Saunders, Mrs. W. H. Saunders and Capt. James Andrews were the judges.

Other acts competing in the program were; Shirley Reid, Trenton, vocal solo; Russell Winter, Brighton, electric guitar solo; Margaret Beatty, Gordon Beatty and George Vincent, Trenton, vocal duet, accompanying themselves on the piano and guitar; LAC Burfield, Shirley LaMorre, Margaret Beatty, Austin Scott, Margaret McHenry and Bill Long entertained with vocal solos. Russell Winter and George Vincent, guitar duet.

Miss Gertrude Scott of Trenton, provided piano accompaniment for several vocal numbers.

Plenty of Laughs

There were also a number of non competing entertainers. Vendriloquist Frank Hockaday provided plenty of laughs with his Jimmy Willy MacGuire. Don Hoag played a piano solo and the RCAF Glee Club Quartet and the entire Glee Club were also present. The RCAF Roman Catholic Chapel Choir provided the opening and closing musical selections.

Vic Auger, chairman of the Recreation Co-ojittee thanked the Trenton Dramatic Club for planning the Talent Show and also the RCAF for their "generous assistance in helping to make Recreation Week a success."

Mr. Auger said that "this is not really the tail end of Recreation Week because the bingo planned for last Saturday night was postponed on account of rain and will be held this Saturday night in Bayshore Park. The draw for the boat and outboard motor will also be held at that time.

Land Speedmark Likely to Stand Says John Cobb

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York (AP)—Never again, in all probability, will a great, squat monster of an airplane go roaring across the salt flats out in Utah in quest of the world land speed record.

"It is the end of an era, I'm afraid," says John Cobb, the big English fur broker who holds the recognized mark of 394.5 miles an hour set at Boneville Flats in 1947.

"I haven't heard of anyone who plans to have a go at my record, and unless someone betters it I do not intend to make any more runs. I'm 50 now, and I'll give them five more years before I chuck it," he said somewhat sadly.

Cobb has been here exhibiting the famous, 2,900-horsepower Railton Mobil Special in which he set the existing record. Crowds at the British Motor Exhibition have swarmed about the long, silver racing bullet.

"She's still in perfect condition," Cobb said fondly. "You know I actually like to touch it every now and then."

Cobb has been here exhibiting the famous, 2,900-horsepower Railton Mobil Special in which he set the existing record. Crowds at the British Motor Exhibition have swarmed about the long, silver racing bullet.

"She's still in perfect condition," Cobb said fondly. "You know I actually like to touch it every now and then."

"When I had it built before the war it cost me only about $50,000, but it would cost at least twice that now—at least twice. I imagine that's one reason the chaps are not having a go at my record.

"Another reason is, I suppose, that just about the ultimate has been reached in reciprocating engines and that there remains no real room for improvement. There is nothing more to be proved, nothing more to be gained.

"That was always one of Yaeling's greatest magnets. Year after year the cars got faster as the majors improved, and the spectators were thrilled at each new advance in speed. They can't expect that any longer."

Racing is at a low ebb in England since the war, Cobb said. The famous Brooklands Track outside London where he, Sir Malcolm Campbell, Kaye Don and other hotshots once competed almost every Sunday during the season was dismantled during the war and now is a housing development.

Cobb was a ferry pilot in the war, but he says it was tame stuff compared to his his breath-taking runs in the Railton.

"No sense of speed up there—nothing like the sensation of skimming along at 400 miles an hour with your pants only a foot off the ground," he said.

"You know, I averaged 403 for my first run in setting the record, but was somewhat slower going back. The average was for both runs, of course. I think that was my ambition, to be the first man to drive a car over 400 miles an hour.

"At that speed you really have to be up to the mark. If the slightest deviation isn't corrected instantly you are in a bad way.

"I think the worst sensation was after I had passed the mile mark and was coasting. It seemed I would go on forever without slowing down. I couldn't begin braking until I was under 300. It seemed like hours."

Cobb was asked if he thought that within the realm of possibility that a jet-propelled number might be built to attack his record.

"I suppose such a car could be built," he said reflectively, "but it would not qualify for a try at my record. My record is for motor

Report Britain Favors Widening Of Schuman Plan

London, May 29—(AP)—Britain wants to take a long, hard look at the Schuman plan for pooling west Europe's coal and steel industries before committing herself to formal approval of the far-reaching project.

Informed sources said today Britain has rejected a French request that the Labor government go on record now as favoring the industrial pool in principle and examine the details later.

The sources emphasized that Britain's refusal does not necessarily mean she disapproves of the plan, which already has been hailed by west German leaders as a great step toward European unity.

Examine Proposal

But Britain first wants to examine the proposal in detail to see what sacrifices might be demanded of her if the joint British coal and steel output with that of France, Germany, and other European countries.

Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France, who proposed the industrial pool early this month, has suggested that talks on the project be started in London by France, Britain, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, Pending these discussions, the French asked that the countries go on record as favoring the project in principle.

Britain has urged France and Germany to get the ball rolling with negotiations on pooling coal and steel output. But informed sources here said Britain flatly turned down the French request for formal approval in principle now.

The sources said Britain already has received approval of the idea of Franco-German industrial unity, and of widening the plan to include other countries of Western Europe.

Paris—(AP)—France is sending a new request to Britain for a "clear and definite" statement of Britain's attitude toward the French plan to pool European coal and steel.

Authoritative sources said today the foreign office was dissatisfied with a British note Saturday that Britain would send only an observer to a meeting tentatively arranged for mid-June to work out details of the plan.

"My mother did an unexpected thing— she took my hand in hers and kissed it

...I WAS KING"

This week in The Standard the Duke of Windsor tells of the solemn family gathering at the bedside of his dying father. At five minutes to midnight, death beckoned, and at the instant of this profound event, the Queen Mother kissed her son's hand . . . a gesture that stunned him into the realization that he was King.

"A KING'S STORY"
by the
DUKE OF WINDSOR

He describes his first meeting with Wallis Warfield Simpson . . . and of the deep impression she made upon him. He speaks with pride of her grace, charm and character. He tells of their growing friendship and of his hopes that one day he might be able to share his life with her . . . and he reveals how those hopes were the start of the crisis leading to his abdication.

Intensely human, it reveals the drama and mental conflict in the life of a King who said, "I was determined that my choice of a wife would be dictated not by considerations of state but by my own heart."

Golden Jubilee Of I.O.D.E. Opens In Montreal

Montreal, May 29. (CP)—With a friendly nod toward Canada's newest province, nearly 1,000 delegates to the Golden Jubilee convention of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire got down to work here today.

The five-day annual meeting of one of the Dominion's largest patriotic organizations opened Saturday night with Viscount Alexander, the Governor-General, Lady Alexander, and Prime Minister St. Laurent addressing the delegates from most parts of the country.

On Sunday, delegates attended a service of thanksgiving and dedication.

Mrs. F. W. Bates of Toronto, told the delegates today in a report prepared for delivery that membership now has reached 51,190 in Canada, an increase of 10 over last year. The National organizing secretary said she was hopeful that a chapter soon would be organized in Newfoundland.

She paid tribute to the provincial secretaries and announced the appointment of Mrs. Ethel M. J. Sprott, of Vancouver and Mrs. R. E. Smith, Halifax, provincial secretaries of British Columbia and Saskatchewan respectively.

Mrs. Bates said the I.O.D.E. now has 920 chapters in Canada, a decrease of one from the 1948-49 period.

"We must take our place in world affairs and be ever on the alert to put forth our best effort to spread the principles we cherish," she declared.

Outlines Work

Mrs. J. G. Sprague, of Toronto, National secretary, outlined the work undertaken by units of the I.O.D.E. have done in the last year. Her report showed that the 39 affiliated daughters of the British Empire in the United States had reported a membership extending to 33 States and to Hawaii, also increased since last year.

Viscount's impressive opening meeting saw Lord Alexander state that the I.O.D.E. had "stood steady in the face of the rushing stream of events in the last 50 years."

The Governor-General was followed by his wife, honorary president of the organization. Mr. St. Laurent said that the order has "worked hard and well for a greater and better Canada".

Much of today's business was concerned with the presentation of reports.

Mrs. J. D. Detwiler, of London, Ont., education secretary, criticized Canada for "trying to ride two horses" in an attempt to "make the most" of both the British and American worlds.

She said the situation was hardly conducive to an atmosphere in which a healthy patriotism would thrive.

Avoid Opportunity

Mrs. Dewller said that judging from books used in the schools, Canadian educationists had deliberately avoided" giving children an opportunity to form attachment for either Canada or Empire.

So far instead of building a national allegiance Canadians only had succeeded in building up provincial allegiances.

The educational secretary reported that during the year the I.O.D.E. spent $132,605 on its Dominion-wide education projects.

In her report as convener of Empire correspondence, Ethel Raymond of Brantford, said that through the order's pen-pal groups some 4,000 Canadian children developed overseas friendships during the last year.

They wrote letters to new friends in countries as far away as England, Scotland, Wales, New Zealand, Australia and the British West Indies.

Miss Raymond cited woodcraft, photography, ship-modelling, caricature study and stamp-collecting as the chief interests which drew the children into correspondence.

Ontario led the field in establishing new friendship links. During the year 2,000 letters were sent under the program, Saskatchewan followed with 533; Manitoba with 395; Alberta 153; Quebec 197; Nova Scotia 90.

Mrs. D. McKinnon, HE, Gives Address On 'Home Economics'

On Tuesday evening last, the Business and Professional Women's Club of Belleville, spent an interesting evening at their monthly dinner meeting which was held in Lazier's Tea Room.

Plans were made for the gala closing of the Club until September 18 at which time the first event would be in the form of a theatre party which would be held in June at the Kiwanis Centre. Members are cordially invited to bring their friends.

Guest speaker at the dinner was the very charming Mrs. D. McKinnon, Home Economist, who has just recently been affiliated with the Consumer's Branch of the Dept. of Agricultural. Mrs. McKinnon was introduced by Mrs. Muriel Hawkins and delivered an informal address on "Home Economics" which, by the way, is becoming interesting was also highly informative.

Miss Minnie Diamond, on behalf of the Club, thanked Mrs. McKinnon and extended a warm welcome to her upon taking up residence in Belleville.

Canadian Girls In Health Show At London Arena

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP) — Twenty-five Canadian members of the World's League of Health and Beauty gave "a splendid show" at the Gay Nineties Revue" play staged recently by the league at London's Wembley arena.

Only a small contingent of the 1,500 participants, the Canadians were incorporated in the "perfect unity" and friendly congratulations followed.

All from Toronto or Hamilton. A mother-and-daughter team is Mrs. Eve and Miss Shirley Kelcey of Toronto.

For some it's the first visit here. For Joan Hall, war bride Barbara Peterson of Toronto—it's a reunion with family, friends and places.

It's Barbara's first trip to Britain since she left to join the army in 1946 and the only cloud on her excited happiness is the fact that her husband and two children are not with her.

"The thing I've noticed most is the cold," Barbara told The Canadian Press Staff. "Houses frozen since we arrived. We're just sort of getting warmed up now. The houses back home are much warmer.

Quick Change

"Listen to "the Canadian talking." she added with a smile. "When I first went to Canada I often caught myself thinking, 'we don't talk that way in Britain.' Now I find myself thinking, 'gee, we don't do things that way back home'."

The girls are unanimous about the good time they are having in Britain. Special entertainments were arranged for them from their arrival, May 5, until May 17.

Mort return June 15 but at least two are staying longer — Con Colpus and Cathy Cleather, both of Toronto.

Con, a kindergarten teacher, will remain until August as a "supply" basis. Unable to arrange them on a "supply" basis, she thought this a fine opportunity to get the same experience.

On supply, she teaches at any school requiring a spare kindergarten teachers, and she hopes to see several British schools in this way.

Cathy, a 21-year-old actress, plans to spend a year in repertory here. She already has spent three years in stock in Montreal.

Cathy's father's family is well-known in British theatrical circles and Miss Cleather hopes a chance with the BBC as well as a "good part" on the local stage.

Modern Methods and Drugs Make Childbirth Much Safer

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York, May 29 — (AP) — There are fourteen reasons why childbirth is safer today for mother and baby than 10 to 20 years ago.

The reasons were cited by doctors attending the recent International Fourth American Congress of Obstetrics and Gynecology here.

They give main weight to five advances, which you might guess at:

1. Antibiotics. These wonder drugs, developed during or since the war, give better control of infections.

2. Blood banks. Blood is available to combat haemorrhages and shock. Fibrinogen, a product from blood, is an ever newer lifesaver in haemorrhage.

3. Better and safer methods of long-lasting anaesthesia.

4. Growth of pre-natal clinics, where women going to their doctors in early pregnancy. This decreases many troubles before delivery, and more warnings of possible troubles ahead.

5. About 85 per cent of birth now occur in hospitals, where new life-savers or emergency measures are more rapidly available. Only 25 to 30 years ago, most deliveries were at home.

Other reasons can be equally important.

Physicians now have better methods of detecting threatened miscarriages, with loss of the unborn baby and danger to the mother.

They also have x-ray methods of measuring the size of the unborn baby's head in comparison with the size of the mother's bony pelvis. They are warned beforehand of the difficult labor, or of the need to take the baby by caesarian operation. The forewarning means less use of forceps, with danger of injury to the baby and mother.

Caesarian measles is recognized now as one cause of deformed infants. Mothers contract the disease early in pregnancy.

The Rh-factor in blood has been discovered as a cause of stillbirths and of infant deaths after birth from a battle in the bloodstream. Rh difficulties can be predicted, and a baby can be given a new supply of safe blood if he is born with Rh-positive sensitized blood.

Surgical and obstetrical skills have grown with the years.

More attention is paid to repairing, right after birth, childbirth injuries to the mother that can cause complications in later years.

And finally, there is far more success now in helping childless couples have babies. One childless couple has twice as good a chance of overcoming sterility now as 20 years ago.

Since 1930, the yearly death rate among mothers at childbirth has been reduced by more than two-thirds. The infant death rate has been cut 50 per cent.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Schnitzel—a German meaning a cut or piece of something.

A Weiner Schnitzel, or Vienna Schnitzel, however, can never be made from mere scraps of meat. For this dish you should buy the finest and whitest leg of veal. It should be pounded thin by the butcher, and cooked over the lowest flame for tenderness.

Because veal is immature beef it always somewhat dry. It should be served with a rich tomato-cream sauce.

Like chicken, veal is never eaten in tremendous portions. Leg of veal for cutlets is usually expensive meat, but you can count on four portions to the pound.

Veal cutlets for frying should be dipped in bread crumbs mixed with grated cheese, which adds flavor and richness to the dish. Use the dried prepared grated cheese—not process cheese run through the grater.

Veal cutlets must be served crisp and hot the moment it is removed from the frying pan. Weiner Schnitzel in restaurants is usually accompanied with a lemon slice and a fried egg. These garnishes are a matter of personal taste and may be omitted.

Weiner Schnitzel, 4 Servings

Order 4 veal cutlets cut from the leg of veal and weighing a cut or more of something.

Have butcher pound cutlets individually wrapped in waxed paper so that they will not break during pounding.

Season cutlets generously with salt and pepper. Dip in flour. Then dip in 1 beaten egg to which 2 tablespoons water have been added.

Combine 1 cup of fine bread crumbs with 1-4 cup grated Parmesan cheese. Dip cutlets in bread crumb mixture, patting each cutlet so that it is thoroughly coated.

Melt fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in a large frying pan. Fry cutlets until brown on both sides. Use a low flame so that cutlets fry slowly. Drain on absorbent paper.

To prepare tomato sauce: Combine 1 can of undiluted tomato soup with 1-4 cup water and 1-2 teaspoon chopped dried celery. Simmer slowly 3 minutes. Remove from flame. Add 3 tablespoons sweet cream and 1 teaspoon butter, stirring well. Cream cannot be added to tomato mixture while it is simmering or it will curdle.

Pour tomato sauce on serving plates or platter. Place veal cutlets on top sauce. Serve each portion with a single fried egg and a lemon slice.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Teacher is right about how to address an envelope

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I address an envelope I always write the name of the city and state on the same line. That is, first line, name; second line, street-address; third line, city and state. And I usually abbreviate the name of the state. We have recently moved to this city, and the teacher in the school to which we send our 15-year-old daughter insists that the name of the state should be written on a separate line . . . that there should be four lines to the address on the envelope. Also her pupils are not allowed to abbreviate the name of the state. This is the form she gives as an example for them to follow:

Mrs. Henry Forbes
167 Park Street
Smithfield
Connecticut

Is the form I use incorrect? Or should I change to the teacher's idea?

Mother

Hooray for Teacher! She is absolutely right in the form for envelope-addressing she suggests. No abbreviations (except "Mr." and "Mrs."). The word Street, spelled out, not abbreviated. Name of state not abbreviated . . . takes only a second or so to write it out, about as long as it takes to make the period to indicate the abbreviation! Name of city and name of state on separate lines . . . this leaves room for the four lines needed for the letter, after the name of the city. Then, too, having the name of the city and the name of the state on separate lines clearly makes reading for address more convenient for the Post Office attendant and the mailman.

Times of Meals turned upward

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a discussion we are having, please answer this question: When one has finished eating and the knife and fork are placed across the middle of the plate, should the tines of the fork be turned upward or downward? "A" says the tines are left as is, turned upward. "B" says they should be turned downward, to indicate that one has finished eating.

A. and B.

"A" is right. . . at least right for this country. In many foreign countries the tines of the fork are turned downward on the plate when one has finished eating.

The toast to the bride and bridegroom

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

1. Please tell us the correct procedure at a wedding reception when the toast is proposed to the bride and groom and responded to by the groom. That is, who starts to drink the wine first, the bride, the groom, or the guests?

2. A married couple, friends of mine, are giving a reception for me in their home. Would it be proper to greet the hostess with a corsage, and the host wins a boutonniere?

3. What kind of card or note should be enclosed with the gifts to the attendants?

D. S. F.

1. When the champagne has been poured, someone (usually the best man, or it may be anyone appointed to be toastmaster) rises to propose a toast to the bride and bridegroom. All (except the bride and the bridegroom) rise, raise their glasses and drink the toast. Then the bridegroom rises, replies to the toast with thanks from both the bride and himself.

2. This thoughtful gesture would be not only proper, but a charming "floral sign" of your appreciation for such good friendship and generous hospitality.

3. You might write on the enclosed cards, "Write dearest love to you, Betty, and my appreciation."

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Fatigue is the arch enemy of good looks

Restful sleep necessary to good looks

About the best way to wreck one's complexion, nervous system and disposition is to cut down on the normal hours of sleep. Remember the old rule—eight hours of work, eight hours of play, eight hours of sleep. There are women who are their liveliest and busiest along about midnight. If they aren't out having fun, they are prowling around the house. They go to bed when there isn't anything else for them to do. Then some women send their children for keeping late hours.

Your beauty reporter has had many interviews with stage and movie people and gorgeous professional models. When asked how they keep in perfect form—and some actresses of uncertain age remain remarkably youthful in appearance—they say quite frankly that sleep ranks first, as a good look aid. Some of them, especially the stage stars, have rest periods during the day. Others stay in bed one day a week, to rest and relax, recharge their energy batteries.

Fatigue is an arch enemy of good looks. The only weapon against it is rest. Exhaustion puts shadow under the eyes, robs the skin of coloring, effects grace and charm of movement. No make up will conceal the evidence of weariness.

Rob yourself of sleep and you will never catch up the lost hours. After a time you will be afflicted with the before breakfast face—plain, drawn lips, lines around the eyes, dark circles under them. Don't let anything cut in on the eight hours of slumber that you should have for the sake of health, good looks and a happy outlook on life.

Tuck yourself in on schedule every night. There is such thing as being tired and tense that you can't relax. Your mind will be filled with racing thoughts, the events of the past day, the duties to be attended to tomorrow. Tired body, tired brain. There is a close bond between the mental and physical, as every beauty specialist knows. She has the power of self-observation.

On composing oneself for sleep, the body should be fully outstretched, the arms lying loosely at either side, never crossed over the chest or placed above the head. The natural position is to lie on the right or left side, inclining toward the abdomen. The head should rest but a few inches higher than the shoulders. To insure perfect balance of the circulatory system the body should be completely relaxed . . . the bed clothing should be sufficient to provide to comfort and warmth, never heavy. Heavy coverings interfere with the free intake of oxygen, and will cause a feeling of sluggishness on awakening.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A foster mother who should be investigated

A girl of 17 who is boarding with a foster mother tells me a story to tell about the home in which she lives.

From what she says of her foster mother, it would seem that the woman is not friendly to there, then well on the way to becoming a confirmed paranoiac. "She always thinks people are talking and whispering about her," the girl writes, "and no one is allowed to talk unless she hears everything they say. She drinks all the time and says awful things about everyone.

"I can never have anyone come to the house, and when I go to the movies I must be in by 10:30 or else she insults my boy friend when we come home and slaps me in the face. She hates everyone she sees getting ahead in life, and her own two children were so unhappy with her that they left home. She doesn't care whether I live or die, and after I am 18, which will be in a few months, she is going to kick me out, with no one to turn to. I have no relatives and I don't know where my own mother is. She knows, but won't tell me."

The woman appears to have a husband who is almost equally unkind. "When I try to talk to him," the girl writes, "he says he thinks it is silly to come to your foster parents for advice. He said he never did, so I should work out my own problems. I cannot go to him any more about anything, because he sides with my foster mother all the time so she won't yell at him."

Next term, this 17-year-old is to graduate from high school, and there will be a period of festivity. "But," she says "in the hospital term of school. There will be so many things going on, but I will have to come home every day right after school and listen to my foster mother's scolding."

There is no reason in the world why this girl should have to continue in an environment like this. She should long ago have gone to whatever organization was responsible for placing her in this foster home and told them the situation. Why they have not checked up themselves periodically, I cannot imagine. Of course, it may be that she has never known the name and address of the organization, and if this is the case, then I think she should get someone to help her find out.

Perhaps her High School has an adviser to whom students can go with their problems. Or there may be some teacher of whom she is specially fond, and in whom she might feel like confiding. If there is no one else, she could go to a social agency and talk with one of the workers there. I will be glad to tell her where to go if she will send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

She does say that she cannot give her name and address because her foster mother opens all her mail. Perhaps, though, she could have a letter sent to her in care of one of her friends. I should like very much to hear from her again so that I could give her any possible help.

Girl Guide Activities

Commissioners' Notes

The Brownie Rally held in Queen Alexandra School was a huge success. Girls were shown moving pictures including those of last year's church parade. At the Pow-Wow ring, the Brownies were spellbound as Brown Owl Leach told them Rudyard Kipling's story of the "Elephant Child." It would not do to mention the rally without thanking Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bleckburn through whose kindness the movies were presented.

"Chips from Company 7's Log"

Now it's time once again to look through the log and see what the Company can report in the way of fun and work.

The work had better come first. The help of Ross Watson in instructing and coaching girls in semaphore is greatly appreciated. Those passing the test are Gail Adams, Barbara McGrath and Sally Ann Young. Others tests completed include maps: Shirley Terry and Elinor Clarke; tenderfoot: Betty Musclow, Heather Musclow, Beverley Briscoe, June Dickens, Jacqueline Morrison and Doreen Hobbs. Badges earned are: Needlewoman's, Francis Adams; Hiker, Woodman, Handywoman, Athlete, Barbara Dix. The hiker and woodman badges complete Barbara's requirements for the Woodcraft Emblem.

The games period at one meeting was given to marching, in anticipation of Church Parade. The girls in the High School Cadets made use of their training to drill the rest of the company. As it is doubtful whether this should be classed as fun or work is left to you.

Baseball definitely comes under the heading of fun. The weather is just too nice to stay inside, so most of one meeting was spent in playing ball. The girls hope to challenge the other companies to a game. Next on the list was a party at the Sea Cadets headquarters. The Guides were pleased to be able to accept the invitation and had a very good time. They especially enjoyed a ride in one of the boats. There have been a number of patrol hikes, Company Leader, Helen Weston, who has been instructing the Tenderfoot class, took her group on a hike. Oh, these energetic girls getting up at 6.30 a.m. to go hiking.

Next meeting is "Parents' Night" an enrollment ceremony and games demonstrating test work are planned. The company is looking forward to welcoming a lot of guests, and hopes that they will be able to class this meeting as fun.

TWO ELECTROCUTED

Fairmont, Que., (Sept. 12)—James A. Ryan, 31, father of four small children, tried to erect a new television aerial Friday. It cost his wife's life as well as his own. He tried to raise the aerial pole to slip one end into brackets he had fastened to the house. The aerial hit a 12,000-volt power line. The shock killed Ryan. His wife, Lois, 26, ran from the house toward him. She stumbled against a fence on which aerial fell. She too was electrocuted.

FOR VARIETY

Investigations have shown that some fresh oysters tend to mature as males and later change to females.

Police warned that the man was desperate and will fight it out if cornered. Although reported wounded in the groin, he managed to evade capture.

Police said they were positive the man identified himself as Shapiro as he fought off Constable Gammon outside the bank. The gunman also shot bank manager S. H. Bleiky in the leg.

SEARCH GOES ON

Answer False Tips

Although said to have fled Montreal earlier, the man was believed to have returned to the city to hide out. Police continued to scour the city in answer to false tips.

Meanwhile, police were kept busy with a series of minor crimes, including two holdups that netted $335.

Children at Charlie's restaurant early Sunday morning was visited by two gunmen at gunpoint time. While late theatre-goers were eating in the establishment, two brandished and, keeping the patrons at bay, forced cashier Mrs. Dorothy Mahoney to hand over 135. They escaped in a stolen cab that was recovered shortly after.

A northern restaurant was also robbed of $400 Saturday also by a pair of gunmen.

Police also sought a taxi driver and a male accomplice who robbed and beat two young women in three days.

Both gunmen were committed in practically the same fashion. A 21-year-old woman told police she hailed a cab early Sunday and as she was getting in, she saw a man sitting in the back with a gun in his hand.

She said she was driven to suburban Ville LaSalle where she was forced to submit to both men and robbed.

Three days previously, police said, the same pair robbed a 24-year-old married woman of $8 after raping her.

LABOR GETTING

The second decision is to shelve plans for more excursions into public ownership of industry. Hopes of proceeding swiftly with state ownership of direction, of such enterprises as sugar refining, cement making, chemicals and shipbuilding have been laid aside at least temporarily.

The iron and steel industry, for which nationalization already has approved state ownership, will be taken over on schedule next year.

Election May Be Early

But from now on, the government is going to concentrate on making the state-owned industries work more efficiently so they can turn out more goods at lower cost.

After a thorough examination of the feeling which swung sharply towards the Conservatives in last February's election, Labor policy-makers are convinced these two things are what the voters want.

Some Conservative newspapers already are speculating that an election may come as soon as this summer.

Their evidence is a guess based on swift moves to ease the lot of this land which has lived for years under tight rationing.

Milk and gasoline were removed from rationing last week.

Although foods such as butter, meat, bacon and cheese continued to be rationed, the food pinch has been greatly eased.

All this, and specially the sudden end of gasoline rationing on the eve of a holiday weekend, is bound to please many voters.

The timing of the election, however, still is a problem for the government. It does not want to call another election until the straws in the wind blow toward them more strongly.

REHABILITATION

Water was disappearing with unbelievable rapidity. Whole subsyrban areas were appearing from sluggish, filthy waters which once forced their thousands of residents to flee in near-panic.

More Streets Open

Headquarters, acting on the advice of municipal authorities, have thrown open more streets to the return of evacuees. Many areas still are closed, and health authorities must approve them before residents may return.

The Manitou Flood Rehabilitation authority, formed at the weekend to assume control vested in the army, is preparing for the return of 80,000 evacuees. The authority will administer the gigantic clean-up task through municipal offices.

Their's is the long, dreary job of scraping the slime off walls and floors, pumping out cellars, disinfecting basements, and the thousand-and-one sordid tasks to remove the last traces of the river's visit. It will go on for weeks.

In the 60-mile-along Red River valley to the south, highways and villages are emerging. Two huge lakes which once covered 500 square miles are drying up.

And all along its course, people are assessing their damage. Officials say it may run to $100,000,000.

BATTLE FOR

Sandwiched in with the marching youngsters were 10,000 members of the city police force, with which western officials claim is the nucleus of the east German army.

Tanned, rugged, and obviously army-disciplined in their dark blue uniforms and black jackboots, they were to be carbon-copies of the Wehrmacht forces of a few years ago.

Burst with Cheering

The marchers would burst into a frenzy of cheering as they passed the reviewing stand, where German and Russian communist leaders stood.

It was impossible to know how deeply the Soviet hate-the-west propaganda had sunk into the youngsters' minds.

There was no doubt of one fact, however. All were automatons firmly in the grip of their communist leaders. They cheered when they were supposed to and did as they were told, without question, if not with enthusiasm.

Groups of people's police stood on corners, giving organized cheers for the marching youths.

Many of the paraders, however, who swept 32 abreast up to the Lustgarten carried Soviet - zone anti-war placards.

They bore placards with slogans denouncing forth the prescribed jibes against the west.

Ridicule Evervthing

The banners ridiculed everything from American chewing gum to American magazines. They denounced "American imperialism" and hailed German friendship with the Soviet - zone uranium mines.

In the Lustgarten itself Wilhelm Pieck, Deputy Prime Minister and communist strong man of East Germany, led off the oratory.

Hailing Stalin as the "greatest and best friend of the German people," Pieck told the shouting children that the "imperialist foreign ministers" had tried to "split Germany in two" for common fodder and use West Germany as a base for a new war."

The peaceful passing of the big rally brought a victory claim from West Berlin's mayor, Ernest Reuter.

"Our peaceful determination, together with the support we received from the Allies, has resulted in a complete failure of communist dreams to over - run Berlin," he said.

West Berlin police were on guard at the sector boundary to stop any threatened trouble.

U.A.W. VOTES

Chief among these are a $100-a-month pension plan, company-paid and funded, and a comprehensive company-held health and insurance plan. The union also seeks three weeks' paid vacations and other contract changes.

Will Levy Assessment

Yesterday's meeting was told that a $12 assessment would be levied on each of the 50,000 U.A.W. members in Canada in the event of a strike. Both company and employees are now covering from a 10-week layoff, caused by a strike-caused stoppage of assembly-line parts from the United States. Production was resumed last week of this month.

Mr. Burt said top Chrysler officials want new negotiations to replace what he termed "lesser officials . . . who had no say in policy."

Talks toward a new contract began a year ago. The majority report of a conciliation board, sitting with company pension requests, has been before the company and union for three weeks.

It recommends acceptance on a $55 monthly pension, based on the present U.A.W. agreement with Ford Motor Company of Canada. As an alternative the report suggests a $100 pension, in which company and employees would pay for the extra $45.

300 Athletes in Competition In COSSA Meet With BCI Winning With 70 Points

Three hundred athletes from 13 schools practically rewrote the record book Saturday afternoon on the Albert College athletic field, during which nine new meet records at the largest COSSA track and field meet ever held. Wind, rain, and cold weather failed to halt the onslaught on the old marks as more than 700 entries in 50 events were run off in five hours.

Belleville Collegiate Institute captured meet honors for the second consecutive year by piling up big leads in the senior and intermediate girls' events and running with the leaders in all other divisions except the junior girls' as they garnered 70 points and the first place, twenty points in front of their inter-city rivals, Albert College.

Trenton High School nailed down third place with 32-1/2 points to nose out a small but determined Picton Collegiate Institute who sailed away fourth spot with 30 points. Trailing the leaders were Picton, 30; Napanee Collegiate, 17; Tweed 16 1-2; C.O.D.I. 14 1-2; Deseronto, 14; Wellington, 9; St. Michael's 6; Deseronto 4; and Marmora 2.

Three Champions

Spearheading the victorious drive for the Belleville Collegiate were three individual champions. Unsitter took the intermediate girls' 75 yard dash, the broad jump and the high jump for a clean sweep. Kay Weston, with first place in the high jump and broad jump, and a second in the 50 yard dash, was the senior girls' winner. Junior girls' winner was Smith of Trenton, with a 9.6 second first in the 75 yards dash for the fastest time of the day, and a new record; first in the high jump and a second in the broad jump.

George Ewald, tireless runner from the Belleville Collegiate, swept to the senior championship with record breaking performances in the mile and half mile and a first in the quarter mile.

Rose and Vaughan of Campbellford turned in stellar performances in the junior boys' events smashing five records between them to spread-eagle the field. Vaughan was junior champion by virtue of his triumphs in the 100 yards, shot put, and high jump, while Rose took the 100 and 200 yard dashes in record time.

Toronto Soccer All-Stars Win By 3-0 Score

In the exhibition soccer match on Saturday played at the Memorial Park, Trenton, Toronto Senior League All Stars beat the Bay of Quinte All Stars by three goals to none in a very good clean match, Unfortunately rain started about twenty-minutes before the kick-off time and thus the crowd was not as large as had been hoped for, but those fans who did put in an appearance were certainly privileged to see a real soccer treat.

The game was not nearly as one sided as the score might indicate and with a little luck the local boys might very easily have retaliated. The Toronto Senior League brought down their strongest team and though they were in to ran easy time and were much surprised at the brand of football served up by the local boys, who had as much of the play as their opponents but somehow just could not shoot.

Mayor Ken Crouch of Trenton kicked off for the match after being introduced to the players of each team.

The goal scorers in the first half were Ted Jenkins and Harry Patton. In the second period Paton scored the third goal of the match in the last two minutes of play.

Owing to the rain just before the kick-off the ground conditions were a bit heavy and the ball was very slippery and in view of this it is expected that a much better good football was served up by both teams when the Toronto return match is played on Trenton Memorial Park, Trenton, on Saturday next.

By CEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Cold weather, and overcast skies that turned into rain early in the afternoon failed to dampen the enthusiasm of more than 300 district athletes last Saturday as they staged a wholesale slaughter on the record book at the annual CORSA track and field meet held at Albert College. Standards went up in almost half of the events and in the junior boys' division only two of nine former marks were left standing when the afternoon was over.

The senior boys division was almost as completely rewritten with seven of a possible eleven new marks being set.

Division champions accounted for eight of the new records with the dazzling performance of a junior named Vanthan from Campbellford heading the list. He is reported to have tossed the eight pound shot forty-five feet in training but a heave of forty-two feet four inches was enough to write a new record Saturday. He also boosted the hometown mile and fifty-four second mile were new records. George was hard-pressed for his senior crown, though, as Buchanan of Albert College lunged in a dazzling performance to lead the senior boys' crown by a ten point margin. His school set the senior boys' broad jump, and the hop, Buchanan set new records in the broad jump and the hop, step and leap, and finished second in a 10.3 second 100 yd. dash that was also a record.

In the senior pole vaulting event, misfortune dogged the Albert College star, Slater, who had already set a new record earlier in the day by continually boosting the bar was finally reduced to Slater and Gummo of Campbellford each clearing seven feet at nine feet. On his first jump with the bar at ten feet, Slater's pole snapped as he started his swing upwards and he was catapulted into the pit after turning end to end in the air. However, he said that he was not hurt and asked to try again. On his second try he failed to clear ten feet and was awarded second place behind Gummo who also failed to clear ten feet.

It may be that the younger girls are more enthusiastic, or that the older girls are more coy, but it is a fact that the fastest races turned in last Saturday were those of the junior girls.

Young Phillies, Capitalizing On Every Break, Take Over National League Leadership

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Make one mistake against those hustlin' fightin' Phillies and it's your finish.

Ask the harried Leo Durocher or any of his luckless New York Giants. They'll tell you they should have won all four weekend games from Eddie Sawyer's boys. But Philadelphia won three to New York's one.

As a result, the Phillies wrested the National League leadership from Brooklyn Dodgers, Deadlocked before Sunday's games, the Phils divided a pair with the Giants, while Boston was beating the Brooks 4-1, to take undisputed possession of first place by half a game.

The Phils won Sunday's 11-inning 5-2 opener because they were quick to take advantage of a lapse by the opposition. Primarily because they played errorless ball, the Phils also won the nightcap 3-1 to end a seven-game losing streak.

Sunday an error by outfielder Don Mueller set up the Phils' winning rally.

The score was tied 2-2 as the Phils came to bat in Sunday's 11th inning. Dick Sisler walked, and when Dick Whitman singled to right, Mueller let the ball get away from him, Sisler scored the winning run.

Tigers Shave Lead

Detroit shaved the New York Yankees' American League lead to two games by whipping St. Louis Browns 6-2 and 2-1 while Philadelphia's A's were splitting a twin bill with the Yanks, New York's margin over the four runs in their final inning to win the second game 6-5 after New York had won the opener 6-3.

Washington shoved Boston into third place in the American League with a five-run blow. Cleveland and Chicago swapped shutouts, Steve Gromek blanking the White Sox 7-0 after Bill Wight had stifled the Indians 2-0 in the opener.

Chicago Cubs took both ends of a doubleheader from Pittsburgh, 6-0 and 5-1 to keep their four-game National League series. The third-place St. Louis Cardinals whipped Cincinnati Reds 6-2 and 7-2 to climb within 1½ games of the top.

The home run played a big role for the Cubs after four-baggers by Tommy Glaviano and Enos Slaughter had been instrumental in winning the opener for St. Louis, catcher Joe Garagiola hit a grand-slam homer off Ewell Blackwell in the first inning to give the Cards more than they needed to win the second game. Southpaws Al Brazle and Max Lanier each won his third game for St. Louis.

Chicago pitchers Johnny Schmitz and Bob Rush turned in nifty mound jobs, holding the scrambling Pirates to one run in 18 innings. Schmitz not only blanked the Bucs on five hits, but walked a single and single to drive in four runs.

Two Combine

Warren Spahn and Bob Elliott combined to down the Dodgers. Spahn permitted only five hits for his sixth victory. Elliott drove in all four Boston runs with a home run and two singles.

Fred Hutchinson and Dizzy Trout pitched the Tigers to their fourth victory over the Browns. Trout hurled a five-hitter in his first start. It was his single that scored Bob Swift with the run that proved the margin of victory in the second game.

Joe Page was both hero and goat for the Yankees. The sterling relief hurler pitched two hitless innings to protect a lead for starter Vic Raschi in the first game. He was jolted for three runs by Chuck-hitter Billy Hitchcock and Bob Dillinger to blow a three-run lead for starter Fred Sanford in the nightcap. Dillinger helped Chet Nichols gain his first triumph by blasting two doubles and a single in addition to his homer.

Sam Mele singled on a hit-and-run play to score Eddie Stewart from first in the seventh inning to win for Washington over the Red Sox. Sid Hudson won his sixth game against two defeats.

Gus Zernial's homer with one on produced the only runs in Chicago's first-game victory over the Indians. Larry Doby and Al Pease homered for the Tribe in the second game.

Jake LaMotta Still Recognized As Champion

Washington, May 29 — (AP) — The National Boxing Association refused Sunday to, strip Jake LaMotta of his middleweight crown but said if he defeats Rocky Graziano he must defend his title again in 90 days.

The N. B. A., after a poll of its executive committee, ordered the June 5 Philadelphia bout between Sugar Ray Robinson and Robert Villemain to be a pre-championship contest.

It decreed that the winner of the Lamotta - Graziano fight, scheduled for New York June 23, must meet the Philadelphia winner within 90 days or forfeit title recognition.

Announcing the results of the poll, N. B. A. commissioner Albert J. Greene observed that Lamotta had "been able to pick up opponent not rated among logical contenders for the title."

The N. B. A. announced last Monday that it was polling its executive committee for a decision whether to follow the procedure outlined Sunday, or to award the title outright to the Robinson-Villemain winner.

Canadiens Edge Toronto Leafs In Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

It wasn't Brooklyn Dodgers call-ibre baseball but the 12,296 Montreal fans who turned out to see Canada's two National Hockey League teams entertain on the diamond were happy Sunday as Montreal Canadiens edged Toronto Maple Leafs 12-12.

The entire gate of $6,210 went to the Rimouski, Que., fire relief fund. As the hockey stars executed on the field, the fans revelled in the show as much as if the world championship had been at stake. Every ball that landed in the stands were tossed back and one unfortunate fan who seized his prize was unmercifully booed.

The game had some thrilling moments with the lead see-sawing back and forth. In the ninth inning, little Normie Dussault, Canadiens left winger in the winter, fanned star Wild Bill Ezinicki for the final out while the Leafs had the tying run on third.

Dussault has won himself a wrist watch in a race of approximately 100 yards. Three players from each team participated and Canadiens came in 1-2-3. Dussault, Bob Fenton Reardon, a pair of defencemen, finished second and third ahead of Leaf youngsters Bob Hazzard, Danny Lewicki and Sid Smith.

Big-game players in hockey and up-and-coming youngsters were minor-and junior teams of the two clubs saw action.

Rudy Migay of the Leafs supplied the only home run, a booming drive over the right field fence.

President George Slater of the Quebec Senior Hockey League was retained to office for the 14th consecutive year at the 12th annual meeting of the body at Montreal Saturday.

All other members of the executive were returned and the executive agreed on a 60-game schedule again for next season. The meeting also decided to follow a Western Canadian Senior League schedule and place its players under contract. The plan must receive approval from the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association at its annual meeting in Banff, Alta., next June.

At Fort Worth, Tex., Sam Snead of While Sulphur Springs, W. Va., golfs leading man, Sunday added another choice trophy to his bulging collection as he snapped up $2,000 for winning the $15,000 Colonial National Invitation tournament. He finished with 277 for the 72-holes—three under par.

Big Skip Alexander of Knoxville, Tenn., closed out with a 70 to win second money of $2,-000 with a 72-hole total of 280. He did it as Ed Oliver of Seattle, Wash. who was second at the end of the third round Saturday, faltered badly, taking a 74 to wind up with 283 and a tie with Cary Middlecoff of Ormond Beach, Calif., for fifth place.

Next Sunday's aim to the three year-old championship was solidified Saturday at Belmont Park when Hoff won the $50,000-added Coaching Club American Oaks in the fastest time ever for the 34-year-old 1 3-8 mile classic.

She was timed in 2:13 4-5, a full second faster than War Plumage's 2:16 4-5 in 1939. The track record of 2:14 1-5 was set in 1928 by Man O'War.

She drew off to a length victory over Hal Price Headley's Aegina, who finished four lengths ahead of Ogden Phipp's Busanda.

With Me Well and Wild Heiress was the first two races at the opening of the River Downs racing meeting Saturday at Cincinnati to provide a daily double payoff of $2,469.40.

Track officials said only two $2 tickets were sold on the combination.

With Me Well paid $25.40 to win the first race and Wild Heiress paid $38.40 in the second.

At Newton, Mass., Patty Berg, 32-year-old Chicago professional Sunday carded a 72-one over par—for a 54-hole total of 222 and a one-stroke victory over Babe Didrikson Zaharias, also of Chicago, in the second women's eastern open golf championship tournament. Mrs. Zaharias was the defending champion.

Brampton Senior Ontario Lacrosse Association entry wallloped Weston 20-5 here, at Brampton. Archie Browning netted seven goals for Brampton, with Graham, H. Madgett and Cruikshanks scoring three each. Top scorer for Weston was Rownitre with two goals.

The English international eleven Saturday night swamped Saskatoon's all-star soccer team by a lopsided 19-1 score at Saskatoon.

Towering German Gained Prestige In Dropping Bout

Mannheim, Germany, May 29—(AP) — Hein Ten Hoff, the towering German, gained rather than lost prestige in dropping a 15-round decision to Jersey Joe Walcott.

Ten Hoff was so pleased with his showing in the bout Sunday night that he said he expects an invitation to go to the United States and maybe earn a shot at the heavyweight title.

Walcott, the 1-2 favorite who broke Ten Hoff's nose but could not knock him out, joined in praise of the German's performance.

"He's a fine fighter and should go a long way," Walcott said.

However, the 36-year-old American blamed the rain which fell through the first six rounds for his failure to land a knockout punch.

"The canvas was so slick I couldn't get set," Joe claimed.

Ten Hoff's long left jab kept Jersey Joe at bay for much of the battle. Walcott couldn't get inside to do any damage with his two-fisted close-in fighting.

The outdoor fight drew 25,000 fans instead of the expected 60,-000. Walcott received a $25,000 guarantee.

Expensive Purchase Pays Off For Vince Sheridan as McGill Wins King's Plate by Head

Toronto, May 29 (CP)—McGill, as any Canadian horse follower knows, won the historic $18,000-added King's Plate Saturday. But behind it is a story that started 12 years ago when a three-year-old named Bunty Lawless, owned by Toronto hotel-owner Willie Morrisey, captured the Canadian racing classic.

Mixed with the story are a few ironic touches, many of them woven into the plot this spring when wealthy Vince Sheridan of Toronto parted with $17,500 cash for the bay-coated McGill. Added characters are Edward Plunkett Taylor of Toronto and 25-year-old jockey Chris Rogers who left his native Toronto for greener pastures around New York tracks.

The punch line adds up to the fact that McGill could have gone to the post flying Taylor's colors, giving the well-known sports man-financier his second straight Plate victory. Instead he has a record one winner and a non-starter in two years.

After Bunty Lawless' 1938 Plate triumph, Morrissey retired him to the stud, and he has sired two subsequent winners—Epic, owned by Taylor and ridden by Rogers last year, and McGill, bred by Taylor but sold to Mrs. Frank Coughlan of New York who in turn sold it to Sheridan this spring.

Let McGill go

Taylor let McGill go and based his hopes for two straight this year on Bonvivant, 6-to-1 second favorite in the 1950 books. Chris Rogers was to be the jockey but Bonvivant developed about three weeks ago, leaving Taylor without a starter and Rogers a free agent.

Conditions of the race stipulate all entries must be the property of a British subject resident in Canada, ruling Argentine-born Mrs. Dougherty out of the picture. She turned down three bids by Canadians for the Canadian-foaled McGill but couldn't resist Sheridan's $17,500 offer.

Sheridan immediately sought the services of jockey Roger and the moves gave him his first triumph in the 91-year-old classic. It was Rogers' second straight.

It was a close decision, the shining bay colt nosing out R. P. Richards' Sir Strome in a driving last-furlong finish over the mile-and-a-furlong Woodbine Park course before 35,000 yelling fans. Unionville, owned by Carl Hatch of Toronto, was third, about two lengths in the rear and Medal of Freedom, stable-mate of Sir Strome, was fourth.

Blue Silence and Nephisto, the early leaders, tired badly and McGill poked his nose out in front at the eighth pole and kept it there although Sir Strome, with jockey Ted Johnson aboard, inched closer as they thundered used the whip freely in the stretch.

Eleven Canadians Share $272,500 In Irish Sweep

By The Canadian Press

Eleven Canadians share $272,500 in major sweepstake winnings from Saturday's running of the Derby at Epsom Downs, England.

All but two won in the Irish Hospital Sweep on the Derby's 171st running. The others held tickets in the Army and Navy Veterans' English Derby Sweep on the same race.

Thomas J. Harper of Woodstock, won $77,500 in the Irish Sweep with his ticket on Galgador, which sped to first-place glory in the turf classic. Harper, a hospital supervisor, used the name of his Irish terrier, Murphy, in picking his pseudonym, "Murphy Me Darlin'."

Winners of $31,000 each in the Irish sweep are Fernand E. Bergevin, Westmount, Que., and Walter Jackson, Toronto. Both held tickets on Prince Simon, the second-place horse.

Holders of Irish Sweep tickets worth $15,500 each on the third-place Double Eclipse:

Tom Hoare, Vancouver; Robert Benson, 30-year-old carpenter of Viking, Alta.; James Reid, Alderwood, a Toronto suburb; Lloyd K. Germa, Copper Cliff, Ont.; R. C.A.F. Cpl. J. G. R. Bellemare of Amos, Que., stationed at Crumlin, near London, Ont., and Ferland Bergeron, Toronto.

Mama Not Excited

Perry Hornbook of Napanee, Ont., a factory foreman and father of four children, said Saturday he held a ticket on Prince Simon in the Irish Sweep and stood to win $31,000. But his name was not in a list of Canadian winners issued in Dublin, sweepstakes headquarters.

Harold Cusack, Toronto paper publisher, won $24,000 with an Army and Navy ticket on Prince Simon. R. Thatcher of Montreal made $16,000 with a ticket on Double Eclipse in the same sweep.

The Woodstock winner's wife, Mrs. Joyce Harper, watched the race-results come in over a Canadian Press teletype in the office of the Woodstock Sentinel-Review where she is a proof-reader. She said she plans to continue working for a while and has no immediate plans for using the money except that "there'll be no heavy spending right away."

Her husband said he thought he would "just put it by for a time."

The Harpers own their home and have no children.

BODY OF MAN FOUND

• Smiths Falls, May 27 —(CP)— Body of 47-year-old William Hayden, who drowned Jan. 30 while attempting to cross the ice on Delta Lake, about 26 miles south of here, was found Friday.

Rupert Halliday of Delta, a commercial fisherman, discovered the body floating in the lake and brought it to shore.

TRIAL POSTPONED

Napanee, May 27 — (CP) — Trial of James Poolman, charged with murder in the stabbing death of his wife last November, Friday was postponed again until June 12. The hearing had been scheduled for Monday and said it appeared that some jurors might not receive notice of postponement in time.

Pennant Fever Spreading in Rochester, N.Y.

By The Associated Press

An epidemic of pennant fever is spreading throughout Rochester N.Y.

The cause of the fervor is the terrific performance of Manager Johnny Keane's Rochester Red Wings, who are setting a torrid pace in the International League Race.

Rochester, which hasn't been blessed with a pennant since 1946, is hopped up. Its beloved Wings are riding the crest of a nine-game winning streak and enjoying a 1-2-game first-place margin.

The Wings rode to the top by blasting the erstwhile standard bearers, Montreal Royals, in four straight games. They applied the coup de grace Sunday by trouncing the Royals 15-1.

Young Tom Poholsky scattered nine hits while his mates pounded mates banged out 18. Hal Price paced the victorious assault by driving in four runs and scoring twice on a pair of home runs and a single.

Syracuse Chiefs missed an opportunity to take over second place by splitting a doubleheader with Springfield Cubs. The Chiefs won the opener 8-0 behind the four hit pitching of Bud Byerly, but dropped the nightcap 10-0.

Warren Hacker limited the Chiefs to three singles in the second game while his mates pounded out 14 hits including home runs by Bob Thurman, Jack Cassini and Ben Taylor. Carden Gillenwater and Al Rubeling homered for the Chiefs in the first game.

Four Others Divide

Jersey City Giants and Baltimore Orioles, and Toronto Maple Leafs and Buffalo Bisons also divided doubleheaders.

Baltimore turned back the Giants, 11-1 but lost the finale 6-5. Buffalo trounced Toronto 12-2 after the Leafs took the opener 9-7.

Russ Bauers scattered 10 Giant hits, including a homer by Stan Jok, to win the first game for Baltimore.

The Giants won the nightcap in the ninth when Vern Taylor walked Marvin Blaylock with the bases loaded to break a 5-5 tie.

Toronto piled up an 8-0 lead against Buffalo but almost blew the game as the Bisons charged back with three in the fifth and four more in the sixth before Ken Trinkle quelled the rally.

Glenn Hausmann had easy sailing in the nightcap as the Bisons scored eight runs after two were out in the second inning. The big uprising was featured by home runs by Charley Wilhelm, Hank Biasatti and Gene Markland.

Roller Skaters Leave Building in a Hurry

Montreal, May 29 — (CP) — Scores of roller skaters scrambled out of the old coliseum still wearing skates Sunday night as a fast-spreading blaze engulfed the wooden structure within minutes.

No casualties were reported.

The dome-roofed building, also used for secondary boxing and wrestling matches, went up like a torch and only a small part housing offices was saved.

Three alarms were rung at 10-minute intervals and several ambulances converged on the scene in case of casualties.

Loss of the 50-year-old building said to be the oldest rink in Canada, was estimated at more than $200,000.

Flames that leapt 100 feet in the air at the height of the blaze were seen by people as far as suburban Verdun, more than two miles west.

The coliseum is on Guy Street, below Dorchester, in the west-central part of the city.

Thousands of Montrealers taking advantage of the warm weather jammed streets near the structure and hampered the work of firemen.

Fernand Jacqueline, 26, last person to leave the rink, said "another minute and we would all have perished."

Jacqueline went through the front door in such a hurry he forgot he still had skates on. He fell down the front steps, injured his hands and tore his trousers.

The fire was brought in check after one hour although smoke still drifted from the debris long afterwards.

Twirlers Hold Spotlight in Intercounty

Saturday was pitchers' day in the Intercounty Baseball League. Twirlers held the spotlight as Kitchener trimmed St. Thomas Galt trimmed St. Thomas 13-2, London beat Brantford 3-2, and Stratford stopped Waterloo 4-1.

Alex Martin, ex-Toronto Leaf right-hander, allowed only four hits in Galt's 13-2 win over St. Thomas. Up to the ninth, Martin had a two-hitter, but two hits, two walks, and an error gave Leglion their two tallies.

Every Galt player hit safely in the Terriers' 15-hit assault on Elmer Cook and Jack Weeks. Wes Little led at the plate with three for four, including a double. Andy Garbaz hit a home run in the third with one man on.

Reliable Tommy White tossed a five-hitter at Brantford Red Sox as London Legion squeezed out a 3-2 win. It was White's third straight win of the year.

Brantford's Dave Sheehan and Nig Parker held Majors to six hits, but five errors allowed in the first inning to give London the margin. Centrefielder Burgess got two hit in three at bats for the Majors, while Tommy McGrattey whipped a triple and double in a losing cause.

First Loss in Nine

Waterloo managed a scant seven hits off Stratford's Bill Russ as they dropped a 4-1 decision. It was the Tigers' first loss in nine games.

Russ got the benefit of three timely plays as he worked himself out of several tough spots. He walked only one man. Stratford got nine hits off starter Meyres and Jack Giffen, with Meyers taking the loss.

Sam Sporn and Gord McGrew hit three safeties apiece for the Nationals, while Bobby Fisher and playing manager Alex Kvasnik managed two hits each for the losers.

Manager Bobby Schiurr showed his pupils how to do it as his Kitchener Legionnaires turned back St. Thomas Saints 6-3.

Schnurr posted his first win of the year, spacing nine St. Thomas hits effectively as he coasted the route behind a four-run lead given him in the first inning.

Walt Wilson provided the only disastrous opening inning to handcuff Kitchener the rest of the way, but the damage had been done.

In Monday's contests, Brantford plays at St. Thomas, London at Guelph, and Waterloo at Stratford.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You hear talk about jumps in bridge. When the kind of jump is not specifically mentioned reference is usually to a one-jump but there is also a double jump to consider.

A one-jump refers to a bid in number that is one higher than necessary. For instance, when both opens with one heart and north responds with two spades it is a one-jump.

A double jump refers to a bid in number that is at least two higher than necessary. For instance, when south opens with one heart and north responds with four hearts it is a double jump.

The general idea is this: When one-jump response is immediate promise is made of two sure tricks with tricks enough to help make a game. Any later one-jump does not say anything about tricks.

With a double jump however, two sure tricks are promised whether or not the double jump is immediate or later. All the double jump says is that there are tricks enough for game help. A deal that came up is shown here:

NORTH

WEST

♣A Q J 8 6 2

SOUTH
♠A K J 9 2
♥7 4 3 2
♦A Q J 10
♣7

This deal brings out a point worth repeating. Before studying the cards, know what is meant by the immediate jump easiest in a major suit. It promises enough help for game in that suit; five tricks.

But distinguish between the two kinds of jumps. If the immediate major assist is a one-jump it also promises sure tricks. What is its purpose? To get opener of slam possibilities.

If, however, the assister has two tricks and not two sure, he can still jump at once. But not a one-jump. It should be a double jump. A one jump assist in a major suit. It promises enough help for game in that suit; five tricks.

In this case south opens with a bid of one spade and north responds at once with four spades. This is a double jump. So, it denies two sure tricks. Make it plain to partner.

Movie Column

Hollywood, May 29 (AP)—Errol Flynn says his bride-to-be, Princess Irene Ghika, will be the boss of the family—"At first, anyway."

Starting work on a new picture, the famed swashbuckler announced he will marry the Romanian noblewoman in September in Paris. "At least she's making plans to get married then," he said.

So she'll be the boss of the family?

Flynn laughed: "Sure, women have to be boss—at first, anyway."

He added: "The Romanians have a good custom. The girls bring their husbands a dot (dowry). She'll sign over all her insurance papers and so forth to me."

Hollywood Their Home

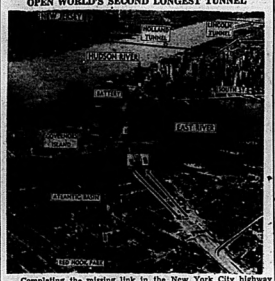
The pair will live in Hollywood, but Flynn has no plans to build a new house. "She likes the one I have," he said. "And, she is just crazy about Hollywood. She has never been here before and she thinks the place is fabulous."

"I've tried to warn her about the pitfalls, but she just shrugs those shoulders. She doesn't scare easily."

But does she understand the meaning of "pitfalls"? "Oh, yes, she looked it up in her Romanian-English dictionary."

He said he met his fiancee at a party in Paris about 1-2 years ago. "She was sitting alone in a dark corner when I spotted her," he related. "It was a very normal meeting. It wasn't love at-first sight or anything like that."

Capsule Reviews

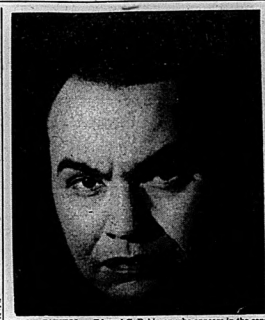


"In a Lonely Place" (Columbia) shows Humphrey Bogart as a movie writer with a split personality. Gloria Grahame is his fickle and others he goes around changing people. This provides rather gloomy entertainment, but it is absorbing most of the time. At any rate it's unpredictable. Gloria Grahame plays the girl who tries to figure Bogart out, and she again impresses as one of the better young actresses.

"The Golden Twenties" (March of Time) is an extensive treatment of that era of wonderful nonsense. It should prove fascinating to the younger set and will bring back painful and pleasant memories to their elders.

TEACHERS TO DONATE

Montreal, May 27.—(CP)—To provide a personal contribution from Quebec teachers to Manitoba colleagues who have lost homes, furnishings and belongings in flood stricken areas, an appeal has been issued by the Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers of Quebec. The money donated by the Quebec Teachers will be turned over to the Manitoba Teachers' Society to aid relief and rehabilitation.



OPEN WORLD'S SECOND LONGEST TUNNEL

Completing the missing link in the New York City highway system, the new Brooklyn-Battery tunnel is shown in this aerial photodiagram together with the secondary arteries that will pour traffic into the underground channel, the longest and deepest tunnel of its type in the western hemisphere. Visible also in the photodiagram are the tunnels and bridges from which other traffic will be relieved. Built at a cost of $85,000,000, the 9,117-foot tube must carry 10,000,000 cars yearly to make it self-supporting. Motorists will be charged 30 cents a trip. The tunnel is the world's second longest. —Central Press Canadian.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reading his paper and ma was treading hers, saying, Here's an intriting item in Hookbinder's page of week end specials, William. They call it the handy Man's Kit, and it's a neet metal box containing 22 tools garanteed to meet any emergency of ordinery household repairs, she said.

I wish I was a handy man, pop said, and ma said, Now William, you'd be as handy as any other man if you only had the proper tools, That's an exact quotation from very very own words whenever I ask you to fix something around the house, I'm going to start spring housecleaning next week, and I am sure to unearth any number of simple odd jobs that you would do for me if you had one of those special tool kits. The cases come in several colors and finishes, so you can stop in Hookbinders tomorrow and give yourself the satisfaction of choosing the stile that just seems to appeal to you, and they'll print your own initials on the outside as an added inducement, she said.

By golies, that's a personel touch that I cant resist, pop said. And while I'm down there I'll have them send up an ice cream freezer. We haven't had homemade ice cream for years, he said, and ma said, And just to refresh your memory, I'll delibritly and purposely give away our last freezing.

But my dear, the modern freezers are all electric, nobody has to turn them by hand any more, pop said, and ma said, Somebody still has to pack in the ice and salt and clean them afterwards, and who's going to do it, that's the answer, I dont want you to go anywhere near Hookbinder's, William, for the Handy Man's Kit or anything else, she said.

Advertising Costs Figured Out for Dairy Farmers

Toronto, May 29 — "What's this cent-a-pound butterfat for advertising purposes going to coal me?", is a question heard often enough among dairymen across Canada these days. The query is a natural one for it is in line with the active promotion campaign of the Dairy Farmers of Canada to bring the merits of dairy products to the public more forcibly through advertising. A cent-a-pound butterfat, or the milk equivalent, set aside during the month of June will establish the initial budget for this purpose.

Butterfat Test is Key

Eric Kitchen, secretary-manager of the Dairy Farmers of Canada, has worked out a few figures designed to serve as a guide to milk and cream producers the country over. For instance, on a hundred pounds of 3.5 milk (3.5 pounds of butterfat) the deduction at a cent a pound would be 3½cents; on 100 pounds of 4 per cent milk, it would be four cents; on 400 pounds of 2.5 milks the deduction would be 14 cents and so on through any calculation, simply using the butterfat test as the key.

Once the basic calculation was determined it would then be a simple matter, Mr. Kitchen points out, for the farmer to figure out about what he would be called upon to pay on the June set-aside for advertising purposes in a national way. For the whole month of June, a man who shipped 400 pounds a day at 3.5 milk would pay only $4.30 as his contribution toward the promotion of greater use of dairy products. The 300-pound-a-day shipper of 3-5 milk would pay $3.25 for the month, while the 300-pound-a-day shipper of 3.5 milk would contribute $2.15.

For Cream Producers

In the case of the cream producer another rule-of-thumb could be used. If a week's cream production ran to about 80 pounds of 30 per cent cream, the fat content would be 24 pounds. Four weeks of such production in June would total 96 pounds of fat, or approximately 96 cents for the advertising set-aside.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Brampton, May 27 — (CP) — Two suits claiming $125,000 damages against Toronto township as a result of a fatal accident in November, 1948, were settled out of court Friday. The actions were launched by the estate of Norman Sparge, killed in the accident, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Becker of Weston.

USE JUNGLE SQUADS

Malacca, Malaya, May 27. (Reuters)—War Minister John Strachey and Colonial Secretary James Griffiths of Britain today sped through several danger spots in a heavily-armed convoy, on their tour of guerrilla operational areas in Malaya. Jungle squads were stationed off the road at possible ambush points, and the route ahead of the convoy was swept by security forces.

GUIDED MISSILE TEST

Washington, May 27. (AP)—The United States navy plans to try sinking one of its own ships by guided missile.

By Alice Ross Colver

"What separates us?" he had gone on to ask. "What divides us and prevents us from recognizing the good we all have? Is it anything but our own vanity? Our own sense of national importance? And in a smaller sphere our personal self-importance? I once said to a friend of mine, that if all the have-nots suddenly became the haves in this world, Utopia would be reached. But he retorted that that was not true. That the haves would manage to find something to make them feel superior again because that is our frailty—not to be able to tolerate others possessing what we esteem." He had paused a moment. "For instance, who of us here is willing to admit that a man less fortunate than ourselves in birth and breeding is entitled to a place among us?"

That had been daring of the Reverend. Daring and sensitive. Without hesitancy, he had attacked those in high places. Without fear he had linked the town's treatment of Gerald Barton to the world's need for unity. "For the building of one world," he had said, "depends upon the humblest, the lowliest, the greatest, the servants, the helpless." Was that each of us binds in his heart."

He had stirred in his chair. How right Joe Ferguson had been. Yet even in his rightness, a little unfair. For Joe did not know, no one knew, the full motivation of the Judge's reserve regarding Gerald Barton. For instance, regarding that Texas job.

He had suggested it in order, it was true, to separate the two people for a while. But not wholly for the reason they thought. Not out of dislike for Gerry or a full disapproval of him. Not as a means of "getting rid of him" as Alicia had so bluntly put it. But to give Susan a chance for cool consideration of her interest in him. For he himself knew from his own experience that propinquity does not necessarily work out the right answer. If Elizabeth had not been so easily at hand during his years at law school, who could say if he would ever have married her? She had been a devoted and able wife, he did not mean that, but in many matters that called for delicacy of perception she had not always seen eye to eye with him. If he had waited instead of accepting the fact that here she was, ready and willing, and someone to whom he had grown accustomed . . .

He sighed. Well, no use to waste time thinking about that. It was nothing he could have explained to Joe Ferguson, anyway.

Or to Susan—or anyone at all for that matter. Besides, he had learned what too many of this young generation were refusing to learn, that, with patience and forbearance and honest effort, one could manage to live amicably, appreciatively and with a true and lasting affection with ones chosen mate. Elizabeth had many virtues. All he had needed to do was remember them.

But that was rather off the point—and Judge Owen was right. Getting back to Gerry, Steven had proposed Texas partly for Susan's sake but also for Gerry's own. For here, under Elizabeth's vigilant, stern and unrelenting eye, he would hardly have a chance. Every mistake would have been magnified. While out there, these would have been overlooked or soon forgotten. Moreover, the threat of daily enemy sniping and enemy bombshells would have been missing. Also, and this had been influential in his thinking, it had been the only opening the Judge had been able to touch upon, in those first days of tension and surprise, where Gerry's educational handicaps and background would not have greatly mattered.

He sighed again. But that, too, he couldn't explain. And it was all water over the dam anyway. It was nothing to everybody's mind now, except his own, was What next? He wished Joe Ferguson knew. He wished he had told him. Joe would not have been quite so hard on him in his sermon this morning if he had realized that, for some weeks past, he had been at least at work building up the "humanism" in his own heart.

It had not been easy.

The ringing of the telephone interrupted his thoughts at this point and he picked up the receiver wondering who it could be. To his surprise he heard Gerald Barton's voice.

"Judge King?"

"Speaking, yes."

"This is Gerry."

"Good evening, Gerald.'

"I'd like to see you for a few moments."

"I had it on my mind to call you. I was going to ask you to drop in tomorrow some time."

"I'd rather see you tonight."

Steven hesitated. He usually retired at eleven, and he still wanted to have a talk with Audrey. But there was an undercurrent of excited, imperious command in young Barton's voice, which, while it stirred the Judge to irritation, also roused in him a faint uneasiness. Gerald must have just returned from the weekend at Susan's school. Was it possible those two had . . .

"It's important," Gerry was saying, with some harshness. "I'd advise you . . ."

"Come up," Steven interrupted. "I'll look for you in twenty minutes or so."

He put down the receiver and turned in his chair to stare into the crackling fire. "I'd advise you." Young whippersnapper! Impudent cub! His fingers beat a quick tattoo on the arms of his chair and then slowly quieted.

This was no way to build humanism in his heart.

His thoughts turned now to Audrey whom he wanted to see before Gerald arrived. Had she forgotten he had asked her to come down? She was not out this evening, he knew. From what Frank was in New York on some business or other and had telephoned at dinner time to say he would be late returning. But Audrey was here. Hadn't she understood his quick cautiously-spoken request as they had left the dining room tonight? Perhaps she was waiting to be sure Elizabeth was ready to bed. For such is the disapproval of him. Not as a means of "getting rid of him" as Alicia had so bluntly put it. But to give Susan a chance for cool consideration of her interest in him. For he himself knew from his own experience that propinquity does not necessarily work out the right answer. If Elizabeth had not been so easily at hand during his years at law school, who could say if he would ever have married her? $500,000 DAMAGE IN NORTH BAY OIL FIRE

Truman to Request $1,225,000,000 for Arms Shipments

Amount Needed to Bolster U.S. Policy in Cold War

Washington, May 30. (AP)—President Truman is expected to ask Congress this week for about $1,225,000,000 to finance United States arm shipments to 14 countries.

The State department and Budget Bureau have recommended this amount as necessary to bolster American policy in the cold war. The money would be for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Truman is scheduled to submit the request to Congress on Thursday.

The sum is slightly less than the $1,238,600,000 appropriated by Congress last year for arms shipments to 12 friendly powers.

About $1,000,000,000 would go for American military supplies to nine Atlantic-Pact countries—Britain, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands, Canada, Norway, Denmark and Portugal.

The remainder would be earmarked for arms aid to Greece, Turkey, Iran, Korea and the Philippines.

Portugal is being included for the first time under the Atlantic Pact reciprocity. Officials said small amounts of naval and air force equipment would be sent to the Portuguese to help protect Portugal's strategic coastline and the important Azores Air base.

Most of the funds during the first year went for shipments of available weapons needed to meet urgent deficiencies in the various armed forces.

Despite the slow start, most of last year's funds have been spent or committed. Officials estimated that by June 30, when the current legislation expires, that 90 per cent of the $1,238,600,000 will have been allocated.

There will come in for the biggest chunk of the second-year sum, as it did during the current 12 months. Most European countries' arms needs have been broken down into categories indicated officials have estimated France's share at around $300,000,000.

FIRM STAND TAKEN BY WEST PRAISED BY PEARSON

By NORMAN ALSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, May 30 — (CP) — L. B. Pearson said today on his arrival here from London that important progress was made in strengthening the North Atlantic community through the recent meeting of the Atlantic Council, first since 1939.

Canada's External Affairs Minister arrived aboard the Queen Elizabeth after a 23-day visit to Britain.

He expected to return to Ottawa today by train or plane. He will report to the cabinet today or tomorrow on his talks overseas and to the House of Commons "at the earliest opportunity."

"It was a very useful meeting and I think a very successful meeting," Pearson said of the four-day discussions among the 12 Atlantic Pact powers, ending May 18.

Building up Pact.

"At the meeting we made further important progress in building up the North Atlantic community.

Commenting on the week-end youth march in East Berlin, Pearson said everyone must feel a certain sense of relief that there was no disturbance of the peace.

The firm stand taken by the Western Allies before the event, he said, probably had a lot to do with the relative, quiet way it came off.

Pearson was asked whether Canada's projected participation in the organization for European economic co-operation would commit Canada to Europe economically. He replied that the Dominion would not be committed by participation in O. E. E. C.

Some action already has been taken to translate into reality the resolutions' taken by the Atlantic Council, Pearson said. A permanent group had been set up to continue talks among pact members between regular sessions. Canada's member of the permanent group would be appointed later.

Some work had been done on the military side of co-ordination but not much had been accomplished yet on the economic side.

ANGLO-CANADIAN WHEAT CONTRACT MAY SOON END

New Era in Selling Opens For Dominion

Ottawa, May 30 (CP) — The long, war-born Anglo-Canadian wheat contracts may soon be a thing of the past. Their termination may sound the bugle call for the end of other bilateral food agreements between the two countries.

With the world's war-ravaged fields once again rich with wheat and with Britain's supply of dollars still below par, she has offered, it is indicated officially, and Canada has accepted the suggestion that from now on the U. K. buy Canadian wheat at the current international market price.

Trade Minister Howe, back from his London wheat talks last week, is expected to bring this suggestion before cabinet today for approval. If accepted, it will mean that Canada will not sell wheat to Britain after July 31 at fixed annual quantities or at fixed prices.

Instead, the price for the 1950-51 crop year will range within the price spread of the International wheat pact, a minimum of $1.54 and a maximum of $1.96 a bushel.

75-Mile Pipeline Will Carry 14,000 Barrels Oil Daily

Toronto, May 30 (CP)— A 75-mile 10-inch pipeline costing some $2,500,000 will be built from Gretna, Man., to Winnipeg, Imperial Oil Ltd., announced today. It will join the interprovincial pipeline now under construction Edmonton to Gretna.

The line will carry about 14,000 barrels of oil a day when completed late this fall or by the spring of 1951 and have a capacity of 30,000 barrels a day. It will be owned by a newly organized subsidiary of Imperial Oil—the Winnipeg Pipe Line Company Ltd., incorporated in Manitoba, and is the final link in an oil transportation system which will move Alberta oil to Winnipeg.

Imperial oil announces that the route of the line has been surveyed and options for right of way are being obtained. Initial work has been delayed by the Manitoba floods but early delivery has planned in make up lost time.

A pumping station will be built at Gretna, adjacent to the Interprovincial Pipe Line Company's pumping station. Pipe has been ordered in Britain and a contract for construction of the line will be awarded shortly.

Legend Says Tons of Spanish Gold And Silver Hidden Under Mountain

Goldthwaite, Tex., May 30 — (AP) — Treasure hunters are digging again for tons of silver and gold which legend says lies hidden in a tunnel-pocked mountain in central Texas.

This time they are professional hunters with modern equipment. They are probing Dry Peak, which nestles on top of the mountain three miles northeast of here.

The nameless mountain is the site of a gold and silver mine worked by the Spaniards in the 1760's as part of Mexico and under Spanish rule.

Legend—backed by some evidence—is that the Spaniards were forced to flee the mine in 1762 because of an Indian uprising. They were supposed to have left nearly stored 500 jack loads (15,000 pounds) of pure silver taken from the famous Lost Bowie mine, and 10 burrow loads of gold, weighing 3,000 pounds.

The silver would be worth about $3,000,000 now, and the gold about $1,500,000.

The newest hunters are two professionals and three college students. They have formed a partnership. The professionals, J. S. Fisher and Jr. E. Latham of Rio, Tex., are at the site with modern equipment, and have started out a location. The students will join them when their classes end.

In 1901 a foreigner came here with a map which he said he bought from a Mexican. The foreigner looked for three oak trees which formed a triangle—one of which had a copper spike driven in it. He couldn't find them.

But later that year Dr. Jim Kirkpatrick of Dry Peak—then a copper spike and a tree stump at Mullin. The stump formed a triangle with the other two trees being. Dr. Kirkpatrick began digging.

He found two copper plates with legible engravings and a hand-hammered copper box. The lid of the box bore the words "Peter Lost Bowie." Inside were a crucifix, a set of pearls and a gold ring. Dr. Kirkpatrick could find no treasure.

Since then dozens of parties have dug in vain.

Evacuees Return in Full Swing, Loss May be $100,000,000

Winnipeg, May 30 — (CP) — Bedraggled but Brilliant sunshine today licked up the last traces of two fierce showers that spilled almost a half-inch into the Red River valley watershed. The flooded river's drop was apparently unaffected.

At 7 a.m. CDT the level stood at 23.5 feet on the lowest mark since May 6. Still almost eight feet above first-flood stage and almost two feet above the flood level of 1948, the river was down 4.4 feet from its riotous crest May 19.

A few scattered showers were forecast for today, but the weatherman said the fast-drying ground now is capable of soaking up a lot of moisture.

Meanwhile the return of evacuees who fled the worst flood in a century continued unabated. A newspaper survey indicated some 2,000 persons had returned to assist in clean-up work. Many 1000 and up.

Blackboy Plan Would Have Moved Out 200,000 Persons

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, May 30 (CP)—Forty thousand persons a day would have been moved out of greater Winnipeg by rail if the Red River flood had forced general evacuation of the city.

That was the pace set by the army in its Blackboy evacuation operation, made public today.

At least 200,000 persons would have been moved out of the Metropolitan area within five days, Brig. R. E. A. Morton, the army's flood commander, told his daily press conference.

100,000 Left Voluntarily

Because almost 100,000 left the danger area voluntarily, the normal 350,000 population of Winnipeg and its neighboring city of St. Boniface was reduced by cut to "fit males and working females," by that time, probably something less than 75,000.

Until today the evacuation scheme, drafted by military-civilian committee under Brig. R. S. (Dick) Malone of Winnipeg, was known officially as the "IF" plan. It was shelved May 26 when the flood drop from flood crest was well started.

This morning the army announced the official code name for the operation was "Blackboy."

"That was the name used in England in 1940 for the emergency plan to halt a possible German invasion," said Maj. G. W. Rutherford, 29, of Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders, one of the Blackboy planners.

Good Name For Plan

"It seems to be a good name for a disaster plan. It's been used twice and the plan hasn't been needed.

"Blackboy" would have gone into effect if the river reached 32.5 feet, when most of downtown Winnipeg and its suburbs, and virtually all of St. Boniface, would have been under water. Alternatively, it would have been used in event of any major breakdown in power or water supplies.

The river reached 30.2 feet Friday, May 19, its highest level in about a month. The gradual drop began May 22. Power and water supplies were not knocked out.)

Brig. Morton, general officer commanding the army's prairie command, would have taken over formal control from Mayor Garfield Garrick, chief of the greater Winnipeg area.

There would have been no formal declaration of martial law, army officer said; but if necessary the Blackboy plan would have sought from Premier Douglas L. Campbell the same over-all authority that martial law—the term is generally understood would provide.

British Empire Will Ever Remain Says Brooke

Montreal, May 30—(CP)—Near the end of a 7000-mile tour of Canada and the United States with Basil Brooke, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, told a service club dinner here today that the more he travels, the more he is convinced that the British Empire will ever remain as representing a way of thought.

Parliamentary government, modelled on Westminster, the sanctity of law, trial by jury, freedom of worship, and free speech. These, he said, are the British heritage which are cherished by the Commonwealth people.

Mr. Brooke said the people of Northern Ireland were proud of their place within the United Kingdom and the British Commonwealth.

Like the people of Canada, the people of Ulster were British citizens, sharing all the traditions, privileges, responsibilities, against that citizenship implied.

"The ties of Northern Ireland have grown more and more away from the people of Southern Ireland, he declared, "and never will cease to those of Great Britain."

GOVT. CANNOT REACH AGREEMENT WITH PROVINCES

Trying to Curb Drunken Driving

Ottawa, May 30—(CP)—Justice Minister Garson indicated in the Commons Monday that the federal government and the provincial governments have reached no final agreement on how the criminal code should be amended to curb drunken driving.

Replying to opposition requests for heavier penalties, Mr. Garson said the federal government and the provinces have had the matter "under the most careful consideration" for many months.

He spoke during study of a bill making a series of minor amendments to the code and said he would not be in order to deal with the drunken driving question.

"When the time comes, I am quite prepared to debate this very issue for just as long as any member of the opposition wishes to debate it," he said. He would give reasons why amendments were not being introduced at this time.

The debate on drunken driving was started by John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), who said that 800 more persons are killed each year on Canadian highways by drunken drivers. Murder was regarded as a "terrible crime" yet

Canadian Sunbathers Against Publicity Given Stripping Douks

Vancouver, May 30 — (CP) — Canadian sunbathers think they are getting a raw deal from stripping Doukhobors.

A meeting of members of the Canadian Sunbathing Association here declared today that "nudists have nothing to hide" and resented the collar about publicity given recent Doukhobor strip-tease acts.

One middle-aged sunbather said: "If they can do it then, After all the good work we've done conserving people that nudists are really sane and decent everyday folk, these fanatics have got half the world laughing at us."

Hundreds of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors have been arrested in the Kootenay area, 250 miles east of Vancouver, for publicly disrobing as a protest "against a tired world war."

"Look at this guy, Long flannels — drop seat with a rent

pleat. No real nudist would wear that amount of clothes. We know a body is healthier in lighter garments."

The sunbathers passed a resolution which urged newspapers, law enforcement officers and public officials to watch their step in future.

"The criminal code prohibits nude parading in public," the resolution read. "It does not prohibit nudism, which is the practice of going without clothes for health, and that only when screened from the general public."

A University of British Columbia student, who advocated that the law against nudity in public should be repealed, was talked down as "futuristic."

He contended that nude parading was not a way of life with Doukhobors but merely a gesture of defiance against the law.

Ignore their nudity, of remove the prohibition, the sunbathers argued, and the Doukhobors would cease to some other form of exhibitionism.

Blaze Rips Through Oil Company Plant At Rapid Speed

15 Workers Dash to Safety As Drums of Gas Explode

North Bay, May 30. (CP)—Damage was estimated at $500,000 in a fire that today ripped through an Imperial Oil Limited Company warehouse and still blazed fiercely early this afternoon.

But firemen said at noon that they had the fire under control.

A column of steel-gray smoke mushroomed 2,000 feet into the air over the north shore of Lake Nipissing and hung like a huge blanket over this Northern Ontario city of 20,000 population. The smoke could be seen for 30 miles.

Cause of the outbreak, which was fed by a huge store of gasoline, industrial oils and rubber tires, could not be determined immediately. Fifteen workers dashed to safety as the flames spread with lightning speed.

Scores of residents fled from nearby dwellings as the area on the city's western outskirts shook from the explosion of drums of gasoline and naphtha. The blaze was considered one of the most spectacular in the city's history.

Started Near Barrel-room

The fire is believed to have started near the barrel-washing room in the rear part of the 200-foot-long warehouse building on Harriet Street. It was first noticed by two warehouse workers, Howard Caverely and Bill Morris.

"It just came 'poof,' " Caverely told a reporter. "I looked up and there was the fire".

The fire spread through the plant like a flaming blanket. Within five minutes, it had taken an awful hold on the entire building.

Flames were roaring through the whole structure by the time firemen arrived. Water for the firefighters had to be pumped several hundred feet.

Could Not Move Car.

An 8,000-gallon tank car on a siding at the west end of the warehouse was being emptied when the fire started. Workmen, before they fled, opened valves to avoid an explosion but the car could not be moved to safety because flames were shooting across the siding.

Heat and flames from the burning warehouse touched off the nearly-full tank car. A spout of fire 20 feet long gushed from the top of the car and one observer said the load of fuel burned like "the biggest Roman candle in the world".

Barrels Explode

Meanwhile, ine fire nurged into storerooms loaded with barrels of petroleum products.

LONG STEP TO OUTLAW RACIAL DISCRIMINATION

Toronto, May 30 — (CP) — A long step towards outlawing racial and religious discrimination in businesses licensed by the city has been taken by city council.

A new by-law incorporating an anti-discrimination clause will be presented at the next meeting of council June 13. Monday night council adopted unanimously a motion by Alderman William Allen that the clause be inserted in city-issued licences.

Adoption came after a four-hour debate on the hottest moral issue to come before council in recent stormy sessions on Sunday sports. The debate, mainly concerned with whether discrimina-

Communist-Led Japanese Attack Four US Soldiers

Tokyo, May 30 (AP)—Six hundred Japanese today attacked four United States soldiers in the first public fight of the allied occupation.

The battle touched off other skirmishes as American military police cracked down on instigators. At least eight Japanese were arrested.

Demonstrators, gathered for a Communist labor rally, showered American military observers with rocks. One soldier was knocked down.

One witness said the incident began when members of a communist youth group snatched a notebook from a Japanese policeman who was taking notes on speeches.

The Japanese attempted to recover the notebook. One of the soldiers was hit and struck back. The crowd, in ugly mood, threw rocks at the Americans who forced their way to the clear.

American military police reinforcements arrived and it scattered Hibaya Park for a second rally. They arrested at least three Japanese who put up stiff resistance. Clubs and fists swung freely.

Pulled Out of Column

Another Japanese was pulled out of a marching column when he shouted an anti-American slogan as he paced the military police. Other Japanese tried to prevent the arrest. The Americans quickly fought clear of a hostile crowd, shoving, pushing demonstrators.

Bay Conference Of United Church Is in Session

Peterborough, May 30 (CP)— The 58th meeting of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada opened here evening at St. United Church.

The case of the Rev. W. N. Crandall, Methodist minister who started recent theological wrangle was referred to a special committee.

Mr. Crandall, who is attending the conference, refused to have the children in his parish, declaring the Bible did not support Mrs. United Church's dictum on infant baptism.

The conference, which will also deal with two other ministers, meets this afternoon, and will give its recommendations Wednesday or Thursday.

The Rev. J. A. Anderson of Brighton, president of the conference, opened the meeting. Rev. A. M. Zeigler, chaplain of Queen's University, led the conference in prayer.

Ministerial Relations

Two other ministers whose cases will appear before the special committee on ministerial relations are Rev. E. Donovan Jones formerly of Belleville, Cemetery, and Rev. Coyne L. Gifford, formerly of Belleville.

Mr. Jones is said to have been received into the Presbyterian Church in the United States, and Mr. Gifford is also believed to be proceeding to the U. S. Presbyterian church.

When the case of the three ministers whose names may be stricken from the rolls of the conference is taken up, it was suggested by the Rev. G. A. Brown that there be a special committee selected to make recommendations.

The president appointed Mr. Brown, chairman, and selected the Rev. J. J. Neal, Mr. E. J. Downey, and Dr. James Semple of Peterborough, Mr. A. A. Mackenzie, president of the Conference's Lay Association, and Rev. George Pennock of Lindsay.

Rising in discussion, Mr. Crandall pointed out that the Peterborough Presbytery had recognized and accepted his resignation be asked for at the conference, and that his case was therefore from the rolls.

Following the opening ceremonies, committees went to their respective rooms for discussion and presentation of reports which will be made throughout the conference which lasts until Friday night.

MONSOON RAINS THREATEN

Colombo, Ceylon, May 30 — (Reuters)—Torrential rains have killed six persons and injured scores of others — but averted a serious drought threatening Colombo and other centres.

The rains broke electric cables, uprooted trees and started landslides. A boulder falling on a train killed the driver, coaches, injuring three passengers.

R.H. Skillicorn

Recently engaged as a constable in the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Roy Harold Skillicorn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Skillicorn of Stirling is now undergoing training in Regina, Sask.

Roy is well known in the Stirling district having attended public and high school in that village. Prior to his enlistment with the RCMP Roy was an employee of the Quinte Footwear Co., which formerly operated at Belleville.

BLAZE RIPS

Tremendous plumes of pink-red and blue flame shot sky-high as the barrels exploded. Some containers, lying on their side were blown up, thrust out-reaching tongues like flame-thrower blasts through the sides of the tanks.

A northerly wind saved huge gasoline tanks on the east of the property from destruction. The 10 tanks contained nearly 130,000 gallons of gasoline.

For a time, police and firemen feared that the steel outer gasoline tanks would explode and shower flaming gasoline over the adjoining districts of the city. But the wind carried the flames to the south and away from the big tanks.

While the threat of a mammoth explosion hung over the area, residents mindful of the recent holocaust in the Texas City explosions of Rimouski and Cabano dashed from their homes under a sky darkened by the smoke.

Heard For Miles

The explosions that rocked the area could be heard for miles. Many said they:

"It sounds just like the 24th of May and like some great string of heavy black smoke settling over the city."

The blaze nearest to the storage depot was less than 50 yards from the steel and concrete. The Imperial Oil office and two more adjacent oil company properties, Shell and McColl-Frontenac, also were threatened.

Minutes after the fire broke out, it had spread to a brush fire and was burning along a railway right-of-way.

Set up Roadblocks

Virtually every piece of fire-fighting equipment in the city was pressed into service. Firemen soaked adjacent properties to save them from catching fire. Provincial and city police set up roadblocks to bar curious persons from within a mile of the blaze.

When fire fighters turned hose streams on the burning tanks the heat was so intense that the water just turned to steam.

Imperial Oil plant appeared to be aflame. Many of the tanks are hundreds of feet into the air.

The flames blocked passage of the Grand Trunk. It had to stand on the tracks about a mile from the centre of North Bay.

FINDS CARELESS DRIVING

Kingston, May 30—(CP)—Vincent A. Evans, charged with careless driving, said Monday he could it wasn't so.

He admitted running his automobile into Vincent J. Elliott's car and that he'd had two beers.

But as for Elliott's statement about a noticeable smell of alcohol, Evans said from the radiator said Evans.

Elliott said that Evans couldn't have avoided the crash. Evans' explanation: His false teeth had slipped.

The magistrate called it careless driving. He fined Evans $25.

CROOK CANNOT COOK

Kirkland Lake, May 30—(CP) —Police say the crook who took all the only clue police have as to the identity of a burglar who entered the home of Clarence Johnson in suburban Goodfish and made off with a radio and an electric clock without taking the edge off his appetite.

Mrs. Johnson appears to have tried to fry two eggs in a skillet on the stove but can't be sure by when he spilled part of them on the stove and burned the rest.

'Col. Stoopnagle', Radio Star, Dies

Boston, May 30—(AP)—Chase Taylor, 52, known to radio and screen as "Colonel Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle," died Monday in hospital. The comedian had been under treatment for a cardiac condition.

Prior to his illness, he had been in Puerto Rico writing scripts for the Duffy's Tavern radio show. He returned to his South Norwalk, Conn., home about six weeks ago and entered a hospital for treatment of a heart ailment.

"Col. Stoopnagle" came into being because a storm once disrupted the Columbia Broadcasting Company network facilities. On day in October, 1930, a gale disrupted the CBS wires to the station and he and shortwave Taylor and Bud Hulick, a WMAK announcer, filled in a 15-minute gap.

The Colonel's actual Q. Stoopnagle was born during a storm," as Taylor put it later.

Between 1931 and 1937 the pair were heard over the CBS network, the NBC Red network, and the NBC Blue network. In 1936-37, they were on Town Hall Tonight and The Minute Men.

The Taylor-Hulick partnership dissolved in 1937.

Hulick became a master of ceremonies and actor. Taylor a comedian. He was featured over the Yankee network on Town Hall Varieties in 1941. Later he was quizmaster in the Quixie Doodle Contest over the Mutual network.

For the next seven years he was comedian and commercial announcement shows. He made numerous guest appearances on radio. One of the latest on NBC's Duffy's Tavern Feb. 23, 1950.

Taylor wrote several magazine pieces and a number of humorous books.

The old story of there being bigger fish in the sea than were ever caught may be quite correct, but it can't be proved by Clarence Faulkner, Dundas Street service station proprietor. Clarence thinks he has caught the biggest fish in Opeongo Lake in Algonquin Park.

Fishing in the above lake on the weekend of May 21st Clarence hooked a 15-pound, 9 oz. lake trout which he says put up quite a struggle before saying "uncle". He hooked the beauty on a homemade lure while trolling with a party of friends. It was the only fish caught by his party.

Goats are Invited To Tea Party, Police are Called

Malo, Sweden, May 30 (Reuters) — A citizen of Malmo who invited two goats to tea Monday was told by police that he'd have to do it again.

To get the goats up an elevator to his third-floor apartment and set them around a table. The goats, he said, ate about half the cakes but refused a cup of tea.

The party got out of hand when they tried to milk one of the goats.

Neighbors in the apartment below, hearing the sounds of hysterical bleating, called police. Three burly policemen removed the struggling goats while their host wrung his hands.

"Goats are a man's best friend" he said, "and it would have been such a nice party."

Police say not disclose the goat-fancier's name.

US Will Not Use Veto to Keep Red China Out of UN

Washington, May 30 — (AP)— State Secretary Dean Acheson is reported to have assured Trygve Lie that the United States will not use the veto to keep communist China out of the United Nations.

The statement of American policy appeared today to have been the principal development in the meeting held by Lie, U. S. Secretary - General, with President Truman and Acheson.

Diplomats familiar with the substance of Monday's "confidential chats" indicated they produced little in the way of definite understandings promising to ease cold war tensions. Lie, however, was left with a free hand to continue his efforts to find a way out of the U. N. deadlock.

The Acheson statement, said diplomatic authorities following the meetings is that Lie, on his recent mission to Moscow and other capitals, was given no commitments by Premier Joseph Stalin. On his return to Lake Success, last week the secretary - general expressed guarded optimism and told reporters he found that Russia "remains still have faith in the U. N.

This feeling, American officials said, appeared based on a generally friendly reception shown by Stalin and Andrei Gromyko and Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky. They said Lie got no new promises that Russia might be ready to take communist China into the U. N.

The U. S. attitude on the point of admitting communist China, which was reported to Lie and Byron Price, his assistant, was thus outlined authoritatively:

1. The decision whether to admit the Red Chinese regime to the seat of the Nationalists is the most urgent issue facing the United Nations, and is a matter for Soviet-bloc walkout from U. N. agencies.

2. Until it is settled, Lie's proposal for periodic top level meetings of the council to try to settle some cold war issues is largely academic.

On admitting communist China, the U. S. view was a decision by the Security Council nor follow the Soviet walkout example. It will be up to the other members to block the Peiping government's entry into the seat of the nation's delegation.

The Peiping regime's place in the United Church on Sunday morning with 4 good representation of the club in attendance.

Rev. A. Pouller gave an inspiring message to the club on "Service and Friendship" especially applicable to everyone in attendance this evening.

Council Agrees Dog Catch Necessary to Stop 'Nuisance' Of Dogs Running at Large

Trenton, (Special) — Council agreed unanimously Monday night, that a dog catcher was necessary to put a stop to the "nuisance" created by dogs running loose about town.

In order to make sure that Trenton gets credit for all contributions made to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, it was decided that council should act as a coordinating body and keep track of all individual donations and also all money collected by the various industries and organizations in the Trenton area. Edward H. Hicks has agreed to act as treasurer of the fund and all subscribe collecting agents for the fund are urged to forward their funds to Mr. Hicks.

Application Approved

The appointment of James Fox as "parking meter attendant and mechanic" was also approved. Mr. Fox will receive $200 per month salary as that paid to policemen, when he takes over the first token on the 1st of June and he will also be furnished with a uniform by council.

The following were passed authorizing clerk-treasurer O. W. Large to advertise for sale of caterer at a stipulated salary. It was also decided that the caterer would be employed for the five-month period from June 1 to November 1 inclusive. It was felt that while this was not enough, "Unless he is employed for that period, the agreement will not be effective," said Mr. Ryan.

As an added incentive to catch the stray dogs, council agreed that in addition to his salary, the man employed should be permitted to keep all pound fees he collects.

"We should do all we can for the flood victims before we think there are really bad," said Mayor Ken Couch in urging council to endorse the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund. A resolution was passed to this effect and a motion of commendation urging Trenton citizens to support the drive to raise funds for the flood victims.

WH Make Collections

Collections are being made among the employees in the several industries here. Mrs. R. McConnell is in charge of coordinating the collections with the women's organizations and there is also a box in the Trenton Post Office where anyone wishing to contribute. W. H. McClung is canvassing retail merchants.

An interested observer at a meeting with Alderman Ward, Mayor of Waddingxeen, Holland, Mr. Warnaar is in Trenton arranging for the arrival of 40 Dutch families who intend to live in this vicinity.

A petition from the residents of Murphy Street protesting the placing of parking meters in front of their homes which is in a residential district, was referred to the Parking Committee and permission was given to Mr. Ford and Rebekahs to hold a day on Saturday, September 2nd, Provost Shatwell.

A proposal by clerk-treasurer that council purchase a coin counting machine to facilitate handling parking meter collections was referred to investigations of prices. The machine, if bought will be of third and final reading as it is approved by the Board of Management, at which it will be advertised in the regular way.

A request for permission to operate a mobile fish and chip stand on Trenton streets, was not granted on the grounds that the application had been received down previously. Council considered that the whole consider several property owners.

Street reading was given the "preparatory by-law" to construct a sidewalk on the north side of Princess Street to a point 81 north of Dundas Street.

Will Purchase Property

Following the several private by-laws passed, was an authorization for the corporation to purchase property from Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for the Wartime Housing Project. The purchase is for $200 for a "quick claim."

No action was taken on the proposed construction of a bridge at the corner of McGill and Victoria Streets, pending receipt of the report of a letter to engineering firm which has been engaged to study the situation in the whole town.

A committee consisting of Councillor Charles Allore, engineer Rex Davey and Mayor Strange was set up to receive every current building by-law.

A resolution was passed in connection with appreciation by the commanding officers of the Trenton Air Station and the Training Command for their "invaluable assistance in helping to make Remembrance a success."

Mayor Warnaar of Holland Informally Meets Council

Trenton (Special)—Friendly banter with the press and the necessity of borrowing money sometimes are two of the "many things that can be done" between Holland and Canada have in common, said Mayor Abraham Warnaar of Waddingxeen, Holland, in an informal talk to Trenton council Monday afternoon.

"However, the greatest thing we have in common is the desire to discuss as free men the matters of our affairs," said the Dutch visitor. When you have been prevented from "doing that you realize how free a man."

Mr. Warnaar who is president of the Netherlands Immigrant Society is in Trenton arranging for the arrival of some 40 families who are considering settling in the Trenton area.

Population Growing

"Our population is growing so fast that we are unable to grow enough food to feed them. We are trying to create room for people. We are very glad that a free country like Canada is opening its doors to us. We are sending you good people and we are sure you will be good Canadian citizens," said Mr. Warnaar.

Mr. Warnaar in describing some of the characteristics of life under the German occupation said that a first thing the Germans did was dismiss the town council leaving only the town clerk in charge. Unlike Canada, the mayoralty in Holland is appointed by Queen and Mr. Warnaar is assisting mayor of Waddingxeen, "as long as they will help to carry out the wishes of the German authorities.

Mr. Warnaar said he was when he was released from position and put in an internment camp for a year by the Germans.

"I had a free hand I had to my citizens but on the hand there was the constant of the German orders. Internment was the result of my not carrying out Germans' orders," he said before he added, Mr. Warnaar released and from then on he was under house arrest and "keep the spiritual freedom Dutch people awake."

Ordered Greater Mayor

Mr. Warnaar said greatest moment of his when after four years, he was granted into his office and ordered the Dutch flag to be hoisted on the town was liberated.

In thanking Mr. Warnaar for his remarks Mayor Ken Couch said that Trenton "has a limit to the number of countrymen welcome."

Mayor Couch said that he was sure provide suitable houses if any industries Trenton are considered.

HISTORY MADE IN OUR OWN TIME

It is fitting that the R.C.M.P. patrol vessel St. Roch pe the first vessel to sail around the North Amrelean tinent. She has come from sailing through the Panama al from Vancouver. It is five years ago since she sailed ugh the famous Northwest Passage across the top of ada and the North American Continent.

Polar exploration has been long. To circumnavigate North American Continent has long been the object of who go down to the sea in ships.

The long sought achievement in due course has come after the great era of exploration which sent Columbwestward in 1492 around the world. Instead he nd a new continent and it is only in modern days that e pass through the Panama zone by way of the great al of that name.

The History of America was one of the great events ll time. It had ultimately to come for such an achieve- it depended upon time and invention which were ded up so markedly in the age of mechanical discov-

One of the names associated with the Northwest sage is that of Sir John Franklin. English navigator went to sea as a boy and entered the English navy, he at 17, Calgary and at New Orleans and in 1819 headan overland expedition from the Hudson Bay to the ic Ocean. After many hardships and being frequently the verge of starvation from hunger and thirst he ched ie in 1822. He submitted a plan for an overland expe- on to the mouth of the-Mackenzie River and later set on a third expedition with two ships in 1845 and the nels the Erebus and Terror were last seen by a Scottish- ler that same year. Many expeditions went out in- rch for the navigator and his companions. Ultimately news reached England that all the company had per- d in the year 1845. Expeditions went in search but nas not until 1859 that the mystery was cleared up. At an expedition was organized and set forth and had the ht of confirming the tragic story of the death of all party.

Traces of the members of the company who had dered away were found in various sections and there ve established the proofs that all had perished. In 1878 the bodies of the members of the expedition were found. ny relics of the ill-fated explorer and his men were overed.

A bindiller era has provided a great opportunity to the hot ship St. Roch, that she should pass through the rthwest Passage, and circumnavigate the North Ameri- Continent without mishap or the endurance of such ne as Sir John Franklin and his company faced.

Modern discovery and modern means of exploration e supplanted the ways of a century and three-quarters century ago. An achievement has been added to the quests made by the bold men of the sea. Science does stop but continues to improve man's conquest over ure, which a century ago was a severe obstacle to ex- ation.

BARN ARCHITECTURE

Down at Charlottetown, Prince Edward Island, a new n is being built at the Experimental Farm. Except in purposes, it will be really different from most barns. It is nded for non-milking cows and young cattle. There be no stalls, as the cattle will run loose. There will be daily cleaning of the stables, but straw will be scattered r the stable area daily, and the accumulation will add t to the stable. In the spring, all will be cleaned out at

Nor will there be the laborious work of pitching hay other fodder down out of the mows and then below to ed-troughs. The mows will extend the floor level of the stable, on either end, and the cattle be able to feed themselves out of the long mangers. re will be a fence-like device in the mows to keep the er pushed to the mangers.

This type of barn is called a "loafing barn." In some es the style also has been used for milk cows, with the dition of a "milking parlor," a clean tidy part where y can be taken for the milking. — Windsor Star.

SPACING THE TRUCKS

With additional motorcycle policemen to patrol the ways, perhaps something can be done to space these ber-lined freight trains on the main lines of Ontario. Then two or three of those elongated trucks or carriers right behind one another, it is almost impossible to them.

It should be fairly simple to have the trucks and ders keep a reasonable distance apart. That would help ordinary motorists, who like to use the highways, too.— dsor Star.

It was justly said by Themistocles that speech is like estry unfolded where the imagery appears distinct; thoughts like tapestry in the bale where the figures are ed up together. — Bacon.

Russia Refuses To Wait Decision Of U.N. Members

By SIGRID ARNE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

(For DeWitt Mackenzie)

It remains to be seen what the result will be of the so-called "Save the United Nations" pilgrimage that made by the UN's top officer, Trygve Lie.

He has given no indication of what the top politicians of Britain, the United States, France or the Soviet Union told him. He has said it will be two or three months before results of his conversations can be judged.

This time limit, itself, is an indication of the problems which he must have talked over with the world's top leaders.

Right now the UN's most aggravating problem is the Soviet boycott of the key agencies in U. N. affairs until China is represented by delegates from the communist regime.

Since January the Russians and their satellites have refused to sit in any meeting of the various branches of the United Nations attended by representatives of the Chinese Nationalist government.

In so doing, they refused to walk out on the Chinese issue though a vote by U. N. member countries on the decision of the Soviet attitude, the U. N. faces another critical period which could end in political character. This may be the reason Lie has decided to take on the responsibility of talking to world leaders.

Meet in September

In September the full United Nations will meet for its annual session. If the Chinese communists are not voted in, the Nationalist government out, the Soviet bloc conceivably could boycott the full assembly. That would then be followed by action by the major governments that the chasm between east and west—perhaps between two worlds. Some experts fear this is the prelude to war.

On the other hand, if western diplomats agree to seat the Chinese communists to end the Russian walkout, the Soviet representa centend the Russians will be swelled by Communist governments they come up on the short end of a major argument in the U. N. feeling certain that the west will have to mollify them.

In any case, Lie took unprecedented action when he made his recent mission. No officer of the now-defunct League of Nations ever went farther than to try to bring arguments to an end by quiet, unpublicized discussions within the league council.

Four Boys Spent Sunday Night In Lonely Cabin

Timmins, May 30 — (CP) — Four boys, the eldest 13, spent Sunday night in a lonely cabin 30 miles north of here — as wolves howled hungrily outside.

The lads — Ross Fuller, 10; his brother, Donald, 8; Louis Jones, 13, and Roy Pomick, 12 — were missing since early Sunday. Police — led searchers found them late Monday, fishing on lonely Kamiscotia Lake.

They set out Sunday from their Timmins homes to hike to Sandy Falls, five miles away. They changed their minds and took the Kamiscota road instead.

The Tomick boy said they spent the night in a cabin owned by his grandfather. There was plenty of food.

The Fuller Brothers said they didn't get much sleep that night — because of the wolves. Some nearby howled and a window had attracted the beasts.

DEGENERATION AND RESIGNATION

Speaking of the value of regular morning rolls (somersaults on the floor) for every one who has begun to die (degeneration) I said I wouldn't waste a minute of my precious time doing them every morning if I did not believe they really hold back the infirmities or old age. Some people feel uncomfortable if circumstances prevent them from taking their Saturday night bath. Well, I feel like that if I can't have my regular morning rolls—say when travelling in a train, I waste no time or money brushing my teeth —and I'll stack my teeth against those of any hundred or thousand persons of my age who brush their teeth regularly — because I believe washing the teeth has nothing to do with preservation of the teeth, for that depends on just two factors, namely, good nutrition and good dentistry.

Although every one who lives out his natural life must die sooner or later, in fact every one begins to die somewhere between thirty and fifty—it is pretty depressing policy, it seems to me, to face natural death with resignation, as though there is nothing one can do to combat or retard physical degeneration.

I believe there is a good deal one can do, and I've been doing that for years, and recommending it to everybody who cares to try it, in the form of The 7 Keys to Vile—for copy send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

It seems to me that there is far too much resignation on the part of the health-ignorant intelligentsia to premature physical degeneration, decline, old age, chronicity, early loss of teeth. For instance, many such persons accept the loss of one or more teeth as a matter of little import and try to worry about getting a denture to replace them. They just do not understand that sometimes their doctors or specialists do not compprehend the future loss of functionally efficient teeth or dentures is bound to impair digestion, nutrition, health and longevity. Some of these ignorant ones become cripples in the belief that their crippled state will not show if they hide their teeth just so. Others convince themselves they can't afford the necessary dentistry just now—to make the payments on radio, car, refrigerator.

Diabetes may or may not belong in the category or degenerative diseases but the more we learn about it the more insistent is the impression that impairment of digestion and nutrition from neglect of the teeth has much to do with the development of diabetes in the individual with diabetic potentiality. According to the floor) for every one who has to Joslin and his collaborators approximately one-fourth of the entire population of the United States must now be regarded as potential diabetics—persons who have inherited the tendency. Whether the potential diabetic will eventually develop the disease depend on how he or she lives. Such a person is training for diabetes if he or she neglects the essentials in the care of the teeth—namely, good nutrition and good dentistry.

In Number 1 Little Lesson in the Keys of Health I appraise the teeth as follows:

"For every tooth lost and not immediately reptaced by a functionally efficient denture, deduct ten years from the average life expectancy. In other words a tooth is worth a year of your life for another year of good health.

That is no flight of rhetoric. I mean it literally. Look about you and study the relationship in the dental equipment of persons who retain the characteristics of health from that of persons who seem prematurely aged.

Answer—It tends to prevent cutting or breaking, merely because it lubricates. No such application appreciably softens or hardens the skin.

Two Heads Better Than One

Why do I crave lettuce so? I eat at least two large heads every twenty-four hours. (Mrs. W. M. A.)

Answer—Search me, but I can assure you it is a beneficial craving and there is no good reason why you should not indulge in it.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

DEFEAT WITHOUT DESPAIR

No one likes to be defeated in any contest, but we must meet these defeats and have to handle them with courage—and without despair. The moment we place despair in the defeat, our cause is lost. One victory may far outweigh a dozen minor defeats!

Never despair, however Columbus didn't. His clarion call was "Sail on, sail on, and on!" All through history, in event after event, the story has been the same, where there has been no despair. Just beyond the hills there is a guiding light. Nature expects many a defeat, but it never despairs, and so, year in and year out, we live more in spite of calamity order.

I once read an inspiring poem by the late Don Marquis in which he stated that he was "full of new beginnings." Such a person cannot know defeat very long. Despair is overwhelmed by every beginning. There is always the promise of a triumph ahead.

One of the noble sayings of an American in the war of 1812 was that one by a commander, Perry: "U.S.N., as he lay dying in the cockpit of his frigate, the Chesapeake, which he had lost on June 1st, 1813. Said he: "Don't give up the ship!" And there was defeat but not despair.

Many an athlete has suffered defeat, but he has come back to win, because he never despaired. He failed again and again yet with persistence, and without despair, they keep investigating and trying until they reach the goal desired. When we feel most like quitting, that is our clue to go on—never to despair!

ANGELS AND DEMOCRACY

One of the great troubles about communism is that it levels everybody down; nothing is leveled up. All that communism distributes is poverty.

We should examine carefully most of the fancy schemes advanced to relieve people, or human suffering. Most of them are based on the conviction that the people who hold property acquired it unjustly and should be deprived of it. It is, at best, a condemning social fact that about fifteen per cent of the population of the country own eighty per cent of its property and securities. The unpropertied people propose for changing this situation is to take values away from the people who have them and give them to people who do not have them.

Democracy gives everybody a chance. In a democracy, the ladder of achievement is open so that the humblest boy may climb to dizzy heights if he has the ability to do so. In other words, democracy would insure everyone the right to achieve to the limit of his powers, while all forms of collectivism would level everything down to the achievement of the inept.

There are great spiritual implications in these two systems, in spite of what reformers may cry to the contrary. It would appear that the angels are on the side of democracy.

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

One of Canada's best hunters, anglers, and all-round field naturalists insist that there is a psychic force in nature that acts as a warning to all wild creatures when danger threatens.

On a recent fishing trip with him, I caught only four trout to his ten, though we fished side by side.

"You're too intent," he explained. "Your eagerness transmits itself to the trout. . . .

"How?" I expostulated.

"Somehow," he replied. "I've seen it hundreds of times, through the fishing rod, and down the line. Or through the air or water, like a radiation, an atomic radiation, maybe. . . ."

When you come to think of it, some of the most successful of your hunting and angling friends are phlegmatic types, easy-going, unexcited, calm. And some of the least successful are the most arrogant, eager and devoted.

Later in the day, in a grove, my companion and I heard birds singing that might have been purple finches in their northern range, which have a special quality of song there; or it might have been some rarer bird of the finch family that we could not identify. We went softly, endeavoring to approach within binocular reach of the singers. For one, they stopped instantly and flew away. And I had the experience of hearing them continuing in full, uninterrupted song while my languid friend walked right among them. They were warbling vireos, far north of their normal range.

"You sort of subdue yourself," my friend explained, "whenever you approach wild nature. And nothing is afraid."

Atomic energy may exert itself in more ways than in bombs.

American Pilot Faces Charge of Damaging Plane

Montreal, May 30 (CP) —James Vinson, 29, an American pilot, was charged Mon. with damaging an airplane in what his attorney indicated was a dispute over ownership.

Vinson, whose address was given only as Florida, was charged with releasing the air brake pressure just before takeoff time Sunday of a plane bound for Rome with 52 passengers making a Holy Year trip, said Vinson was acting on instructions of his company and, in any case, did something required by law every six months.

Preliminary hearing was set for June 6.

Prevented Delay

The charge said that Vinson acted in order to prevent or delay the plane's departure.

Mr. Cohen said the plane belonged to Ocean Air Trade Ways which had leased it to Curtiss-Reid, but that the contract had expired May 20 and had not been renewed.

In spite of this, he said, Curtiss-Reid made preparations for the takeoff. He said proceedings will be taken immediately by the American Company to regain possession of the plane.

Alexander Stelker, representing the local Curtiss-Reid Company, said the plane was bought by Curtiss-Reid and was registered as a Canadian-owned plane.

He claimed Vinson was trespassing on the plane and deliberately tampered with it.

SUCCESSFULLY REMOVED

Toronto, May 30 — (CP) —An open safety pin was successfully removed in an emergency operation on two-year-old Richard Young, brought to the hospital for Sick Children here from Fowassan, Ont., on Saturday.

Boy Electrocuted Putting Tongue In Light Socket

Philadelphia, May 30 (AP) — A three-year-old boy put his tongue into an electric light socket and was electrocuted Sunday night, police reported.

The child, Francis Ritch, was found in the cellar of his home with his tongue in the outlet of a plugged-in extension cord.

Police said the child had been playing on a damp, earthen cellar floor while his father, Joseph Ritch, used an electric drill. The drill plug was screwed into the extension cord's socket, the other end of the cord plugged into a ceiling outlet.

Ritch removed the drill from its connection to go upstairs for supplies. When he returned he found his son lying on the floor with the cord leading to his mouth.

Plan to Bring Natural Gas To Toronto Users

Toronto, May 30 — Consumers' Gas Company Monday announced plans for an 85-mile pipeline from Dunlop, in Toronto to bring Texas natural gas to this area.

Estimated cost of the project is $8,000,000.

E. J. Tucker, General Manager of Consumers' Gas, said the 85-mile pipeline will be started as soon as the United States Federal Power Commission gives its approval.

Consumers' Gas has 180,000 customers, Mr. Tucker said. They should be receiving natural gas from Texas by way of the proposed pipeline within "two or three years."

Twenty-inch pipe would be laid four feet underground along the Buffalo-Toronto route. Construction would take about 18 months.

TRAVEL BAN LIFTED

Toronto, May 30 (CP) — A ban on bush travel has been lifted in Timiskaming and Algonquin Park, following weekend easing of the fire hazard.

Heavy rain in some sections of Northern Ontario and in the Ottawa Valley reduced the number of Ontario fires from 73 to 25. Those still burning are under control.

TRAGIC DEATH TOLL

Montreal, May 30 — (CP) — Quebec's warmest weekend of the year proved to be the most tragic as a death toll of 15 was racked up through the province. Ten of the victims were drowned Saturday and Sunday; the bodies of three earlier victims of drowning were recovered in the Montreal area, and two persons died in traffic accidents.

Four young persons, two girls and two boys — died in one accident near Montreal Saturday when their rowboat tipped.

Mrs. W. Knightley Crowned Queen Of Better Homes Show

Mrs. William Knightley, formerly Minnie B. Kerr, mother of Mrs. Clayton Sullivan, Corbyville, was the recipient of handsome gifts of distinguished exhibitors and double honors as "Queen of the Day" on Friday, May 26 and "Queen of the Show" for the whole week on Saturday, May 27th.

How and this distinguished resident accomplish this outstanding honor? As she relates her experience it is quite simple. Her good friends know that misfortune struck her exactly a year ago to the day she received the applause of thousands of visitors at the Better Home Show, when her beautiful home on the Shannonville Road, south of Roslin, burned to the ground. Undaunted by this misfortune this gallant lady began laying her plans to replace the home that was snatched from her by man's greatest enemy, "fire".

In order to get new ideas for a modern home, she attended the great Toronto show. From here it was simple. Mrs. Knightley entered the quiz programme, Friday and obtained almost a perfect score which placed her at the top of the competitors for the day consequently she was crowned "Queen of the Day", and was presented with valuable gifts, a corsage of American Beauty roses and an all expense conducted trip to Montreal, Quebec City and by boat down the Saguenay. Each day of the show a queen was crowned "Queen of the Day".

All the "Queens" were eligible to compete on the final day of the show for the high honor of being "Queen of the Show". Mrs. Knightley was the only competitor who had a perfect score, answering every quiz right. The most important question was to state the number of people attending the show. Her answer was 65,000 and the correct conference was 64,675.

After many rounds of applause Mrs. Knightley was heartily applauded and congratulated by all the officials of the show and the officials of CFRB, Toronto, who broadcast all the proceedings of the show, and the Queen Competition".

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the distinguished fellow citizen was adorned with a beautiful corsage of orchids, and presented with another all expense trip for a relative or friend to accompany her. She is now receiving more hearty congratulations from friends and neighbors.

I.O.D.E. Receives Sheaf of Annual Reports Monday

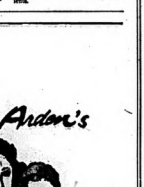
Montreal, May 30 (CP)—More than 1,000 patriotic women worked rapidly through a thick sheaf of annual reports Monday as the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire completed its first full day of business at its golden jubilee convention.

The 50th annual meeting of the body started Saturday with good words from Prime Minister St. Laurent, the governor-general and other dignitaries. Religious services were held Sunday and the hard core of business was tackled Monday. Two further days remain for the delegates—from all parts of Canada except Newfoundland.

Even Canada's newest province is feeling the impact of the I.O.D.E. It was reported Monday that the Order's first Canadian chapter had been organized in St. John's.

Today, the delegates are scheduled to hear a report from Mrs. W. G. Lumbers of Toronto, convener of the Empire Study Committee. She was scheduled to discuss Canada's women's interest in commonwealth affairs.

$250,000 Spent



Mrs. W. H. Wallon, Jr., of Oakville, Ont., honorary national treasurer, reported Monday that more than $250,000 was spent last year by the Order's 820 chapters across Canada. That was an increase of $3,000 over the previous year reflected in increased chapter activity in educational, welfare, executive personnel and community work.

Mrs. Wallon, who retires this year as national treasurer, served in that capacity for seven years.

Mrs. Peter L. Robinson of Toronto, convener of the Endowment Fund Committee, reported that the fund reached $135,000.

Mrs. Laurence Grout, national convener of the National Film Committee and a resident of Toronto, reported on "over-increasing use" of documentary films to create interest in citizenship, education, government, the Empire and "world affairs."

Mrs. K. I. R. Drope of Toronto, national post-war services convener, Monday night received a life membership in the National Chapter—the I.O.D.E.'s highest award. Mrs. Drope is a vice-president of the National Chapter.

Graduating Class School of Nurses Attends Service

Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was beautifully decorated with lilacs, Sunday afternoon, the occasion being the graduating class of the Belleville General Hospital School of Nurses accompanied by their directress Miss Dorothy Potts. Reg. Nr. and graduate nurses, together with many friends gathered in the church to hear the class of the singing of the grand old hymn, "Unto the Hills Around".

The pastor led the congregation in a dignified but simple service of worship, a copy of which was in the hands of each member of the congregation. A fine congregation joined heartily in the reading of the 91st psalm, and in the singing of hymns chosen by members of the graduating class. Under the direction of Phyllis May A.R.C.T., with Mrs. Lawrenson as accompanist, William Cook, nor M.A. at the organ, the choir rendered their anthem "O Lord Most Holy" very effectively, a challenging part of the worship was the "Florence Nightingale pledge recited by the graduating class.

Service of Ministering

The address of the pastor was based on the words of Jesus as found in Matt. 20. 27, "Whosoever will be chief among you, let Him be your servant." After expression." You have seen life in its lation to the suffering and sick." If you are considering profession." You have seen life in its most primitive experiences. "You have heard the first feeble cry of the new born babe, as well as the last almost inaudible word of the dying." Some times in bafflement you have reached out for resources other than yourself, 'in your out reach you have touched God.

"I am sure each of you desire to be a good, even a great nurse. If you are to attain your desire you must be a good person." The speaker mentioned the satisfaction of being truly able to serve, the gratitude of those you have served as being the rewards of service." But chiefly and above all, said Mr. Eastman, "The approval of Him who said- in as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me." You as nurses are privileged to be laborers together with God in this comforting and healing purpose. "Be not afraid," our Savior, then go forth with Christ's love into a life of true service."

The service was helpful, reverent, worshipful and inspiring. The Reception

After the service, the graduating class and their friends were invited to spend an hour of social fellowship in the school room, as guests of the church. As the guests entered the beautifully arranged school room, they were received by Miss Potts, pastor and Mrs. Eastman; Deacons J. A. Blackburn, A. G. Fox and their wives, and others. Assisted by numerous hostesses, over one hundred guests were seated in happy groups about small tables. The tastefully arranged school room presented a colorful scene. The nurses' colors of red and gold dominated the color scheme. Banks of lilacs, tulips of red and white were everywhere. Vases of tulips on the tables combined to make a lovely setting for this reception.

Brief Program

After a very brief program of piano music by Mr. Connor, and a vocal duet by Mrs. Lawrenson and Jean Faulkner; Miss F. Hilchon and Mrs. Eastman, Mrs. May, Mrs. Blackburn poured tea and coffee which was served, with a dainty lunch of sandwiches and cakes, by the younger ladies of the church. Entertainments followed a well rendered reading "How the Great Guest Came" by Mrs. M. Robson and piano duets by Mr. S. Alec Gordon and Wm. Connor.

With a brief prayer the pastor brought the evening to a close. The guests departed with many the last almost inaudible word of expression of a happy evening.

Mr., Mrs. E. Johnson Honored by Many On Eve of Departure

Rawdon.—On Thursday evening last, over 100 neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Johnson, gathered at Mount Pleasant Church hall to honor them before their departure to Springbrook.

The Rev. H. C. Vaclavik spoke briefly and presided over the program.

Mrs. Eric Summers led in community singing with Miss Betty McConnell as pianist.

Mrs. Malcolm Sharp contributed a piano solo, and Mrs. Bill McAdam read a humorous poem entitled "The Cost of High Living".

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Summers delighted with two selections, "Lamplighting Time in De Valley" and "When My Blue Moon Shall Turn to Gold", with guitar accompaniment; Mrs. B. Merrick read a poem, "Neighbors, Good or Bad", and Miss Betty McConnell contributed a piano solo.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a humorous reading "The Eighteen-Day Diet", and Miss Ruth Linn sang a lovely spiritual "Lucky Old Sun".

Presentations Made

Miss Betty McConnell read an address of appreciation to Mrs. Johnson, who has taught the Senior Young People's Sunday School class at Mount Pleasant, for the past seventeen years. The address was signed by all the class members. Mr. Robert Hoard made the presentation of an electric table lamp.

Mrs. Cyrus Summers read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, and this was signed by Messrs. Bob Merrick, Burton Sharp, James Hoard, Herbert Smith and Allan Reid on behalf of neighbors and friends. Mr. Kenneth Weaver made the presentation of a lovely writing desk.

Elwood voiced thanks for the kindness shown him and for the lovely gift and invited all their friends to visit them at Springbrook.

Jessie thanked her Sunday School Class and all others who had been so kind to them, particularly during the past year.

Brief addresses were given by Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Messrs. Will Potts, Earl McAdam and Lindsay McKeown.

The pastor offered prayers after which refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

Resided on Homestead

Elwood was born on "Pump Street" in the Mount Pleasant community, a son of Mrs. John Johnson and the late Mr. Johnson and has always resided on the homestead. He has served as school trustee and secretary-treasurer of the Williams Public School for many years.

Active in Church Work

Mrs. Johnson was formerly Miss Jessie Dunham, and previous to her marriage 29 years ago, she taught at the Williams public school at Mount Pleasant. Since her marriage she has been active in church and social activities. She taught other classes in Sunday School, previous to her appointment to the Senior Young People. She also is a member of Mount Pleasant, Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society.

Their daughter, Marian, who has a position in Belleville, will also be missed in the community on her usual weekends and holidays.

The family will be greatly missed at Mount Pleasant but it will be a gain for Springbrook.

The neighbors all wish Elwood and Jessie every success in their new venture at Springbrook and hope they will return often for a visit to "Pump Street".

GIVES WIFE ADVICE

"Do you mind a mere male having something to say about washdays? My wife keeps my shirts sparkling white, which is important in my business. She tells me the secret is Rackitt's Blue, which prevents clothes turning yellow. She takes no chances with anything that may damage fabric. Just a swish or two of Rackitt's Blue in the final rinse is all there is to it. The fact that Rackitt's Blue costs only a few pennies a month makes sense to me, too." A-6-R

Oak Mace Symbolizes Life of University

Halifax, May 30 — (CP) — A piece of oak felled on the estate of a British nobleman has been carved to symbolize the life of Dalhousie University, whose cornestone was laid in 1820.

The Earl of Dalhousie sent the oak here. It was then fashioned into a mace by a Halifax craftsman and held a place of honor at recent convocation ceremonies at the University.

A. H. MacMillan worked on the mace for more than a year, following instructions by Dr. R. L. Dec. H. Saunders, director of the medical museum and professor of pathological anatomy at the college.

The mace tells in a heraldic way of the life of the University since it had its origin in the brain of the ninth Earl of Dalhousie, a soldier in the war of 1812.

Dr. Saunders describes it this way:

"The Dalhousie University mace has been designed to relate symbolically as the eye ascends its length the proud maritime tradition of the sea-girt provinces and the historical heritage of the university which served them. It is carved in oak and enriched with silver and enamel."

Adorned With Fish

The lower end, or button, is adorned with four silver fish in recognition of the Maritimes' economy staple. Above, a sea nymph holds a conch shell through which she is calling across the waves to the setting sun in appreciation of the urge that brought navigators to this land.

The grooved shaft represents the roots put down by early settlers and the tall trees they found. The mace head's lower part bears a circlet of maple leafs the national emblem, and mayflowers symbolizing the new province and the flowering of new civilization.

The main section shows four medieval scholars facing the main compass points, representing the university faculties and their old world heritage.

Each figure is fronted by a silver enamelled shield emblazoned with either the arms of the university or the province. Alternating with the figures are the rose thistle, shamrock and Fleur-de-Lys.

The top of the mace bears a five-rayed Scottish Earl's coronet in recognition of the founder. Atop is a silver celtic cross surrounded by the university motto "Ora Et Labora."

V.O.N. NEWS

The minute that Helen entered the house she knew something was wrong. And it was as she had feared. Her aged mother had fallen and was lying helplessly on the couch waiting until someone would come.

Mother had insisted on living her own life in her own home. That had been all right as far as it went, with Helen busy with her own family and home. But now she insisted that mother be brought over to her place which was far from peaceful.

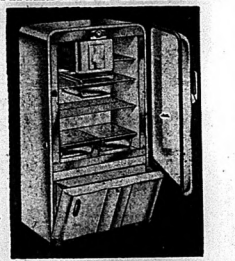
"You needn't worry in the least," she told her mother, "I've told you many times how I've relied upon the V.O.N. and they will see us through, mark my word.

But her mother refused to be mollified. She fretted and worried over the extra care she would exact from an over-busy household.

But gradually she did become quite convinced that Helen was right about the service the V.O.N. gave. Each day or so, a V.O.N. called. She taught Helen how to turn her in bed, how to make the bed and slip fresh sheets on the bed without disturbing her, how to make refreshing fruit drinks, and how to bandage the wound on her arm which she received when she fell, and dress it, and how to keep sterilized bandages on hand. But that which gave her most comfort was the back-rest improvised from Helen's bakeboard.

"I would never have believed it," she confessed.

"Yes," Helen affirmed. "Thanks to V.O.N. nursing care in the home can be carried on with efficiency and decided ease, that otherwise would have been impossible."



You, too, may have the services of the V.O.N. here in Belleville which is fortunate in having a centre. The number is 1125, and you are welcome to call any time to meet any need.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Although only four simple ingredients, flour, salt, fat and water, go into making pie crust, the combination spells disaster entirely too often.

Each of the four ingredients can cause difficulties. Here are some of the main sources of trouble.

The flour. Use all-purpose flour, not cake flour, if you want your dough to hold together. If you like the tenderness of cake flour, you may use 1-2 cup to every 1 1-2 cups of all-purpose flour, but no more.

The salt. Absence of salt will make a crust tasteless and flat. Sift it with the flour or dissolve it in the water so that it is distributed evenly.

The fat. Vegetable shortening, at room temperature, will give a flakier crust than butter. Lard makes the crust crumbly but is too rich if used in the same quantities as vegetable shortening. Whatever shortening you select should not be cold and hard at the time it is used. Have it at room temperature. This makes for easier handling and rolling.

The water. Add the water or rather sprinkle the water over other ingredients a small amount at a time. Don't pour it in. As soon as a small batch of dough holds together, put it aside and sprinkle water over the balance of the mixture.

Cherries, according to a foltale, were supposed to have brought good cheer to those who ate them. Don't spoil the effect with a tough pie crust.

Sour Cherry Pie, One 9-inch Pie

Bring to a boil 1-3 cup of cherry juice from canned sour pitted cherries. Remove from flame. Mix 4 tablespoons flour with 1 cup granulated sugar. Pour hot juice over sugar mixture. Stir well. Return to flame. Cook until thick over a low flame. Remove from flame and pour juice over 3 cups drained sour pitted cherries. Mix well. Set aside.

Measure 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour. Combine with 1 teaspoon salt. Sift again. Cut in 2-3 cup vegetable shortening until pieces of shortening are size of large peas. Use a pastry blender or two knives to cut shortening. Gradually add 4 to 7 tablespoons cold water, stirring with a fork until dough holds together. Divide dough in half. Handle dough lightly. Roll out to fit bottom and top of pie plate. Fit bottom crust into pie plate.

Add cherries. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Fit top crust over pie. Fasten top crust under lower crust around rim. Press rim with tines of a fork. Pierce dough with fork to permit escaping steam.

Bake at 425 degrees 40-50 minutes or until well browned.

Woman Trapper, 80, Winds up Season, May be Her Last

Timmins, May 30. (CP)—Maggie Leclaire, past 80, has just ended another season of trapping in the Northern Ontario bush—and she says it may be her last.

She and her husband found the going heavy on the trails and rivers. Maggie, known in this district as "Maggie Indian," says the years are catching up with her and she is thinking about giving up trapping unless she can get a trapline close to her Timmins home.

The couple trapped in the Byrar's Lake area, northwest of here, from February until last week. Deep snow and high water in the rivers made the return trip difficult. The delays caused the couple's food to run short and after May 19 the Leclaires ate only one meal a day.

Violent Deaths in U.S. Holiday Close to 400

Chicago, May 30 — (CP) — Violent deaths edged close to the 400 mark as the four-day Memorial Day weekend reached its peak. With today's count yet to come, the accidental deaths were expected to surpass last year's 416 mark. The total Day weekend toll of 413.

Traffic was the biggest killer. Mishaps on the highway killed 268 persons. Fifty-five persons lost their lives by drowning as millions flocked to lakes and resorts in the season's biggest outpouring. Another 36 were killed in miscellaneous accidents—fires, airplane crashes, explosions, falls and other mishaps.

The traffic toll was expected to exceed the total of 290 predicted by the National Safety Council for the four-day period. The count started at 6 p. m. local time Friday and will end at midnight tonight.

The council said some 30,000,000 cars would be on the highways. Millions will be on the highways today and tonight in the homeward rush.

At Detroit a boy and an eight-month-old baby died and a young mother was critically burned in an explosion that leveled a brick home Monday night.

Dead were Stanley Gatsy, Jr., 8, and his neice, Laura Ann Anders, eight months. The baby's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Anders, was near death in hospital.

Mrs. Anders, found 50 yards from the home, told police she had gone to a basement recreation room to make coffee, and had just lighted a small gas stove when the explosion occurred.

'Scots' Handshake Ends Clan Feud Of 258 Years

Inveraray, Argyll, Scotland, May 30—(Reuters)—A handshake between a kilted highland chieftain and an ardent Scot is reported to have ended a 258-year-old clan feud.

Since the Campbells treacherously fell upon their hitherto-friendly enemies, the MacDonalds, in the midnight massacre of Glencoe in 1692, there has been hate between the clans.

But Saturday night the Duke of Argyll, chief of clan Campbell, held out the hand of friendship to 72-year-old John MacDonald, direct descendant of the massacred branch of the clan, at the Duke's ancient castle here.

The rift was healed—later MacDonald said—"The Duke is a fine fellow."

The present-day MacDonalds and the highland chief met at the reunion of the 1-415th war veterans of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. Later the Duke entertained 200 veterans, including MacDonald, to dinner at the castle.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK

SERVICE UNITS IN FLOOD AREA

Winnipeg, May 30 (CP)—Flood Commander Brig. R. A. Morton Mon. announced a schedule for the reduction of service units engaged in flood-control work.

During the Red River flood crisis, some 5,000 army, navy and air force personnel, including reserve forces, were in action. The air force now has been reduced to about 2,000.

RCAF to Perform Full Ceremonial Trooping of Color

Ottawa, May 30—(CP)—For the first time in its history the R.C.A.F. will perform the full ceremonial trooping of the color on June 5—the King's birthday.

Another first will be the presentation by Canada's Governor-General of colors for use by the R.C.A.F. on ceremonial occasions. More than 400 air force personnel will take part in the trooping, to be held on Parliament Hill.

Two pennants, both approved by the King, will be presented—a King's color and an R.C.A.F. color. Both will be carried by a color guard.

The King's color is a square Union Jack edged on three sides by a wide tasselled fringe of red and gold. In the centre of the St. George's Cross are two circles of gold, one within the other. Between these are the words "Royal Canadian Air Force". Within the inner circle is the royal cipher in gold. The central devices are surmounted by the Imperial Crown, and the staff carries at its head a golden crown on which stands a lion.

A Square Flag

The R.C.A.F. color is a square flag of azure hue, tasselled on the edges in blue and gold. In the centre is embroidered the air force badge and in each of the four corners is a gold maple leaf.

Taking part in the ceremony will be a band composed of the Central Band from Ottawa and the Training Command Band from Toronto, an escort squadron of 225, a color party of 10 and boundary guards.

The colors will be retained at air force headquarters for ceremonial occasions within the Ottawa area. Duplicate sets will be presented to Training Command headquarters, Trenton, and to Northwest Air Command headquarters, Edmonton.

Both the King's color and the R.C.A.F. color will be carried on such occasions as the King's birthday, Air Force Day and Battle of Britain Sunday.

On occasions such as inspections of units by the chief of air staff or an air officer commanding, the R.C.A.F. color only will be carried.

They weren't going any farther, they explained. The trip had been on a bet, and Windsor was chosen because "it was just far away".

The old car, its black paint still shiny, made the 750-mile trip from Tupelo with no trouble. It hit a top speed of 30 miles an hour and gasoline averaged out at 31 miles a gallon.

Commons Begins Prorogation Drive Next Thursday

Ottawa, May 30—(CP)— The Commons decided Monday to begin a prorogation drive Thursday.

The opposition unsuccessfully sought to delay start of the drive for a week. Many members hope parliament will finish work June 30.

Members voted 104 to 30 against a C.C.F. motion that would have delayed a three-sittings-a-day schedule until June 8. They adopted "on division"—without a formal vote—a government motion setting next Thursday, June 1, as the date for the start of the prorogation drive.

As a result members will sit from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. five days a week. They now sit from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. and 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. On Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. On Wednesdays they sit from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

The Social Credit and Progressive Conservative parties split on the vote. Most of the Progressive Conservatives and Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—MacLeod) sided with the C.C.F. Other Social Crediters and Karl Homuth (PC—Waterloo South), Joseph Harris (PC—Dunnville), Fred G. Sanford (PC — Hastings-Peterborough) and George Tustin (PC—Prince Edward-Lennox) voted with the government.

drunken drivers killed five times as many persons as did murderers.

The minimum sentence for drunken driving was seven days and many of those accused were acquitted because it was difficult for the crown to establish guilt. He urged that at least the "breath test" be inaugurated by Canada to facilitate the conviction of the guilty.

P.M. Reports on Visits

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said he hoped that "serious consideration will be given to an amendment to the criminal code that will make the slaughter on a scale that is common with war casualties such a crime that it could really be dealt with."

The day brought these other developments:

1. Prime Minister St. Laurent, reporting on recent visits to fire-ravaged Rimouski and Cabano, Que., said an estimated 2,000 persons were left homeless by the fires. Federal aid will be extended when extent of the damage has been determined.

2. Members, who now sit twice a day, adopted a government motion calling for evening sittings to begin Thursday. By a vote of 104 to 30, they defeated a C.C.F. motion that would have delayed the start of the morning sittings until June 5.

3. In another division, members voted 93 to 33 against a Progressive Conservative motion for production of depositions and evidence taken before the Income tax appeal board members in an appellant identified as "Mr. C" and the present minister. The case involved an unidentified judge who appealed against assessment of Income tax on $1,000 paid him as a special commissioner.

4. Three international conventions were ratified and third and final reading was given to bills amending the customs act, the tariff board act and the national parks act.

Wants Abolition of Clause

In the criminal code debate, Mr. Diefenbaker also suggested abolition of provisions under which a person who could not pay a fine was sent to jail. For those who were poor, this meant that a fine was a "passport to prison." The time had come for Canada to do away with that provision. As an alternative, he proposed that a system of "instalment" payment of fines be established.

He chided Mr. Garson for bringing in minor amendments when major changes were needed.

One of the amendments repealed a section which prohibited firearms and bows in the neighborhood of public works. Mr. Garson said the section was obsolete and had not been used since 1938. Other sections of the code had been found adequate to deal with the maintenance of peace in camps at public works projects.

Mr. Drew expressed belief that the section should not be repealed. The section could deal with one or two men could put hundreds or thousands of people out of work simply by sabotage of great producing enterprises. The sabotage of electrical plants would be one of the first acts of those who would seek to destroy the economy of the country.

While there has been no attempt so far in Canada during the last war, Canada's only possible enemy in another war now had a highly organized fifth column in this country.

Mr. Garson replied that the section had nothing to do with sabotage.

The way of dealing with sabotage comes under an entirely different category," he said, "and on the proper occasion we shall be glad to go in great detail into the question of the adequacy of the provisions not available to prevent sabotage," Mr. Gar

Registration Expensive

Another amendment would do away with provisions requiring the registration of all revolvers and pistols every five years. Mr. Garson said the R.C.M.P. had found the registration was expensive, involved a great deal of work and accomplished little. It now was possible to keep track of revolvers and pistols through permits persons were obliged to obtain for buying, selling, owning or carrying a weapon.

Dr. W. G. Blair (PC-Lanark) protested against a change that would give the justice of peace authority to remand an accused 30 days for a sanity check. He said the justice should not have the authority to make such a demand unless competent medical men were called to testify on the condition of the accused.

Mr. Garson promised to give overnight consideration to the section.

One of the international conventions ratified dealt with labor and Labor Minister Mitchell explained that it called on each member country to maintain a free employment service.

No Legislation Required

Adopted by the International Labor Organization in 1948, the convention was aimed at securing the best possible organization of the labor market so that employees could obtain suitable employment and employers suitable workers. In legislation would be required to make the convention effective in Canada.

A second convention concerned the north west Atlantic fisheries. J. Watson MacNaught, parliamentary assistant to Fisheries Minister Mayhew said the convention would provide for scientific investigation and protection of fisheries resources in the northwest Atlantic area.

The third convention provided for an indefinite continuation of the reciprocal privileges extended to halibut fishing vessels on the Pacific coasts of Canada and United States. Previously the privileges were accorded on an annual basis.

Resources Minister Winters said the changes in the National Parks Act would allow the government to levy taxes on residents in the parks to cover the cost of services provided by provincial governments and to pay for such things as water-works, garbage collection and the like.

tion in business can be curbed by law, followed a recommendation by the five-man board of control that Alderman Allen's motion be thrown out.

The board took the stand that education rather than legislation is the way to stamp out discrimination. The alderman, defending his own motion, declared that tolerance could be achieved by a combination of legislation and education.

Mayor Approves By-Law

Mayor Hiram McCallum, who came in at the end of the discussion, urged that the clause be adopted. He told council it had to read the motion or be subject to widespread criticism.

The anti-discrimination clause will apply to persons operating public garages, barber shops, and hairdressing establishments; pro-fit-making lending libraries, pet shops, stores selling milk or cream and swimming pools or baths run for profit. It may also apply to pawnshops and masseurs.

Toronto's anti-discrimination several years ago added a no-discrimination rider to many of the licences it was empowered to grant.

In Monday night's debate Alderman Roy Belyea said that business men were concerned about discrimination yet didn't want to be classed as pious hypocrites.

bushel for No. 1 northern. Canada got $2 a bushel from the U.K. in the 1949-50 year.

And instead of obtaining a record sale of the 140,000,000-bushel contract Canada obtained from the U.K. in 1946-49, it will mean selling competitively wherever it can amount the U.K. will want to buy during the crop year.

Renew Bacon, Cheese, Contracts

So far, she has indicated to Canada only that she will need between 130,000,000 and 120,000,000 bushels of wheat during the 1950-51 period from the dollar-area countries, which includes the United States as well as Canada.

Whether the U.K. will renew the bacon and cheese contracts when they terminate next December is questionable.

Meanwhile, as the 1950-51 wheat picture now shapes up, Canada has but one certainty—she will sell 12,000,000 bushels of wheat to the U.K. at the 1949 price of $2 a bushel.

This agreement was reached when Britain found herself pressed for funds. The decision was made to hold back 12,000,000 bushels of wheat from deliveries during the 1949-50 crop year and allow the U.K. to use the funds to buy Canadian bacon, salmon and lumber.

The U.K., in turn, promised to take delivery of the 12,000,000 bushels during the 1950-51 crop year at the 1949 price.

Three Years to Run

All other wheat that she buys from Canada will fall within the price range of the International Wheat Pact, the multilateral agreement which developed mostly through Canada's strenuous efforts.

Under the terms of that pact, some 40-odd nations had agreed to buy and five exporting nations have agreed to sell about 800,000,000 bushels of wheat each year. The four-year pact has another three years to run.

Canada for the next crop year has received a quota to supply more than 210,000,000 bushels—which it is indicated will be about all the wheat she will have available for export.

Canadian farmers already have been told they will get an initial payment of $1.40 per bushel for wheat delivered during the next marketing year. Farmers with an initial payment of $1.75 during the 1949-50 crop year.

Founder of Sect Is Charged With Bribery, Usury

Tokyo, May 30 (Reuters — Nokichi Okada, founder of a popular post-war religious sect, was arrested Mon. and charged with bribery, tax evasion and usury.

The 67-year-old leader of the World Messiah Church, alleged to have amassed a fortune of 5,000,000,000 yen ($14,000,000) since 1947, was arrested after police questioned an Atami city council clerk on bribery charges.

Okada has ordained 300,000 preachers and converted 300,000 followers for his sect which was originally called the New Kannon (Goddess of Mercy) sect. The sect's name has been changed six times—the last time it ran into unfavorable newspaper publicity or tax evasion charges.

Followers from all parts of Japan gathered at the sect's headquarters in Atami, popular seaside resort 100 miles west of Tokyo. They sought medical cures from the "spiritual wave" which they believed emanated from the unseen light of Kannon enshrined in the bowel of High Priest Okada.

Regarded as a genius in organizing and publicity work, Okada was trained in the now-defunct "Omoto Kyo," a popular pre-war religious sect suppressed by the government in 1935 for disrespect to the emperor. Okada then founded the "Dai Nippon Kannon" sect. His latest venture boomed with the promulgation of Japan's new constitution, which guarantees freedom of religion.

Authority to Deal With Fifth Column

Ottawa, May 30 — (CP) — The Defence Department's chief of staff said Tuesday that the prospect of fifth column activity in Canada in another war figured "very prominently" in the drafting of Canada's new unified code of military law.

Brig. W. J. Lawson, Judge Advocate General, told the defence committee of the Commons he is satisfied the new legislation will be armed with "sufficient authority" to handle any fifth column activity that arose.

The subject was raised by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes (PC — Nanaimo) as the committee moved through clauses dealing with arrest and substitute military law. Part of a bulky bill to consolidate and modernize military legislation.

Gen. Pearkes said the prospect of a fifth column was something new for Canada and he wanted assurance that the new code would provide for that contingency.

Philadelphia Phillies Open Important First-Place Series With Brooklyn Dodgers Today

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If anybody were to predict a couple of months ago that Philadelphia Phils' would come into Brooklyn today as the National League leaders, he'd probably be regarded as nothing more than a Philly fanatic.

But here it is May 30, Memorial Day in the United States, and these fightin' Phills are sitting on the roof of the standings, enjoying a half-game margin on the defending champion Dodgers.

The amazing part of the Phillies' showing is that they've done it with a minimum of help from Russ Meyer and Ken Heintzelman, the two pitching mainstays of 1949's third-place outfit.

Responsible for the Phil's success are a pair of 32-year-old bonus players — Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons — who won six games while losing only two. Roberts won 12 games all last season while Simmons copped only four.

The Phills now boast a mark of 22-13. They have the best road record of any big league circuit with 12 victories against seven losses. The Dodgers have a 9-9 road rating.

Also threatening are St. Louis Cardinals who can climb on the backs of the leaders with a twin triumph in Pittsburgh. The Cards trail the Phillies by 1½ games. Rounding out the National League schedule, fourth-place Boston, three games off the pace, meets the seventh-place Giants at Braves Field.

In the American League the leadship-by-one can climb on the backs of the leaders with a twin triumph in Pittsburgh. The Cards trail the Phillies by 1½ games. Rounding out the National League schedule, fourth-place Boston, three games off the pace, meets the seventh-place Giants at Braves Field.

In the American League the leadship-by-one Red Sox are trying to win sufficiently on the road to keep them from the Yankees' clutches. As the Red Sox prepared to face the front-running Yankees in New York in a doubleheader, Joe McCarthy's men showed only a 10-10 road record.

In Third Place

The Red Sox are in third place, three lengths behind the Yanks, because they're still almost unbeatable at home. They have won 14 of 20 at Fenway Park.

The second place Detroit Tigers are the best road club in the American League so far this season. While playing under cold, wet ball at home (7-8), the Bengals have won 14 of 17 away from home. The Yankees, boasting a two-game bulge on the Tigers, have a 12-7 mark on the road and a 10-9 record at home.

Detroit plays host to the 4th-place Chicago White Sox. The Tribe, three games over the .500 mark, are 8½ games off the pace.

In other American League doubleheaders, Buster Harris' defending Washington Senators meet the Athletics in Philadelphia while Cleveland's Indians are host to Chicago White Sox.

In the only big league game played Monday, Chicago White Sox came up with six runs in the last two innings of a game from behind and outlast St. Louis Browns 13-8. Phil Masi, veteran White Sox catcher, drove in five runs with a single and triple.

Drivers May Set New Record At Indianapolis

Indianapolis, May 30 — (AP) — Prospects of hub-to-hub competition and a record for the 500-mile Memorial Day automobile race pulled a mammoth crowd through the Indianapolis Motor Speedway's 11 gates today.

Officials said the track and facilities set up to handle more than 175,000 spectators. Starting time for the race was 9:30 EDT.

The fastest field in the 34 running—the 33 starters and two spares capable of finishing the 200 - lap contest in four hours or less is a speed of 50 miles an hour. It depended on the weather — with the possibility of rain — and whether the race was slowed by bad weather.

Bill Holland of Reading, Pa., missed the four - hour mark last year by less than 20 minutes in setting the record-winning average of 116.377 miles an hour.

Holland and Mauri Rose of South Bend, Ind., who edged out Holland for first money in 1947 and 1948, were the only former winners in the 33-car field.

Jimmy Jackson, of Desert Hot Springs, Calif., had the only unorthodox racer in today's field, a six-cylinder diesel special, built as an experiment by the Cummins Engine Company of Columbus, Ind. The slowest car in the qualifications, it nevertheless showed more speed than can be used in the race and has proved its durability in more than 900 miles of test runs.

The rest of the cars were powered by four - cylinder engines for the 500-mile grind.

In time trials over a 10 - mile distance the field's over - all average was 131.045 miles an hour.

RISING TO NEW HEIGHTS - - By Alan Mayer

Foreigner May Win U.S. Open This Season

New York, May 30 — (AP) — It's been 30 years since a foreigner won the United States Open golf championship but Uncle Sam had better watch out for his silverware early next month.

Norman Von Nida, the little Australian with the giant - sized golf game, promises to be tough when they tee off at Ardmore, Pa., June 8.

The gentleman from Sydney, Australia, sounded a warning when he outshot a top drawer of the country's professionals in sectional qualifying trials at Fort Worth, Tex.

He fashioned rounds of 68-67-138 over a 7,035-yard, par - 70 layout for one of the hottest rounds of the day.

Von Nida scored his greatest successes in Britain where he was the leading money winner in 1947 and winner of the British Varsity Open with an average of 71.25 strokes for 52 rounds.

The Ted Ray of Britain was the last foreign victory in the open in 1920.

Von Nida's rounds weren't the best of the more than 1,000 postded Monday across the country but they certainly carried the greatest impact.

Other Texas professionals set the qualifying pace at Midland, Tex., with seven-under-par 133s. Wally Harden of El Paso shot 66-67, Elroy Martt of Houston turned in 66-67.

Thirty-two players were exempt from qualifying, including defending champion Cary Middlecoff and Jimmy Demaret, who won the British amateur Saturday. The field will number 165.

Watertown Files Formal Protest Against Ottawa

Watertown, N.Y., May 30 (CP) —Watertown Athletics filed a formal protest Sunday charging that Ottawa Nationals violated the border league rule concerning use of players, it was learned Monday.

The complaint was filed with J. G. Ward of Ogdensburg, N.Y., Border League president, following Sunday's game when the Nationals defeated Athletics 8-5.

The Athletics charge the Nationals had more than eight veterans on their squad.

Ward told Athletics officials that under a National Association interpretation, the eight-veteran rule was not effective until after the league "cut-down date," June 15.

Athletics officials have appealed to Judge George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball, asking for an interpretation on the rule from his office.

The rule limiting the number of veterans to eight on each club the Athletics officials claim, is effective from the start of the regular league season.

N.Y. Psychologist Cuts Connections With St. Louis

(By The Canadian Press)

Dr. David F. Tracy, New York psychologist, said Monday at St. Louis he is severing his connection with St. Louis Browns.

Dr. Tracy was hired by the American League ball club last spring to boost the players' confidence and morals through the application of psychology. He was engaged after the Browns finished seventh last year. Today they are in last place.

Dr. Tracy blamed "lack of cooperation from the management" for his failure to help the club.

"It has been my experience during the last three months that I can do much for a ball club, and I would like to join another club" Dr. Tracy told reporters. "But I can accept a position only under the circumstances that I get better co-operation from the management."

Dr. Tracy said the club's officials would not let him speak to the players before a game "at any time after the start of the season." He believed that through these pre-game talks he could inspire each player to do his best and foster a winning spirit into the team as a whole.

Major League hockey's two Canadian clubs, Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens, will play a return baseball game at Toronto Sunday June 11 when the entire gate receipts to go to the Hockey Benefit Fund Inc.

Howie Meeker, Leaf's playing manager, said Monday his club had challenged Canadiens to a return game and Frank Selke, boss of the Habitants, quickly accepted, Canadiens edged Leafs 12-12 in a benefit game Sunday. The contest at Montreal attracted more than 12,000 spectators and raised more than $6,000 for the victims of a $20,000,000 fire at Rimouski, Que.

The return game will be played at Maple Leaf Stadium, home of the Maple Leafs of the International Baseball League, said Meeker. The stadium has been modified for the occasion.

Ted (the Slasher) Atkinson Monday staged a spectacular one-man ridicule show at New York's Belmont Park, booting home five straight winners before he was beaten by a head in the seventh race.

A bettor, parlaying a $2 wager on the 34-year-old Toronto jockey in the five races, would have cleaned up $31.61, plus a few pennies.

Counting his victory on Ethel Terry, his last mount Saturday, the stirring Monday gave Atkinson a stretch of six straight winners.

Race-goers recalled a similar two-day feat by Atkinson at Aqueduct in 1944. Atkinson rode winners in the last two races Sept. 15 and the first five the next day for a streak of seven.

At Philadelphia the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission said again Monday that it no longer recognizes Jake Lamotta as middleweight champion, and that the winner of the June 5 Day (Sugar) Robinson-Robert Villemain bout will take over the title.

The state commission has asked the National Boxing Commission to strip Lamotta of his crown. The N.B.A. rejected the idea.

Meanwhile, it announced Sunday it will recognize Lamotta's June 28 fight against Rocky Graziano as a title match, but insisted that the winner will defend the championship again—within 90 days—against the victor of the Robinson-Villemain bout.

Robinson currently is king of the welterweights.

Pennsylvania is a member of the N.B.A., but it has refused to abide by the parent association decision on the Lamotta issue.

At Denver Colo., plans were completed Monday to purchase the Minneapolis United States Hockey League franchise to Denver next season, Bill F. Nicholson said.

Nicholson, Charles Boettcher and Eddie Mikkelsen head a Denver group which will own the team jointly with Lyle Wright—president and major stockholder of the Millers—George M. Drake and George Heller.

Omaha, Tulsa, Kansas City, St. Paul and Milwaukee along with Denver, will make up the league for the 1950-51 season.

Arthur King, British lightweight champion from Toronto, easily outpointed Georgie Dunn of Hartford, Conn., in a 10-round fight Monday at Baltimore.

King weighed 137 pounds to Dunn's 136.

Art Halliwell, president of the Ulster United Soccer team in the National League has resigned, it was announced at Toronto Monday. No reason for his resignation was given and a successor has not yet been named.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 30 (AP) — George Case, the former Washington Senators star, can be forgiven if he seems slightly bewildered since his Rutgers baseball team was tapped for the United States college world series.

George never has coached college baseball or even seen a college game before he was persuaded to take the Rutgers job when Chuck Ward quit early in the spring. "Naturally it was a change from pro baseball—the boys aren't expected to live baseball 24 hours a day," George comments. "But I think the real secret of our success is that the Rutgers boys play to win. That might sound strange, but some of the teams we've met just didn't seem to have the spark that makes a team battle all the way." . . . Heck, who'd have a chance to battle against a team that has six .300 hitters — and good pitching to boot?

One-Minute Sports Page:

The U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce has recorded a series of five-minute interviews with a dozen top touring golf pros to help its junior golf program . . . European boxing authorities propose international eliminations to fill vacant titles with the New York State and N.B.A. nominees meeting in the first round. Wonder who'd decide the arguments about percentages?

BIG 'UN VERSUS LITTLE 'UN

Looks like a Goliath and David show for the wrestling faithful coms Friday. According to Manager Walter Gerow, the "community cheer" from Yukon Erie, he of the mammoth torso will pit his strength against the dynamite spitfire of Sandy Villmer, the mighty atom of rassledom. Villmer has made plenty of friends here since his sensational debut at Ski-High Lee and the mauling he received from Strangler Bob Wagner.

The comparative pint-sized Villmer has no lack of intestinal fortitude. The bigger they are, the harder they fall, he thinks, and he takes a keen delight in rattling "number" and watching the behemoths crash to earth.

And look who's here in the semi-final. None other than the fighting Marine from Lindsay, Tear Morgan. Tear is making his first appearance in Belleville in three years and will no doubt get a fine reception from his following here. Morgan tangles with Ray McClarity, Al Kerner, the villain-ous preliminary boy meets Billy Stack the wrestling pride of Bowmanville in the curtain-raiser.

The Navy is throwing a boxing binge in the Armories next Saturday night and the lads in blue inform us that a top-flight card has been arranged. Special invitations have been issued to the top brass of all services and the card itself looks to this corner like a good one. Mazie Maher, 125-pound Jewish leather – pusher from the Oakwood Athletic Club in Toronto (stc Vic Bagnato) is featured in the main bout against clever Jimmy Wise, reputed to be one of the best in his class. Males, it says here, is a picture fighter, very fast and never stops throwing punches. Wise who holds a split decision over Don Spears, Maritime featherweight champion, is a "cool and calm" fighter. The bout should be a thriller.

Waterloo Tigers Beaten Three Times in Row

(By The Canadian Press)

It was blue Monday for Waterloo Tigers.

Tigers, currently leading the Intercounty Baseball League, dropped their third straight to Stratford Nationals, by a 5-1 score.

In other Intercounty action Monday, Guelph Maple Leafs snapped a seven-game losing streak, downing London Majors 5-1, and Brantford Red Sox trimmed the crippled St. Thomas Legionnaires 8-1.

"Lefty" Allen was the hero in Stratford's win, holding the potent Tigers to seven scattered hits. He was backed by an 11-hit attack, led by Hughie McGillivray, Irish Micklemmens and Gord McGraw with two safeties apiece.

The game was featured by two fielding gems in the sixth inning, one by each team.

In the top half, George Boniface, Stratford second-baseman made a one-hand stab of Manny McIntyre's liner and tossed to Howie Carman who doubled Alex Kvasnack off second.

Bells Two Homers

In the bottom half, McIntyre nailed Carman's fly and whipped the ball to "Red" Knox at first, doubling Mike Christopher.

At St. Thomas, Brantford's Tommy McGrattan personally conducted the Red Sox to their win, belting out two homers, a double and single, driving in five runs. Billy Gibbs restricted Legion to five hits, including a home run by Bobby Groat, and three others by Bill McCarthy.

Husky Marty Philp tossed a five-hitter at London as Guelph's victory drought came to an end. Philp struck out 10, walked none, and smacked out a run-scoring single in his own cause.

Stan Slack went the route for Majors giving up seven hits, including two bingles each to Nick Ciani and Jeff Shelton. He was hampered by spells of wildness.

In Wednesday's Intercounty scheduled games, Waterloo plays host to Kitchener, Stratford plays at Guelph, Galt at Brantford, and St. Thomas at London.

PETES WHIPPED 5-1

Toronto, May 30 (CP)— New Toronto Simpson Fords took over first place in the Viaduct Baseball League Monday night by whipping Peterborough Marines 5-1.

The Marines outhit New Toronto 11-10, but Rene Bouchard was effective in the clutches, while six Peterborough errors helped Fords win their sixth game in seven starts. Peterborough has two losses against four victories.

Rochester Wings Win 10 Straight By Beating Leafs

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal Royals must rate with the most spirited clubs in the International League.

After losing four straight games, and the league lead, to Rochester, the Royals bounced back Monday night to whip Buffalo 6-4. They failed to pick up any ground on Rochester, however, as the Red Wings blanked Toronto 3-0. As a result, Rochester, with a red-hot, 10-game winning streak, still tops Montreal by 1½ games.

At Buffalo, the Royals capitalized on rookie Lynn Lovenguths' wildness for four runs in the 3rd inning, and the ball game.

Lovenguth issued three walks to load the bases and Lou Welaj capped the uprising with a three run triple. Al Epperly, in relief, picked up his fifth victory.

Bill Reeder hurled five - hit ball against Toronto. The Rochester righthander walked three and struck out four. Hal Rice countered one of the Royals' tallies with a homer in the first inning, his seventh.

The Springfield - Jersey City, Syracuse-Baltimore tilts were rained out.

You can always get an argument out of me as to how many tricks a hand is expected to produce. Also as to how these tricks should be shown to partner in the bidding.

If I have a count of five tricks and you have a count of four, we have a total of nine tricks in our pair. This count of nine in our partnership should produce a total of nine tricks.

Once we know this and we desire to contract for ten we know it is a gamble. Not that a gamble will never work. But the chances are against it resulting in a gain often enough.

My partner opened with a bid of one spade when I held this hand:

♠A 9 8 7 5 5
♥A Q 3
♣8 6 4

These bee-otiful spades in support of his bid pleased me. But they did not over-excite me. At least they did not excite me enough to start lying about how many tricks my hand contained.

My hand has a count of four tricks; three high cards and a short in diamonds. His opening of one promised at least five tricks. Until he showed more I can see a total of only nine in our pair.

Ten tricks are needed for game in spades. Until enough for game is seen there should be no jumps. So, my first response was two spades, a simple raise that showed only three of my four tricks.

You need not look at me in that tone of voice. If he has not another trick we have no game. With another he shows it with a raise to three. Then can I raise to four spades with my fourth trick.

"If I never see the back of my neck I'd try for a spade game with your hand" my partner grumbled. I went to bed and dummy hand went down on the table at a contract of two spades. He was a fine one to talk about tricks. But he growled: "Even if we go down one I wanna be in game with such support." To my grumbled remark for yourself John" he got mad.

Bombed in Blitz, Now a Victim Of Flood Waters

It's one thing to have your house flattened by a bomb, and another to have it inundated by a flood. But when both catastrophes happen to the same person, something more than mere courage is needed.

Mrs. Len Forbes, 49 Fermor Avenue, St. Vital, was bombed out in the London blitz. She came to Canada as a war bride, only to have her new home in Winnipeg swamped by the flood.

Yet she was able to tell a reporter her story with a smile. It was a defiant smile.

One evening before the flood had reached its peak, Mr. and Mrs. Forbes were visiting neighbors in the St. Vital area. Their conversation, their events and, as it turned out, the accustomed pattern of their lives were rudely interrupted by a telephone call.

Someone had phoned to tell them that their house was surrounded by water. When they had left the house, it was well above flood level and seemingly out of danger.

Mr. Forbes had to wade through deep water for a distance of a mile to reach their home, and when he arrived there he found the water was rising so swiftly that there could be no thought of removing any of their possessions. So he did the next best thing—he collected all the paint cans he could from a painter who lived a few doors away, and set the furniture up on these makeshift "stilts."

Now the Forbes and their daughter, Gail, age 16 months, are living in one of the cottages at Winnipeg Beach. Not until the flood waters recede will they know whether Mr. Forbes' last minute efforts to save their furniture succeeded.

The Manitoba Flood Relief Fund has been created to help the Forbes and other families like them. Its goal is $10,000,000.

Contributions may be addressed directly to the Fund in Winnipeg or paid into any bank in Canada.

Energetic Club Stages Rally To Tie Crawfords

In the free-wheeling opener of the B section of the Commercial Softball League at the Alemite Field last evening Energetic Club staged a determined rally in the last two innings scoring nine runs to give them a 15-13 edge with Crawford Metals.

It was the spirited but loosely-played contest the lead swayed back and forth in the early innings with Crawford Metals gradually outdistancing their opponents only to be overhauled themselves by a six-run ninth inning.

Energetic Club pushed over one run in the bottom of the first inning to open the scoring. Crawford's counted two in their end of the second and added a third in the fourth inning, and two more in the fifth.

Energetic Club kept hammering away at the offerings of Davis and counted one run in the fourth and three in the fifth to tie the ball game at 5-5 in the fifth.

Crawford's came up with four runs in the sixth on three singles, two errors and a walk. They ran in three more in the seventh on an error, two walks, a single and wound up their scoring in the eighth with two more runs on four walks and a single.

Energetic Fights Back

Energetic fought back with one run in the seventh and then in the eighth began their marathon rally. Two singles, a double, and two errors produced six counters in the eighth while two singles, three doubles, two errors and a walk went for six runs in the ninth and the tie.

Dermott led all the way on the hill for Crawford's walking nine, striking out eight and giving up 15 hits for fifteen runs. Middleton toiled eight innings for Energetic Club giving up five walks, striking out six, and being tagged for 13 hits. Relief pitcher Hitchon worked the eighth inning for Energetic Club walking one batter, giving up one hit but three runs.

Spiegel, with three for five led the Crawford sluggers while Stickle with a homer, a double and a single to his credit was the best for Energetic Club.

Prevent Infiltration Of Communism

Granby, Que., May 29 (CP) — Four hundred delegates representing 63,000 Knights of Columbus in Quebec, attending the order's 51st annual convention here during the weekend, adopted a resolution urging federal authorities to survey carefully all commerce with countries behind the iron curtain.

Czechoslovakia especially, where clergymen and politicians were being persecuted, was named as a country which should be watched by Canadian authorities in order to prevent infiltration of communism into Canada.

LICENCE SHOPS

Toronto, May 30—(CP)—City council Monday night authorized the police commission to license shoe repair and shoe shine shops in an effort to prevent them from being used as fronts for gambling.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, May 30 — (AP) — Kathryn Grayson is a girl with a mind of her own. Slated to smoke her first cigaret on the screen, she rebelled.

"I don't smoke," she said. "I never have, and I can see no reason why I should on the screen. The cigaret companies can sue me for this but they cannot convince me there is any good reason for smoking."

Though she's sticking to her no-smoking edict, she gets a change of pace in other ways in her new film, "Grounds for Marriage." It is the first time in years she hasn't been the subject of a big costume musical in color.

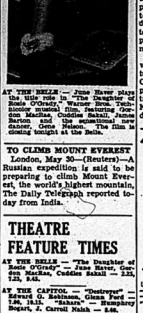
"I get a real chance to act," said Miss Grayson. "It's up to me to make the most of it."

Hope and Crosby

Bob Hope is really serious about wanting to escape his current air sponsor. Insiders report he may even stay off the radio next season if he doesn't get his freedom.

Bing Crosby's final show was a nifty. He brought back excerpts from his best programs of the year. This might be a good idea for other shows — presenting their best of the year as a kind of encore at the final curtain.

Capsule Review



"Sunset Boulevard" (Par) is a bitter tale of the other side of Hollywood — the fall from fame. It may shatter illusions about Hollywood life, but it remains a sharp and fascinating document. Gloria Swanson, as the faded movie queen, gives a startling performance and is virtually a cinch for the next Oscar. Bill Holden gives a polished job in a hard role. Erich Von Stroheim and Nancy Olson are also excellent. A standout film.

"Three Came Home"

Claudette Colbert and "Three Came Home" have been signed by the McCarthy Theatre as its next attraction. It opens Wednesday. Miss Colbert whose triumphs in comedy and romantic dramas are "more familiar, seems one of her infrequent straight dramatic parts in "Three Came Home."

The role is that of Agnes Newton Keith, writer, who with her family is captured by the Japanese invading North Borneo during the early days of the Pacific War. Interned in a Jap prison camp throughout the war, Mrs. Keith undergoes brutality and savagery that test a woman's mettle and try her courage. There is a happy ending in family reunion to Mrs. Keith's true, brave story.

With the long-celebrated star are to be seen a number of important players. Patric Knowles has the male lead. Also featured are two unusual playgoers now free in comedienne-singer Florence Desmond, who enters films in quite a different mood; and an old favorite on screen and Sesnue Hayakawa, who returns to the American screen after passing the war years in Japan to play a Japanese prison camp director, though he will be next to the present generation, to its parents he is a legend of international renown.

Absolute authenticity was the watchword in Twentieth Century-Fox's preparation of "Three Came Home," staged under the personal supervision of production head Darryl F. Zanuck. Mrs. Keith's autobiographical novel is dramatizing only the true events she endured under the Japs, tells of the most intimate adventures and personal experiences of war, as seen through the eyes of a woman. This is a very off-the-beaten-path approach for war films, and should throw new light on the whole subject.

The screenplay made of Mrs. Keith's book was written by Nunnally Johnson, who also served Twentieth Century-Fox as producer of "Three Cams Home." One of Hollywood's foremost directors, the man who made "Johnny Belinda" and "Road House," Jean Negulesco, directed "Three Came Home."

Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle:

Little Benny's Note Book

I was doing my homework on the living room floor, and pop was writing a letter at ma's desk, eyeing Benny.

Yes sir, I said, and pop said, Can you spare me a minute or 2 of your valuable time?

Sure, pop, what do you want me to do? I said, and he said, I want you to listen while I explain a few of the misterious werkings of nature. I particullity want to point out to you the restlessness of the whole grate universe of which this erth is just a little part. No doubt you have heard a rumor to the effect that the erth is constantly terning on its own axel . . . te . . . ous around the sun, he said.

Yes sir, it takes it a year to get all a ways around, I said, and pop said, I believe that's fast enough for all practical purposes. But that's not all. The sun itself is just as constantly corcling around in enuther large celestial body, and millions of other suns and moons and stars is between are ceaselessly wherling away in their own orbits without a moment's rest or an instant's hesitation. Are you giving me your individed attention he said.

Yes sir, I said, and pop said, in the midst of all this endless motion the gift of relaxation has been given to man, and when I say man, I include child While his mind is occupied in mitey matters of state or in odde and ends of elementary school werk, his body is capable of restful repose. And yet in the passed few minutes you have spun around on the seet of your pants, scratched, wriggled and squermed, given vocal imitations of various animals and berds, and beaten a tattoo on your teeth with the end of your pencil. Now, unless you want to retire to your own room, you will pipe down, he said.

Which I did, finishing my homework pritty quiet for me.

Mystery Blast On Airliner Is Under Probe

London, May 30 (Reuters) — Scotland Yard Mon. was investigating the mystery explosion aboard a British Viking airliner five weeks ago which ripped out part of the tail fuselage.

Britain's top crime-prevention organization, Superintendent William Rudkin to Paris during the weekend to follow up a new clue in the unsolved blast of April 13.

The plane, operated by British European Airways and carrying 27 passengers and a crew of five, limped back to Northolt Airport, London, after the explosion which occurred over the English Channel. No one was killed but the stewardess was injured.

A Scotland Yard spokesman declined to give any information as to the clue being followed up in France.

Says Teen-Age Rowdyism Quelled At Resort Area

30 (CP) —Police Chief Richard 30. (CP)— Police Chief Richard Mulholland said Monday that he and his officers put down a weekend outbreak of teen-age rowdyism and drunkenness in this resort area 25 miles north of Toronto.

He added that from now on, every car visiting the area during weekends will be searched for liquor.

He said 30 youths, members of two separate gangs, took part in the disturbance. Three were charged with having liquor in an illegal place.

The chief said that drinking in parked automobiles and mixed drinking parties in rented cabins Saturday night reached such proportions that "a truck could have been filled with confiscated liquor if more officers had been available for duty."

Commonwealth Journalists Sail For June Meeting

By E. S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Liverpool, May 30 (CP)— An imposing delegation of the Commonwealth's topflight newspapermen, many accompanied by their wives, sailed for Canada tonight on the liner Empress of Scotland. They were bound for the seventh Imperial Press Conference which opens at Ottawa in mid-June.

Altogether 64 delegates, representing far-flung units of the Commonwealth, are converging on the Dominion where the first of five-years meeting of the Imperial Conference was held in 1930.

The contingent of 52 which sailed tonight included representatives of all groups of the United Kingdom's press, news agencies and periodical publications. They will be joined by the leader of the United Kingdom delegation, Col. J. J. Astor, principal proprietor of the London Times and president of the Empire Press Union. His first British earlier to receive an honorary degree from McGill University at Montreal.

Six From India

Also in the party are Sir Keith Murdoch and W. H. Fisher, respective heads of the delegation from Australia and South Africa. India is represented by six delegates, while the others come from New Zealand, Singapore and Gibraltar.

The Hon. Mabel Strickland, proprietor of The Times of Malta, is the lone woman delegate.

Accompanying the party are Campbell Moodie, information officer of the Canadian government in London, and H. S. Johnson of the Colonial office.

Their arrival will be increased by delegations from the West Indies, the Bahamas, Bermuda and others who are flying to Vancouver from Australia, New Zealand and the Far East.

Prominent publishers from the United States will be invited to attend the conference.

Commonwealth, World Problems

After the opening ceremonies conference delegates will tackle a heavy agenda touching on Commonwealth and world problems with "Freedom of the Press" the principal theme of the discussion.

Commenting on this subject, the Empire Press Union annual report said:

"It may be that from these joint sessions there will emerge an agreed declaration on principles of press freedom by the English language press of the world that may prove to be a new and strong defence for what now is the distinguishing mark of any tolerable social system—liberty of expressions limited only by existing law."

Sir Harry Britain, founder and honorary life member of the Empire Press Union, expressed confidence that the deliberations of the conference would be as memorable and useful as any of its predecessors.

He Lets Customer Pay Whatever He Likes for Gas

Memphis, Tenn. May 30 — (AP)—Filling station keeper E. R. Bluff is fed up with a gasoline price war that he just lets the customer "pay what he wants to."

Most big stations here slashed prices five cents a gallon during the weekend—to 23.9 for regular and 25.9 for premium. Bluff said he opened up with a gasoline price war that he just lets the customer "pay what he likes to."

However, two customers drove off without paying when he told them, "If you like give it to you than argue about it."

FOUR STUDENTS SUSPENDED

Evanston, Ill., May 30 (AP)— Northwestern University Monday suspended four students after setting off a sulphur bomb in a rival fraternity house as a prank. Twenty-six Sigma Chi members and 10 firemen were taken to hospital because of the fumes. The suspension will remain in effect until September, 1951.

Unearth Old City, Find Observatory Used in 2000 B.C.

Cairo, May 30—(AP)— British archaeologists have discovered an observatory used 4,000 years ago in the ancient city of Nimrod, in Iraq, a Baghdad dispatch to the Arab News agency said today.

The dispatch said the archaeologists under Professor Max Mallowan of the University of London dug out interesting halls, aqueducts and the storehouse of a palace in the city, which was the capital of Assyria about 2,000 B.C.

The observatory consisted of three floors and a tower.

According to the report, the ancient Assyrians knew how to plot star movements and to calculate the days of the year.

Mallowan was quoted as saying the excavations at Nimrod would take 50 years to complete.

3,000-Mile Canoe Trip Over Fur Trail Planned

Vancouver, Wash., May 30 — (AP)— Rev. John W. Beard of Portland, Ore., left here Monday for Canada to retrace a 3,000-mile Hudson's Bay Company fur trail.

Beard, whose specialty is retracing historic routes of pioneer days, will be accompanied by Joe Kirkwood, 17, Hood River, Ore.

The journey will be by canoe, the same 17-foot cedar canoe that Beard earlier used to travel the length of the Columbia and Missouri Rivers, in another trip two years ago. Beard and his wife retraced by horseback the old Oregon Trail from Portland to Kansas.

The two will start this time in Jasper National Park in Western Alberta, travelling down the Saskatchewan River to The Pas, through Lake Winnipeg, Lake of the Woods, and Rainy Lake to Fort William.

Then they will canoe on the Ottawa River to Montreal and on to Riviere du Loup Quebec, the birthplace of John McLoughlin, Hudson's Bay Factor who was prominent in early Oregon history.

Beard, retired Presbyterian pastor, expects to complete the journey in late September.

Feathered Freak Wanders Over Golf Course

London, May 30—(CP)—Police found a queer bird wandering over a golf course in Hampstead Heath.

It was bigger than a duck, with yellow feathers, red wattles like a turkey, a neck like a goose, a red beak and a fan tail.

No one could identify the feathered freak, which was lodged at an animal hospital. Police entered in their lost property book: "one wild bird of doubtful ancestry and habits."

VIGIL TO PREVENT SUICIDE

Bombay, May 30 (Reuters) — Bombay police today kept strict vigil along the waterfront and ordered the Chowpatty gardens, normally open to the public, to forestall suicide attempts by students who failed in their matriculation examinations.

Results announced today registered 61 per cent failures out of 55,000 students who sat for the examination in the state.

A suicide wave of failed candidates followed the announcement of matriculation results last year.

CLAIMS HE WAS KIDNAPPED

Toronto, May 29 — (CP) — Police still are investigating the story of Fred Anscomb, 32-year-old Shelburne, Ont., farmer who said he was kidnapped and held captive near North Bay for 16 days.

Deputy Commissioners Arthur Moss of the Ontario Provincial Police said today the case has not been closed and that when evidence is uncovered an arrest will be made.

Anscomb turned up May 11 and told of being held by two strangers in a summer cottage.

PICTON New Presbyterian Church Holds 1st Anniversary

Picton—The first anniversary of the new St. Andrews' Presbyterian Church was observed on Sunday with capacity congregations present. Rev. P. B. Reid of Collingwood, pastor when the church was built, to replace one destroyed by fire, returned to be guest preacher.

Democracy is a product of Christianity, and Democracy cannot exist without the continuance of the power, of Christianity, which brought it into being, Mr. Reid declared.

A plaque in memory of Miss Isabel Kemp and her sister Mrs. J. C. Wilson, devoted workers in the church all their lives, was dedicated. Miss Georgina Bog, Picton, unveiled the plaque.

A stained glass window a gift of Harvey J. McFarland, was also dedicated.

Guest soloists were Miss Margaret Kerr, contralto and Ernest Adams, baritone, of Toronto. Miss Cecelia Folkard was at the organ.

Indian Boy's Death Laid to Ancient Tribal Custom

Toppenish, Wash., May 30— (AP)—The body of a 14-year-old Indian boy, cied in his grandmother's old lightgown, was found early today hanging in his grandfather's shed. His death was laid to an ancient tribal custom.

Deputy Sheriff Bud Burleson said Theodore Pearl apparently followed out the outmoded tribal law that a "good warrior" must take the role of the "old woman" or "frail one" if he fails at something in which he believes he should have succeeded.

The grandfather, Alex Saluskin, said the boy had been playing for a baseball team and was discouraged over his prospects.

250 Claim $240 Jackpot, Each $1

Cleveland, May 30 — (AP) "Banko" night at the Knickerbocker Theatre got a bit complicated Sunday night.

Manager Bernard Wander was calling numbers for the card - balling audience in the bingo - type game when a mighty shout of "banko" from about half of the crowd rocked him back on his heels.

It turned out that all the claimants to the $240 jackpot had received identical cards, apparently packaged in error by the supplier.

While the customers watched the show, Wander and his assistants checked the signed cards and then doled out dollar bills — one to each of the 250 winners — as they left the theatre.

Prime Minister Of Pakistan To be Welcomed

Ottawa, May 30 (CP)— All the ceremonial of a formal state welcome—a 19-gun salute, an honor guard, a full band and scores of government and diplomatic officials will greet Liaquat Ali Khan, Prime Minister of Pakistan, on his arrival here today to begin a five-day visit in Canada.

The Prime Minister, accompanied by the Begum and a large retinue, is expected to arrive at 11 a.m. EDT and will spend three days in Ottawa.

They will be welcomed at Rockcliffe airport station by Prime Minister St. Laurent, Hon. Mohammed Ali, High Commissioner for Pakistan in Canada, members of the Senate and Commons, Mayor Bourque and other civic officials.

After inspecting the RCAF guard of honor, the Prime Minister and his wife will be escorted to Government House where they will be guests of Governor-General and Viscountess Alexander. In the afternoon the Prime Minister and the Begum will attend a press conference. Tonight they will be guests of honor at a state dinner at Government House.

Tomorrow the Prime Minister will interview Mr. St. Laurent and members of the cabinet. Wednesday afternoon he will address members of the Senate and Commons in the House of Commons Chamber.

Friday the Pakistan Prime Minister will address a luncheon given in his honor by the Ottawa Canadian Club.

Friday morning the Pakistan party leaves Rockcliffe airport by air for Kingston, accompanied by Solicitor-General Hugues Lapointe.

Outright Annual Grants Suggested By Dr. Whitton

a system of outright annual grants to the provinces was suggested to the joint parliamentary committee on old age security.

Dr. Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa welfare expert, told the committee it should not confine thinking on old-age security to strictly insurance spheres.

She advised the committee not to "rush at solutions" and it was vital to find out matter what sort of system was worked out there would have to be a "period test somewhere."

Then she came up with these figures:

1. Make the qualifying age 63 years. Then on the basis of the latest census, pay each province an outright grant of $200 a year for every person 63 or over within its borders and leave old-age security up to the provinces.

2. Take a page from the legislation of Quebec and finance old-age through a tax on alcoholic beverages and race track takings.

3. Possibly take immediate steps to put housing and health for the aged on the same basis as the Dominion-provincial health plan and lift the old-age pension ceiling by perhaps $10.

Kingsridge

By Alice Ross Colver

Audrey waited. Were there tears in those big lustrous brown eyes of hers. He could not be sure. He said "it's very simple. We have only to listen to our inner voice. It is here, under all the outer clamor, waiting to be heard. He picked up a Bible that lay open on the table beside him and read a verse, "Matthew says this: But I say unto you, that whosoever is angry with his brother without cause shall be in danger of judgment." He put the Bible down and looked at her. "We have no cause, Audrey."

"No." Her gaze was on her locked hands. "No. Not really. So what have you done?"

"I have arranged with Lester Brandt, whom I was once able to help greatly in a legal capacity to take Gerry into his plant. He is the owner and president, you know, of that concern up the river that manufactures plane parts."

She nodded. "That seems logical. I'm glad it's settled.

"Yes. So am I. It's been troubling me. First, whether to do anything. Then, what to do. I believe this is the answer. Gerry knows planes. There could be a future there for him if he gets over it by the preliminary training. That, of course, will be his test."

She nodded. "What did you ever do for Lester Brandt?" she asked curiously.

"He was involved in a law suit shortly after he moved here. Rather serious charges had been brought against him that would have hurt him badly if they could have been proved. But I was able to settle the matter quietly out of court. He has always felt indebted."

"I don't like Lester. I don't thing Gerry will like him, either, Dad."

"Well, Lester doesn't like Gerry. He was most unwilling to take him into his employ. I had to put quite a little pressure on. But Gerry won't see him much. Lester is semi-retired, you know. He's only at the plant a few days a week. He's up there now, though. There's a threat of a strike with possible violence tomorrow morning. He's been in conference almost steadily for the past two or three days. Eats there. Sleeps there."

Audrey lifted suddenly startled eyes. "Then Alicia is alone?"

"Yes. Why?"

He did not need to ask the question. He knew why. He had not been blind at the Ferguson dinner. But he thought it might do her good to talk. However, she only shook her head.

"Nothing. I just wondered. That's all. It seems lonely up there on that hill. Of course she has the dogs." Her voice trailed away.

"Alicia isn't one to be lonely." Again that startled look. But this time he had broken her defenses. "I know," she said, her voice hard over the jump of tears in her throat. She was silent for a moment, then again on her locked hands. Suddenly she lifted her head. "I want to ask you something. Can a man get a divorce in this state if his wife is insane?"

"Surely you don't seriously believe—"

"I don't know what to believe, Dad."

He saw her sitting there, her slender figure tensed, her head high, if Alicia were clear in the lovely oval of her proud, pale face, and his heart went out to her. But he only said "follow your own advice, Audrey."

"My own. . . What do you mean?"

"The advice you gave Frank about Susan. You told him, didn't you, to 'leave it to time.'"

"Time!" She shook her head. "But it's growing in time. Don't you see?"

"Curiously I trust Alicia."

She looked at him and her mouth quivered. "I couldn't bear it," she said.

"You may not be called upon to bear it."

The steadiness of his voice, the calm of his eyes restored her. She stood up and came to him, and dropped a kiss on his white head.

"I feel better."

"Good."

"About everything. I mean, Gerry too. We'll be fair to him. As fair as to Timothy. We'll open our doors. That's what you wanted, isn't it?"

"We cant do this halfway, you know."

"I know. But who'll make mother see that?"

He smiled. "I can try."

She bent again and laid her cheek against his. "You're wonderful, all these years—" She stopped.

"Yes. All these years," he repeated. "I'm proud of all these years, Audrey. I've been trying." He reached up and patted her shoulder. "I'm not perfect, you know. I'm too much of a hound for exact facts. I check up on everything your mother says. I don't take her word for things, and more often than not she is right. And," he added, "I snore."

She smiled.

"And now goodnight my dear."

"Goodnight dad."

As she reached the threshold of the study, the front doorbell sounded faintly through the stillness of the house. She turned startled.

"Who can that be at this hour?"

"It's Gerald. I was expecting him. Let him in will you? He can come right out here. You'd better go up, in case Elizabeth heard anything. I don't want to be interrupted."

She nodded and slipped away. He sat waiting.

Audrey said "Good evening Gerald."

"Hello, Audrey."

Audrey. Not Mrs. Park. And why not? Susan called her Audrey. And he was as good as Susan. As good as any of them, for all their airs. They were just human beings, like himself, subject to the same frailties and faults. Didn't he know? You bet he knew. Perhaps, Audrey, too, as well as her husband, had her weak moments. His look on her changed to one of sudden speculation and instinctively she drew back a little.

"Father is waiting for you. He's in the study. You know the way. I think."

"Yes. Thanks." He was smiling as he laid off his coat and hat in the hall, smiling as he watched her mount the stairs with her small sleek head proudly high, and still smiling as he reached the Judge's door.

"Come in, Gerald."

"That's just what I'm doing."

He stood there, bright-eyed and confident, looking eleven years younger, and had extended his hand. He had thought about this moment all the way out on the bus, all the time he was eating a late meal at the inn, all the time he'd washed up and changed into the clean shirt he'd bought, and all during the drive up here in the taxi which was waiting outside for him now because this wouldn't take long. Triumph had overlaid every other emotion that had flared up in him when he had first seen Alicia and Frank together.

For this was his chance. Here, thrust into his hand by luck, was the opportunity of a lifetime Why waste hours and days calling on the men whose names Dr. Morgan had given him? Dr. Morgan had spoken of a background of security in which he had developed a trust in good fortune and a trust in his fellow men. To him they might, indeed, be "generous and tolerant." But Gerry had learned the hard way, he knew from experience that living is a tough and tricky business and your could best get through it by selling, before it eluded you, what ever opening presented itself that seemed favorable to you. Okay! Alicia had presented the opening Alicia. But never mind that yet. He said with a peremptory promptness engendered by his thoughts, "I suppose you're wondering why I've called in to see you."

The Judge's heavy eyebrows shot up in surprise. After a second, he said, "sit down, won't you?"

"It needn't take you that long to say 'yes'."

He felt the blood pounding in his veins with his secret power. He had the old man on the hip at last and he knew it. If he had had more moments like this in his lifetime, he'd take this one slow. Smooth and slow, tasting its sweetness. But he was too excited. He stood, breathing insolence, waiting for the Judge to speak.

"You have a strange way of asking a favor."

"That's the point, I'm not asking."

"You mean you're telling he?"

"Exactly. And at the point of a gun."

"I dont quite understand."

Gerry folded his arms across his chest and rocked on his heels his tone light, almost gay, as he answered.

"I can soon make you! I've just come from New York. I was planning to stay in the city all night. I had reserved a room in a hotel. But when I saw Frank Park —Audrey's husband, your daughter's husband, mind you— and Alicia Brandt going up in the elevator ahead of me, I changed my mind." He stopped his rocking and ended with the casual accuracy of thought malice of delight. "I thought you'd like to know, I thought you'd rather have me tell you than the whole town of Kingsridge."

There was a second of silence, then "Sit down, won't you?" the Judge said again.

His voice was perfectly calm and his face had remained unchanged except for a slight deepening of the lines carved down his lean cheeks and around his mouth. Uncertain of the effect his words had had, Gerry shrugged and dropped into an easy chair opposite the older man.

"Will you have a cigarette?".

"I have my own."

Gerry took one out and lit it. His smile was gone now and he was very wary and watchful before the Judge's unruffled composure. He was a cool one, all right, he thought to himself. No wonder he won his cases.

The Judge remained cool and silent. He was in no hurry to speak for the reason that he was more shocked than Gerald guessed. Furthermore, his experience had taught him that waiting was unnerving to people like Gerald. Deliberately he lit his pipe.

It occurred to him, in this short breathing spell, that he might throw a bluff. He might tell Gerry that Lester, tied up with the strike threat in his plant, had asked Frank to take Alicia in to New York to see a doctor about her ankle. But in the next moment he realized that Gerry was too shrewd to accept such a story. It wouldn't survive, explain their presence together at this hour in a hotel elevator. Besides, Alicia's sprain hadn't amounted to anything. Elizabeth had telephoned yesterday to inquire about it and Alicia had said she was walking with only a slight limp. No, that wouldn't do. He decided, finally, to ignore the accusation completely for the moment.

Seaside Resort Would Muzzle UK Weatherman

Weston-Super-Mare, England, May 29 (AP)—If this seaside resort has its way, Britain's weatherman is going to be muzzled.

J. G. Brenner, chairman of the city's Seafront Amusement Concessions, said today he would seek an injunction against bad weather broadcasts by the BBC before holidays because they're bad for business.

"Sunday's broadcast forecast a dull, cold and showery day," he complained. "As it was, we had 12 hours of sunshine and no rain. These forecasts do untold harm to hundreds of small traders and to seaside towns generally and, ir my opinion, keep away thousands of visitors."

Anti-Red Germans Mob Youths Home From Berlin Rally

Refuse Medical Examination Ordered by Western Guards

By RICHARD K. O'MALLEY

Frankfurt, Germany, May 31.—(AP)—Violence avoided in Berlin's huge Communist Whitsun rally threatened along West Germany's borders today as more than 10,000 pro-Red youths flocked home from the east.

At Luebeck, police were stoned as 1,000 blue-shirted members of the communist-led free German youth refused to take medical examinations ordered by western frontier guards.

In Bremen and more of their fellow-travellers from Berlin continued home ahirlines from Helmstedt, far to the southwest. Above train West Germans Tuesday night pummelled them and stripped them of their blue uniform shirts after the youths started singing the communist internationale.

In the border outside Helmstedt today 600 more youths debarked from trains and began their luggage and pushed their way into the town, but submitted to baggage inspection and strengthened police forces at the railway station. Communist pamphlets were confiscated.

Club-swinging police saved one of the youths from about 15 townspeople who grabbed him and ripped off his communist medals before police dispersed them. Civilians booed hastily as the fresh batch of blue shirts entered the town.

At Hof, a German police raid 200 blue shirts tried to cross the border illegally early today. They were arrested and then released to move to their homes.

All are en route to homes in Western Germany after attending the communist-called youth demonstrations Sunday in Red-controlled East Berlin. The Berlin rallies went off without any violence.

Mass Along Road

The Blue Shirts at Luebeck massed along the roads in the Red-shirted police stage a line between the borders of the Russian and British zones, defiant but orderly. Police said a few hotheads threw stones at West Germans who passed through Tuesday. One policeman was injured but the order soon was restored.

HOWE EXPECTS $1.98 BUSHEL FOR CANADIAN WHEAT

Ottawa, May 31 — (CP) — Trade Minister Howe told the Commons Tuesday that Canada's maximum wheat sales after July 31 will be made under the International wheat agreement instead of by the Anglo-Canadian bilateral contract.

He said he believed the price will be at or near the maximum of $1.98 a bushel.

Mr. Howe, who returned this week from a trip to the United Kingdom, said the 1950-51 agreement with Britain would be renewed for the year beginning August 31. However, termination of the contract will not mean an end of sales to the United Kingdom.

Canada was assured for the 1950-51 crop year of a United Kingdom market for at least half of this country's exportable surplus of wheat. He estimated Britain will take between 160,000,000 and 120,000,000 bushels, including 800,000 tons of flour.

The International wheat agreement provides a minimum price of $1.55 a bushel and a maximum of $1.96.

Deseronto Has New Fire Brigade After Dispute

Deseronto, Ont., May 31 (CP) — This town today has a new volunteer fire brigade as a result of a wage dispute.

The former 14-man brigade, of which J. McVicker had been chief for 15 years, was dismissed after its members sought 75 cents an hour, instead of 50 cents, for time spent at fires. Council rejected the demand on grounds that the money is not available.

The new brigade, headed by Councillor Hubert Howard, who says he has enrolled 18 volunteers, seven of them experienced in fighting fires.

The row has stirred public interest in this town of 1,600 persons on the Bay of Quinte at Belleville. However, Mayor R. K. Jackson says the brigade led by Councillor Howard is a competent group and "we definitely have a new brigade now."

AERIAL WAR ON CATERPILLARS

Port Arthur, May 31 — (CP) — Airplines will spray this area with insecticide to wage war on caterpillars, it was decided Tuesday night. Landowners in this Muskoda summer resort district will be charged $4.76 an acre.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Aprary sta: A disturbance extending from Northwestern Ontario to Michigan is accompanied by fairly steady rain in the north and scattered showers in the south. The disturbance is moving eastward and will cause rain to spread into the Ottawa Valley region this morning. Showers will advance across Southern Ontario today but will not be numerous enough to give general relief from the current dry spell. Cooler air will follow the disturbance into the Ottawa River region this afternoon and move southeastward to cover the remainder of the province by tonight.

On Thursday the weather in Northern Ontario will remain cloudy and showery. In Southern Ontario there will be some sunshine but frequent intervals of cloudiness are expected particularly in the afternoon. Temperatures will range from a high of 50 in the north to 70 in the south.

HOUSE REJECTS COMMISSION TO GOVERN SPENDING

Members Feeling House Should Have Authority

Ottawa, May 31, (CP) — The Commons decided Tuesday that parliament and not a Royal Commission should recommend ways to reduce federal expenditures and to eliminate over-lapping services.

By a vote of 140 to 31, members rejected a Progressive Conservative proposal for appointment of a Royal Commission to seek ways to:

1. Reduce public expenditure to the lowest point consistent with efficiency.

2. Eliminate duplication of organization and effort.

3. Consolidate all public services and departmental activities of a similar nature.

4. Improve the general efficiency of government and assuring civil servants full recognition of their responsibilities.

The CCF and Social Credit Parties voted with the Liberals against the motion after Finance Minister Abbott said acceptance would mean an abrogation of the rights of parliament.

Grants Petition To Probe Vice In Montreal

Montreal, May 31. (CP)—Chief Detective C. H. Tyndale today granted a petition asking for a probe into vice conditions in Montreal.

He set Sept. 7 as opening date of the probe sought by the Montreal Citizens Public Morality Committee. It will be conducted by Mr. Justice Francois Caron of Superior Court.

Police said, presented by two Montreal lawyers, Pacifique (Pax) Plante and Jean Drapeau, alleges "malfeasance" and "misfeasance" on the part of certain members of the Montreal City Council and Police Department.

Plante, dismissed two years ago as assistant police director on charges of insubordination, was credited with planning to organized vice in Montreal in the early post-war period.

He wrote a series of articles last Winter in Le Devoir dealing with vice conditions in Montreal. The articles sparked a drive by Roman Catholic organizations here for a cleanup.

Police Chief Albert Langlois said at that time that Ontario and the city was free of organized vice, although a new force in the police morality squad and a crackdown on night clubs followed.

Young Montreal Couple Brutally Beaten in Custody Of Mexican Authorities

Montreal, May 31—(CP)— A young Montreal couple, Mr. and Mrs. Vern Tremewen, were reported by friends today to be in Brownsville, Texas, recovering from maltreatment suffered while in custody of Mexican immigration authorities at Matamoros, Mex.

(In Ottawa a spokesman for the External Affairs Department said the story as related in Montreal was substantially correct. There were no more details available in Ottawa.)

News of the incident reached Montreal through a long-distance telephone call from friends who went to Brownsville to "pay a ransom" for release of the couple.

The Tremewens are said to have been separated Tuesday in the little Mexican town across the Rio Grande River from Brownsville and locked after a dispute with immigration officials for overstaying their six-month tourist permit.

"After being thrown into a cell ... undoubtedly filthy," friends said Mrs. Tremewen described it—with 28 other women, all of whom were Mexicans," the friends here said, "Mr. Tremewen was brutally beaten—almost to death—by four cellmates. The cellmates are said to be convicted murderers who used whips obtained in some inexplicable manner."

Mrs. Tremewen telephoned friends in Montreal Sunday from the Matamoros hotel where she was under armed police escort and ordered to call friends for money or her husband would be beaten to death.

Her friends said she was hysterical and in a frantic state. She begged them to take the first plane from Montreal, in order to ransom her husband. The woman was quoted as saying: "You've got to come or my husband will be dead by tonight."

The friends saw Mexican and British officials Monday because they were unable to raise the money.

Officials at the United Kingdom Trade Commissioner's office in Ottawa took immediate action, according to information here, and the Tremewens were released from custody and allowed to proceed into the United States.

The Tremewens went to Mexico last fall and after spending three weeks more than the extent of their tourist permit started back to Montreal. They were stopped at Matamoros and after having their papers examined were asked to pay a $10 entry fee. Finding it

Mr. Tremewen protested, asking that it be translated before he signed it. Both were then thrown in jail.

McCallum Claims Professional Gaming Syndicates Operating In Greater Toronto Area

Toronto, May 31 (CP)—Police Chief John Chisholm hinted today that some Toronto police officers may tip off gamblers when raids are impending.

He made the suggestion in an interview on investigation and disclosure Tuesday night by Mayor Hiram Mcallum that at least six professional gambling syndicates are operating in the greater Toronto area.

Another development today was a move by the Ontario government officials have ignored city protests against issuance of provincial charters to clubs known to be controlled by professional gambling syndicates.

Attorney-General Porter said he has been advised no club with a charter was granted under such circumstances, but that he would investigate.

"A complaint often made against the police in gambling raids is that there has been a tip-off," Chief Chisholm said. "If it be proven, we will provide for search, or his immediate associates, as an integral component of the gambling element. One can draw one's own... conclusion as to whether police raid will be successful one.

Mamaing Arouses Suspicion

"On the other hand, the massing of a number of police officers liable to arouse suspicion in the minds of any police officers who might be sympathetic toward, or in league with, the professional gambling element. The slightest hint or telephone message to any leading bookmaker or gaming house operator can be quickly interpreted as a signal for caution. A subsequent police raid to prove abortive."

Controller Allan Lampert said he will demand a Royal Commission investigation of the chief's suggestion that some police officers are in league with gambling interests.

The mayor appealed for full cooperation of the public in curbing illegal gambling in Toronto.

Mayor McCallum said the syndicates are "big time" gambling "outlets," meaning places where bets can be taken and where bets can be recorded and registered.

The syndicates are composed of local men with no United States connections, as far as he knows, Mayor McCallum said. They are on the lookout for every possible unlicensed place which could be used as a "drop" for taking bets.

The turn-over involved in operation of these syndicates in Toronto amounts to several million dollars a year on the basis of police information, the Mayor said. Most Toronto crime—even murder—centres on the operation of these syndicates, he added.

Mayor McCallum said the gambling situation into the limelight was action of city council in passing a by-law which gives the police commission power to license all amusements and places of amusement. The licence fee is a normal $1 a year, but the by-law gives power to fix an establishment used for illegal purposes.

Biggest Offenders

Mayor McCallum said that the biggest offenders seem to be tobacco stores, already under city licence. A difficulty with these is that the licence generally is in the owner's wife's name. "We cannot cancel the licence we are accused of depriving the woman of a livelihood."

Police Chief John Chisholm, whose report provided the mayor with his information on the extensive gambling operations in the city, said in an interview that the police shop system, with shoe-shine shops and tobacco shops, the syndicates also used restaurants, fruit stores, cigar stands and pressing establishments, some restaurants had even newsboys on street corners.

"The gamblers are well organized [illegible] and have a very good way of equipment," said Chief Chisholm. "In one of our raids recently we seized a walkie-talkie, used in a parked automobile by a lookout. Then, in the inmates and operators of the establishment on the approach of the police."

Boy is Charged With Wounding Friend in Hand

Toronto, May 31—(CP)—A 12-year-old boy who police say shot a friend in the hand with a .22-calibre rifle appeared in juvenile court today. He was charged with wounding with intent to maim Kenneth Johnston, 14.

Police said the shooting occurred Tuesday night after an argument and scuffle as the pair were playing cowboys and Indians. The shots were fired—the second hitting Kenneth's hand.

The accused boy said he sold pop bottles to save $10 to buy the pistol.

WEST EUROPEANS AGREE TO POOL COAL AND STEEL

Britain Maintains 'Wait, See' Attitude

Paris, May 31 — (AP) — Six European countries today were ready to pool their coal and steel industries but Britain maintained a "wait and see" attitude toward French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's economic union plan.

The French Foreign Office announced Belgium, Luxembourg, Italy, The Netherlands, West Germany and France had agreed to set up an international authority to administer their coal-and steel production.

The six countries will meet Thursday to work out the pool arrangement and put it into effect.

British sources in London said their country was anxious to join in the talks but refused a French invitation to approve the whole plan before the talks start.

New Memorandum

Schuman at once dispatched new memorandum to the London government, designed to clear up what officials said was a British misunderstanding of the original French invitation.

The French sources said the new note emphasized that British endorsement of the plan in principle "does not bind Britain to approve the results of the future discussions."

The six countries who have accepted the plan, a French spokesman said, "have agreed to come to a meeting (next month) with the understanding that a general plan work." He added:

"The British intend to put their shoulders together for the common good. We hope that other nations will join in the same effort."

Schuman proposed his plan May 9 for an international authority to administer Europe's coal and steel output. He said the plan would lead to lower production costs, equalize cost factors in the six countries, modernize production facilities, and expand markets for European industries.

Atlantic Nations On Right Road Congress is Told

'Threat Will Exist Unless We Prepare Our Defences'

Washington, May 31 (AP)— State Secretary Dean Acheson told Congress today that the growing power of Russia can only be met by organizing the military might of the West into "balanced collective forces." He appealed to Congress to support such a course.

Reporting on his recent cold war strategy talks in London, Acheson said the Atlantic Powers have reached "another time of decision" in which they must either strengthen their North Atlantic Treaty and Western European partnerships or risk falling backward into "total failure."

The 12 Atlantic treaty foreign ministers, including himself, Acheson disclosed, did not say anything in London which indicated "any immediate threat of war." They were concerned rather to meet a Russian threat which "will exist unless we act now to prepare our defences against aggression."

Balanced Collective Forces

The French sources said the new note emphasized that British endorsement of the plan in principle "does not bind Britain to approve the results of the future discussions."

The six countries who have accepted the plan, a French spokesman said, "have agreed to come to a meeting (next month) with the understanding that a general plan work." He added:

COUNTERFEIT $10 BILLS SEIZED, THREE ARRESTED

Toronto, May 31—(CP)—R.C.M.P. arrested three men early today and seized more than $20,000 in counterfeit $10 bills after a raid on a downtown Toronto hotel.

Police believe the money was to be shipped to Winnipeg and other western centres to be passed.

R.C.M.P. officers said the money was manufactured by the international counterfeit ring operating from Buffalo, which was smashed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation two weeks ago.

Arrested were: William Ignatt, 32, of Winnipeg; Charles Gordon, 36, and Charles Cipolla, 37, both of Toronto.

Ignatt and Gordon were arrested in the hotel, Cipolla was picked up later at his home.

Police say that Ignatt arrived in Toronto May 27 and stayed at a downtown hotel. He had been under surveillance since leaving Winnipeg.

The three appeared in magistrate's court this morning and were remanded for a week.

Police believe Ignatt came east to buy the bills to circulate in the Toronto area. They say that police are investigating in Winnipeg and more arrests may be made.

Cipolla's brother, Frank, now is serving a term in Kingston penitentiary for being in possession of $40,000 in counterfeit bills last February, police said. He was arrested in Guelph.

Sixteen Veterans, Families Allotted Houses in New Development East of City

Sixteen young veterans and their families, the first of 100 families who will obtain new housing accommodation, were allotted homes in the first of the new veterans' housing develop- ment in the east end of the city, and today are moving in their household furnishings.

Additional houses will be allot- ted to veterans before the end of the week by the Central Mort- gage and Housing Corporation administrators and it is hoped that the entire 100 families will be in new hogses by the end of July.

The houses are allotted to vet- erans on a point basis with points being given for overseas service, the number of children and need for accommodation.

Started Last July

It was just last July that the Zeller Contracting Company broke first sod in the initial development on the former Massassaga Point property. All the houses are now virtually com- pleted with installation of ser- vices being the chief difficulty. Com- mission now being made. Grading of the lots by various families is soon be completed, while all but one of the roadways have been be graded and covered with crushed stone.

Veterans allotted houses were promised by the housing corpor- ation that landscaping of the var- ious properties would be un- underway in three months' time. However, it is not expected that much of the landscaping can be completed until the city has con- structed sidewalks.

Two Types of Houses

Houses constructed on the pro- ject are of two types — four room bungalows and three bedroom storey and a half dwellings. All are built with full seven foot basements and hot air furnaces. The kitchens have built-in cup- boards with floors in the kitchens and bathrooms being tiled. All houses are fitted with combina- tion aluminum window sash. The rentals are $42.50 monthly for the larger homes.

Alderman Harold Armstrong, as chairman of the city council housing committee, is personally interested in getting the rental housing units constructed on the former corporation property and has worked with the contractors and the Central Mortgage and Housing toward early completion of the project.

Kiwanis Club Will Not Sponsor APBA Regatta

The Belleville Kiwanis Club has accepted the recommendation of its regatta committee to with- draw its sponsorship of the Am- erican Power Boat Association- sanctioned regatta which has been run off Massassaga Point, Club president Taylor Franklin an- nounced today.

The action of the Belleville club follows the withdrawal last week of the Cornwall and Casenave, Ont., decisions to withdraw from the regatta because of the ban.

Demands for increased cash prizes and the cost of insurance and the large amount of club labor in- volved were given as the reasons for the club's move in dropping the sponsorship. The APBA also demanded that the various sponsoring clubs include more races in the programs.

President Franklin stated that the small amount of money real- ized from the event last year did not warrant the labor involved. He also said that it was not the intention of the Kiwanis Club to allow the merchants of Belleville to subsidize the event through the medium of advertising.

The Kiwanis Club took over the sponsorship of the regatta last year when the Rotary Club of Belleville decided to withdraw its interest in the event.

Optimists Hear Chief Probert On Police Work

A public service that is self- supporting is a notorious rarity, but such a service was describ- ed to the Optimists by Chief Constable R. W. Probert. In his address to their Monday meet- ing, Chief Probert dealt fully with the organization and func- tions of Belleville's Police De- partment.

Beginning with the Police Com- mission, which consists of Judge, Mayor, and Magistrate, he told a most satisfactory relationship with this governing body. The Commission has complete and final authority, under the Police Act, over the local force.

The speaker listed the gradual growth of the department from nine men, working 12 to 14 hours daily, and enjoying one day off each month, to the present staff of 22, who work a stated eight hours day. These reduced hours result in a good and efficient day's work in place of the for- mer daily paid.

The present staff consists of chief, one inspector, four ser- geants, and sixteen constables, one of whom is a plain-clothes man. Chief Probert pointed out that even this augmented staff is still considerably under that of the RCMP standard figure of one policeman for each thousand people.

Routine Work

The inspector, in addition to his duties as investigator, is com- pelled by the lack of clerical staff to perform a good deal of routine detail work. One of the constables is required for main- tenance of parking meters, and several others are needed for weekly, holiday, and sick relief.

The speaker also dealt briefly on complaints at the desk. He detail- men to investigate calls, receives minor fines, makes out charge- ges. He is responsible for the supervision and instruction of his staff.

Each constable is assigned to a beat, and is responsible for the protection of all property on that beat.

Two cruisers are in operation at night, one on each hill.

Chief Probert told of the gradu- al improvement of equipment, notably the recent purchase of a modern car-a-car equipment. He expressed the hope that such equipment would never be used, but felt that it constituted valu- able insurance against gun-men, traffic fatalities.

The speaker told of the forma- tion of the Traffic Committee to deal with the ever-increasing problems of our city streets. The committee consists of five ald- ermen, the City Comptroller, the Chief Constable, the City Engi- lice, and meets every two weeks. Parking meters have made much to alleviate the traffic problem, and in addition, net the sum of $20,000 each year.

In addition to this revenue, from eight to 10,000 dollars is re- turned to the city by the Ontario Government as our 60 percent share of fines. This return by the government covers 20 percent of the police budget.

A formidable job awaiting the local police force is the registra- tion of all fire-arms, beginning in July. This task must be un- dertaken every five years.

In closing, Chief Probert stated that the police admire a fellow who walks straight, but doesn't walk so straight he won't stoop so low as to help a child.

Chief Probert was introduced to the Optimists by MacDonald Smith and their appreciation was expressed by Paul Bradley.

Plans Completed

Plans were completed at the meeting for a representative at- tendance at the Ottawa District Convention of Optimist Interna- tional. This will be the 26th, and last, convention of district 15 as presently constituted, as the dis- trict is to be divided, and a new district 28 formed.

Optimists Harold Bankier, Grant Badgley, Gordon Carter, Jack Golden, Howard Kokesh, Harold Lynch and Stu. McDougall will represent the Belleville club in Ottawa.

Frank Tummon and Pete Wills were welcome guests of the Op- timists, Frank Tummon acted as sergeant-at-arms, and Joe Agnew as song leader.

Kingston Kiwanis Club Will Not Sponsor APBA Regatta

Kingston, May 31 — (CP) — The Kingston Kiwanis Club has accepted the recommendation of its regatta committee to with- draw its sponsorship of the Am- erican Power Boat Association- sanctioned regatta which has been run off Cataraqui Bay, Club president Taylor Franklin an- nounced today.

The action of the Belleville club follows the withdrawal last week of the Cornwall and Casenave, Ont., decisions to withdraw from the regatta because of the ban.

Demands for increased cash prizes and the cost of insurance and the large amount of club labor in- volved were given as the reasons for the club's move in drop- ping the sponsorship. The APBA also demanded that the various sponsoring clubs include more races in the programs.

President Franklin stated that the small amount of money real- ized from the event last year did not warrant the labor involved. He also said that it was not the intention of the Kiwanis Club to allow the merchants of Belleville to subsidize the event through the medium of advertising.

Out of Damaged Brain of Woman May Emerge Name

New York, May 31—Out of the damaged brain of a woman who was savagely beaten six years ago may somebody emerge the name or description of her attacker.

The doctors who have worked with Mrs. Harriet Scoville Higgins, son, a socially-prominent Connecticut divorcee, say her recovery has been almost incredible.

June 15, 1944, Mrs. Higginson, then 31, was attacked in her home at Cornwall, Conn., and almost killed with 23 blows on the head —some of which crushed her skull. She was neither raped nor robbed, and her attacker never has been found.

She was partly paralyzed and the speech centre of her brain was almost destroyed.

But with what physicians and psychiatrists say was "indomitable will," she has learned to walk again, to read, write and speak—although with limitations.

Her psychiatrist, Dr. Robert W. Laidlaw, is confident that she will succeed in recalling the details of her night of horror.

"Over the last few months she has been having flashes of memory, some of them coming under light hypnosis," the doctor said. "And some of these memories are falling into a definite pattern."

The last thing she remembers of the night was returning home from a dinner with friends, paying the baby-sitter, looking after her two sons, aged 4 and 6, and walking toward her own bedroom.

Two children found her the next morning lying in a welter of blood. Unable to stop passing motorists or phone for help, the little boys stayed with her seven hours until a friend called and heard one of them say "Mommy's hurt."

If she should someday identify the attacker, he might go free of criminal charges because Connecticut's five-year statute of limitations has run out. But he would still be vulnerable to a civil suit.

Britain's Problem Must Remain One of Production

By FORBES RHUDE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Britain's problem is and must remain one of production.

That is the stern optimistic dyes one admits that there is a problem.

That, just now, if you travel Britain, as this writer did recently, you won't find much word of difficulties. Mostly you will find confidence, a growing hope that after all Britain is as she always was—a prosperous nation and a great tradesman. In the world of affairs.

But still the problem remains, and it is this:

Fifty million people have to be fed and clothed, provided with the ordinary wants and reasonable luxuries of life, and carry on their part as a trading power in the world.

They haven't the raw resources with which to do it, and so they have to keep selling their skills to buy the things they need from the outside. Never could there be a more perilous economy.

But, you ask, didn't the people of Britain vote to keep on in this? The answer is: "Yes, but no 50,-000,000 of them."

For Britain built her modern position and increased her population on the basis that she was virtually the first of nations to become invsatralized; that from a poor world she could buy raw materials cheaply and manufacture them into goods which she could sell back at a profit. In effect, she was selling her skills.

She did this well, and she accumulated wealth which she could invest overseas. She also sold services, such as shipping.

These returns—mostly interest on money invested—are concealed for a number of years that on current production Britain wasn't really paying her way.

Then came her great sacrifice, two wars into which, especially the last, she threw all her resources—sold the house and mortgaged the farm. From then on she was mainly on her own, dependent on supporting herself on current production.

Now, with American and Canadian help, she is getting by, and in this prosperous year she seems to be more than getting by.

If, at this stage, you were to say that the world is the same world of 23 years ago, you would have to ask:

"Can Britain sufficiently increase her production that she will be self-supporting?"

You would find that on paper she can and then you would begin to wonder whether in fact she will.

A cold answer would say that she won't. A warm answer, based on an innate faith in the British people, will say that she will.

Especially you will say that she will if you believe, as does this writer, that the world is at the dawn of an era of activity of which it has as yet scarcely dreamed.

Pakistan's Prime Minister Says No Hope for Peace Unless West Assists Asia

Ottawa, May 31 — (CP) — Prime Minister Liaquat Ali Khan leader of Pakistan's 77,000,000 people, said Tuesday that there is no hope for peace in the world unless the western powers are ready to assist the peoples in Asia.

On a five-day visit to Canada, accompanied by the Begum of Pakistan and a large retinue, the Prime Minister told a press conference that poverty, disease and ignorance in Asia constitute a "serious threat" to peace, freedom and democracy.

In a reference to Russia, he said:

"Pakistan fi the one country which is defending the most important commonwealth frontier."

When asked if the Russians were massing forces along that frontier, he replied: "They have not sent me any intimation that they intend doing so."

Liaquat Ali declared Pakistan was prepared to defend its way of life and added that the country had a "competent air force, a small navy and an army "which has some of the finest soldiers in the world."

Monday night the Prime Minister and the Begum were entertained at dinner by Governor-General and Viscountess Alexander, with whom they are staying at Government House for two days. On Thursday they will move to the residence of Mohammed Ali, Pakistan High Commissioner in Canada, and Mrs. Ali.

Liaquat Ali will address members of the Senate and Commons in the House of Commons Chamber today in addition to a busy round of engagements in other parts of the capital.

Steel Prices Steadily Rise

New York, May 31 — (AP) — The Iron Age reported today of "full-blown stampede for steel," topped by consumer pressure for cold-rolled sheets that "is not anything in history."

The metal working trade weekly says: "The same factors that pumped buying into the steel market two years ago are present today. They are: (1) A runaway scrap market, (2) Conversion deals, and (3) phantom prices. The grey market is present but is not a big factor now."

The phantom prices, which can be obtained only when steel demand exceeds supply, range from a premium of $3 a ton on carbon forging billets to $20 a ton on cold-rolled sheets, the Iron Age says.

The publication reports conversion prices still going up, with cold-rolled sheets that were selling at $3.675 a cwt. several weeks ago now quoted at $175.

The Iron Age compares the steady advance in scrap prices of recent weeks "has now accelerated into dizzy flight" and has been described as "whopping" for No. 1 heavy melting steel in major consuming areas in the United States were reported, pushing the Iron Age steel scrap composite up $3.67 a ton during the week to a 1950 high of $37.33 a gross ton.

Steelmaking operations again were placed at a record 101.5 per cent of the industry's ratio capacity.

Kiwanis Lieutenant Governor Pays Official Visit to Club

"Doing something for somebody else is the basis of Kiwanis work and when you do something for somebody else it does something to you," said Lieutenant Governor of Kiwanis district number six, William Richardson in an inspirational address to the Belleville Kiwanis Club at their regular weekly luncheon meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Richardson, who has just returned from the Kiwanis International Convention in Miami Florida, told the meeting of the role which the international organization plays in the work of the individual clubs and gave them a resume of a few of the highlights of the convention.

The speaker explained how, as Kiwanis has grown, their objectives have broadened and the club has international co-operating body has become more important.

"In Kiwanis the international organization functions to guide the meeting of the club's files on the activities of all Kiwanis clubs serves as an important source of information for all clubs on the nature and execution of many club projects. Kiwanis International does not tell any club what to do, it just offers suggestions. The clubs run themselves and their job is to do whatever needs doing in the community."

Become Better Citizens

"You are in Kiwanis," he told the members, "because you feel that you can use your time to better advantage than by devoting it or to do the jobs which you cannot do alone. Thereby you are becoming better citizens.

"Acvitizen is not valuable because N'the amount he makes," Mr. Richardson said. "A citizen's value is the value he is to the community."

In referring to the communist menace Mr. Richardson pointed out that the real danger is our forgetting the basic principles of democracy.

"Our business in this country is democracy," he said. "Unless we make it our business communists and others with rotten ideas will come in. There are always some who have nothing to lose, who will swing over to new ideas. I urge you to remember the Kiwanis motto "aggressive citizenship; the safeguard of freedom".."

Urged to Support Churches

"Support your churches and their spiritual aims" Mr. Richardson continued. "We take the churches too much for granted. The churches do good work and we are inclined to go about our work and forget the fundamental values of the church. You would not be here unless the church built the ideal of working for others, and therefore you should support your church."

Mr. Richardson then went on to give a brief report of the recent international convention. He made special reference to two speakers.

"John Fisher told the convention of the great part Canada is playing in world affairs," the speaker went on. "He told them that Canada on a per capita basis outstrips the United States in relief aid to Europe and pointed out to them that Canada is their best cash customer. He told Canada to many Americans, who knew all too little about us."

The district lieutenant governor then quoted from the speech made by Captain Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Airlines.

"The theme of his message was 'We should remember what we know.' "Too many people want more for less, too many want something for nothing, too many want social security without contributing, Captain Richtenbacker told the international delegates. We must work for what we want,' he urged the convention."

Held in Great Esteem

Mr. Richardson concluded his address by praising the Florida host clubs and by remarking on the great esteem in which Canadians are held by Americans.

The speaker was introduced by Past Lieutenant Governor Bruce Lattimer, and received the thanks of the club as expressed by Frazer Fulton.

In a lighter vein, Vic White led a sing song with Phil Huddlestone accompanying on the piano. Ted Schwab, Vic White L. A. Kells sang their specially written 'singing commercial' to the accompaniment of a single of cash from Fred Symons and the musical background provided by Charlie Gardiner.

Reports from the ways and means committee and from the regalia committee were given.

CAUSING CONCERN

Hamilton, May 31 — (CP) — Interpretation by municipalities of the powers given by Ontario legislation on Sunday sports is causing concern, said A. S. McGrath, Field Secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, here Tuesday. He told the Hamilton conference of the United Church that if there is to be control of Sunday wide open the government would be asked for a change in the law.

FISHERMEN FINED

Windsor, May 31 — (CP) — Windsor and district fishermen, caught up in a dispute over the game overseers along the Detroit River, paid $416 into Essex county coffers today.

Thirty - two fishermen pleaded guilty in county court to charges of fishing laws and each was fined $13. Most common charge was for keeping undersized yellow pickerel.

"There is no excuse for keeping pickerel that are too small," game overseer Ed O'Neil said. "The fishing has been extremely good this year and it is a simple matter to catch your limit without taking undersized fish."

INTERNATIONAL TRADE FAIR

It is indeed fortunate that the 79th annual convention of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association held in Toronto last week, so closely preceded the opening of the third International Trade Fair at the Canadian National Exhibition grounds on Monday.

At the CMA International Trade Conference on Friday the delegates heard leading experts from Britain, Canada and the United States discuss different aspects of foreign trade problems. Many of the CMA members who attended the convention will also be keenly interested observers at the trade fair. By taking part in the intensive discussions which took place throughout the CMA convention and listening to the experts give their interpretations of customs, tariff and foreign exchange problems, these men should be able to obtain greater profit from their examination of the exhibits from the various countries.

This year's fair is 40 per cent larger than that of last year and it is expected that upwards of 40,000 businessmen from all over the world will attend the 11-day exhibition. Thirty-four nations will be represented. In addition to the Commonwealth countries, many new exhibitors from Europe will be displaying their wares in an attempt to gain a larger share in North American markets. Among such countries are Yugoslavia, France, Czechoslovakia, Spain and even Germany. One reason for this greater International participation is undoubtedly the fact that United Kingdom and Commonwealth countries are going all out to attract attention to their world trade possibilities. It is significant that nearly 70 per cent of the exhibits come from outside Canada and 15 per cent from the United Kingdom. It is thus evident that British manufacturers have made greater sales of United Kingdom goods in Canada their primary objective.

While developing the Canadian market for their goods is the immediate aim of overseas exhibitors, their long range objective is to gain access to the much greater American market when they hope to trade more freely.

This fair is almost certain to have a definite effect on the future pattern of world trade. Indeed it may well mark the beginning of a change in Canada's position of half-way house between Europe and North America, rather than seeking to avoid competition, this new approach will provide fertile ground on which competition will be able to flourish in the future.

The attempt to infiltrate the American market through the back door and so earn more dollars to pay for Canadian goods will in turn stimulate greater multilateral trade between nations. Direct efforts to increase sales of capital and consumer goods in the United States have had limited success in some instances and this new attack is a supplementary device to accomplish the same purpose.

FACES FUTURE WITH COURAGE

The magnitude of the evacuation plan which the military authorities had in readiness if events in the Red River flood at Winnipeg had warranted it was revealed yesterday and indicates how great an undertaking could have been carried through successfully by such an organization as that known as "Blackboy." 40,000 persons a day for five days would have been evacuated by trains had conditions of flooding been such as to justify that step. Fortunately 100,000 of the inhabitants left voluntarily, easing the situation so that a mass removal of citizens was not found necessary, the behavior of the flood not requiring this emergency action.

Now the dwellers are coming back to face the great task of restoration, which will take time and cause heavy loss which the ravages of the Red River caused has been not as high as one hundred million dollars. The courage of the inhabitants proves their ability to weather this very severe testing.

Restoration will be a big task. It will require much money and cause many an ache but it is in the very nature of the people, the hearty Manitoba folk, to rise to the full emergency and responsibility. Those who live in the Winnipeg district have proven their courage and resourcefulness.

There will be big problems for Winnipegers to face as they go to work to reset the houses in order after the distressing visit of the past few days. The lessons that such an emergency teaches will not be forgotten.

It is a happy fact that the people of Canada, Britain and the United States have been helping to make as easy as possible the rehabilitation of the city, taking into consideration all the facts which the flood has brought to the attention of the people and those in authority.

Winnipeg can look forward with hope and confidence to its rapid recovery for the courage of the people is the assurance that the future will be faced with such knowledge and faith as the citizens have hitherto shown in the development of this great community, so vital a part in the economy of the Dominion.

LINES TO A GOLF BALL

Little golf ball, year by year
Gaining yards of distance clear,
As the advertisements say.
When I take you out to play,
Even with my faulty style,
I should delve you half-a-mile,
Added to my throws before,
Every year ten yards and more,
Noticeable by thirty-five,
Half-a-mile I ought to drive.

Golf ball, for my ninety scores
Mine must be the fault, not yours.

Little golf ball, on the tee
Would that better I could be.
Would to boast my friends were moved:
Every year is he improved.
Better will he bear a blow;
Longer distance will he go.

Golf ball of the printed page,
Would that I improved with age.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

UNDER THE ARCH

One of the more off-colored characters around Broadway these days is Kid Herman, ex-great of the prize ring, who runs the newsstand on the southwest corner of 42nd Street and Times Square. The Kid, according to the record books, lost only once in 140 professional bouts and was one of the few men to beat Barney Ross decisively. What's more, he was reputed to have been as strapping outside the ring as in during his black-and-blue period.

Today, a muscle-bound 56, he likes to thing of himself as "a stick of sugar-coated Gandhi." "Me and the world has seen too much fighting," he told me the other night. "All I want now is peace and a little pinochle."

While we were talking, as if on cue, a man rushing for the subway bumped into the Kid.

"Sorry, Mister," apologized Herman. "If I'd known you was comin' I'd a baked a cake."

The man's glare glazed into a grin.

"I coulda flattened him with a punch," said Kid Herman, "but what would it prove? Yd never convince anybody by hittin' him. It's better to be known as a wit than a Firstance, take the gink who runs the newsstand on the other side of Times Square. He's got a great fighter. Had a string of fourteen straight knockouts till he met up with me. I knocked him down fifteen times—and he won the first time Patsy heard me tellin' about it, he was on a horizontal fourteen times. So the next time I tell it, just to make him feel good, I tell him he knocked down Patsy fifteen times. So what you kiddin'? It ain't the punch you throw that counts, it's the punch you don't throw that counts. Like the time I was in the ring with Mickey Walker, and I says to him, 'Okay, I'm here if this way. Mosta the time you was knocked out by a horizontal opposition.'

Just then, as if he knew we were talking about him, Patsy waved from across the street and yelled, "How's it goin', Kid?"

"Come on over and get yer name in the papers," Herman yelled back.

"In a minute," said Patsy. "Under the arch!"

"What does he mean, under the arch?" I asked.

It's a private joke we got," said the Kid. "When we were kids we lived near the Brooklyn Bridge, and when we didn't want to do our fightin' where the cops could see us, we used to say, 'Meetcha under the arch,' and then we got under the bridge and settle our differences. By the time I was ten, I musta slugged it out with every guy in the neighborhood—all except Patsy.

"Then a few years ago, after we both set up stands on Times Square, some bad blood comes up between me and Patsy for the first time. The way it happened, one day I sent two bunches of papers instead of one, and when the truck delivers them they forget to drop off the regular order for Patsy. So naturally he thinks I'm out to ruin him by sellin' his papers. But when he comes over to get it I tell him it's mine. Well, one thing led to another, so finally I says, 'Under the arch.'

"Patsy says, says Patsy, so we pile in a cab and drive downtown.

"My wind ain't what it used to be, but I musta knocked him down a dozen times before I seen that me how crazy it is for a couple of two grandfathers to be beatin' each other's out. So I drop my hands and say, 'I'll make you a proposition. I'm meant to order two bundles but forgot to do it, so you take 'em. I'll take one. Let me buy ya a steak and make it even.'

"'Lucky ya remembered,' Patsy said, 'because I was gettin' warm in the ring, I was gettin' hungry.'

As I was about to go, Patsy called me back and whispered that the Kid introduced us.

"He was just tellin' my friend," he said, "how we met under the arch and I knock you down six times."

"You remember wrong," said Patsy. "It was only four. Let me tell it."

"I meant five," apologized Herman.

See what I mean " he said after Patsy had gone back to his newsstand, "it was five to four. And after that three. But what's the diff? It makes him feel good and it's no skin off my nose."

THE PACKSACK

OF GREGORY CLARK

An ugly chunk of iron fell off some truck load of junk and lay in the road. It was about a foot angular, and weighed about ten pounds.

I saw the cars ahead of me swerve around it and speeding on. And so warned I jogged around it. Then I saw it was a newspaperman, and not from any impulse of public duty, I pulled my car off to the pavement, and watched back to see what happened. The pile constituted dangerous object before one would come whose driver had a mind to swerve deliberately in the safety of his fellow men.

I was right. A car would have created a tragedy right there and then. Some car, whose driver was not quick enough to swerve, whose attention was wandering, might hit it in such a way as to break his steering column and send him careening into a pole. Or, if it did not, it would bring him at once, it might give his car a jolt that would crack an axle or a bar or a steering arm. And a hundred miles later, when he was speeding along a highway far-away, his car might suddenly become uncontrollable and go out of control and send him blundering to disaster.

In four minutes, 74 cars and trucks swerved around that iron pipe. Then one of them stopped to toss it out of the way of other drivers. Was it fear of a fine? Or lack of inclination? What is the matter with the human race that it is so careless and unconcerned with anybody's security but his own? This is a problem indescribable. In a city's haste, the perfect miniature of the great, wide, free, careless country.

The 75th car dodged so violently that I could observe every pulley reflex—the ears, the arms, the hands and I all screamed at once. I made the kerb. Everybody was mad. It was barely worth it. . . .

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

A BASIC TRUTH

There is a very arresting statement in the first chapter of the Gospel of John. "In Him was life." This means that in Jesus was life. All the writer of this gospel had said that in Jesus was power or wisdom or perfect goodness, the statement would be true. But he was arresting as it is. But it says that in Jesus is life.

The Gospel of John from that point on continues to show that there is great reality in the universe which it terms "life" and that in Jesus is the source of this limited power, a perfect sense of peace, and a joy indescribable.

When diseased and afflicted people came in contact with Jesus they were healed of their diseases. Those who listened to Him were enlightened. Those who made real contact with Him through faith received from Him something that the world could not give—"life." It is as if this life which existed in Jesus was a contagion which men "caught" under certain circumstances. And when they caught it they were filled forthwith equipped to become members of the universal spiritual empire.

The conception of life which runs through the Gospel of John is very marvelous. In fact it is the basic teaching of the New Testament. Many people try to interpret the teaching of Jesus apart from the ethical standpoint. But then the statement confronts them, "In Him was life."

Chief Justice Rules Out Appeal Of Convicted Man

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—Chief Justice Thibaudeau Rinfret of the Supreme Court of Canada ruled Tuesday that the court could not entertain the appeal of Marcel Marcotte, 38-year-old Montreal hat and lingerie salesman charged with the murder of Marcel Bolleau, 44.

The ruling believed unique in Canadian criminal law, was made after counsel for Marcotte objected to the court hearing the case of a client of his. It is expected that the case will be sent to the governor-general for review.

Marcotte is under sentence to hang June 26.

A legal technicality arising from the death of a judge of the Quebec Court of King's Bench appeal division, blocked hearing of the case by the Supreme Court.

Marcotte was first convicted of murder in 1945 after the body of Bolleau, his friend and associate, was found in a shallow grave in north-end Montreal in June, 1944.

Farmers Need Plenty of Rain

Toronto, May 31 — (CP) — With seeding completed—or almost—in most areas of southern Ontario, farmers are hoping for rain.

Despite the need for rain, the over-all picture is generally favorable, the provincial Agriculture department said Tuesday in its weekly crop report. Cattle are being turned out to pasture in western Ontario. Corn planting is under way in many counties in

MORE PRUNES, PLEASE

Speaking of fear, worry or anxiety, which are various manifestations of the same (flight) emotion; and of anger, irritation or anoyance, which are various manifestations of the fight emotion, as factors which retard peristalsis, the normal propulsion or digesting food or food residues through the digestive tract, I say, on p. 10 of the constipation booklet:

"Even a trifling anxiety, such as that about being on time at the office or catching your train or avoiding an encounter with your unpleasant creditor or keeping your wife ignorant of your gambling or your habit from discovering your extravagances, tends to slow down the whole alimentary function."

This is the abnormal physiology as found in many nervous people, like the Malapropos who refer to the bile as "diaphragm," "stomach" or "tummy," now call their "ulcers."

So as I go on!

It is not so ridiculous as it may seem at first blush to say that a clear conscience and a digestion that functions the best of all aids to digestion and the only really satisfactory bowel regulator."

Now, I don't know why, but I'm getting into trouble through my verbosity. For instance, I have been using the line and turned to another when I came to the last period. And I had to add ten words, to wit:

"Of course, there are prunes —but that is another story."

Well, sir, of the many thousands of persons who have received Little Lesson No. 25—The Constipation Habit and How Colon Hygiene—only one has picked on "prunes" and that is the one who may suspect, a resident of San Jose or even Santa Clara county but the proprietor of a clothing store in the Missouri valley. His letter is not at all long. He asks me to explain what the remark about prunes was intended to convey. "I have been eating my prunes daily," he says, "in your opinion should I discontinue the use of prunes?" It seems that dried prunes are heavily coated with sugar."

No, no, no. On the contrary, you should continue the use of prunes in your everyday diet.

Prunes deserve a place at the top of the list of everyday foods especially desirable for one with the constipation habit. From experimental study Dra. Kinsey and Cooper estimated that the daily intake of 20 small prunes, or three bananas or two apples, in addition to average amounts of vegetables and cereals, will supply the ideal natural requirement of stimulant in the form of food fibre.

Prunes are high on the list of everyday foods especially desirable for one with anemia. Dried prunes contain more iron than apples, peas or raisins. Four ounces of prunes supply as much as four ounces of lean beef.

Prunes are a good source of vitamin A (stimulant to active principle" is the vitamin B1 (beriberi) and vitamin G (riboflavin). The vitamin B complex, of which these are the chief components, is a stimulant to the muscle coat of stomach and intestine.

Mackenzie's Column:

State Secretary Must Sell Scheme To U.S. Congress

By SIGRID ARNE

(Associated Press News Analyst)

(For Dewlit Mackenzie)

State Secretary Dean Acheson is trying to do in the United States Congress today about the same thing he achieved in London early this month when he talked to the foreign ministers of 12 Western European countries.

He talks twice with Congress today: once publicly, and once behind closed doors when committee members can ask questions.

Basically, his job at home is about the same as it was abroad. He is convinced that it is not enough to evolve the fervor for democracy among the peoples of the free world as a thinking those same people must be ready to win any military attack on them. He wants to see a program, a course to that end.

To do this, since the war, the drive has been to give the people of Western Europe enough rope for their economic recovery hoping so they would continue their belief in democracy and their devotion to it. A year ago that expanded to include putting guns into their hands, so they could defend their beliefs. A year ago the U.S. voted $1,238,000,000 to begin the job of rearming Western Europe.

Now that program has been sharpened by developments abroad. He wanted, and won, a program that American military men have worked out: a program under which all North Atlantic pact nations would be equipped, built, designed, and paid for, as a single unit. Each country would contribute its best. But no state would try the wasteful effort of building a single defence unit.

Expensive Program

This means that the North Atlantic Pact powers—Britain, Canada, Denmark, France, Iceland, Italy, Belgium, Luxembourg, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal and the United States—must set aside the money to build armies, navies, and air fleets. The program will be expensive.

For example, the German comes at a time when the war damage still is not repaired, and Europe still is not in position to be asked to pay its way. For the U.S. it means when the present international debt is still climbing upward.

In Europe, Acheson batted nearly 10 percent on his plan.

Today he has to sell it to Congress—and sell it well—because he must soon ask for another $12,525,000,000 for the next year's U.S. contribution to European arms.

The first year of American military aid to Europe is just closing. Actual deliveries of world of equipment is earmarked for Europe is still a trickle. Shipments here, and therefore could be moved to Europe. By March 1 the loaded ships began to move, it is still a secret exactly what is moving, or into what ports.

ONE MINUTE NEWS ABOUT JOHNS-MANVILLE

WHY TREE ROOTS PREFER SEWERS

Like metal to a magnet, sewer moisture has an irresistible attraction for the fine root tips of trees. Finding the tiniest crack or joint, this hair-like tendril creeps its way in and often causes costly stoppages, an unsanitary nuisance which can prove costly.

To overcome this, Johns-Manville developed Transite Pipe. This is made up of asbestos and cement it cannot rot or corrode. The inside finish of the pipe is of polished smoothness to permit high flow capacity. And each joint is sealed with a "Taper-Tite" coupling that stubbornly resists root growth or other infiltration.

For complete details on Transite House Connection Pipe, write Canadian Johns-Manville Co., 199 Bay St., Toronto, or see your nearest J-M dealer.

Rotary Speaker Tells Teachers

Trenton— Claiming that many present day problems are caused by "too narrow concepts of factual objectives," R. E. K. Rourke, Head Master of Pickering College, threw out a thought provoking challenge to our educational systems and the teaching profession in an address to Trenton Rotarians Monday night. Target for teachers was the title of Mr. Rourke's talk.

Three Aims

The three aims of any school or educational system should be to produce young people who take pride in their work, have enough strength of character to see a thing through and who are willing and able to accept their social responsibilities, declared Mr. Rourke.

Mr. Rourke is prominent in boys' work in Ontario and has also written several text books that are being used in schools at the present time.

Spiritual Energy Needed

Emphasizing that education is not just a matter for schools, Mr. Rourke stated that if we cannot provide a release of spiritual energy to match the release of atomic energy we are in for a bad time.

Practical training is not enough cultural exposure is necessary also. Young people must be able to make a mess of life as well as earn a living. Everyone needs as much training as is compatible with their ability. Summing up these statements, Mr. Rourke said he would sooner baffle a dull boy than bore a bright one.

Character Building Essential

Turning to a discussion of character, the speaker said that character building should be one of the principal educational objectives. In this connection he said that sportsmanship who are more interested in building men than in winning games and pennants were altogether too rare.

In many instances, sport is more liable to develop a lousy sport than a good sport. A losing team fights like rats deserting a sinking ship, blaming the referee, the weather and playing conditions. The coach is frequently the worst of the lot. In fact the boys are learning everything a sportsman is not. One of the best ways of developing character is to get young people to set their minds to a task and not give up until they have seen it through, he said.

Mr. Rourke deplored the fact that nowadays too few workmen take pride in their work. Too many take the easy way out, when the going gets tough, they quit cold.

Finally, Mr. Rourke said he must strive to turn out young people who are able to accept their social responsibilities. It is very dangerous to train young people if they are not given to understand that back of that training there is responsibility.

Questions Hickory Rod

Cracking his verbal whip over the wrist of the old time schoolmaster who ruled with an iron hand and a hickory rod, Mr. Rourke said, the teacher's job is not to punish crime but to adjust behaviour. If a democracy means anything, it is a place where people are able to discipline themselves. Young people must be given the chance to make mistakes and also the opportunity to correct them by self discipline.

Privileges carry responsibilities, rights imply duties. These facts are of basic importance, he continued. If we have no goals we are certainly not going to score.

Mr. Rourke was introduced by Jack Deacon, President of Belleville Rotary Club and thanked by E. R. Smithrim.

PICTON

Winnipeg Residents Tell Friends Of Devastation Wrought by Flood

Picton — Dr. and Mrs. A. H. Walton, Downs Ave., are in receipt of an interesting letter written May 16 from Mrs. Walton's brother, Mr. W. H. Martin, who with his wife and family resided in the St. Vital section of Manitoba. The following is a synopsis of a story of some of their experiences, after the flooding of their homes, with excerpts from Mr. Martin's own description of the events following the overflowing of its banks by the Red River.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin are at present living in one room in the city of Winnipeg which was secured for them through the services of the T. Eaton Company, while their daughters and grandchildren are housed with friends in the city or at a few miles distant from its outskirts.

Reading from the letter, we quote the following:

A Terrible Thing

"This is such a terrible thing; one could have no idea of it unless you were here to see it for yourself. All of St. Vital, and all our lovely homes in that district are in one vast lake. Before we were forced to leave, people were getting around in boats, the water being four feet deep in some places.

"Other parts of the city (Winnipeg) and suburbs are in the same wretched condition. The last three weeks have been a horror never to be forgotten; even the weather was against us —snow, rain, wind, and little sun.

"When we left our home, all around us was like a dead city. We cannot praise Eaton's and 'The Red' and too highly for the wonderful job they have done in finding safe living quarters for us and the children. We will never be able to thank all the people who have taken us in.

"You can quite understand what this means—so many having to leave their homes and everything in them, after living there for so many years. Even now we can hardly realize what it all means. We shall have to reconstruct our whole way of life."

Cover the Floors

The writer goes on to say that basements are flooded, sewers backed up, and in some homes water is covering the first floors with furniture and furnishings entirely ruined.

"Live stock is a heavy loss and "unfortunately the end of it is not yet in sight."

Many of the younger men have been working on the pumps with the navy, Mr. Martin's son "Ted" among others, is working nights, and he mentioned that these "boys" have not had an over abundance of food.

"More than a sixth of Winnipeg is under water," writes Mr. Martin, "and thousands have left the city."

"We will not be able to estimate the damage done to our own place until we can return."

Towns Are Lakes

.. "Emerson, Morris and several other town sites are now all lakes. Words seem so much I could tell, but I just can't write about it. It is too vast. The way thousands of people have been working on the dykes has made history in Manitoba, and the weather continues so cold.

"We will try to send you a paper in a few days, and hope soon to have better news.

"I am still working. So are the girls. That helps to keep our minds off the disaster.

"Our sons-in-law, Bert Kent and Bill Thompson, are on duty with their air and army groups. Bill has our canoe and is on patrol duty in St. Vital. Ted was able to get his car out, but Bert's is still standing outside his house with water covering the wheels.

"Thank God we are all well, and looking forward to the near future when, (we hope), we can return home.

WEDDINGS

KUGLIN—VANDERWATER

In Marsh Hill United Church, Foxboro, on May 27th., at 4 p.m., Rev. Frank Gilbert officiated as Hope Alison Vanderwater, daughter of Colonel Roscoe Vanderwater and Mrs. Vanderwater, became the wife of Basil Ernest Alton Kuglin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kuglin, Williamsford, Ontario.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was beautiful in a white embroidered organza gown, over taffeta, with a Peter Pan collar and fitted basque buttoned to the waist with tiny pearl buttons. The bouffant skirt had a continuous panel of embroidery to the hemline, and extended at the back, into a slight train. Her full-length illusion veil was caught by a halo of stephanotis, and she carried a crescent bouquet of white tulips, stephanotis and ivy.

Miss Margaret Vanderwater was her sister's maid of honor, dressed in tinted lilac organdy over taffeta.

Misses Helen Kuglin and Gena Vanderwater, bridesmaids, were in daffodil yellow and apple-green organdy respectively. All dresses were of similar design, having two deep collars and off-the-shoulder neckline. All three attendants wore halos of stephanotis and lilacs and carried crescent bouquets of deep purple lilacs.

The flower girls, the Misses Mary Jane and Patricia Dawn Kincaid, dainty little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Kincaid of Madoc, wore long coral organdy dresses, and carried bouquets of sweetpeas.

Mr. Robert Kuglin was best man for his brother, while Grant Mitchell, of Huntsville, and Kenneth McKewen, Toronto, were the ushers.

The wedding music was played by Mr. Stanley Hagerman, Jr., and immediately before the ceremony, Mrs. Reginald Skinner, of Foxboro, sang very beautifully Malotte's "The Lord's Prayer".

After the ceremony, the bride's parents received the guests in their home. The bride's mother chose a crepe and lace beige gown with matching accessories and wore a corsage of pink carnations. The groom's mother was attired in grey crepe with black accessories and wore a corsage of iris and lily-of-the-valley.

For travelling, the bride donned a grey wool gabardine suit with white accessories and wore a corsage of golden yellow roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuglin left for a trip through Quebec Province, and will spend the summer in Algonquin Park. In the Fall, they will reside in Toronto.

Guests were present from Toronto, Owen Sound, Tonawanda, N.Y., Ottawa, Belleville, Madoc and Huntsville.

HODGSON—PLUMTON

Baskets of Spring flowers formed a lovely background for the marriage of Phyllis Kathleen, eldest daughter of Mr. Arthur C. Plumton and Mrs. Plumton, of Frankford, Ont., to Harry Webster, of Harrowsmith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Hodgson, in Stockdale United Church, on Saturday, May 27th., at 4:30 p.m. The Rev. R. McEachern officiated.

Miss Barbara Kenny presided at the piano and the soloist, Miss Barbara Kyle sang before the ceremony, "I'll Walk Beside You", and during the signing of the register, "Through the Years".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a charming bridal gown of white nylon marquisette over nylon silk featuring a tight-fitting bodice and bouffant skirt. She wore a fingertip veil of tulle illusion and carried a semi-cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss Marjorie Hodgson, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, gowned in green brocaded nylon net over taffeta with matching headdress of tulle and sweet peas, and carried a ribbonged basket of sweetpeas, tulips and asters.

The Misses Peggy and Donna Plumton, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids wearing matching gowns of mauve and yellow brocaded nylon net with matching headdresses of tulle and sweet peas. Both carried ribboned baskets of tulips, sweetpeas and asters.

Mr. Charles Hodgson, of Carrollton, was groomsman, and Mr. George Plumton, and Mr. Ernest Hodgson, were ushers.

The buffet luncheon was served to 85 guests, the bride's table was lovely with its three-tiered pillared wedding cake and candles.

Following the reception, which was held at the home of the bride, where the bride's mother, gowned in navy figured sheer over nylon silk, with grey accessories, and corsage of pink roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore navy figured crepe with navy accessories, and corsage of pink roses, the young couple left on a wedding trip to points west and north. For travelling, the bride chose a brown gabardine suit with beige and green accessories. Upon their return they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Windsor, Harrowsmith, Cherrywood, Toronto, Belleville, and Tweed.

The bridegroom's gift to his bride was a matching necklace and earrings of rhinestones to his groomsman, a lighter; and to the ushers, tie clips; the bride's gifts to her attendants, rhinestone necklaces; to the bridegroom, a camera; to those who served, cups and saucers, and to the pianist and soloist, envelopes of money.

Non-Violence Way to Peace Mrs. Fahrni Tells Study Club

Last evening in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church parlor, Mrs. M. Fahrni, of Vancouver, B.C., and council members of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, who came to the city under the auspices of the Belleville Lecture and Study Club, spoke to an interested group on the subject of "Has India the Answer to World Strife."

Mrs. Fahrni, who was introduced by Mrs. Frank Showler, of Toronto, in her gracious reply said she was happy to share with those interested in world peace, the rare problems besetting the East and the West today, and to cite how Mahatma Ghandi had endeavored to meet like problems in his crusade for peace.

Prefacing her remarks, she mentioned her late visit to Germany following World No. 2, and of the terrible conditions she found there in Frankfort and Cologne; how that all the destruction she had figured from the pages of newspapers and from photographs, was not in any way comparable to what actually met her with her own eyes. Civilization had reverted to the cave-man age, people were living in dens made from the rubble of bombed buildings, a grave menace for the present, and without hope for the future.

In Japan, the destruction was more terrible, though on a smaller scale, as evidenced by the atom bombing of Hiroshima and Nagaka. What the first bomb was capable of doing is small in comparison to what the hydrogen bomb can do; it can wipe out all life in the area of 100 square miles; while bacteriological warfare could do much more. A bacteriological substance which has already been prepared has such potency that seven ounces could wipe out all life of the whole world.

MRS. H. FAHRNI

May Destroy Total Life

"Professor Einstein," said Mrs. Fahrni, "stated that he was not frontied with destruction much greater than in the past, that of total life" and Mr. A. J. Morris, the American Secretary of State, said "that morality, war was blasphemy against God, in that man was created in the image of God, and it threatened to wipe man from the earth."

Today, armaments had not achieved success. "The First World War was fought to end all wars; but had it in the second World War 2, which wiped out democracy in some countries. War brings about the destruction of the very ideals and ways of life we desire to hold; you cannot prepare for war and achieve peace at the same time. The situation is a serious one. Is there any other way than armaments, asked the speaker.

Peace is built on two major idealities, that of the right adjustment of labor and capital, and of non racial discrimination. In the former, the stress between labor and capital must be done away, if not, the economic system will force war; therefore the economic system must be adjusted. In the latter case, there must be racial equality, in production and distribution of produce. Michael Scott stated that in Africa 70 per cent of the natives live on 13 per cent of the land.

"We are preparing for war when we should be working on psychological problems," stated Mrs. Fahrni, and the only way to stop war is by non-violence, as proven by Mahatma Ghandi. This is pacifism, but a way not permitted to go as taught by Jesus 2,000 years ago. Today, even in the follow-His teachings; we are told to overcome evil by good, to love your neighbor as yourself. It works between individuals, why not between countries, asked the speaker.

Outbreaks Few

India's freedom was won that way. Among a people of 400,000,000 there are relatively few outbreaks of violence. Ghandi's way was the way of truth and non-violence. He felt that to be really free and independent, people must be helped to meet their own needs. He was responsible for village movements by which the people were taught to support themselves by various crafts such as making of cotton cloth, the art of spinning and weaving, pottery for everyday needs; the weaving of cotton replacing that of silk and gold embroideries as worn by the wealthy.

Many chose Ghandi's ideals of life; the people shared in making their common necessities, and promoted trade with other communities; no one profited on another's labor. The system was one of co-operation and not one of competition. The western world is built on a system of violence of economics, while that of the eastern world is built on the system of peaceful economics. India's system is not one of mechanical exploitation, or competition, but one of hand production.

Asks Question

How can the western world solve its problem and adopt India's method for peace without going back to hand production? The answer is by centralization of co-operation, and of non-violence. If these ways are adopted, peaceful results may be achieved. India today is taking a way between violence and non-violence. The heart of India is non-violent, and it is to those we must look, and not to its leaders. If the few are faithful, then right cannot die.

Mrs. Fahrni said she could not predict peace would come through non-violence, but she had the faith to believe it would. "The ideal of India today is Ghandi's ideal, as ours would be if we followed the way of Jesus." A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Fahrni for her thought-provoking discourse by Mr. A. D. Archibald, after which tea was served, and further questions on subject were asked and answered.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

Pigs eat better than we do. Not only pigs but all farm animals have been the beneficiaries of so many new developments in feeds that, from a nutritional standpoint, they seem to be having better than human beings.

The use of the sensational Vitamin B-12, the animal protein factor, as well as better distribution of all minerals in their diets, were recently described at the National Farm Chemurgic Council in Washington.

Dr. H. J. Prebuids and Dr. Karl D. Butler, experts on animal nutrition, both agreed that livestock now received a better diet, from a health standpoint, than do people.

This, of course, doesn't mean that livestock enjoy their gustatory experiences as much as we do. The young pork or lamb tenderness so rapidly under scientific feeding cannot keep the delightful experience of eating barbecued spareribs unless he eats himself for his fellow sparerib.

For this dish you will need oversize dinner plates to take care of the bones as well as oversize napkins, since it is most give way to fingers in this kind of eating.

Barbecued Spareribs—Serves 4-5

Have 3 pounds spareribs cut by butcher into serving size pieces.

Place spareribs in a saucepan with hot water, Add 3 teaspoons salt, 1 small bay leaf, 1½ large whole onion, 1 branch of celery and 4 crushed pepper-corns. Simmer slowly until spareribs are tender, 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 hours.

Remove spareribs from liquid. Liquid may be strained and used as soup stock if desired.

Prepare a barbecue sauce as follows: In a saucepan melt 2 tablespoons butter or margarine. Add 1-4 cup onion chopped fine and 1-2 teaspoon garlic chopped fine. Simmer slowly until onions are yellow. Add 1-4 cup catsup, 1-4 cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 cup chopped drained canned tomatoes, 1 teaspoon worcestershire sauce, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Simmer 5 minutes.

Place spareribs in a baking pan. Pour barbecue sauce over spareribs. Place in a moderately hot oven about 400 degrees. Baste frequently by spooning sauce over spareribs. Bake until brown, about 30-40 minutes.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The May meeting of St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Fox, last Tuesday evening. Miss Gena Spry presided over the devotional part of the meeting. Mrs. W. L. Munroe conducted the roll call, which was responded to by a verse of scripture in which the name "Jezebel" was found.

Mrs. H. H. Walker gave the life history of Queen Jezebel. Mrs. W. L. Munroe had charge of the program. Mrs. Don Fargey gave a splendid reading "For What Cause Were We Born". Mrs. E. Hoard gave a chapter of the study book and told the story of the life of Miss Caroline McDonald, who was at one time the national secretary in Japan. This was most fascinating. Through her intense love for the more unfortunate humanity she resigned that post, and spent her time visiting the prison cells and bringing help to the outcasts. She had wonderful faith in humanity. She had no one who would not respond to sympathy and kindness. The misery which she encountered made her wonder how such things come to pass in God's world.

In 1925 she was presented with a silver cup in recognition of her work in the prison cells where she brought the comfort of the Gospel to the unfortunate people. She was called the "White Angel of Tokyo."

Mrs. E. Fox and her young assistants served a dainty refreshment and a social half-hour was enjoyed.

Mrs. R. H. Williams, on behalf of the society, thanked Mrs. Fox and all who had taken part in this most helpful program.

PINE GROVE W.I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Pine Grove Women's Institute was held recently at the home of Mrs. A. Finkle with the newly-elected president, Mrs. F. Johnson, in the chair.

In answering the roll call, some of the ladies celebrated their 1949 mentioned were the W.I. trip to Ottawa, and the Pine Grove Institute's picnic at Consecon.

Delegates to the West Hastings District Annual convention, in Stirling, on June 1, were appointed.

Mrs. H. Detlor, convener of the standing committee on "Community Activities and Public Relations", introduced the special speaker, Mrs. M. Sine, of Frankford, who spoke on "Publicity".

Mrs. Sine said "We aim to keep our name before the public, so it will be understood and appreciated. Be enthusiastic. It's a live coal that fires the others. Use a catchy title when announcing a meeting. Tell it well and your goods will sell."

"Contact local editors, ministers, teachers; have song-books; use W.I. letter paper; gain interest through use of the co-operative program; have a quiz on "Home and Country", and on the new handbook; exchange programs; cater to sales; have booths at Fairs; picnics in Summer; family nights in Winter; aid in building community centres; stocking libraries; carrying for cemeteries; promoting work on film councils and sponsor only the right kind of entertainment which will command respect.

"In news reporting, remember news is anything unusual. Commodity in the world. Answer the questions, "what, where, when, why, how, who".

"Use the press, radio, telephone and do not minimize the value of self-publicity."

In conclusion, Mrs. Sine quoted a poem composed by a member of River Valley W.I.—Mrs. Chard, who is now in England.

Mrs. H. Detlor read an article on "Publicity" from the Fall and Winter 1949-50 "Home and Country."

Mrs. F. Lindenfield and Mrs. C. Ross read poems connected with this subject.

Current Events were given by Mrs. L. Finkle.

The president welcomed the visitors present and announced the next meeting.

After the meeting closed delicious refreshments were served and a social time spent.

Mexican Floating Garden

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THIS MEXICAN hat motif is not from the countryman's huge grass sombrero, but is rather inspired by the famous floating gardens of Xochimilco. Pertain the thought that quick heels should be a staccato step over its sapphire blue brim; let the lady poise it on her coiffure, with the heavy wreath of field flowers intact.

On Monday evening, the Contact Club held a dance in Christ Church Parish Hall, with a good attendance.

P.E. County Teachers' Institute Inspects Belleville Schools, Hears Minister of Education

Picton—The annual meeting of the Prince Edward County Teachers' Institute was held in Belleville on Friday of last week.

Four sessions were held consisting of a morning business meeting, noon-hour banquet, afternoon observation in city schools and an evening session addressed by the Minister of Education, Hon. Dana Porter, in the Collegiate Auditorium.

Belleville's newest school, the Prince Charles, was the rendezvous of Prince Edward's one hundred teachers for the morning session.

After the registration at 9.30, the President, Principal Warren Chase of Bloomfield opened the meeting and outlined the day's program.

Mr. Edgar Bateman, principal of Prince Charles School, cordially welcomed the institute to the school of which he was very proud. He stated that the department of Militia had adopted the plan of this school for new schools being built for military establishments.

Mr. Enos Davis, chairman of Belleville Board of Education, addressed the assembly and heartily welcomed Prince Edward Teachers, the first educational group to meet in the new school. He placed all schools at the disposal of the teachers and offered full co-operation.

Advised to Apply

Details of how schools could avail themselves of the use of Film Council equipment were given by Mr. Kenneth Hamilton and all schools requiring this service were advised to make application.

Mr. A. J. Brown, B.A., Inspector of Prince Edward Schools addressed the teachers and congratulated them on the setting of the convention. "The curriculum changes were designed as a step forward and should be studied carefully." Recently, he, with other inspectors, had been engaged in reviewing, revising and approving the re-vamped program. A comparison was made in the application of the new curriculum to rural and city areas.

Under the new system it was hoped that each pupil would receive his share of the educational opportunities whether he was the brighter scholar or one less endowed with ability. The brighter pupil should not be retarded while the others received most attention, but his progress should receive his required impetus.

Mr. Brown also gave useful information regarding the selection of readers and advised the same series be followed for each grade in a division. These should be in the schools before the end of June.

Tour New School

Following this address, a tour of the school was made when the teachers were very hospitably received by the staff.

This fine one-story school of six class rooms and auditorium has an eight-acre playground and can be enlarged using present facilities. It is a modern fireproof building, skillfully lighted and air-conditioned. The class-rooms are decorated in pastel shades and many have two-color-ed walls. The spacious auditorium can be used for physical education and community gatherings. The entire interior was specially decorated with bring spring flowers and art exhibits.

Banquet

Mr. L. A. Kells and Principals Frederick, Anderson, Hackett, Fairman and Bateman were guests of the teachers at a banquet held in the Tabernacle Church at 12 o'clock.

Mrs. Doris McPaul accompanied by Miss Mary Huff rendered a solo and Miss Lois Doxsee, a delightful piano solo after the banquet.

Mr. Kells, who untiringly assisted in the preparation of the program addressed the teachers regarding the organization of Belleville schools and stated they had already arranged their schools into divisions with supervising principals in each. He introduced the principals who met their school groups before leaving the banquet.

Miss Mary Huff, who arranged the banquet capably thanked the ladies for their excellent luncheon.

Observation in City Schools

At two o'clock each teacher was in attendance at one of the five city schools where the teachers were allotted to the various rooms to observe their system, methods and work. The principals and teachers were painstaking in their demonstrations and results of their work in every room were apparent.

An innovation noticed was the use of the playground by various divisions at different times for recess.

Besides the grades visited observation was made in kindergartens, manual training, home economics, boys' and girls' industries, of music, guidance, arts and crafts, and audio visual aids.

Each attractive Home Economics department prepared a tasty afternoon tea where all met at the close of the afternoon session.

Hon. Dana Porter Speaks On New Curriculum

The evening session held in the Collegiate Auditorium was attended by interested educationists from several neighboring inspectorates and was the highlight of the day's program.

President Warren Chase presided capably. Mayor Jack Allin welcomed the visitors to his community.

Principal Geo. Currie, in welcoming the "inclusive comprehensive group," stated, this school was fulfilling its highest purpose in being used for this meeting."

The chairman was supported on the platform by some distinguished educationists of the district: Mr. A. F. Brown, Mr. H. Macklem, Mr. L. A. Kells and Mr. Langford, inspectors of Prince Edward, South Hastings, Belleville and Lennox; Mr. Enos David, chairman of the Belleville Board of Education; Mr. Donald Baxter, M.L.A. and Mr. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., besides the mayor and Collegiate principal.

Mr. Reg Bishop, a talented vocal soloist of Wellington, accompanied by Mr. Benvie, rendered two solos, "Homing" and "Kashmiri Song," which were well received by an attentive audience.

In bringing greetings from Prince Edward, Mr. Donald Baxter referred to the great responsibility of teachers in moulding the destiny of our country, and to the additional demands placed upon the teacher in filling the need of restraint in young minds to fit them for society of today.

In introducing the guest speaker, Mr. Elmer Sandercock outlined the great amount of activity in the career of the minister which fitted him for the eminent positions as Minister of Education and Attorney-General.

Hon. Dana Porter

The opening remarks of Hon. Dana Porter referred to discipline —what it means and how it may be applied. He noted the viewpoint of freedom where everyone is inclined to go their own listen and the discipline of the totalitarian state where the burden of decision was taken from the individual. These were not the attitudes which disciplined required in democracy. What we require is the discipline of the mind of a self-critical individual, one who has learned to develop his own resources for the good of society.

Our children are individuals. The new curriculum recognized this and would tend to allow them to develop where best fitted. The brighter pupils should receive equal advantages from the educational system. There should be more responsibility of the pupil and less thinking for him. A child should realize that education cannot be bought but can be won.

More Flexibility

The new curriculum provided more flexibility, a greater shifting of responsibility, all down the line. The curriculum was to be loosened to make the changes gradually. In some cases the changes were experimental but individuality should be recognized, our own resources reviewed and made to fit the need of individuals and localities.

The intermediate division comprising grades 7, 8, 9, and 10 was a division in curriculum only and not necessarily a change of schools. It was designed to avoid the abrupt change previously emphasized by the entrance examination in the middle of an age group that should not be divided.

To accomplish the unity of effort needed in this division close co-operation was needed between the teachers of grades 7 and 8 with those of grades 9 and 10 wherever they are divided at present. The topics studied and guidance given should be related in all these grades.

Blessed With Great Heritage

In literature we were blessed with a great heritage. The opportunity to enjoy it must be properly fostered. A "curiosity for literature" and a "taste for more" should be developed. An attempt should be made to develop and improve expression, oral and written. The selection of Readers was important and this was left open to the wide field available.

The privilege and pleasure to hear the minister was voiced on behalf of all present by Mr. Milton Snider, principal of Wellington Public School at the conclusion of his address.

After the meeting, the executive acting on the resolution adopted at the general business meeting voted $25 to the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund.

RAWDON

Wide-Awake S.S. Class Holds Tenth Anniversary

Rawdon — Wellman's Wide-a-Wake Sunday School class celebrated their tenth anniversary on Tuesday evening last.

Wellman's United Church Rawdon township was resplendent with spring blooms, potted plants and three flowering hydrangea.

A three-tier birthday cake iced in the class colors of yellow and brown and set with ten candles, one for each year, was the central theme of the decoration.

The centre aisle of the church was reserved for class members and their friends and this included a former pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. T. F. Townsend, of Deseronto.

Miss Ruth Clancy, pianist for the class, played quiet music and Mrs. Frederick Beckett presided over the devotional period based on the theme "Advance". The hymns and Bible lessons were all in keeping with the theme, and the scripture lesson was read by Mr. Lorne Watson, after which a special responsive service and dedication service was held, when the class rededicated themselves to service in the Sunday School and to take active church responsibility.

The pastor, Rev. H. C. Vaclavik, was chairman, and spoke of the "Importance of Such a Class".

Greeting Letters

Letters of greeting were read by the secretary, Mr. Glen Watson, and ex-presidents, Mr. Gerald Clancy. These letters came from Messrs. Boyd and Carmon Beckett, and Roy Sharp of Kingston, Mrs. Harris Dean, of Thomasburg, Mrs. Charles Barker, of Trenton; Mrs. Ray Hedger and Miss June Dunham of Belleville, Mrs. Gordon Foster and Mr. Maurice Clancy, of Holloway, Mrs. W. Kosobucki of Toronto, Mrs. Lindsay Finch of Campbellford, and Rev. N. Cole, of Hastings, all former class members.

Greetings were also read from Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Johnson of Hanover, as Lorne was guest speaker at the fifth anniversary.

Memorial Silence

A period of silence was observed in memory of Mr. Jim Watson and Rev. J. E. Beckel after which the pastor offered prayer.

Miss Mary Heagle sang "The Blue Bird of Happiness"

Miss Patsy Pollock gave a reading "Dorothy Dumb Remodels"; Mrs. T. F. Townsend gave another reading entitled, "Don't Hurry and D-o-n-'-t H-u-r-r-y"; Mrs. Irene Watson and Mrs. Frederick Beckett rendered a musical duet, and Miss Lois Weaver gave a piano solo.

Mrs. Burton Morton, who has been leader of the class since organization, gave the class history in verse form, paying special tribute to presidents and officers down through the years.

Rev. T. F. Townsend gave a splendid chalk talk on the theme "Love in Our Hearts."

Special Message

Rev. Gordon Whitehorn, pastor of Seymour circuit, gave a special message on the word of Jesus "Ye Shall be My Witnesses". He admonished the young people that in order to convey to others the great message of the Christian existence; they must glow with Lord's work and pass on to others the great Bible truths in order to be a force for good.

Each class member taking part in the ceremony came to the platform and Mr. Craig Watson recited a verse on "Faith". Miss Leona Hinds another verse on "Hope" and Mrs. Douglas Clancy a verse on "Love" and each one lit three candles.

Miss Doris Dunham voiced words of appreciation and praise to teachers and officers after which she lit the remaining candles.

Miss Doris Pollock conducted a humorous stunt with all past officials of the class assisting.

Delectable refreshments, topped off with birthday cake, were served and all enjoyed a social half hour. This 10th anniversary was a success and those in attendance enjoyed an evening long to be remembered.

Normal Moisture Prairie Farmers Want a Dry Spell

(By The Canadian Press)

After a winter of adequate, if not plentiful precipitation, prairie farmers hoped for a spell of warm dry weather to permit seeding within normal dates.

In spite of unprecedented floods in the Red River Valley, moisture conditions in Western Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan are generally slightly below normal. They are sufficient for germination, but still more rain will be necessary after seeding, to build up subsoil reserves.

Statistics compiled by the Transport Department's meteorological division show that most prairie areas had somewhat less than normal precipitation from Aug. 1, 1949, to April 30, 1950. Increases were recorded only in Southern Alberta where December snowfall was three times normal, and Eastern Manitoba where heavy rainfall in October built up reserves.

Cool weather continued for the first week of May, but warmed up later. Heavy rainfalls in southern and eastern Manitoba in the first two weeks of the month aggravated flood conditions and postponed seeding operations. Officials felt that in these areas the emphasis would be on coarse grains rather than on wheat, due to the wet conditions and later seeding. Crop loss in the Red River Valley is estimated at $20,000,000. Seeding was not expected to be general in the area before the first week in June.

Three Times Normal

The hard winter in the west brought heavy snowfall in December throughout Alberta, ranging from 75 per cent above normal in the north to a more than 200-per-cent increase in the south. Precipitation was less than usual for most of the remainder of the nine-month period. Central Alberta had less-than-normal precipitation of about 50 per cent for five months, ending the period with the largest deficiency recorded in the three provinces — 80 per cent, an even three inches. Average decrease for the whole province was nine per cent.

Saskatchewan also received heavy snowfall in November, December and January, 60 to 70 per cent above normal. Deficiencies of rain in the fall and in March, however, brought the average for the province down to a decrease of five per cent.

Abnormally heavy rainfall in October of more than three times the normal and heavy December and January snowfall in Eastern Manitoba boosted the district to an 18-per-cent increase. Below-normal figures in the western part of the province for the fall and from February through April brought the total for that section to slightly below average.

New York, May 31 — (AP) — General of the Army George C. Marshall led United States Memorial Day services Tuesday with a call for support of the United Nations as a forum "where words can be used instead of bullets."

Speaking beside the tomb of the unknown soldier at Arlington National Cemetery, across the Potomac River from Washington, Marshall said that another war would shatter the world.

1,000 Men Battle Forest Fires In East Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Nearly 1,000 men battled forest fires in Nova Scotia today and in Quebec, where most of several forest blazes are under control. Officials stressed the need of rain to protect woodlands from further fire ravages.

Toughest blaze in eastern Canada appeared to be that which raged out of control in Halifax county of Nova Scotia and threatened the villages of Dean and Pleasant Valley. There were no casualties but several farm buildings and logging camps were reduced to ashes.

Said District Forester R. H. Burgess of Halifax county: "It is absolutely impossible for us to put out a fire. Rain is the only thing."

Woods travel was banned in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Pleasant Valley, Quebec.

Twenty-three forest fires still burned out of control in Ontario are under control.

The general fire picture improved satisfactorily for the Ontario Lands Department to lift its ban on travel in Algonquin Park. Fires are under control, by districts:

Kenora 7, Port Arthur 2, Sault Ste. Marie 1 — no change.

Sudbury 3, Algonquin 3, Trent 3.

In Quebec, fire still burned in the Lake St. John district but generally the situation was much improved. Provincial Forester Piette stressed the need of rain.

A brief storm over the northern part of Ontario on Monday night provided temporary respite from a city smoke pall. It continued dry, warm weather, promised good seeding conditions. Farmers hoped for further rain after seeding.

Premier Frost Visits Guelph

Guelph, May 31 — (CP)—Premier Frost faced an active day's program at Guelph arrived in Guelph today to officiate at the cornerstone laying for the city's new $1,750,000 general hospital. The ceremony will take place this afternoon.

The premier, paying his first official visit to Guelph since assuming office, inspected two of Guelph's largest provincial institutions. He started a tour of the Ontario Reformatory buildings this morning and planned a similar visit to the Ontario Agricultural College this afternoon.

One of the highlights of his visit was a luncheon at the O. A. C. where Mr. Frost was scheduled to be received by Dr. W. R. Reek, president of the College and members of the faculty. Agriculture Minister Kennedy and Hon. W. E. Hanna, Minister of Reform Institutions, accompanied the premier.

Long Beach, Calif., May 31 — (AP) — Here's a man who figures to be pretty busy:

An introduction service told police Tuesday a burglar had taken its entire file of 1,000 lonely women's names, addresses, telephone numbers, physical specifications and income.

Everybody Starts A-Crying in Shop

Raleigh, N. C., May 31 — (AP) — The janitor slammed a door and everyone started crying Tuesday at a hardware store here.

When the safe door clanged shut, it broke a bottle of tear gas which protects the safe. The fumes quickly spread through the store. Except for tearful eyes, no one was hurt.

TRAINER OF R.C.A.F. RESERVE VETERANS

This Chipmunk trainer, entirely Canadian designed and built, is to be used by the R.C.A.F. in a newly adopted scheme for refresher training of R.C.A.F. veterans. Six hundred veterans of wartime service will annually will receive ground school and flying training in this fully aerobatic aircraft. The Chipmunk is radio equipped and has a complete instrument panel. — Central Press Canadian.

Air Force Plans Pool Of 600 Reserve Pilots

Ottawa, May 31 (CP) — Canada's air force today launched a drive to fill in its reserve ranks with 600 trained pilots a year to be used as flying instructors or staff pilots in the event of a national emergency.

In its drive for manpower, the R.C.A.F. offered to give a bonus of $100 to each air force veteran chosen to undertake the training and completing 20 hours of ground-school work and 20 hours in the air.

To get the scheme under way, the air force said it was purchasing 37 two-seater chipmunk aircraft, four of which will be placed in reserve and the remainder distributed to Canadian flying clubs.

These clubs, located across the country, will be the key factors in the training scheme, which is hoped will be continued year after year as long as there is manpower available to take the course.

"Those who successfully complete one year's training and repeat the program in following years as long as they continue to meet age and medical requirements," the R.C.A.F. said.

The training plan will be open to selected R.C.A.F. veterans who hold pilot's wings and are fit for general flying duties. No definite decision has been made as to the top age limit, but the R.C.A.F. said it expected that the age ceiling will be about 30.

The scheme complements, but does not duplicate, the air force's auxiliary squadron program," the R.C.A.F. said.

This program is aimed at maintaining a pool of flying personnel at near-operational training standards, to be brought into the general active pool at a moment's notice in the event of war.

But for the present, these reserve pilots — expected to grow at the rate of about 600 a year, can be made available—will "serve as instructors or staff pilots if required."

Training will begin this summer and preference will be given veterans who live near one of the participating flying clubs. Those the air force feels would be suitable to undertake the training will ge "full information" by mail and the air force emphasized that veterans should wait for these letters rather than write to headquarters for details of the plan.

Amendment Will Limit Powers Justice of Peace

Ottawa, May 31 (CP)—Justice Minister Garson Tuesday accepted in the Commons an opposition amendment limiting the powers of a Justice of the Peace to remand an accused considered to be mentally ill.

The amendment was proposed by Dr. W. G. Blair (PC—Lanark), well-known Ontario surgeon. During study of a bill making several changes to the criminal code, he noted a section giving a Justice of the Peace power to remand an accused, believed to be mentally ill, for a 30-day observation period.

Dr. Blair argued that this was too great a power to place in the hands of a Justice of the Peace. Under his amendment, promptly accepted by Mr. Garson, a Justice of the Peace may remand an accused for a 30-day observation period when his own opinion is supported by the evidence of at least one competent medical practitioner.

Before the bill was adopted, Mr. Garson changed from May 1 to July 1 the date on which the changes to the code will become effective.

NO INCREASE THIS YEAR

Toronto, May 31 — (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum assured Toronto tram-riders Tuesday night that street car fares will not be increased this year.

But a boost in rates will be inevitable some time in the future if the Toronto Transportation Commission's reserves continue to be tapped at the present rate, he said.

He was commenting on a statement by William C. McBrien, chairman of the T.T.C. who said that the present rate—four tickets for 25 cents—would be increased. McBrien did not say how large the increase would be.

Mayor McCallum said the publicly-owned street railway is operating at a loss, and is dipping into reserves built up over past years.

Two Robbers Rifle Bank Of $2,800

Montreal, May 31 (CP)— Even as police combed the Laurentian area for last Thursday's mankilling, would-be bank bandit, two robbers rifled a Banque Provinciale branch of some $2,800 at gunpoint here Tuesday and fled.

About 10 customers were in the bank at the time, along with the staff. The holdup was carried out so quietly and quickly, the bandits escaping with the loot in line at the wicket, that few of the customers realized a holdup was in progress until the men dashed from the bank.

Meanwhile detectives searched the area around Lac Brule, 30 miles northwest of here, after receiving a tip on a man answering the description of the desperado who attempted to hold up the midtown Bank of Toronto and killed an RCMP guard last week.

Would be Playing Into Hands of Reds

Ottawa, May 31 — (CP) —Solicitor-General Lapointe said Tuesday night the federal government would be playing into the hands of communists if it outlawed communism in Canada. He made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery over the CBC French network on free time provided for political broadcasts.

FORMOSA SAFE AT PRESENT

Taipei, Formosa, May 3—(AP) — Chiang Kae-Shek said today Formosa is safe from immediate Chinese communist invasion unless Russia gives the Reds "extensive help."

Nationalist China's president said at a press conference that Formosa's "defensive strength is steadily growing." He said the withdrawal from Hainan added 60,000 troops and retreat from Chuahan 150,000.

Brewing Deplores Use of Alcohol

London, Ont., May 31 (CP)—Increased use of alcoholic beverages was deplored here Tuesday night by Right Rev. Willard Brewing of Toronto, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, in addressing a joint jubilee and ordination service held in connection with annual London conference sessions.

Dr. Brewing suggested it was time the church recognized the difference between authority and power.—"we discover Dag wherever a church has striven for authority, it has lost its Christian power."

Six young men were ordained into the ministery by Rev. D. D. Gaynor of Woodstock, retiring conference president.

They included:

Donald Ross Fraser, Walter's Falls, Ont.; W. E. F. Leighfield, Inverary, Ont.

Fraser was a publisher service for the Rev. J. E. J. Millyard, London; T. E. Sawyer, Vicoria, B.C.; Rev. Jas. L. Toll, London, and Rev. A. E. Lloyd, St. Thomas, Ont., all members of London Conference, and all ordinands in a ceremony at St. Marys in June, 1900. Rev. Mr. Millyard, a gift arrived from a former charge, George Street church, Peterborough.

NEGRO YOUTHS BATTLE

New York, May 31 —(AP) — Brawling gangs of teen-aged Brooklyn (Negro) youths fought Tuesday with guns and fists, sending Memorial Day parade crowds scattering in panic before them.

Two gangs staged a running "zip gun" battle in a Brooklyn park amid crowds returning from a parade.

After police broke it up the two gangs, joined by a third, resumed their battle in Prospect Park, military formations and all, and bowling over strollers and sun-bathers in their path.

Two of the gang members suffered slight bullet wounds. More than a score were arrested.

Frost Says He Can be Reached At Anytime

Toronto, May 31. (CP)—Premier Leslie Frost said Tuesday he can be reached at home or at his office anytime, either by telephone or by personal visit.

Replying to a complaint by Mayor George Wenige of London, Ont., that he had been unable to contact Mr. Frost by telephone for the last three weeks, the Premier said he had been on a 10-day fishing trip.

He reserved comment on Mayor Wenige's proposal that a conference be held on provincial financial aid for a proposed municipa coliseum in London.

London is seeking both federa and provincial aid in paying for the coliseum, to cost $1,400,000. London ratepayers have voted expenditure of $1,000,000. The Dominion has refused to consider financial assistance until the province makes a definite commitment.

Facing of Results Of Flood Beginning

Ottawa, May 31 — (CP)—Justice Minister Garson said Tuesday night that while the crisis of the Manitoba flood now has passed effects were not yet over for a large number of his fellow Manitobans. "For them the flood is not over," said Mr. Garson. "The facing of its consequences is just beginning." He spoke over a CBC Trans-Canada network on free time provided for political broadcasting.

ANTI-RED

Police set up loudspeakers and urged the youths to take the medical examinations which German officials of the Schleswig-Holstein state had ordered to prevent spread of disease.

Communists from Luebeck tried to negotiate with the police to let the youths cross the border without the examination. When police pointed out they were acting under instructions from the State Ministry of Interior, the erstwhile negotiations declared the western action was "provocation."

Anti-Reds Win

Rioting started Tuesday night at Helmstedt when lack of transport temporarily stranded the pro-Red youths there and sent them toward restaurants and taverns, singing their communist marching song.

Townspeople out in droves responded with Germany's old anthem "Deutschland Ueber Alles". Then fisticuffs followed. The anti-Reds won.

City police said the rioting stopped at midnight and that all but a few strangers apparently managed to leave the city by bus or train or on foot.

No serious injuries were reported.

HOUSE REJECTS

Earlier by a count of 121 to 49, the Chamber defeated a Social Credit amendment which would have substituted "control" of expenditures for the "reduction" of expenditures proposed in the Progressive Conservative motion.

After conclusion of the debate carried on intermittently since April 28, members then said aye to the study of legislation.

Two Bills Debated

Two private bills were defeated at the night sitting.

Members voted 98 to 45 against a bill sponsored by Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) which would have provided for a voluntary revocable check-off of union dues under the federal Labor code.

A few minutes later they defeated by a vote of 147 to 14 a bill proposed by J. W. Noseworthy (CCF—York South) aimed at empowering the Canada Labor Relations Board to enforce reinstatement and compensation for an employee discharged contrary to the Labor code.

At House opening, Finance Minister Abbott said the government had decided against amending the Income Tax Act to cover contributions made for the relief of Manitoba Flood Victims. At present income-tax exemptions on charitable contributions are limited to five per cent of the income of corporations and 10 per cent of the income of individuals. The exemption rates will not be changed.

In closing the debate on his Royal Commission motion, George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said there were great possibilities for the reduction of expenditures without reducing essential services. A United States Commission had recommended ways in which the government of that country could save up to $5,000,000,000 a year.

Publicity Mentioned

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said his party could not accept the Progressive Conservative motion because it did not believe that parliament should refer responsibilities to a Royal Commission. But the C.C.F. party did believe that public expenditures should be subject to economy and efficiency.

Mrs. Drew mentioned publicity as one of the things on which the government could save money. The government had 358 publicity experts attached to various departments at a cost of $1,275,508. But that amount did not cover the cost of the publicity.

He mentioned other places in which savings might be made. In the last year before the war, the government was spending $6,000,000 a year on supplies and materials. It now was spending $78,000,000. Printing and stationery costs had jumped from $2,382,901 in pre-war years to $14,725,572.

Expenditures on the purchase and construction of buildings were up from $35,830,885 to $168,575,705. Maintenance and repairs of buildings had increased from $3,664,000 to $33,551,000. Freight, express and cartage charges were $639,000 against $6,746,457. Travel and transportation costs had risen from $4,742,206 to $22,744,354. Telephone, telegraph and postage charges were up from $960,248 to $8,595,943.

Mr. Drew said he did not believe that the business of government had expanded so much as to warrant such increases in costs.

HOWE EXPECTS

Mr. Howe read a brief statement to members at the opening of the Commons. He elaborated later during a debate on a resolution to a bill extending the life of the Canadian wheat board, sole marketing agency for wheat and coarse grains, to Aug. 1, 1952. The resolution was adopted and the bill introduced and given first reading.

Express Disappointment

During the debate, opposition members were quick to express their disappointment of the announcement.

John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said western farmers had been told for five years how beneficial it would be for them to sell wheat to the U.K. at less than world prices during the period of the contract.

They had lost upwards of $600,000,000, and now instead of an assured market, the government was offering them hope that the United Kingdom will take between 100,000,000 and 120,000,000 bushels in the coming crop year.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, also expressed disappointment that the contract was not being renewed. Farmers had been told that if the cost of production increased during the period of the contract they would be compensated. This had not been done.

Mr. Howe noted that some members of the C.C.F. were disappointed because he did not bring back a new wheat contract with the United Kingdom when he returned from London. That was not his feeling, nor was it the feeling of the wheat board.

Britain had indicated she would buy a substantial amount of wheat from Canada, through the framework of an international agreement, and that was a "valuable" concession. She could have bought it elsewhere.

Brewers' Team Easily Defeats Point Anne 15-1

Herbie Henn's Brewer's Warehouse team served notice on the rest of the Commercial Softball loop last evening that they are a team to beat for the Wishing Well Trophy and the league championship as they shellacked Point Anne Cementmen 15-1 at the Alamite Field.

Point Anne, back to the softball wars after a long layoff received their baptism of fire in no uncertain terms as Manager Henn threw in fourteen men to complete the conquest.

The power - packed Brewers scored in every inning but the fifth as Rex Young coasted to his first victory. Some sensational fielding including two magnificent running catches by right-fielder John Hurrie kept the Pt. Anne team to four hits and a single run.

Glen Young batted in the first run for Brewers in the first inning by doubling home Barriage, who had singled. Brewers added four more in the second on three singles, four Point Anne errors and a walk and added another in the third on a single, a passed ball and an error.

Smashes Homer

Glen Young smashed out a home run to lead off the fourth for the only run of the inning. Brewers were blanked in the fifth but came back in the sixth on three walks and two singles to count three more runs. Two singles and three errors gave Brewers two more tallies in the seventh. In the eighth more errors let in two runs. Two singles in the ninth produced an untainted run for Brewers' final tally.

Point Anne scored their lone run of the game in the fifth inning. Bruce Sword led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Finlan. Pat Maracle singled Sword home.

Maracle started on the hill for the Cementmen and was given poor support by his mates. He was tagged for ten hits, six walks and ten runs in the six innings he toiled. He was replaced by Jim Hunter who walked none, struck out one, and gave up six hits for five runs over the rest of the route.

Worked Seven Frames

Rex Young worked seven innings for Brewers to claim the win. He walked one, struck out six, and gave up three hits for one run. He was relieved by Lum Carson who toiled the last two frames giving up one hit, no walks and no runs.

Best at the plate for the winners was Jim Barriage with three hits in four tries, and Glen Young with a double, a home run, and a single in five trips.

Batting—Duke Snider, Dodgers: Walloped three successive homers and missed a fourth by four feet to lead Brooklyn to a 6-4 second game triumph over Philadelphia Phillies. The Dodgers also won the opener 7-6 in 10 innings.

Pitching—Bob Lemon, Indians: Shut out the Tigers 4-0 on seven hits as the Indians divided a twin bill with Detroit. The Tigers won the second game 5-2.

Loss of everything they own is faced by this Manitoba family of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Martin and Richard, 6, Dennis, 4, and Lucila, one month. They had purchased a lot at Glossonian Heights, Winnipeg, and had $12,000 worth of material, machinery and equipment for a retail garage, all of which was engulfed in the flood waters when the family was rescued by boat. Such cases will be aided by the Manitoba Flood Relief Fund, for which contributions can be paid into any bank.

The Japanese pleaded (innocent to charges of assault and disobeying occupation orders. They face prison terms up to 10 years and fines up to $208.

Prosecutors said an effort would be made to complete the trial before nightfall.

Tuesday's incident was the first violent outbreak of the occupation against American troops.

Three of the five U.S. soldiers attacked by Japanese at the Imperial Plaza were knocked to the ground, beaten, kicked and stoned, the court was told.

Staggering Death Toll on Memorial Day Holiday

Chicago, May 31 — (CP) — The United States today counted a staggering record death toll — far above the 500 mark — from violent deaths over the four-day memorial Day week-end.

Millions turned to the highways for the season's first outing and traffic fatalities set a record for the holiday.

A country - wide survey showed 547 violent deaths. There were 330 persons killed in traffic accidents; 92 persons drowned and 125 others lost their lives in a variety of violent accidents. These included airplane crashes, fires, falls, explosions and other mishaps.

The four-day total compared to last year's three-day Memorial Day unofficial figure of 413 violent deaths.

The National Safety Council said this year's traffic toll was a record for Memorial Day but the previous high was not disclosed.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

DON'T MISS IT!

Seems as though these Toronto Maple Leafs (hockey, that is) are cocky bunch of veteran-youngsters. They've raided the ranks of softball and are talking on all corners, even their winter fiendists from Montreal. Be that as it may. The big sports spectacle for the current month as far as softball is concerned is the classic scheduled for Wednesday, June 14 between Turk Broda and his Leaflan All-Stars and the best the local Commercial League can produce. Advance reports state the Leafs are nobody's fools when it comes to smacking the big ball around a diamond and the game here should be one for the book. Latest info is that Bill Ezinicki who Jimmy Thompson drives a mean ball down a golf fairway will be here with the Broda squad along with other internationally famous puck-chasers of the Leafs. Tickets are now on sale at Bill Cook's Cigar Store and Jack McNab's Sports Centre, Belleville.

A GOOD SHOW

With clever Jimmy Wise, 123 pounds of the Police Athletic Club, Brockville and Maxie Malez, 120 pounds of the Diamond Athletic Club, Toronto, slated for the main bout the boxing show scheduled for the Armouries Saturday night looks like a must for the faithful. Males are rated tops in their class and the main event should be an action-packed affair. In the semi-final Dick (Fargo Express) St. Louis, Trenton RCAF clashes with Gene Powers, Diamond A. C., Toronto and these two should make the fur fly. Eight other bouts round out a highly attractive card and there shouldn't be a dull moment after the opening gong.

Topflight officials have been secured for the card with Sergeant Hub Smith, 6 R. D. Trenton and Sergt. Frank Smith, Kingston Army wheeled as the third men in the ring. Lieut. Roy Windover, RCN (R) will act as master of ceremonies. Judges are Brett Wells and Captain O. Chant (army), and Eddie Lee, well-known ring authority will take care of the timing devices.

F. R. T.: — The three-foot rule is a new regulation in softball this season. This rule requires a player to run between the base line and the three-foot line (at first base) when she is batting or thrown at first. Please note that the rule is operative only when there is a throw at first. (Rule 7A and Rule 48, section 6).

Something of a sensational wrestling feature has been signed for Friday night at the Memorial Arena. Yukon Eric, the ambling Aleutian, the amazing Alaskan, 56-inch chest and all, will meet Rapid Roy Filmer, the human dynamo, the St. Louis bundle of raw, jet-propelled and all.

It should be quite an interesting sight to see the non-stop, ever-burrowing, flying Filmer doing his dipsy-do's around and about the impenetrable, stolid, stubborn, unperturbed stony man from the lumber camps of the north woods.

The ponderous Yukon holds no threat for the dynamic Villmer. "The bigger they come, the harder they fall" is his slogan and anyone that can pick up H Lee's 286 pounds, whirl him in midair and dash him to the canvas, has more than passing ability. Villmer's terrific drive, he hopes will ward off the threat of the Alaskan Gargantua, but Yukon is not alarmed over the outcome. He has beaten better men than Villmer, is his boast, and he'll be out to prove that fact Friday night.

On the semi-final, Ray McClarity, of Winnipeg, will take on Tear Morgan, with Bill Stack tackling Al "Krusher" Korman in the first match.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, May 31 — (AP) — Since the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission has refused to string along with the National Boxing Association and Jake Lamotta, it appears that the middleweight boxing class is back to normal - - - Ever since Bob Fitzsimmons claimed the title while fighting heavyweights, there has been an argument after another as to the championship of that division - - - Tony Zale finally got it down to one man in 1941; but now Pennsylvania insist calling next week's Ray Robinson-Jimmy Villemain scrap a middleweight title bout while the N.B.A. wants to give Lamotta one more chance - - - Apparently the N.B.A. is a governing body only as long as it doesn't touch anyone's pocketbook - - -

Big Splash

The Hialeah racetrack, which uses its racing strip for a vege-table garden every summer, has added watermelons to its usual crops of okra, cow peas, cucumbers, corn and beans this year - - - When the melons are ripe, the publicity department is planning a "water-melon derby" with young Seminole Indians attempting to show a burst of speed in eating a melon - - - That undoubtedly will be the nearest the Seminoles ever get to water.

Cleaning the Cuff

Philadelphia's last Thursday the roller derby drew a $4,800 gate, Saturday it did more than $7,000. The Friday performance had to be omitted because there was a boxing show scheduled at the arena - - - The fights drew $37 - - - That probably proves nothing except that Philadelphians prefer their fighting without gloves.

Memorial Day a Nightmare For Major Loop Hurlers, Given Worst Pounding in History

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

United States Memorial Day, 1950, will long be remembered by 83 punch-drunk pitchers who were pounded for 40 home runs and shelled for 191 runs Tuesday as the hitters went on the biggest single day batting rampage in baseball history.

An aggregate paid attendance of 284,326 who sat in on the doubleheader massacres at the eight big league ball parks saw the following records smashed:

1. Most home runs in both leagues on the same day — 40.

2. Most runs scored in both leagues on the same day—191.

3. Most hits made in both leagues on the same day—333.

4. Most pitchers used in both leagues on the same day—83.

5. Most batters to hit in the National League in one day—24.

When the smoke cleared away it was found the New York Yankees whipped Boston Red Sox twice 11-5 and 5-3 to increase their American League lead to three games over Detroit Tigers. Detroit divided a pair with Cleveland, winning the second game 5-2 after the Indians won the first 4-0.

Brooklyn replaced Philadelphia at the top in the National League, thrashing the Phils twice 7-6 in 10 innings and 6-5. St. Louis Cardinals also swept past the Phils, moving into second place a game behind Brooklyn by trouncing Pittsburgh twice 17-13 and 8-5.

Pity the Pitchers

Chicago's White Sox pounded out a double victory over St. Louis Browns 14-2 and 12-5. Philadelphia's Athletics defeated Washington 5-1 and the Senators won the opener 4-3, in the National Boston beat New York 7-3 in the opener, but the Giants came back to win the nightcap 10-3. Cincinnati and Chicago also split. The Reds won the first 4-1 and the Cubs took the second 7-4.

Pity the poor pitchers. When they weren't throwing home run balls, they dazzled the fine cuts past their ears, they were handing out free tickets to first base. In all they walked 160 batters, an average of 10 per game.

In all, only eight of the 32 starters were still around at the finish. Cleveland's Bob Lemon hurled the only shutout, a seven-hit affair.

Thirteen players slammed the 40 homers which topped the previous high of 34 set in 15 games June 13, 1937. Duke Snider slammed three successive round-trippers for the Dodgers. All came in the second game. The outfielder missed by four feet hitting four homers in a row. He got a single on a line drive just below the top of the right field screen.

A thirty-hit double barrelled attack by the Cards enabled pitcher Gerry Staley to gain the unusual distinction of winning 2 games in one day. Both came in relief roles.

Weston, Ont., May 31 — (CP)— Peterborough Peles defeated Weston Indians 12-5 in Senior Ontario Lacosse Association game Tuesday night, moving into a three-way tie for the lead with Brampton and St. Catharines.

Don Ashton, who played with Owen Sound last summer, scored five goals for Peterborough. Arnold Dugan scored three and Bob Thorpe two. Vince Reddy, with three, and Ted Downer did all the Weston scoring.

B.C. All-Stars Hold Touring British to Tie

(By The Canadian Press)

British Columbia All-Stars made Canadian soccer history Tuesday night when they held the touring England Football Association team to a 4-4 draw in Vancouver. It was the first time a United Kingdom club had ever played a Canadian squad without scoring a victory.

The tourists had to come from behind twice to avert defeat, scoring two of their goals on penalty kicks. Little Johnny Hancocks, the best player on the field, scored all four goals for England.

England's passing appeared off, hampering the efficiveness of Stanley Matthews, their top-ranking star, on the right wing. Brilliant goalkeeping by B.C.'s Bob Newbold also helped to thwart the visitors in check.

Greig's second goal, which put the All-Stars ahead 4-3, appeared to disorganize the English team and only a penalty kick by Hancocks with five minutes left enabled them to save their draw.

The English football team had plenty of praise Tuesday night for the British Columbia All-Star squad which held them to an exhibition draw.

"As fast we've found some opposition," said star forward Stan Matthews. "It's the best football we've seen in Canada."

Fred, a chestnut colt with the speed of his father, displayed plenty of it Tuesday as he won the $25,000 Jersey Stakes by a nose over Greek Song at Garden State Park, Camden, N.J.

Fred, the Son of Lochnivar, picked up $21,850 for Mrs. Andy Crevolin. He awarded 8-5 backers in the crowd of 35,651 at $9.80, $5.40 and $4.80.

Stanley Matthews, starry outside right of Blackpool and halfback Billy Wright of Arsenal have been chosen to play for England's British Commonwealth in the World Soccer Series at Rio de Janeiro. Word of their selection came to them at Vancouver.

The two English aces will fly to Rio. The World Series starts in mid-June.

Banging of Sticks On the Boards Stopped by NHL

Montreal, May 31 (CP)— The National Hockey League governors moved Tuesday to put a stop to banging of sticks on the boards by players.

The usual offenders are players seated on the bench who break out with a clatter and banging of sticks in protest against a referee's decision or in jubilation over a goal or save.

Hereafter the stick-banger will get an automatic 10-minute misconduct penalty. If the referee can't determine the culprit he will order the team's coach to name a man to sit out a two-minute minor penalty.

The governors felt the practice has gone beyond all reason and has become a means of organized protest over decisions and an altogether undesirable show.

Suggestions to change the delayed-penalty rule so that no fewer than five players to a team will be on the ice at any time were rejected. The present minimum is four.

The Pacific Coast Hockey League has already decided to establish the five-man minimum. The N.H.L. moguls decided they will wait and see how the change works out in the P.C.H.L.

agreement among all professional leagues to make 18, instead of 16 as at present, the minimum age for signing youngsters to any form of contract or agreement was left unsettled. The N.H.L. itself is in favor of the change and further deliberations with other leagues will be carried out.

The governors, in their 33rd annual meeting, gave formal approval to continuing the 70-game schedule, increased last season from 60. The season will open Oct. 11 although the full schedule has not yet been approved.

The All-Star game will be played in Detroit Oct. 7, and Lynn Patrick, who recently resigned as coach of New York Rangers, will be invited to handle the All-Star squad in the annual match against the Stanley Cup winners —Detroit Red Wings this time.

Five Red Wing players selected to the league's first and second all-star teams will line up with their own club and not with the All-Stars squad. They are Sid Abel, Ted Lindsay, Leo Reise, Red Kelly and Gordie Howe.

Art Ross, who was succeeded two years ago as NHL governor for the Boston club, returns to his governorship post replacing Weston Adams who took over from Ross.

Johnny Parsons Wins Abbreviated Speedway Race

Indianapolis, May 31— (AP) — It was top billing for Johnny Parsons in the automobile racing world today.

The wartime child Vaudeville star added the 500-mile Memorial Day race victory Tuesday to his 1949 National Driving championship.

The slender pilot from Van Nuys, Calif., got an assist from a rainstorm that stopped the contest at 345 miles before a crowd of 150,000. But he had driven that far faster than any car had travelled in 33 previous "500s."

Drivers and owners will get their winnings at the annual victory dinner tonight.

They will split $185,000 Parsons is expected to pull down about $50,000.

The speedway management guarantees $75,000 and adds to that on the basis of attendance. Last year it put up $110,000. Added to that are lap prizes of $100 a lap and the various accessory awards.

Parsons and Mauri Rose of South Bend, Ind., three-time winner, swapped the lead four times in the first 225 miles.

It was only the second Indianapolis race for Parsons, who ran second last year to Bill Holland of Reading, Pa. Parson's speed was 124.002 miles an hour for the distance although the caution light slowed the field to 90 miles an hour for nearly five minutes after the rain started.

It took nine hours for the American Automobile Association to determine who was second.

Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park, Ill., had been given the runner-up spot on the unofficial figures, but the official report took a lap away from him and dropped him in the fifth.

The revision moved Holland in-

Six-Player Trade With White Sox By Washington

Washington, May 31 — (AP)— Clark Griffith, wants to keep his Washington Senators in or near the American League's first division and he thinks "a young infield combination" will do the trick.

"Bucky Harris wanted Cass Michaels for second base and I went out and got him," was Griffith's explanation of the six-player trade with Chicago White Sox announced Tuesday night.

to second, giving him three seconds and a championship in four tries.

The recheck also placed Rose in third place, ahead of Cecil Green of Houston, Tex., by 99-100 of a second. Rose had been ranked unofficially in fifth, behind Green.

In St. Louis, Frank Lane, general manager of the White Sox, called it a $600,000 deal—$300,000 on each side based on current player values."

Inability of White Sox right-handed pitchers to win this year was one of the main factors in Lane's bid for Scarborough.

The Senator infield will line up tomorrow with Irv Noren at first base, Michaels at second, Sam Dente at shortstop and Eddie Yost at third.

Noren, whom the Senators bought from Brooklyn's Hollywood farm club in the Pacific Coast League last winter for $70,000, had been the regular centerfielder until he entered hospital earlier this month for an appendicitis operation. He was a first baseman before he became an outfielder.

This new alignment adds up to one of the youngest infields in the majors. Noren is 24, Michaels 24, Dente 27 and Yost 23.

Robinson, 32-year-old first baseman, this spring has been hitting close to the .300 mark for Washington. Last season he hit .294 and was in 26 home runs.

Griff feels that Michaels with a .309 average last year and .309 so far this season, will offset Robinson's power at the plate.

"Kuzava and Scarborough are about even," he continued. "Kuzava with a 10-6 record last year was about as good as Scarborough who won 13 and lost 11."

PENETRATE HIDES OF PEOPLE'

Hamilton, May 30 — (CP) — The biggest job facing secular and spiritual authorities was "to keep on penetrating into the hides of the people," Mayor Lloyd Jackson today told the Hamilton Conference of the United Church of Canada.

Celebrating the 25th anniversary of the United Church of Canada, the Hamilton Conference assembled at McMaster University. The mayor welcomed ministers and laymen on behalf of the city.

The mayor said that in his position of responsibility he felt much like a pastor and so felt he had much in common with ministers.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

To settle an argument, set out your hand you have here:

♠ 10 6 4 2
♥ 9 8 5
♦ 10 8 4
♣ 7 4 2

It seems that east was the dealer and passed. South opened with one spade and west doubled. North passed and so did east. South also passed and played the contract at one spade doubled. The argument, of course, revolves around the east pass of the double. East admits that she could have bid something if the first double was for takeout. But she claims the west double was a penalty double.

The double is for takeout if (1) it is at the first opportunity, (2) the bid is not more than three in a suit, and (3) partner has not yet bid or doubled. East admitted knowing all this.

But her contention was that (3) told her she could pass. Part (3) says it was a takeout double if partner had not yet bid. And she had bid by passing when it was her first chance as dealer.

In this contention east is absolutely wrong. A pass is not a bid. It is a call of some kind. But it is not a bid. A bid contains a number and a denomination. Therefore, a pass is not a bid.

So the west double was for takeout. Whether or not the east player liked it, east should bid something. Unless north had come in with an intervening bid, east is forced to bid.

In this case what would east bid? Follow the order of choice: Unbid major if at least four cards, no-trump with two stoppers, unbid minor of at least four cards, lowest ranking unbid suit.

Lacking any of the first three, east falls back on the four and last choice; two clubs. Even if the clubs are not biddable. Even if the clubs have less than four cards.

Will two clubs be defeated? I dunno. But if it is, the loss will not be as great as south will make at a doubled one heart bid. A bid of two clubs here is the least of all evils.

AT THE McCARTHY
"Three Came Home"

Twentieth Century - Fox has achieved a portrait of a woman's anguish and a woman's courage that will live on in the minds of those who see it for a long time to come. The picture is Agnes Newton Keith's autobiographical story, "Three Came Home," and it opened Today at the McCarthy Theatre. With Claudette Colbert to portray Mrs. Keith herself in that celebrated actress' most impressive of characterizations, with a magnificent show-stealing performance by the great Japanese actor Sessue Hayakawa, with the brilliant control of the director Jean Negulesco and the producer Nunnally Johnson (who also wrote the screenplay) every-where in evidence, and with the personal supervision of studio chief Darryl F. Zanuck, "Three Came Home," can hardly fail to score heavily.

"Three Came Home" has the taste to deal with utter simplicity and utmost sincerity in the tragedy that befalls a small, closely-knit family unit living in Borneo just before the outbreak of the Pacific War. Harry Keith, a British Colonial Official, urges his American-born wife to return to the States and escape the impending conflict, but she elects to stay devotedly by her husband's side. When Japan strikes, Mrs. Keith and their small son George are sent to one prison compound, Harry Keith to another. Then begin agonizing trials and unappeased longings. The war and the struggle for life as seen through the eyes of a loving family unit are far more affecting than when viewed in the terms of the battle.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating dinner, being last chickin for a change, and I said to pop, Oh William, you're got the wish bone, I'll wish on it with you.

You and Benny wish on it, pop said. I've learned I have to work for my wishes, he said, and ma said, Now William, dont be prejudiced, People have been wishing on wish bones for hundreds of years, so there must be something behind it, she said.

Then I take a chickin behind it, I'll admit that much, pop said, and ma said, It was on your plate, so you're in duty bound to wish on it, that's the unwritten law. Whoever was served the wish bone has to be one of the wishing parties, or the charm is broken. And remember, William, if you get the biggest half, you must not tell what you wished or it wont come true, because that brakes the charm too, she said.

We're off, pop said.

And he held out the wish bone and me took the other end, and the biggest piece broke off in ma's hand, and she said, I win. So you can tell me what you wished, William, because yours doesn't matter now, she said,

Well, my dear, I wished that your wish would be granted, pop said, and ma said, Why William how nice of you. Just for that I'll tell you my wish, too. THE SHOW'S OVER — FOR THE PRESENT

Gathered to hear their leaders in East Berlin deride the "warmongering Imperialists" of the West, these German youths found it wet and cold in their shorts and shirts. From the East, the Western Sector looked formidably armed with planes, tanks and side-armed riflemen. — Central Press Canadian.

Winding up their three-day rally, East Germany's communist youth parade arrogantly through Berlin streets drawing a few cheers but more often silence. They made no attempt to invade the heavily armed West Sector areas. — Central Press Canadian.

TO REGULATE HUNTING

Quebec, May 31 (CP)— The problem of regulating hunting and fishing activities of sportsmen who use airplanes will be discussed at a Fish and Game conference June 15-16.

Federal Government representatives will discuss legislation with provincial representatives as well as delegates from the United States and Mexico.

Charles Fremont, Quebec Superintendent of Game and Fisheries, a delegate, said Tuesday that plane facilities now available to sportsmen had deteriorated and conditions in remote areas which served as natural retreats for game.

By Alice Ross Colver

He said "You've come at just the right time. I happen to have a job waiting and waiting for you." Gerry's eyes gleamed. "Nice work," he said appreciately. "I might you'd see the light." The Judge leaned back in his chair and now it was his turn to look at a lambent beam.

"I saw the light, as you put it, quite some time ago. And I've been working on your case for a number of weeks. You realize, of course, that you are not in a good position because of your lack of a formal education."

"I've found that out. Bitterly."

"If you sound a trifle bitter. But after all, it's your own fault that you lack it, you know." Without waiting for Gerald to reply he went on, Steven continued. "However, what is beside the point. The point is that an opening awaits you in Lester Brandt's plant."

"Lester Brandt's plant!" Gerry gasped. Then he gave a short laugh. "That's funny. That's really very funny. That's awfully funny." His glance, sharply suspicious now, flared on the Judge's face. "What's the opening exactly?"

Steven explained, his courteous words falling in a leisurely way on the air.

"An opening that any young man—Timothy or Donald or anyone—would be glad to get. You'd learn the working of the business from the ground up. You'll be paid adequately and your job will be entirely dependent upon yourself." He paused. "If you have any idea, or can find out as soon after you've been there a short phase of the work or what department interests you the most you will probably expedite your progress."

"I can tell you right now."

"What?"

"I'm interested in the personnel department. I want to be on the other end of the hiring and firing line for a change. It would be sweet." Gerry stopped suddenly "but I don't get it."

"You don't get what?"

"Your about-face. If it's true for weeks, and you've made it sound true, I just don't get it. How come anyway?" He crushed out his half-smoked cigarette. "Or are you really making this all up?"

The Judge said, "I don't believe I can explain how come to you, I'm a little sorry. I had hoped I could. As to my making it all up—" He reached for the telephone and dialed a number. In a moment Gerry heard a voice at the other end.

"Mr. Brandt please. Judge King calling."

There was a silence. The Judge looked into the fire and Gerry looked at the Judge. Presently Gerry heard Lester's voice, its smoothness changed to sharpness after two trying days of dickering with labor leaders, yet respectful too.

"Hello?"

"Brandt? Sorry to break into your conference. How are things going by the way?"

"Yes, it takes time."

"Yes, I know. I called about Gerald Barton. You remember we've had a number of talks concerning him. He's here with me now and he would like to know when he may start work."

After a second, the answer came back. "Tomorrow if this strike is settled. If it's not, my foreman will have to call him."

"Right. That's all. Thank you and goodnight."

Quietly Steven returned the receiver to the telephone. Quietly he rose.

"Good luck, Gerald," he said putting out his hand. "This is a new beginning for you, I hope. Now it's up to you."

Gerry got to his feet. He felt confused and somewhat discomfited. "Yes," he said. "Yes." He hesitated. He still did not understand. "I suppose I should thank you."

"Not at all. This is something I wanted to do." The Judge's tone was even as he went on. "And about Frank and Alicia. I fancy their being there meant less than you thought it did. They are old friends, you know. And Audrey was aware that they were together." He smiled. "Let me hear how you make out. I'll be interested. Goodnight."

"Goodnight."

Back in his room at the Inn Gerald went over the whole interview. It was certainly puzzling However, he didn't believe some of the things the Judge had said. He most certainly didn't believe his last words about Frank and Alicia! By the look on Frank's face as he had stood there in the elevator next to her he had been thinking of something else besides just friendship.

"The old man didn't believe himself either," he thought.

Anyway, Gerry—had got what he had gone after, even if his triumph was a little less than he had expected.

Yes, he had gotten what he had gone after. He had the sure promise of a job. A job with a solid future.

He was on his way to Susan.

It was the last Friday of the Easter holidays and a party was in progress at Kings Ridge, a party that Judge King and his wife, Elizabeth, were giving in order to announce Susan's engagement to Gerald Barton. Outside the April night was warm and fragrant. Small stars twinkled down on a blossoming world. The driveway, cleanly weeded and raked, curved, up between closely clipped emerald lawns. And the great front door stood wide open in hospitable welcome.

Elizabeth moved among her guests with her blue eyes hard as cold and bright above her fixed smile. No one guessed, she was thinking. No one had any idea things had gone so far as they had between the two young people. And the pain in her heart was that some miracle might happen to prevent the broadcasting of the distasteful news. It would have to be a miracle, for nothing less would shake Susan's exultant spirit.

She saw Ella Ferguson in the distance and her heart filled with angry resentment against her. Because it was Ella and Joe who were chiefly responsible for this unpleasant crisis in the King family. Without their befriending of Gerry, without their example which half the town had followed out of sheer jealousy of Elizabeth's Nong leadership, without Joe's sermon publicly castigating the Judge, things might not have progressed to this point so soon. Oy even at all.

As it was, within two short months from the time Steven had persuaded Lester Brandt to take Gerry into his firm—and to her dying day she would never understand that action of her husband's—he had become an integral and accepted member of the community. He had joined the church—Joe and Ella again; he had joined the Country Club — Jane Baird's father had done that; he was invited everywhere for dinner.

Well, not quite everywhere, she amended, as her glance lit on Alicia. Alicia had never entertained him a second time. Even though Lester had made a place for Gerald in his plant, he was not welcomed under their roof. He must have behaved with gross ill manners that first time! Anyway, never before had Elizabeth felt so kindly toward Alicia.

But it was strange, because Alicia had started out on exactly the opposite task. Even as late as February, when she had stumbled into the Fergusons that night at dinner time, she had been helping Gerald. What had happened to change her since then? It was a mystery—but it was the kind of mystery Elizabeth enjoyed unravelling and, in sudden hopeful anticipation, she moved in Alicia's direction.

On her way she passed the Judge and Reverend Ferguson standing together in the bay window.

"It's a nice party Elizabeth," the latter said, stooping her. And then, with mischievous merriment on his ruddy apple-cheeked countenance added "Everybody is here who ought to be here."

She looked straight at him, all the fine lines in the creamy pallor of her face visible. "And for that we have you to thank," she answered crisply, and went on past him with her haughtiest air.

The Reverend turned to the Judge. "I've a feeling we will always be unforgiving, Steven."

The Judge hesitated. After a moment, he said "I would not be because time proves her right. "You disappoint me."

"I disappoint myself."

"You still aren't convinced regarding him?"

Steven's fine, scholarly face was thoughtful. He could not forget Gerry's manner the night he had charged in here like a raging bull with his new found knowledge and his threat. Not that he blamed him for using the weapon that had come to his hand. Indeed hadn't he himself, since something similar in prying an opening for the boy from Lester Brandt? It was not exactly a case in point but. . .

Anyway, it wasn't Gerry's seizing of his opportunity that troubled the Judge. It was the way he had seized it with so unconcealed coarseness, almost brutality, that had been quite shocking in effect. And further, it was the goal he had apparently set for himself—to be the "other" end of the hiring and firing line." This might be human but it was hardly admirable when touched in such a spirit. And it had seemed to the Judge that, in the school of life, Gerry was trying to skip a grade. He wasn't yet aware that a privileged position carried with it a weight of responsibility and a man had to be able to measure up to the one in order to achieve the other.

He answered finally, "I'm not wholly convinced of his soundness, his worthiness."

But there was one thing, his mind went on, for which Gerry would have his eternal gratitude. For it was his inadvertent discovery of Frank and Alicia that had restored Frank to Audrey again. The Judge had still been up, though it was long after midnight, when Frank returned home that time in February and, hearing him, Steven had gone unwillingly to meet him.

"May I speak to you?" he had asked quietly, and Frank, looking startled and guilty had followed him back to his study.

The Judge had not wasted words.

"Gerald Barton saw you tonight," he had said, without preamble, "You and Alicia. He saw you in the elevator of the hotel. He has just been here to tell me."

So many expressions had flashed across Frank's heavy solid face that Steven had been unable to decipher them all. But it had not mattered, Frank's words had been enough.
